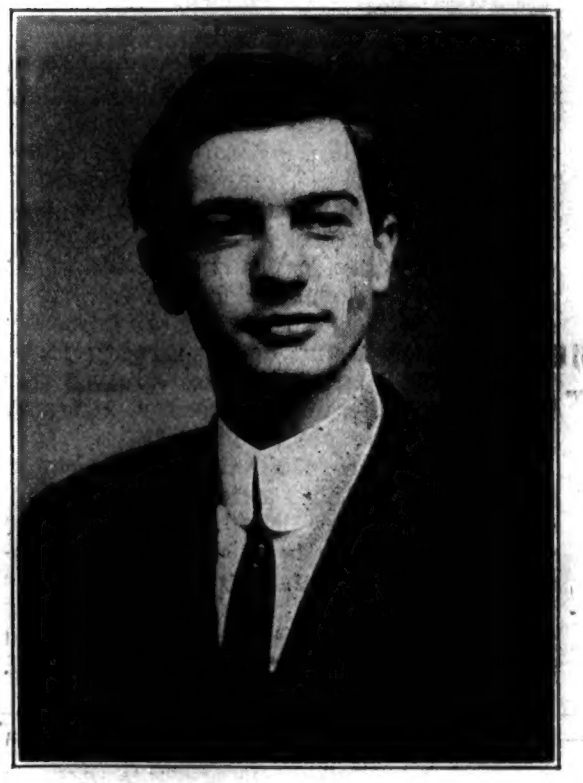
FLORISTS' REVIEW



HITTING THE PUBLIC IN THE EYE

BY

THOMAS H. JOY

Sales Manager of the JOY FLORAL CO., NASHVILLE, TENN.

"THE Beauty About Our Business Is Flowers." A number of florists throughout the country have adopted some such slogan as this, and yet when it comes to publicity they forget to employ any of the beauty of the flowers in the advertising campaign. Every florist attempts to use the most artistic arrangement possible in the sale of flowers to his customers; he calls upon the art of the potter, the frame maker and the designer, and in his own store he tries to obtain employees with artistic taste, yet when it comes to the advertising, it seems as though florists lose sight of the fact that advertising can reflect the beauty of their goods. They send to newspapers and other mediums type-set advertisements that do not have the touch of individualism that makes them stand out from the advertisements of the grocer, the butcher, or the candlestick-maker.

The Eye of Economy.

Much money can be wasted in advertising. Nowhere should the eye of economy be held so sharply as on the advertising account, and yet the advertising fund should not be stinted. My firm has found through experience that money spent in the ordinary church program and the like, or in advertising schemes presented by an irresponsible floating advertising solicitor, is usually wasted. When it is necessary, this firm donates to charitable organizations, and if, perforce, they must take a program advertisement, it is not charged so much to the advertising account as to the profit and loss account, under the item of charity.

We have found that our best advertising mediums are: First, satisfied customers; second, direct advertising in the form of personal letters; third, newspaper advertising; fourth, window displays. This general campaign is supported by various methods of advertising, such as street car cards, moving pictures, stereopticon slides, blotters, etc.

Of course, it is every florist's ambition to establish a patronage of satisfied customers. No better advertising medium is to be obtained, and courtesy and service are our best means of obtaining this patronage. For quick delivery, we have placed on the streets not only an automobile delivery, but also a motorcycle delivery car, which is attracting considerable attention. As it travels the street, its flashy red, with the firm's name on it, causes nearly everyone to look up and admire it. In all the clerks and other employees is instilled the idea that courtesy pays the firm in direct results.

Mailing Lists.

We have recently installed a multigraph machine and an addressograph machine. In each of the towns in which we have representatives, we have requested the agent to prepare a list of persons who are in the class able to purchase flowers. In our own city, we have been diligently at work trying to perfect as nearly as possible a complete mailing list. This part of the work of letter writing is most important. Much time and money can be lost in mailing letters to persons who have either moved away or died, or who are not in a position to spend money for flowers. After this list is prepared, it is our ambition to get out a neat personal letter, with some live, attractive point that will cause the reader to peruse it from beginning to end. This letter is to be followed up by a series of letters and the prospective customer is to be hammered away at until his name is entered upon our customer list. He is then, of course, handled with the idea in view of giving him entire satisfaction. We have found so far that letter writing is the cheapest and most advantageous form of advertising possible.

The trouble about most newspaper advertising, so far as the florist is concerned, is the fact that he insists upon depending on cold type to display the beauty of his wares. We have attempted to expend most of the funds of our account devoted to newspaper advertising, to attract attention to the special florists' days, such as Easter, Mothers' day, Thanksgiving, Christmas, etc. To attract special attention to our newspaper advertisements, we have employed artists to draw attractive pictures, usually of a girl, with some decorations of flowers, our name and telephone number. We have used such advertisements in page, half-page, and quarter-page spaces. It has been our experience that such an advertisement gives triple value to the space employed, and attracts the attention of many readers who would not otherwise possibly read our advertisement.

Window Displays.

Every florist knows that there is nothing so beautiful as God's gift to man, the flowers, and yet many of them fail to appreciate the fact that flowers themselves can be made to have an advertising value. Many firms allow their windows to remain undecorated from day to day; many of them lose sight of the possibilities in a beautiful window display. We have found it profitable to purchase beautiful specimens of pottery to set off the beauty of our flowers, and each morning fresh flowers are placed in the window for display. A beautiful window attracts hundreds of people to view it.

We have also found that special windows, such as the Florida scene, shown on this page, pay well. This window was made especially to put on sale hundreds of small century plants. Live baby alligators in the tank in front attracted many persons, who remained there for a long while looking at them.

At other times we have used live goldfish, and we expect this fall to make up a window of live pheasants. We have found that these special windows attract not only the attention of the traffic passing in front of our store, but also win newspaper commendation.

Newspaper Articles.

We have enlisted the services of the newspapers, not with the selfish idea of promoting the flower business of our own concern, but for the general welfare of the florists' business at large, and have had printed a number of articles in the way of reading notices and editorials regarding various phases of the flower business. For instance, editorials have recently been published in the Nashville daily papers, decrying the fad of omitting flowers at funerals; others commending the gift of flowers on Mothers' day, etc. Articles have been written and used in the local papers on beautifying the home grounds by planting flowers, on the wonders of the greenhouses, on window boxes, on the care of plants and flowers, and numerous other subjects. These have been prepared in an attractive manner in such shape that the papers were glad to receive and use them.

Using the Movies.

Supporting our general advertising campaign, we make use of novel methods of advertising as they are brought forward from time to time. Included under this head is our recent experiment in having moving pictures made of the work being done at the greenhouses. This has been done in a manner not so much to bring forward the advertising feature of the film as it is to make an artistic and scientific film of the subject, covering as many phases of flower growing as would really interest the outsider. The film we recently had manufactured was made by S. I. Conners Co., of Nashville. It was manufactured at a cost of about 50 cents per foot. This film has been displayed in local moving picture houses, in the city parks, and before academic bodies of this city. It was first made to supplement a display of the Sam Davis picture under the auspices of the United Daughters of the Confederacy. Sam Davis was a Confederate hero, and so this picture was not only displayed locally, but throughout the state. Recently a series of pictures was made of the state of Tennessee, to be displayed at the San Francisco exposition and throughout this state, in which views of various commercial firms were shown.

Besides the use of moving pictures, we have found that the display of artistic advertising slides, picturing some form of flower life, with the firm's name, address and telephone number, was also a paying method of advertising.

Street Car Cards.

Beautiful street car cards have been designed for the use of florists. We have been using a series of them in a space in every car in Nashville, and much favorable comment has been made on their beautiful appearance. We feel that this method of advertising, when combined with effective and artistic display cards, is a valuable medium.

blotter. We have found that once in a while a neat folder can also be enclosed with our statements to some advantage in the saving of postage.

In conclusion, above all things the advertising account is to be closely watched, because it is the most easily wasted. We have found it best to plan a campaign of advertising at the beginning of the year and set aside a certain amount of money to be spent, and adhere to it as strictly as possible. We have tried to make our advertising reflect the beauty of our business, by having beautiful advertising designs and something entirely different from our competitors all the time, and to keep the firm's name always as much as possible in the public eye by continually hammering away at it.

There are a number of other less important ways used to support this general advertising campaign, and each firm undoubtedly will have to meet the conditions as they exist in its locality.

TAKING COLEUS CUTTINGS.

Could coleus that is bedded out be taken up before frost and kept over winter to produce cuttings in the spring? H. A. C.—Ala.

You can lift the old coleus, but a far better plan is to take cuttings about the end of August and carry these over winter in flats or pans. Such plants will give you splendid cuttings and are, furthermore, less liable to be infested with mealy bug than the old plants.

SOWING DRACÆNA SEED.

If dracæna seed is sown now, will it be possible to produce nice, large plants for vases, etc., next spring? H. A. C.—Ala.

I presume you refer more especially to the green-leaved Dracæna australis. It will make plants in 4-inch pots for next spring. In order to secure really heavy plants, an additional year's growth would be necessary. Winter is the best time to sow seeds, but, of course, they can be started at any season.

CARNATIONS

AFTER THE BENCHING IS DONE.

Extra Plants to Fill Blanks.

After you have finished benching the carnations, about the first thing you want to do is to pot up a few plants to be used for replacing those that die here and there. Even though you may have excellent success with your newly planted stock, you will be almost certain to lose a few plants. The extra plants should be potted immediately after the completion of the benching, so they will not be too far behind those in the benches when the replanting is done, else the newly set plants will be so crowded by the earlier established plants as to make them practically worthless. A plant that is well established in a pot can be transferred to the bench without any check, and if this is done within a month after the bench is planted it will stand an equal chance with the rest. We pot into 3-inch pots if the roots will allow; otherwise 4-inch pots are used. The smaller the pot, the sooner the plant will be ready to transfer to the bench. There should not be need for more than one plant in each hundred benched, but to make sure of having enough to cover all possible loss it is advisable to pot up at least three times that many.

Scratching the Surface Soil.

As soon after planting as the soil can be got into condition to work, you should scratch over the surface, to break up the crust which has formed from the frequent watering and spraying. If the soil is tolerably rich, there will probably be a green scum on top and you must get rid of this before your plants will make any real headway. If the plants were well established, it would be an easy matter to get rid of this scum by sprinkling a little lime on the soil and scratching it in, but it is not advisable to use lime so soon after the plants have been benched. So you will have to do the next best thing, and that is to stir the surface frequently and allow it to run a little dry for a time, but exercise great care that you do not carry this to a point where the plants will suffer for water, for that will mean the loss of foliage, not a good thing for a carnation plant at any time.

A Home-made Tool.

The first time we scratch our benches we use a scratcher in which heavy wire is used for the teeth and fastened onto a piece of broom handle, somewhat after the fashion of the scratchers advertised in the supply catalogues, except that the teeth are set in one straight row. At the second scratching, which is about a week later, the men use their hands to get out all the weeds and to break up all the lumps and level the soil nicely. After that the scratchers are used again when necessary, but the soil is not worked so deeply as before, as the young rootlets will then be working up near the surface and should not be disturbed any more than necessary.

You will see buds sticking up here and there. Pick these off as fast as they appear during the first few weeks. They will produce inferior blooms on short stems, and will have practically no market value as compared with the value to the plant of the energy required to produce them. Especially is this true of the darker shades, which cannot be utilized in funeral work.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

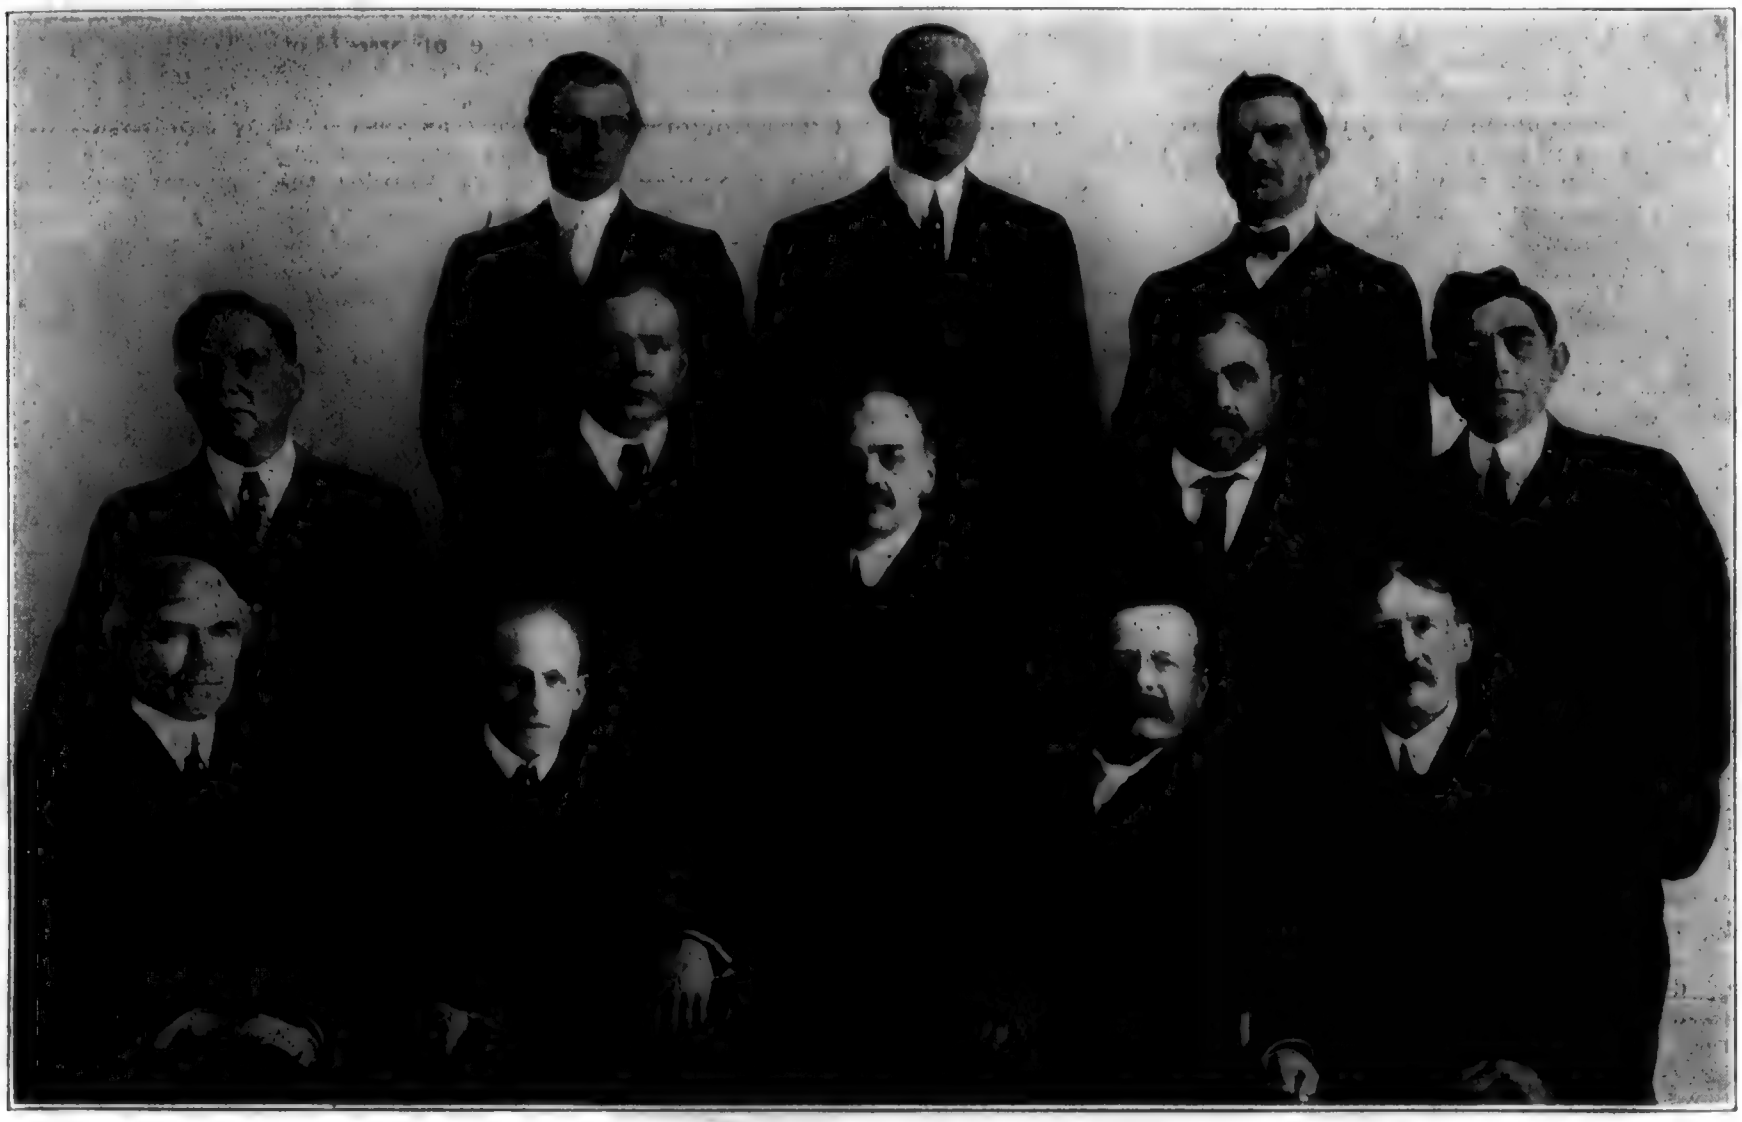
Wilmington, Mass.—The failure of J. Woodward Manning, formerly of Reading, Mass., was announced July 29. He was a nurseryman and landscape architect. Liabilities admitted were $79,547.71. Of this amount, $20,000 is a secured claim held by J. J. Bond, of Reading. There are over seventy unsecured creditors, with claims aggregating $42,150. The assets include encumbered real estate valued at $37,150 and personal property, covered by a bill of sale, valued at $5,000. The Reading Nurseries, when managed by J. W. Manning, Sr., had a high reputation in the eastern states. W. N. C.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa.—The trustee in the bankruptcy case of Ira G. Marvin will sell eight pieces of real estate belonging to Mr. Marvin, at public sale at the courthouse, Monday, August 16, at 10 a. m. Three tracts are on Pringle street, Kingston, and comprise between seven and eight acres. One of the tracts is improved with a dwelling and range of greenhouses. There is also a 50-foot lot on Wyoming avenue, Kingston, which is improved with a dwelling. The other pieces of land are in Wilkes-Barre, being several lots on Willow street. The personal property of Mr. Marvin will be sold at the Kingston premises August 17, at 10 a. m., including mainly the greenhouse stock and equipment.

THE WANAMAKER FERN.

Nephrolepis John Wanamaker sported from Nephrolepis Scholzeli at the establishment of the Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia. This was four years ago and a considerable stock has been worked up, some excellent specimen plants having been exhibited at the S. A. F. conventions both at Boston and Minneapolis. It is to be disseminated this year. Experts believe it is a fern that will win and hold a foremost place as a satisfactory house plant. The accompanying illustration shows the plant so clearly that lengthy description is not necessary.

WHITE GRUBS ON ASTERS.



Can you give me any information regarding the white grub, its origin, etc.? I have about 30,000 late branching asters, set out about June 22, and I am having trouble with them. It is not unusual to find from twenty to 100 plants affected in one day, and as many as three grubs working on a plant. I have destroyed hundreds of grubs, but still they keep on increasing. The ground was plowed early in April and was harrowed every other week until the plants were set out, and nothing has been grown in it this season except the asters. I did not use any manure when plowing, but put sheep manure on about ten days before planting. I am at a loss to know what to do to remedy this trouble.

W. E. H.—Mich.

The white grub referred to is the larva of the June bug or May beetle, Lachnosterna fusca. It is often destructive in grass land, also attacking strawberries badly. In addition, it will attack a variety of flowering plants, both outdoors and under glass. I have seen benches of roses and chrysanthemums almost entirely destroyed by this grub. A favorite place for the beetles to deposit their eggs is in clods of cow manure, and, if you find your manure alive with these grubs, either sterilize it with steam or use carbon bisulphide to suffocate them.

It will not be an easy matter to clean out the grubs from a large area of asters. I would suggest, however, that you try some carbon bisulphide, the cost of which averages 25 cents a pound at retail. Bore holes five to six inches deep and twelve to eighteen inches apart, pour a teaspoonful of carbon in each hole and at once fill it up. Any ground thus treated will be cleared of grubs, the carbon forming a suffocating gas. I would also keep the cultivator at work constantly among the plants.

In the fall plow up the land affected as soon as the asters have passed. If you have one or two hogs, they will devour an astonishing number of the pests. Poultry and birds also are fond of them. Give the soil a dressing of kainit, lime or gas lime and harrow it in. This will destroy many of the grubs. C. W.

GRAPES UNDER GLASS.

Will you kindly give me your opinion of the possibilities of growing grapes under glass, as a paying proposition? I have one house that I should like to try if you think it would pay, with the right care. J. T. W.—N. Y.

I doubt if you can make grape growing under glass a profitable proposition unless you are located in a section where you could dispose of all your fruit at retail. A considerable number of growers have tried grape culture on a commercial basis. They had no trouble in getting splendid fruit, but when it came to disposing of the fruit at wholesale, the returns were not profitable. I am acquainted with several grape growers who made some money a number of years ago, but they find the profits small now. Some have dropped them entirely. It is true that there are still a few growers of grapes under glass, but their number has a tendency to decrease rather than increase.

If you decide to go into grape growing you will find Black Hambro, Muscat of Alexandria and Gros Colman the three varieties of greatest value. At present the bulk of fruit of the last named is imported from Europe. I certainly think that if you could sell your fruit locally at retail there would be a fair profit, just as there would be in growing nectarines or melons under glass. C. W.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS FOR SOUTHERN FLORISTS

MUMS IN THE SOUTH.

This is the time when various pests, such as cutworms, caterpillars, aphis and mealy bug, are likely to appear, and close watch must be kept to prevent damage. The cutworms will be found in the surface of the soil, near the base of the plant on which they have been working. Caterpillars are best disposed of by hand-picking. Regular use of some tobacco extract will eliminate aphis. Mealy bug is not a common southern pest, but occasionally it is found and is hard to eradicate when once it gets a foothold. Hard syringing, using a spray nozzle, and biweekly spraying with kerosene emulsion, are the best remedies. Another pest which sometimes appears, especially in the gulf states, is corythucha, a sucking insect which hangs on the under side of the foliage. Spraying with kerosene emulsion will get rid of it. Frequent spraying every day from all sides of the beds is an important point of the culture for the next two months. L.

CARNATIONS IN THE SOUTH.

Housing the Plants.

The time for housing carnation plants in the south is at hand. It is a good plan, wherever possible, to have all the houses cleaned and the beds filled with soil, ready to receive the plants, before making a start at planting, so that the job can go on without a break. Some nice rains have fallen this season and the plants, in consequence, have done well in the field. There is no special advantage in planting early in July, unless in a section where the rainy season begins early, or in an unusually dry season, when the plants will make a much better growth inside.

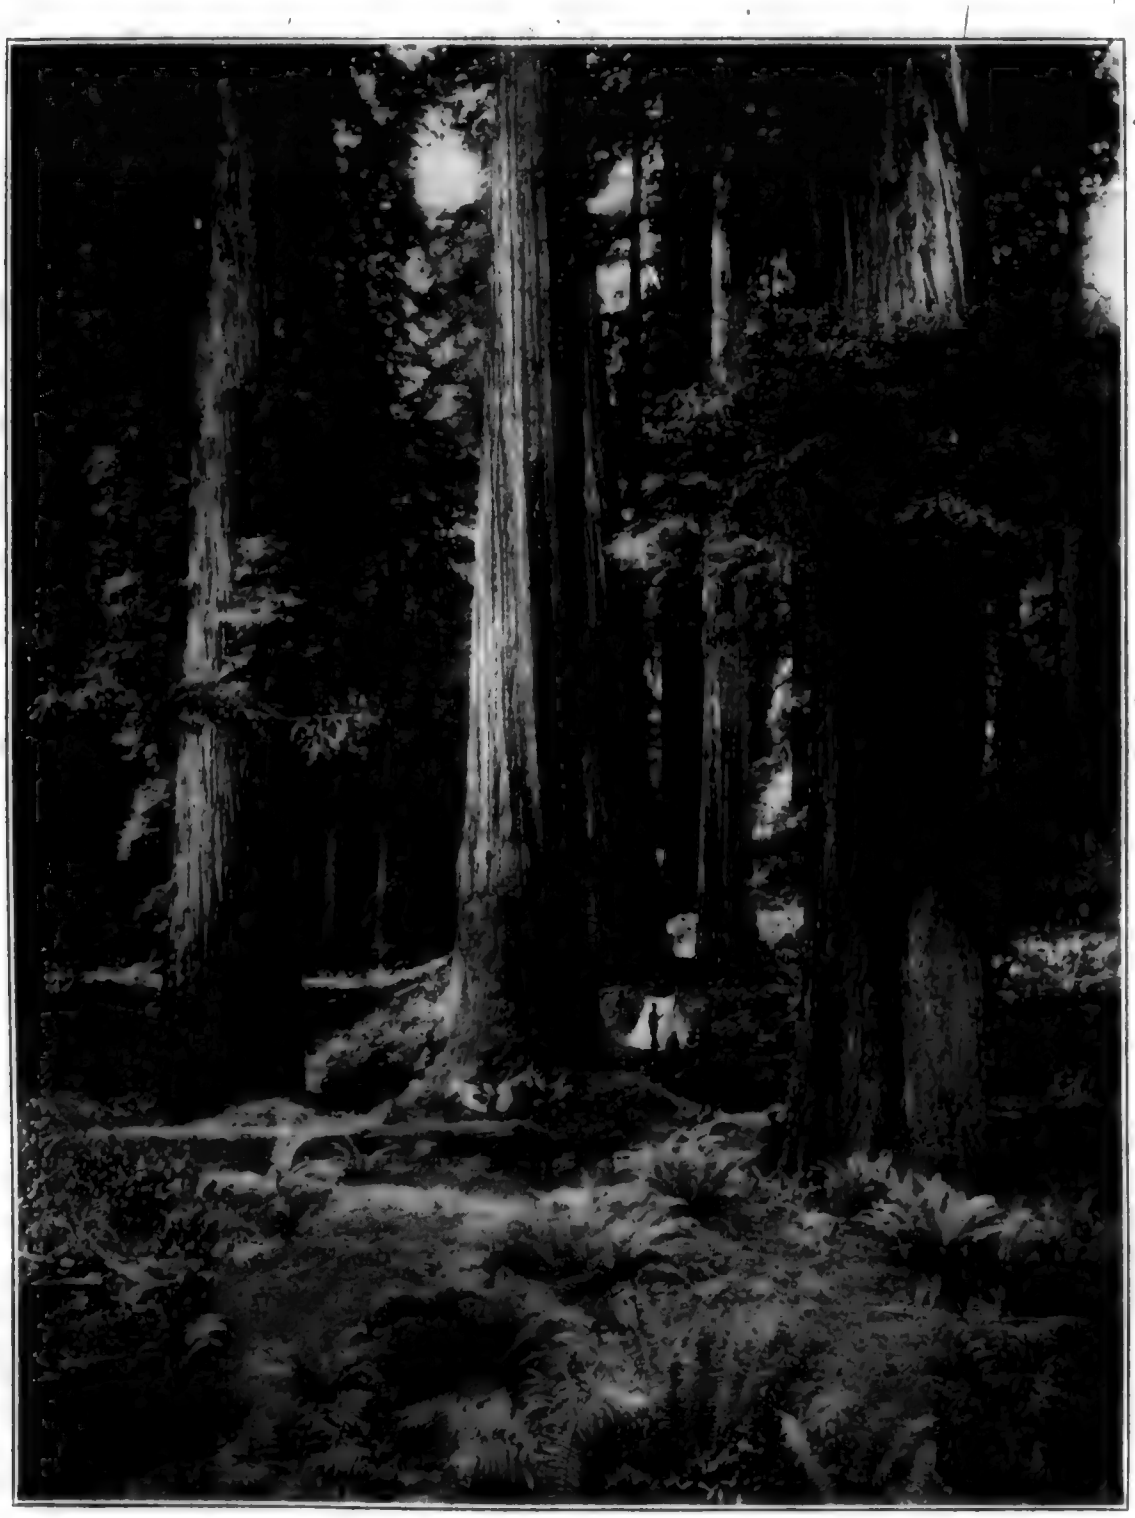
The plants should always be lifted in as dry a spell as possible, when there is really no danger of a check. When they are lifted dry, no shading is required on the houses; nor will the plants even flag if they are sprayed a few times each day for a week and if the walks are kept dampened down. All the air possible should be given day and night. A nice ball of soil attached to the roots when lifting is a big help to the plants' reëstablishment, though this is far from essential if most of the root is intact.

Plant just deep enough so the plants will stand erect, and firm the soil well. Many southern growers plant extremely shallow, as a precaution against stem-rot, but in my opinion this point is much overemphasized. I have never been able to trace any difference in the ravages of this fungus in shallow or deeper planting.

Watering and Syringing.



The beds will need a thorough soaking after planting. This watering should keep pace with the planting and should not be deferred until a whole bed is planted. The soil dries out rapidly in the sunny south and will need a lot of water each day to keep it in a good, moist condition. If kept on the dry side, the plants will not make good growth. I have found this method an improvement on the plan of leaving a depression at the base of each plant and watering each plant separately. Too much time is required for this, without any compensating advantages. There are probably some sections in the south where the individual watering is the better plan, and if the plants are lifted in a soft, sappy condition, it would be almost a necessity. But when lifted dry, as they ought to be, the plants want a good soaking at planting and plenty of water every day to keep the soil in a good, moist, growing condition.

Syringe hard every day, so long as the hot weather lasts, to keep red spider at bay. When this pest gets a foothold, it is a man's sized job to get rid of it. I have never been able to see any advantage in running the plants extremely dry to prevent stem-rot. The plants are brought into the house to grow as fast as they can with safety, and to do this they need water and lots of it. Besides, the stem-rot fungus will endure more drying than a carnation plant will and keep on growing, so it is preferable to give enough water to keep the plants growing steadily and take a chance on the stem-rot, as we have to do in any case.

To Check Stem-rot.

Nearly every carnation grower one meets, in the south or elsewhere, has a different theory about stem-rot and different points in culture to prevent it. Some even go so far as to blame the variety for it. So far as my experience goes, stem-rot is neither checked nor affected by deep or shallow planting or by keeping the soil dry. To overcome the trouble by any of these processes, it would be necessary to carry the processes to an extreme that would destroy the plants. The fungus is present, more or less, in all soils, and if it comes in contact with a plant, especially if that plant is even slightly bruised on the stem, it is only a question of a short time until the plant goes under.

The experiment stations recommend soaking the beds with a solution of one part of formalin to 200 parts of water to destroy the fungus. Here, in the south, I would advise doing this twice, at three days' interval, because the heat is liable to dry up the beds before the fungus is entirely killed if only one application is made. Try the experiment on some of the beds at least. Formalin is cheap, and if it does no good it will at least do no harm. L.

Camping Among Charles Willis Ward's Redwoods Near Eureka, Cal.

MR. WARD'S REDWOODS.

For those who are so fortunate as to receive invitations and can accept them, there will be no feature of the San Francisco convention more interesting than the excursion planned for a party of his trade friends by Charles Willis Ward. He will take them camping among his redwoods.

Florists have seen little of Mr. Ward the last few years, for he makes his home at Eureka, Cal., but he has lost not one bit of his interest in the trade and, indeed, is more closely connected with it than ever before, as he has started a new Cottage Gardens there. Mr. Ward went to Eureka to fight a lawsuit regarding the disposal of his father's estate. He was a sick man at the time. Curiously, it was as a man ill of nervous prostration and seeking surcease from idleness that Mr. Ward founded the now widely known Cottage Gardens at Queens, N. Y. While he was winning his point in the courts at Eureka he also won back his again shattered health, for the climate there is said to be the most even in America and peculiarly beneficial in strengthening the nervous system. Mr. Ward came into possession of a splendid redwood forest, as part of his inheritance, and it is through this as well as to other natural wonders that Mr. Ward purposes taking his friends at convention time, rather than to the new greenhouses at Eureka or the new nurseries at Carlotta.

The trip among the redwoods is one of the grandest in the world, as a great deal of the way will be through the noblest forest that mankind has ever known. Many of the trees are ten to twenty feet in diameter. The trip can be made either by steamer from San Francisco to Eureka, or by the Northwestern Pacific railroad and special rates of fare will be provided for. At Eureka the party will be taken charge by citizens with automobiles. The plan contemplates a trip to Strongs Station, on the Van Duzen river, thirty-five miles distant, with a chicken dinner at the Wilson hotel. The next move will be a run of ninety miles to Requa, on the Klamath river; then by motorboat up the Klamath to Mr. Ward's Ah Pah ranch, which he has fixed up for a sort of summer camping place. He has a number of small cabins and tents, so that from twelve to fifteen people can be accommodated. Ah Pah ranch is in the center of the redwood belt along the Klamath. The climate is extraordinarily pleasant and agreeable during the month of August. If any of the visitors become combative, there are bears and California lions to be had, and there is fine trout fishing in Blue creek and they have always been able to get all the salmon they wanted for table use. The illustration on page 14 will give an idea of the country the party will go through. A week's sojourn is contemplated at Ah Pah ranch and the time can be put in to good advantage by traveling over the trails and seeing the enormous trees, with canoe trips up the Klamath and fishing expeditions up Blue creek.

The return journey will be made either down the river to Requa, or those who feel able to walk nine or ten miles can take the overland trail to Boyes' ranch, on Prairie creek. This trail trip is exceedingly fine and there is splendid forest scenery along the entire route.

GARDENS AT THE EXPOSITION.

To the florist visiting San Francisco for the S. A. F. convention this month the gardening features will be the ones of special interest, and for the eastern visitor there will be many sights of old, familiar plants in new and unfamiliar form and use: Geraniums as hedge plants; Mesembryanthemum crystallinum, the ice plant, a native of California, growing in boxes placed one atop the other to form a living wall 1,500 feet in length.

The European plant exhibits were planned on a specially elaborate scale, but the war interfered with many of them, just as it has with many other features of the exposition. However, the Netherlands gardens, two views in which are shown in the accompanying illustrations, have profited by the war rather than suffered from it; they have been well supplied with stock. The Netherlands display is in charge of Arie Van Vliet, who did the landscaping around the famous Peace palace at The Hague.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Sweet Peas.

Early in August is none too soon to make a sowing of some of the winter-flowering sweet peas, if flowers are wanted from October onward. Do not use any of the grandiflora varieties, unless it may be for home retail trade. They bloom freely, but are increasingly hard to sell in the wholesale markets in competition with the winter-blooming Spencers, which are now obtainable in nearly every imaginable color. The seed of the latter is much higher-priced than that of the grandifloras, but it pays to procure what will sell the best. Do not buy too many colors. In white, Mrs. M. Spanolin and White Orchid; in pink, Mrs. A. A. Skach and Bohemian Girl, and Lavender Orchid, a fine lavender pink, are extra good sorts. Orange Orchid is of a beautiful salmon orange color, a telling shade, and Venus, white with a suffusion of blush, is charming.

Sow in pans or flats of sand and later plant out four to six inches apart in the rows, allowing four to five feet between the rows. The soil should have been well trenched and plenty of cow or well rotted stable manure added to it, with some fine bone. The wider and more roomy the house, the better. Be sure you have ample head room. Good sweet peas can be had in raised benches in midwinter, but solid beds are far preferable if well drained.

Antirrhinums.

Early in August is also a suitable time to plant out snapdragons for winter flowering. The plants of these should be in 4-inch pots and the flower spikes should be allowed to open a few flowers before being well pinched back. If the plants are headed back earlier, while the wood is soft, the breaks will be weaker and many of the resultant shoots will fail to flower at all. For winter flowering I like to allow twelve inches between the rows and ten inches between the plants. It is possible to grow snapdragons closer than this, but in midwinter the additional space is really necessary and pays in the end. Do not use more than five inches of soil. For a good winter crop, you will find raised benches much superior to solid beds.

Differences of opinion exist as to whether seedlings or rooted cuttings make the most profitable plants for indoor culture. The tendency is toward seedlings. These are more vigorous and disease-resistant, and, if the seed is procured from a first-class specialist, the percentage of rogues is comparatively small. There will be more or less trouble with stem-rot and leaf-spot at this season. Planting too deeply and overwatering will produce stem-rot. For leaf-spot, spray with Bordeaux mixture or Fungine, and apply more than once to insure clean plants.

Mignonette.

It is time to make a sowing of mignonette for a winter crop. Mignonette must have a cold house. It likes a good depth of soil and a cool bottom, and no heating pipes should be below it if it is grown in raised benches. Mignonette will flower profitably for six or seven months in a cold house. The spikes will not all be fancy ones, but will be of a convenient size for use on retail places. Use a rich soil, containing one-fourth of well decayed cow manure. It is safer not to use any bone or chemical manures for mignonette. Purchase a first-class strain of mignonette. Several special forcing strains are offered in The Review's columns. Sow a few seeds in little patches a foot apart each way and thin the seedlings out to three in each. Care will be ecessary to prevent the little seedlings from being eaten by the larvæ of the white butterflies, which are partial to them. Mignonette succeeds best in a night temperature of 40 to 45 degrees.

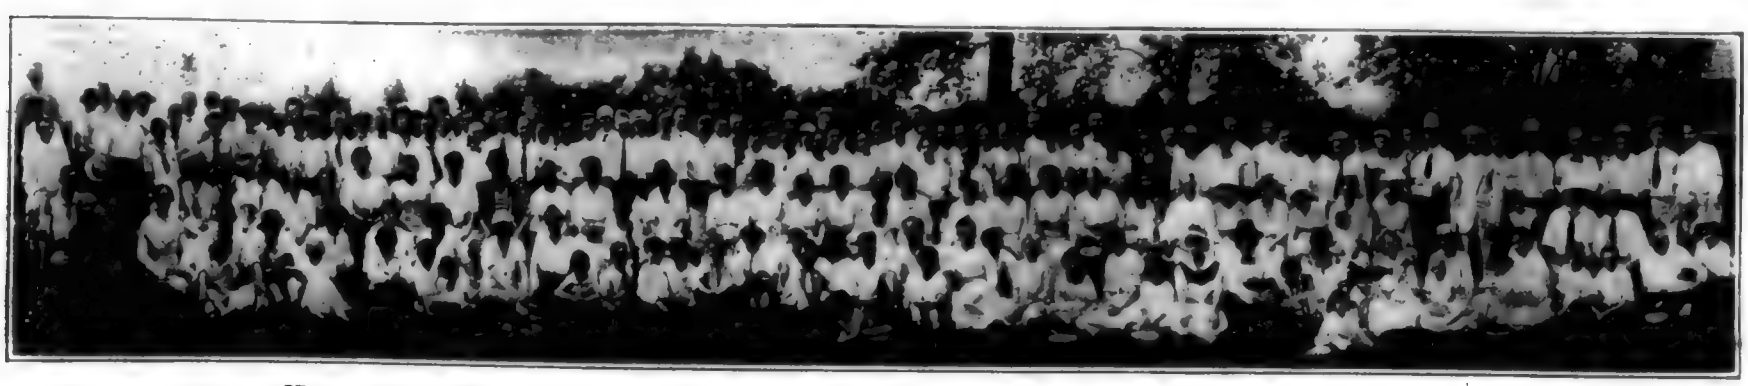
DUTCH BULBS FOR EASTER.

Easter comes late next year, April 23. How can the common bulbs, such as Dutch hyacinths, tulips, narcissi, etc., be kept back until that date? Would the ordinary covering of the bulbs in outdoor beds be all right, if more covering were added as the winter passed, say about the first part of March? We use such varieties of tulips as Cottage Maid, Rose Grisdelin, Yellow Prince, Duchesse de Parma, Murillo and Crown of Gold, and are anxious to known whether these could be held back successfully, or whether later varieties should be used. Also, would the Darwin tulips be too long-stemmed to use for pots and pans?

L. E. S.—Mich.

It is true that Easter next year comes late, but it is quite possible to hold hyacinths, tulips and narcissi back until that date. If you carry your bulbs in outdoor beds it would be a good plan to cover the winter mulch with additional mulch, in order to hold frost in it to a later date than usual. It would be a further advantage if you placed these Easter bulbs where they would get a minimum of sunshine, or, if you have a good cold cellar, you should have no great trouble in holding back practically all varieties.

Darwin tulips are being increasingly used in pans. It is true they have longer stems, but they easily bring much higher prices than the ordinary early tulips. Pride of Haarlem you will find a particularly good sort for pans. In narcissi you should grow Victoria in quantity. It is a grand late sort. If people will try Double Von Sion, both this and the single form make up excellent pans. In double tulips there is nothing better than Murillo; Couronne d'Or is less stocky in habit. Yellow Prince, Duchesse de Parma, Flamingo, Proserpine, Keizerskroon and Rose Grisdelin are all useful varieties.



The Review will, in a later issue, treat this subject at greater length.

KANSAS CITY CLUB PICNIC.

The picnic of the Kansas City Florists' Club, at Holsinger Bros.' Nursery, Rosedale, July 28, was a grand success, bringing out the largest attendance of florists that was ever known in this city for such an occasion. There were about 225 people on the grounds. The club wishes to extend hearty thanks to Holsinger Bros. for the use of the grounds and for the refreshments they served.

The visitors from out of town were: Joseph Marks, of the A. A. Arnold Paper Box Co., Chicago; John Lanni, representing Mandeville & King, Rochester, N. Y.; L. H. Archias and son, of the Archias Floral Co., Sedalia, Mo.; L. Asmussen and wife, of Lansing, Kan., and P. G. Brackenberg, of Pleasant Hill, Mo. The rest were from Kansas City and Independence, Mo.,

MILWAUKEE CLUB PICNIC.

The annual outing of the Milwaukee Florists' Club took place Sunday, August 1, at Keipper's park, Brown Deer, Wis. There was an exceptionally large turnout, as the day was an ideal one, and all enjoyed themselves immensely. There were games and contests galore, and enthusiasm was kept at a high pitch all through the day. The club members did themselves proud on this occasion, and their efforts made the event the most successful in years.

The first event was a baseball game between the Cudahy Floral Co. and the Holton & Hunkel Co. teams. F. H. Holton handed out the decisions. The Holton & Hunkel Co. boys won the game by a score of 17 to 1, and a cash prize of $5.

Albert Hare was the busiest man on the grounds, as he was the whole committee. The members appointed to serve with him were out of town, and the entire work devolved upon him. He was ably assisted by Eugene Oestreicher, secretary of the club. President Wm. R. Schroeder promised a speech for the occasion, but it did not materialize.

Each child was presented with a novel balloon, and soon it sounded like the European war, for they began popping as soon as they were distributed. Everyone was decorated with a paper hat, and all joined in for a good time.

The line-ups of the baseball teams were as follows:

Holton & Hunkel.	Cudahy.
Ed. Radke, s.s.	John Hackmeister, 1b.
Geo. Kostelnik, c.	Earl Schweitzer, 2b.
Al. Rowe, p.	Ronald Whitehead, c.
Art Radke, 3b.	Leo Kaplanek, s.s.
G. Kash, 1b.	Frank Leonard, r.f.
A. Hollatz, 2b.	Roy Brown, p.
N. Schmidt, l.f.	Fred Retzlaff, l.f.
Ed. Heuer, r.f.	J. M. Ensinger, c.f.
A. Schumacher, c.f.	Bryant Seeley, 3b.

The winners of prizes in the other contests were the following, in the order named:

Tug of war—Holton & Hunkel Co.
Women's race—Miss Griebler.
Men's race—Albert Rowe, Grover Kash.
Peanut race, ladies—Hilda Holtz, Ruth Voelzke.
Three-legged race, men—Kash and Radtke, McBain and Whitehead.
Girls' race—Ruth Voelzke, Florence Holtz.
Potato race, ladies—S. Beyer, M. Heuer.
Lemon eating contest—N. Schmidt, G. Kostelnik.
Pie eating contest—G. Kostelnik, N. Schmidt.
Sack race—G. Kash, Radtke.
Guessing contest, ladies—I. Jens, Miss Berndt.
Guessing contest, men—Von Trott.
Boys' race—Elmer Kuhl, Roy Maggison.
Potato race, little girls—Hilda Holtz, H. Beyer.
Watermelon contest—G. Kostelnik, G. Kash.

THE AZALEAS ARE DOUBTFUL

ONCE MORE BRITAIN SAYS "NO."

Belgian Plants Again Barred.

Great Britain again has declined to permit the unmolested passage to this country of ships loaded at Rotterdam with Belgian products—and that means no azaleas this year.

The news of the affirmation of England's recent orders in council came July 30 in a cable message from Consul General Skinner at London and was made public in the diplomatic correspondence published by the United States August 4.

The British government, as reported in The Review several weeks ago, holds shipments from Belgium to be the same as goods of German origin, taking the position that the Belgian territory dominated by Germany is practically German territory. At the time England first announced its ban on Belgian products The Review asked the State Department at Washington to make certain representations to the British government, in the hope of getting plant shipments passed, and for a time it looked as though these efforts would be successful; those who consulted the foreign trade advisers in the government offices at Washington were told that the matter of bringing horticultural supplies out of Belgium had been taken up by the State Department and that there was hope of success, and last week the department notified The Review of the receipt of a cable from Consul General Skinner at London reading:

> Shipments from Belgium before Cabinet. I have private advices that plan being worked out which will enable exports to go forward and payments to be made under certain supervision. Decision expected some days hence.

Apparently there are so many other interests seeking to procure Belgian goods via Rotterdam that the English government fears to make an exception in favor of Belgian plant shipments, which are a small item as compared with other lines.

Hope Springs Eternal.

There still are those in the trade who expect the azaleas and other Belgian plants to come along in due time. Some of these figure that the embargo of the English will be relaxed, but for the present it seems to be becoming steadily more strict. Others figure that shipments will slip through, one by one, in spite of the British, but the fact is the Holland-America line refuses to load any freight in any way likely to cause the detention of a steamer. Still others count on supplying their needs through Holland houses, some of which have advertised that they already have the azaleas and other Belgian plants "safe on Holland territory," though it is difficult to see what difference that will make to the English or the shipowners, neither of whom will have any doubt of their Belgian origin. There will be no troubles other than those of transportation in getting Belgian plants into Holland—it will be getting them out of Holland that will be difficult. Belgian goods form a large part of the vast accumulation of American bound merchandise already tied up in Rotterdam.

So long as the British embargo is enforced, what we may expect is well illustrated by the shipments of bay trees and other plants that reached New York last week. One custom house broker received nearly 500 tubs of bay trees, destined for a number of consignees, practically all of which were a total loss. They had left the Ghent district in March and April and, after all the red tape had been unwound, reached New York after nearly four months on the way. Plant imports simply can not be made except when their right to move, and move quickly, is recognized by all.

About the only chance for the azaleas to come across this season is that the British will change their minds about stopping money going into Belgium.

IMPORTERS PASS RESOLUTIONS.

J. McHutchison, secretary of the Horticultural Importers' Association, of the firm of McHutchison & Co., New York, wrote as follows August 2:

"Enclosed please find copy of resolutions adopted by the Horticultural Importers' Association at a recent special meeting with regard to fall importations of azaleas and other plants from Belgium which are at present under embargo by the British authorities.

"There is still some uncertainty as to whether or not fall shipments will come. Cablegrams from our Belgium and Holland connections intimated that fall shipments of azaleas, etc., would be made, and when we cabled for definite statement we received the cable response, 'Shipments permitted, but our State Department at Washington still insists that the matter is still under consideration by the British Cabinet in London, and that they have not yet rendered their decision.'

"The point of our protest is that inasmuch as azaleas are exclusively of Belgian origin and production, and for Belgian interest, they do not come properly within the regulations governing order in council goods, but the British authorities contend that if the proceeds of sales reach the Belgians either directly or indirectly there is a probability of the proceeds ultimately benefiting the Germans through taxation, duress or other process."

The resolutions unanimously adopted by the Horticultural Importers' Association at a special meeting held at New York, July 22, 1915, are as follows:

Whereas, The British order in council effective March 15, 1915, was intended to stop the export trade of the nations at war with Great Britain, but is at present so interpreted by the British authorities as to also stop the exportation of azaleas and other Belgian plants to the United States, because they are grown in that part of Belgium now occupied by the enemies of Great Britain, and

Whereas, This interpretation of the order in council by the British authorities will do incalculable damage to the interests of the American florists and the Belgian growers, without unfavorably affecting the interests of the enemies of Great Britain, since it is generally known that azaleas are only grown in the vicinty of Ghent, Belgium, and that the enemies of Great Britain also must get them there, and

Whereas, It can be clearly shown that these azaleas and other Belgian plants are of Belgian production and origin, exclusively grown by Belgians, for Belgian interests, and that none other than Belgians get any revenue or benefit from their sale. Therefore be it

Resolved, That the Horticultural Importers' Association respectfully requests our State Department to use its influence to have the British authorities permit these shipments of azaleas and other Belgian plants and bulbs to be exported here the coming fall, dating from August 20, and be it also

Resolved, That the secretary of this association be instructed to present this resolution personally to the Department of State at Washington.

NEW FLOWER STORES

Sterling, Ill.—The Sterling Floral Co. has opened a downtown branch at the Corner Drug Store. Carnations were given away as souvenirs on the opening day.

Oakfield, N. Y.—James J. Bates, proprietor of Bates' Flower Shop, formerly of Akron, N. Y., has sold his property in Akron to C. A. Vail, and started in business in Oakfield. He has purchased a tract of land and dwelling at 50 Drake street, where he will continue in the florists' business under the name of Bates' Flower Shop.

Atlanta, Ga.—The C. A. Dahl Co. has leased the Nunnally store, at 103 Peachtree street, where a flower store of the most up-to-date type has been opened. R. I. Gresham, of the Dahl Co., was recently in the east gathering ideas on the construction and finish of retail flower stores. The Dahl Co. has a nursery of 200 acres near Atlanta and large greenhouses on Forrest avenue.

Great Falls, Mont.—Geo. T. Barker, formerly of San Francisco, is opening a store at 612 South Second avenue.

Rock Springs, Wyo.—L. B. Weatholder, of Evanston, has opened a store next to the Rock Springs National bank. Mrs. Nellie Saleen is in charge of the store.

Hannibal, Mo.—Saturday, July 30, was opening day for the retail store of the Yankee Produce Co., at 316 Broadway. The company, which is owned by Walter Griffen, has operated about 12,000 feet of glass at Oakwood, three miles from here, for five years. Vegetables were grown until two years ago, when flowers were taken up. The business in these grew so fast that it was necessary to open the store, which is known as Griffen's Flower Shop. It is in the downtown shopping district and embodies the most modern ideas in arrangement. From the amount of business on the opening and succeeding days, Mr. Griffen does not expect to be troubled with a dull summer.

HAIL STORMS

THE LATEST WILCOX LOSS.

The latest loss which has befallen J. F. Wilcox & Sons, Council Bluffs, Ia., is attracting unusual attention for several reasons. In the first place, it is the largest hail loss of the year, almost every pane being broken in two houses, each 60x1,000 feet, the largest houses west of the Mississippi river. The accompanying illustration shows how complete the breakage is. The Florists' Hail Association will be called on to pay for the glass, and the loss will be the largest the association with its 1,621 members ever has been called on to meet; indeed, the loss will be considerably more than half the losses of the entire fiscal year just closed, during which the association has paid claims amounting to $19,285.08—the Wilcox loss is $12,000 in glass alone, with a much larger loss in stock and labor.

But what has attracted more attention than the mere size of the loss is the unparalleled run of misfortune which has been visited upon this range of glass at Lake Manawa, a few miles from the home place in Council Bluffs. While superintending their erection J. F. Wilcox contracted the cold which, developing into pneumonia, caused his death, May 10, 1912. Then one of the houses collapsed, before it was finished. Next, the famous Omaha cyclone, Easter, 1914, hit the range and did great damage. Now it is the hail. It seems that some strange fatality follows the fortunes of the place, although it probably is only that the location is one at which unusual air currents center.

The storm that took all the Lake Manawa glass hit several Omaha florists, inflicting losses of from five to 100 boxes of glass, but left the other Council Bluffs places practically untouched.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Business last week in the retail flower stores was quiet. Growers who have outdoor plots under cultivation were busy getting their plants in good shape for the fall. Those who work entirely under glass were putting the greenhouses in trim, and planting and caring for the young plants which will mature in fall and winter. There have been a number of funerals, which have given work to some of the florists, and there is always a little transient trade. Even in summer there are a few social events for which flowers are purchased. The volume is not large, however, and store proprietors are marking time and waiting for the opening of the fall trade. Dahlias, which began to arrive a couple of weeks ago, are more plentiful, and asters are being received in large quantities. While a fair price is received for these, the prices of all flowers are generally reasonable. Gladioli are still plentiful and of good quality, though beginning to deteriorate a little. Cosmos is beginning to arrive, but is scarce yet. Giganteums took a jump last week. They had been selling at about $1.50 per hundred, wholesale, and jumped in a few days to $5 per hundred.

Various Notes.

Frank Philips, of Philips Bros., 938 Broad street, spent his vacation during the month of July fishing along the coast. Fred Philips will spend the month of August on an extensive fishing trip. Business during July was good with Philips Bros., considering the time of the year. There were a number of funerals, several birthday parties and other events calling for the use of flowers.

John Crossley, 39 Belleville avenue, and wife, have been spending a few days at his bungalow at Atlantic Highlands.

The J. J. Wilson Seed Co. reports that, while there has been a falling off in the sale of seeds during the last few weeks, which is customary at this time of the year, there has been an unusually large sale of insecticides and sprayers.

The push cart flower dealers, who recently appeared on the streets of Newark, must be doing well, for they are much more in evidence than at first.

Henry A. Strobell, 931 Broad street, had considerable funeral work last week.

Strobell & Co. had an attractive window last week, consisting entirely of potted plants. In the center was a large variegated pineapple plant

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Intense heat, at times up to 100 degrees, marked the closing days of last week, and this intensified the universal depression in the cut flower market.

Roses and carnations are just marking time. Of the former there continue to be a few good American Beauties and novelties. Carnations are practically done for, the few arriving having "fallen asleep." The seaside and mountain resorts absorb any worthwhile roses that arrive. The dearth, however, will soon end, and the new cutting begin long before the market is ready for it.

Orchids last week made a quick recovery from the long drawn out slump in which they have suffered for weeks. Some fine Cattleya gigas sold as high as 60 cents each, the same stock that went a-begging not many days before at 25 cents. The supply of orchids is now short, and there developed an unexpected demand.

Valley is unsettled at $2 to $2.50 for the best, and longiflorum lilies hold at similar quotations. Of the latter there continues a great abundance. Sweet peas show the effect of recent daily showers. Dahlias are here in, as yet, limited quantities.

As to the present aster and gladiolus floods, these flowers absolutely dominate the market, and the flow has just begun. It is impossible to quote accurate prices; they vary with the day and hour.

Various Notes.

In another week the S. A. F. excursionists will be on their way to San Francisco. Some who gave up the trip are reconsidering. After all, there may be no complaints necessary as to the limited attendance from the east.

George Siebrecht is enjoying his summer in Westchester county.

Angelo Dentale, of Young & Nugent, with his family, has left for a two weeks' vacation at Wallkill, N. Y. Miss Hanft, bookkeeper for this house, has recovered from a severe illness.

Max Schling has left with his family for a week's stay in the Adirondacks. He has many weeks of landscape work contracted for in the Adirondacks, on Long Island and at Tarrytown.

Walter Siebrecht and family will spend the month of August at Lake George.

Several New Yorkers, seedsmen and others, attended the outing of the Tarrytown Horticultural Society at Rye Beach, August 4.

R. Vincent, Jr., offers 1,000 dahlia blooms free of cost to a retail florist who will use them in a decoration at the September show of the American Dahlia Society.

H. C. Riedel is doing jury duty.

John Gunther suggests that for next year's outing of the New York Florists' Club, instead of the time-honored boat ride, an automobile trip be taken to some Westchester county resort on the sound. A dozen or so sight-seeing automobiles could be engaged, and the ride would attract a larger attendance, while the games and dinners would be held as before.

Miss Rose Grafman, bookkeeper for J. K. Allen, will leave August 14 for her annual two weeks' vacation at the seashore. Mr. Allen has erected a large tent in his yard, at 118 West Twenty-eighth street, and this, with the big trees, makes an ideal resting place in the heart of the big city.

Paul Meconi has been enjoying his vacation in Vermont.

The New York Florists' Bowling Club's outing at Barnegat, N. J., was a most enjoyable affair. Those who participated were Joseph Fenrich, R. J. Irwin, Wm. H. Duckham, Chas. H. Totty, A. J. Guttman, W. P. Ford, John Miesem, C. W. Scott, P. Jacobsen and H. C. Riedel.

Margaret Hamburger, bookkeeper for Woodrow & Marketos, has returned from a two weeks' vacation at Mountaindale, in the Catskills.

W. J. Elliott is fishing and bathing this week at Asbury Park. Carroll Elliott is at Atlantic City, N. J.

Robert MacNiff will return Saturday, August 7, from Bermuda.

A magnificent display of gladioli, all named, is in the windows of the Stumpp & Walter Co., on Barclay street. J. Austin Shaw.

Mainly About People

Ravenna, O.—C. J. Mellen, for twenty years proprietor of the Mellen Greenhouse Co., on West Main street, has retired, and the business has been leased to S. P. Pike.

Evanston, Ill.—John G. Northcott, a former Kew man who has been in Canada and the United States for eight years, now is established here as a landscape contractor, with an office at 807 Greenwood avenue.

Washington, Pa.—Albert Marland, who has operated the Allison Avenue Greenhouse for the last two years, was a student in the American Farmer's School for Gardening and Greenhouse Management.

St. Louis, Mich.—J. G. Lower has been unable to operate his greenhouse during the winter months because of prolonged illness. Mr. Lower, however, stocks up each spring in time for the Easter business.

Dallas, Tex.—W. E. Hess, for eight years in the employ of the U. S. Department of Agriculture in the tropics, has purchased four acres of land about a quarter of a mile from the Texas state fair park. He intends to grow pot plants and vegetables.

Montpelier, Ind.—E. E. Stinson, proprietor of the Montpelier Greenhouses, reports business above normal. The unusual weather has pushed outside stock so far forward that it cannot be given away. Greenhouse stock is doing well, however.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—Frederick Hoekstra, of the Wealthy Avenue Floral Co., was overjoyed when he received word from his niece, Miss Margaret Hoekstra, that she was not a victim of the Eastland disaster at Chicago. Miss Hoekstra is an employee of the Western Electric Co., which chartered the Eastland for its employees' annual excursion.

Houston, Tex.—R. C. Kerr, president of the Texas State Florists' Association, was on the program of the Texas State Horticultural Society's annual meeting, August 2 and 3, at College Station, for an address on "The Texas Florists' Need of an Experimental Range of Glass for Commercial Cut Flowers, and How It Will Benefit Horticulturists in General."

Bloomington, Ind.—George Ede, of North Walnut street, is quite ill.

Ironwood, Mich.—Richard Lutey, proprietor of the Ironwood Greenhouses, has been visiting his sister at Laurium, Mich.

Macon, Ga.—Mr. and Mrs. Daniel C. Horgan, of the Idle Hour Nurseries, will attend the S. A. F. convention at San Francisco after an extensive tour of the west.

Evansville, Ind.—Karl Zeidler has become a firm believer in cyclone insurance. June 16 he covered his range with a policy. June 21 a big wind did a lot of damage. July 10 he received the company's check for the loss.

Donna, Tex.—Eltweed Pomeroy was on the program of the annual meeting of the Texas State Horticultural Society, August 2 and 3, at College Station, for an address on "Commercial Flower Bulb Growing in the Rio Grande Valley."

Lancaster, Pa.—Harry A. Schroyer has been notified by the board of managers of the York Fair Association of his selection as judge at the flower show to be held in connection with the fair October 5. Mr. Schroyer has officiated in this capacity for about fifteen years.

Media, Pa.—George W. Bosler, who purchased a large greenhouse here in April, has had a successful season, and says that if business keeps up he will be compelled to enlarge his facilities. Mr. Bosler was formerly in the grocery business, and about a year ago purchased the nurseries of Miss P. A. Baker, on Orange street. In April he sold his grocery interests in order to give all his time to the nurseries and newly acquired greenhouse.

Pawtucket, R. I.—Albert L. Warner observed his eighty-first birthday July 28. Full of vigor, he goes about his greenhouses and among his customers with almost as much alacrity as he did twenty years ago and certainly with as much enthusiasm as many men of 40. After many years of seafaring life, Mr. Warner settled down with his wife and has devoted himself to the growing and handling of flowers for a long time. For the last few years, however, he has specialized in asparagus.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

Last week was one of the hottest that Washington has seen in several years, and the heat had its effect both upon the production of flowers and upon business. Dahlias are not as good as they should be. Their loss is not felt to any great extent, for there is an oversupply of asters. American Beauty roses are practically off the market. The average quality of many of the other varieties is fair considering the season of the year. Mrs. George Shawyer, Killarney Brilliant, Double White Killarney, Radiance and Sunburst are among the best sellers. With such enormous quantities to be had, prices are low, and $4 per hundred is considered high for even the choicest stock. Carnations are nearly a thing of the past, and it is hard to get enough of good quality to fill the occasional orders. Sweet peas are done for in this locality, although some are coming from northern growers.

While business during the summer has been dull, there are those who say that conditions this year are more than slightly better than during the same period of 1914. Funeral work has continued heavy right along, and this has caused a better movement of flowers used in designs. Of course, there are far more to be had than the market can possibly absorb, but last year the percentage of sales is said to have been lower.

Various Notes.

The sympathy of the local trade is with Frederick Leapley, of the firm of Leapley & Meyer, 905 G street, northwest, who last week suffered the loss by death of his father, Peter F. Leapley. Mr. Leapley was 60 years of age.

Frank Slye, of the Center Market, is absent from the city on a two weeks' vacation.

Milton Redman, with the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., will spend part of his vacation at Atlantic City, N. J. Miss Minnie E. Shea, bookkeeper for this concern, left Saturday, July 31, for Springfield, Mass. During her three weeks' stay in the east, Miss Shea will visit a number of summer resorts in and around Boston.

Miss Jessie Windsor has returned from a month spent at Colonial Beach on a most enjoyable vacation. Miss Windsor is employed at the store of Gude Bros. Co.

Among the week's visitors were F. T. Corey, Fredericksburg, Va.; A. M. Anderson, representing A. L. Randall Co., Chicago; Robert Shoch, representing the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, and Frank C. Hargett, of Frederick, Md. C. L. L.

NARCISSI FOR CHRISTMAS.

When should Trumpet major narcissi be potted to bloom for Christmas? Is it possible to get them in bloom so early as that? F. K.—Mass.

French Trumpet major narcissi, if obtainable in August, can be flowered for Christmas. They are a somewhat uncertain crop, however. I think it doubtful if you can secure bulbs this season in time to flower them for Christmas. C. W.

OBITUARY

Alfred C. F. Burkhardt.

Alfred C. F. Burkhardt, for more than thirty years a florist at Portland, Ore., was suddenly stricken with heart failure while working in his greenhouses Wednesday, July 28, and died a few minutes later.

Mr. Burkhardt was 57 years of age. In 1882 he went to Portland, and the year after joined his brother, G. J. Burkhardt, in forming the greenhouse business which became known as Burkhardt Bros. They secured what was then a suburban tract of land for their greenhouses, but what is now Twenty-third and Gleason streets, Portland. The partnership existed until 1903, when it was dissolved, Alfred Burkhardt retaining the original location, which he occupied at the time of his death.

He leaves a widow and six daughters, the youngest a baby of two months. Mr. Burkhardt was insured for $17,000, and his property has advanced considerably in value because of the rapid growth of Portland. S. W. W.

William H. Barnes.

William H. Barnes, a retired florist of Independence, Kan., died at his home, 409 South Second street, July 28, after an illness of Bright's disease. Mr. Barnes was well known in state horticultural circles, having been secretary of the Kansas State Horticultural Society from 1895 to 1907, president and secretary each for two years of the American Federation of Horticultural Societies, state commissioner at the Pan-American exposition, Buffalo, 1901, and state delegate to national irrigation congresses at Chicago and El Paso.

Mr. Barnes was born in New York city, November 1, 1845. He enlisted in the Union army at the age of 19, being a member of the Thirty-fourth New York Independent Field battery. At the close of the war he married Miss Clarissa G. Anderson, of Onarga, Ill. He went to Kansas in 1870 and to Independence in 1872. In 1876 he started a garden farm near Elk river, north of the city. In 1879 he started the business now conducted by Robert Bunyar. By the time he sold it, in 1894, he had over an acre covered with glass.

Mr. Barnes was active in G. A. R. work and was a member of the A. O. U. W. He had been a member of the Methodist church for thirty-one years. He is survived by Mrs. Barnes and eight sons and daughters. They are George E. Barnes, of Perry, Okla.; W. E. Barnes, of Independence; H. H. Barnes, of Wichita; A. F. Barnes, of Independence; Lotta L. Johnson, of Pueblo, Colo.; Irma T. McDougall, of Los Angeles, Cal.; Walter M. Barnes, of Hot Springs, Ark., and Chas. S. Barnes, of Denver, Colo.

Patrick Reynolds.

Patrick Reynolds, one of the oldest and best known landscape gardeners in Newport, R. I., died at his home, 62 Bath road, Sunday, July 25, after an illness of only two weeks. He leaves two sons, John Reynolds, of New York, and James Reynolds, of Newport, who was associated with his father in business. For several years Mr. Reynolds had conducted an independent business as forester and landscape gardener.

COLD STORAGE MULTIFLORUM.

Will you kindly tell me how to grow cold storage multiflorum lilies? I have them potted outside, covered with ashes. They are in 6-inch pots, two bulbs to a pot. They have been potted for three weeks. Can I have them in bloom by the middle of September? I shall be thankful for any information regarding these flowers.

C. A.—Pa.

I would have preferred to stand these lilies in a cellar or even below a greenhouse bench, clear of drip, rather than outdoors under ashes. Any drenching rains will seriously harm them and the shoots are liable to be broken in removing the ashes. These cold storage lilies do not need covering in this way. You should have no trouble in flowering these lilies by the middle of September. Allow three to four weeks from the time you see the buds. C. W.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Elmer E. Ritchie, who has been operating the old Karl Guckert property, at 7631 Ridge avenue, Roxboro, for nearly two years, is doing well.

THE HOTELS OF SAN FRANCISCO.

The Hotel Committee of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society supplies the following list of the hotels of San Francisco, with their rates, for the benefit of those who will attend the S. A. F. convention August 17 to 20. All are European plan. For further information write the chairman, Frederic J. Bertrand, care Joseph's, 233 Grant street.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incoroprated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1915: President, Patrick Welch, Boston; vice-president, Daniel MacRorie, San Francisco; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.

Thirty-first annual convention, San Francisco, Cal., August 17 to 20, 1915.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

THE press committee of the national flower show already has begun its work. The Philadelphia Record for July 24 contained a 2-column illustrated write-up.

CONSULT the index and the table of contents—there's too much good stuff in The Review for you to get it all by riffling the pages. Use the indexes; they're put there for your benefit.

IN Great Britain there is an excellent law against the giving of secret commissions, with a strong society to secure its enforcement, which reports that in the last year 101 convictions were obtained.

COLLECTIONS in the trade are good enough to make it look as though florists selling to the public are becoming better collectors and less hesitant about asking for reasonably prompt settlements.

AMONG the guests at the Claremont hotel, Berkeley, Cal., on a recent day, were John Young, of New York; Edward Sceery, of Paterson, N. J.; R. C. Kerr, of Houston, Tex., and C. P. Mueller, of Wichita, Kan.

IF those who have bills to pay in other cities will remember that city banks make a charge for collecting checks, they will save wholesalers, seedsmen and the trade newspaper an appreciable sum of money, that can be employed in giving improved service. Banks nearly all issue Chicago or New York drafts without charge for their customers, and these should be used for all remittances over $1. Small sums may be remitted in 2-cent postage stamps wrapped between pieces of wax paper, so that they will not stick together.

AMERICAN GLADIOLUS SOCIETY.

The annual meeting and election of officers of the American Gladiolus Society will be held at the Casino, Newport, R. I., August 18, at 7:30 p. m., by order of the president.

H. Youell, Sec'y.

HONORABLE MENTION.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper. Among those who have this week enrolled themselves for more than one year in advance are:

TWO YEARS.

Brown, C. W., Ashland, Mass.
Ullrich's Greenhouses, Tiffin, O.
Heath, George, Morris, Ill.
Currie Bros. Co., Milwaukee, Wis.
Rike, W. W., Le Roy, Ill.
McCabe, M. J., Washington, D. C.
Ballou, W. A., Wheaton, Ill.
Palmer, Mrs. W. D., Newman, Ga.

The Review stops coming when the subscription runs out. The green notice with the last copy tells the story; no bills are run up; no duns are sent.

DECREASED ATTENDANCE.

Unfortunately, sharply decreased attendance is almost the rule at trade affairs this summer. But it has been several years since any of the older national organizations has attracted an attendance that increased even so fast as the trade has grown. It is a certainty that the S. A. F. will have, at its convention this month, an extremely small attendance of members east of the Rocky mountains. But it is not entirely due to the distance to San Francisco. The fact is the S. A. F. convention for several years has shown a tendency to become a local affair; the trade no longer in any considerable numbers will travel any great distance to attend the convention. Chief of the reasons for this seems to be the fact that the trade at large is better informed and more widely traveled than in earlier times; there no longer is the strong desire to see what the trade is doing in the vicinity of the convention city, or to see the country, while as for the convention itself, that, too, has become an old story. Then, too, it must be remembered that, whereas the pioneers of the trade talked, ate, slept, drank and thought shop, the new generation has many other interests. Now the tendency is to work hard during business hours, to master the business, to make it a success, profitable, and to turn to other interests at the end of the business day; the florist spends his leisure in a motor, not in a boiler shed; his vacation on an outing, not at a gathering of men in the same line as himself on business bent. If an important trade gathering is held fairly close by, he gives it a day, or two days, but not a week.

It is to be noted, too, that sales to those attending conventions have decreased. Time was when buyers laid in their fall stocks at convention; it was about the only chance they had. But buying and selling has become systematized. The average buyer is in constant touch with the sources of supply. He buys many small bills through the year rather than a few large ones all at once. He may look over a line at a convention, but he does not place an order; he says to the salesman: "I'll wait till you call," or "I'll write you some day when I see your ad." It all counts as affecting convention attendance.

The S. A. F. has a larger paid up membership than ever before in its history, largely due to the indefatigability of its secretary, but it is doubtful if its highwater mark for conventions was not passed some three years ago.

NEXT WEEK'S WEATHER.

Weekly weather forecast, issued by the U. S. Weather Bureau, Washington, D. C., for the week beginning Wednesday, August 4, 1915:

For the Region of the Great Lakes—Showers, followed by generally fair weather except in the northern upper Lake region, where showers are again probable about August 6 and 7. Temperatures will be moderately low, followed by a rise by August 7 in the upper Lake region.

For the Upper Mississippi Valley and Plains States—Generally fair weather is indicated during the week, except in the Dakotas and the Missouri valley, where there will be showers about August 7; moderately low temperatures for a day or two will be followed by somewhat higher temperatures.

For the Ohio Valley and Tennessee—The weather will be generally fair during the week, with temperatures slightly below the normal for two or three days, followed by a slight rise thereafter.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Following last week's rush for stock for funeral work, the Chicago market has slipped back to the usual summer quiet. The conditions, though, are not usual. Because of the anomalous weather with which this section of the country has been favored this summer, there is an unusually large supply in all lines of stock. The heavy demand of last week, which continued until July 29, was taking care of this supply, until a number of growers who do not ordinarily ship to Chicago thought they scented an opportunity and began shipping here just when the ebb in the demand set in. This, in connection with the regular heavy receipts, has left the market overloaded with all kinds of stock.

Roses are in supply considerably in excess of the demand and, as they are inclined to open quickly, they must be moved at once. This fact, together with the large quantities and what W. E. Lynch used to call the lackadaisical demand, has pulled the price down to a low figure for all but the most choice stock. There is a good supply of young Beauties, but Russell leads them for the little demand there is. Ophelia, Sunburst and Milady all are plentiful. Killarney Brilliant has the call ahead of Killarney, which it appears to have largely displaced with many growers.

Asters in abundance and in all lengths and colors are to be seen everywhere. Of course, there is the usual quantity of small, open-centered and short-stemmed stock that cannot be moved at any price. But a large part of the asters received this year are of excellent quality. The daily receipts, however, are so large that most of the wholesalers find it impossible to clear them at any price.

Carnations are at the ebb tide and the demand for them is negligible, but there still are a few good indoor carnations and considerable quantities of field stock. Gladioli are in heavy supply and, though they are moving much better than most seasonable stock, they are by no means clearing. Daisies, feverfew, gypsophila and coreopsis serve only to ornament the tables of the wholesalers. Easter lilies have again retired to a corner, while the colored varieties can find few buyers. Valley is inconspicuous. Ferns, which were practically out of the market during the rush last week, are again plentiful, as are all other greens.

The Eastland Flowers.

There have been many unwarranted statements regarding flowers for the victims of the Eastland disaster. It has been said that prices were raised to an extortionate degree. It is not true. If any florist was charged more than ordinarily good midsummer prices, it was because he was in too big a hurry or too indolent to acquaint himself with the general market situation. Growers overestimated the strength of the demand and sent in many flowers that proved difficult of sale. It has been stated that florists had so much business they were not able to cope with the demand. It is true that several stores in the vicinity most affected by the disaster were taxed beyond their resources, but it was because their staffs consist of only two or three or, at best, a few persons; the business they did would not have troubled any one of a dozen of the larger stores, and there were several of the best equipped establishments that had no business whatever for Eastland victims. The daily newspapers reported the average design as costing $15. The statement was not only untrue, but was decidedly harmful, as it had a tendency to deter people from entering flower stores. There were, of course, many hundreds of orders, but it was rare that one exceeded $10 and there were great numbers at $1 and $2.

Those who concern themselves about the reputation and the future of the business deplore the loose talk the public so frequently hears.

When money value is considered, C. H. Fisk, C. Frauenfelder, H. N. Bruns and Schiller's Madison street store had the bulk of the Eastland business; they got most of the orders of fair size. Others, however, had the bulk of the business when number of orders is considered. W. F. Vlk, the Lawndale Floral Co., J. A. Mendel, James Bilek, Emil Jehlik and others on the southwest side all had scores and in some cases hundreds of orders. The Warren Park Floral Co., W. Scott, manager, which started in business last September at 5937 West Twelfth street, made seventy-two pieces in forty-eight hours.

A committee consisting of J. L. Raske, chairman; Eric Johnson, treasurer; Cornelia Ryan, secretary, W. P. Kyle and Andrew Chronis undertook the task of managing a sale of flowers August 4 in behalf of the Eastland relief fund. The use of the vacant store at 217 South State street was secured as a sales room, and, though the bad weather undoubtedly operated against them, the committee and its assistants were kept busy. W. P. Kyle said that every wholesale house was liberal with its donation of cut flowers or plants, while the supply houses contributed ribbon and boxes without stint.

hit the local nail on its head. "The article is decidedly sensible and well written, according to my view," he says. "I tried to get the florists in my neighborhood to close on Sunday, but without success. Last year two of us closed on the Sabbath during July and August, but this year I am doing it alone, as far as I know. I have always advocated closing on Sunday and would like to see it done the year around. It is a shame that the florists, saloonkeepers and Greek fruit dealers are the only business men who cannot make a living in six days a week. Keep up the good work and push Sunday closing."

July Weather.

July was an unusually favorable month for those who work under glass and good for most field stock. For the third consecutive month the weather was cool and moist. The month, with an average temperature of 70.2 degrees, was the coldest July since 1895, and it averaged 2.2 degrees below the normal. No daily temperature reached 90 degrees, the highest being 88 degrees July 15. The lowest temperature was 53 degrees. An appreciable amount of rain fell on fourteen days, well distributed throughout the month. The total was 5.57 inches, which is an excess of 1.93 inches. Much cloudy weather, of course, was a natural accompaniment of the frequent precipitation and only fifty per cent of sunshine was noted, the lowest for July within the history of the local weather office.

Various Notes.

An indication of the condition of other markets is to be seen in the fact that W. H. Gullett & Sons, Lincoln, Ill., who have consigned their cut to St. Louis, now are sending part of it to Chicago, and that Holton & Hunkel Co., which has its own wholesale store in Milwaukee, is consigning a part of its cut to the John Kruchten Co., in this city.

N. J. Wietor ran his Haynes car 18,000 miles in a year; then he bought a Locomobile and has driven it 22,000 miles in two seasons. With 40,000 miles behind him, Mr. Wietor says he is becoming satiated and his friends

C. H. Fisk and wife are preparing to start soon on an automobile trip to New England, planning to be away about a month. Mr. Fisk drives a new Cadillac "8." During his absence Al Marine will be in charge of the business.

A party of eastern park superintendents will be in Chicago for a few hours Sunday, August 8, on the way to the San Francisco convention of their association. The local park people will give them a ride through the parks.

The rich lady's wedding at Harbor Point, Mich., July 31, brought a little business to Chicago. The Fleischman Floral Co. had the order for the bouquets. C. W. McKellar supplied a considerable quantity of Easter lilies and white and pink gladioli, but the decoration was done by the bride's gardener.

O. W. Frese gives it as his opinion that business should be called good for the first week in August. He says retail florists in general through the country are doing more business this summer than ever before.

A. C. Kohlbrand, of the E. C. Amling Co., is spending a fortnight's vacation at his old home in Cincinnati. Albert Cole returned from his outing August 2.

During the Summer Months

it is not always an easy matter to get good stock to fill an order—the quantity is not lacking, but very often the quality. If you place an order with us, you can rest assured it is going to be right when you get it, in price, quality and prompt delivery. For this week we suggest:

ASTERS
$1.00 to $2.00 per 100
$6.00 to $15.00 per 1000
A large supply and a fine grade of flowers.

GLADIOLI
$3.00 per 100 300 for $5.00
We use only the best varieties for filling your order.

EASTER LILIES
50 for $4.00 $6.00 per 100
In any quantity, and the price is surely attractive.

ROSES
Maryland, Thora, Hadley, $3.00-$6.00 per 100
Russell in limited quantity, $4.00-$8.00 100
250 medium-stem Roses for $5.00, our assortment, a good selection of colors.

SPHAGNUM MOSS—$2.00 per 5-bbl. bale, 6 bales for $10.00
Compare them with what is usually called a 5-bbl. bale and note the difference in size and weight. Each bale wrapped.

The Market.

It is not a pleasant duty to report the market this week. There are so many outdoor flowers of good quality that it seems a shame to waste them. Such really fine stock deserves to meet with ready demand, but it does not. The hot weather, the daily rain and good culture have brought in heavy supplies of early asters; add to them the gladioli and the everyday summer flowers; then add the greenhouse stock and the sum total is far and away in excess of the demand. Prices are low, even for this season of the year, and the waste, when sacrifice sales cannot be obtained, is large.

Cattleyas are the only scarce flowers on the market. There has been quite a demand for orchids for funeral work, a demand that has caused the price to advance to $6 per dozen. The only other features of the market necessary to record are to again call attention to the really fine quality of the stock for midsummer and to the excellent variety. Everything on the list is good for the season. The volume of sales is probably as large as usual, but flowers are cheaper; it takes more flowers to reach the same total of dollars and cents as in former years. In some cases it has been necessary to stop shipments, the wholesalers finding it impossible to make an outlet for all the flowers coming into town. Gladioli are a little less plentiful than a week ago, due quite as much to the low prices as to the crops going off. Indications point to early asters having passed their best. This means that the finer varieties of asters will soon be in the market. Lilium rubrum has made its appearance. Sweet peas from New York state are of excellent quality.

Current Events.

Every florist will take pride in the beautiful display of planting made in front of Convention hall, at the northeast corner of Broad street and Allegheny avenue, where the national flower show will be held next spring. Last month two of our most enterprising houses obtained permission from the city authorities to beautify the vacant spaces in front of the hall. These spaces, two in number, lie on each side of the main entrance on Allegheny avenue. Each space is about 45x90 feet, stretching from the pavement to the hall, one to the west, the other to the east of the entrance. The space on the west has been taken by the Henry F. Michell Co., that on the east by Henry A. Dreer, Inc.

The Michell plot is handsomely laid out, with a large central bed of crotons, two smaller beds, one on each side, filled with flowering vincas and the new scarlet verbena, Karl Muller. As a background a large bed has been laid out along the line of the hall. This is filled with evergreens of choice varieties, the yellow canna, Mrs. Alexander Wallace, and the handsome scarlet geranium, Alphonse Ricard. These four beds are laid out on a velvet green carpet of grass. The remarkable feature about this grass is that while the seed was sown about the middle of July, it is now, early in August, luxuriant as though in its second season. Thanks to the choice special Evergreen mixture, to the heat, to the rain, to the mowing, to say nothing of the careful preparation of the soil, this lawn is really wonderful.

The Dreer plot on the eastern side shows a lawn of superb quality. The grass is worthy of the highest praise. The planting is in keeping with the surroundings. The center of the plot is filled by a specimen Phœnix rupicola. On either side of this beautiful specimen palm are choice beds of Dreer's double fringed petunias just coming into bloom. The bed bordering the hall, which forms a background, is filled with two varieties of cannas, a dwarf and a taller growing sort; in front of these an edging of pennisetum.

Both exhibits, planted so recently, are now object lessons in the best floral taste that will elevate the standard in many of our city and suburban homes.

Various Notes.

H. Bayersdorfer and Mrs. Bayersdorfer are expected to reach this city August 5 on their return from Japan.

B. Eschner, writing from Sitka, Alaska, to a friend in this city, says: "We are having a wonderful trip, seeing many unusual sights; only one florist's shop and he subscribes for The Review and he was glad to see a Rice man, as he had read our ads in The Review."

TOLEDO, O.

The Market.

With many of the flower buyers out of town and practically no weddings taking place, the last few weeks have been exceedingly dull for the florists. The weather has become warmer. This has so far been a bad summer; the downpour of rain every day or so for the last two weeks has tended to deteriorate flowers and carnations in the fields, and farmers throughout this section are complaining that all crops are as good as destroyed.

The market is glutted with all kinds of cut flowers. Gladioli in all colors and varieties are so abundant that one can buy them at his own price. Asters are perfect, but cannot find sufficient sales to take care of the cut. Fine dahlias are arriving. Shasta daisies are good and easily disposed of in basket trade. Fine carnations are still to be had. Roses, especially Beauties, are extremely plentiful and can be bought at reasonable prices.

Various Notes.

Great plans are being made for the flower show, which will be the largest ever undertaken here. The Toledo Florists' Club has joined with the board of directors of the Toledo Art Museum in making plans for a large chrysanthemum show in connection with a show of table decorations, fancy baskets and the like during the first week in November. The committees in charge have been fortunate in securing the Art Museum for this event, for it is the seventh finest building of its kind in the United States. The florists fully appreciate this, and are working hard to make it a success. Valuable prizes are to be offered, and time and money will not be spared to make Toledo's first real flower show a grand success.

George Bayer was severely injured on his farm at West Toledo July 28. He had gone to the farm as usual, early in the morning, and on his arrival found one of the horses prostrated. He endeavored to raise the horse from the ground by means of a rope, and finally succeeded in doing so. The animal, however, was too weak to stand, and fell to the ground, pinning Mr. Bayer

THE THIRD EDITION

OF THE

Album of Designs

(A Book Every Retailer Needs)

THE original Album of Designs was published in response to many requests from florists who felt the need for an up-to-date book that could be used in taking orders for Funeral Designs, Wedding Decorations and Bouquets, Table Decorations and all cut flower work where it was not practicable to show the customer the finished article as it would be when ready for use. With the publication of this album it became possible to show the finished work in beautifully printed pictures. The first edition sold like hot cakes, and a second edition went quickly. Now a third edition is off the press. Everything is in it—all the standard designs and many new and heretofore unpublished pieces.

BUFFALO.

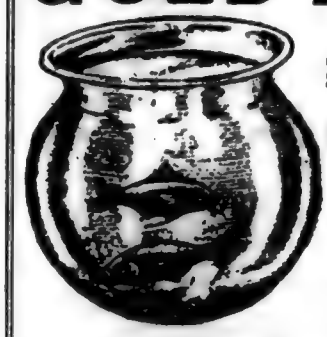
The Market.

The present business lull, which is characteristic of the hot months, has settled down too comfortably to please anyone, and there seem to be no indications of an early return of better business. A large number of regular store patrons have gone to the summer resorts, with the result that that channel of trade has been narrowed considerably. To offset this loss partly, there is a small transient trade caused by the large number of tourists who flock to Buffalo for the lake trips. This steamer trade, however, is small when compared with that of New York before the outbreak of war. There has been the usual amount of funeral and wedding work.

Last week gladioli arrived in large quantities. Most of the varieties were represented, but America was the best seller because of its adaptability to almost any occasion. A few asters were seen, but they were small and short of stem. Summer roses were good, considering the hot weather. Carnations were only fair. Some of the growers have planted their carnations outdoors, and are not cutting blooms during the hot weather. There was a large demand for sweet peas, and the supply was adequate. Lilies of the valley fell off in sales, despite the good stock to be had. There was not much movement in summer orchids. Table ferns were too small to be of any account, and native hardy ferns were plentiful.

Various Notes.

J. G. Pickleman is exhibiting a fine collection of palms and Boston ferns at his store, on Genesee street. He has a good assortment of jardinieres and vases.



The Stroh Flower Shop has been offering excellent gaillardias, larkspurs, gypsophilas, coreopsis and sweet peas, cut from the gardens at Attica, N. Y. Miss Tillie Stroh has returned from her two weeks' stay at Conesus lake, and will have charge of the store while her brother is away on his vacation.

S. A. Anderson will take advantage of the business quiet this month by remodeling and redecorating his entire store. The location of the office will be changed and the ribbon case will be shifted.

Miss Minnie Wilson is spending her vacation in the country.

It is difficult to arrange a summer window display that will win the attention of the jaded pedestrian, and then give enough minute detail to hold the interest of the observer. At the W. J. Palmer branch store, Genesee and Main streets, they have succeeded in putting up a highly attractive display. The scene is a reduced reproduction of a section of countryside, with a windmill, a water mill, and the necessary stream and pond. On the slope of a hill stands the windmill with its large revolving fan. Nearby a stream of water flows gently over pebbles and grasses to the valley below, where it propels the paddle wheel of another mill. From there the stream is led into a large mill pond, in which goldfish have been placed. The pond is studded with pond lilies and lily pads, and the banks are covered with green moss. The background of the pond consists of banks of plants artistically arranged, which give the finishing touch to the whole scene. At night lights are placed within the mills, making the scene more realistic than by day.

The Market.

In spite of the muggy weather and general depression, business continues in a fairly healthy condition. Roses are arriving nicely, and the first crop of Shawyer and Ophelia is selling rapidly in all grades. Outside stock has a steady demand, and snapdragons, centaureas and gladioli have been added to the list this summer. Sweet peas gave promise of a fine crop, but last week a disease appeared, which ruined the bloom and made picking unprofitable. The peas attacked were a total loss. Inside peas, however, are far better than any grown for some time, and are much sought after. Asters are in bloom this week, which is slightly later than usual.

Various Notes.

William Fendley has purchased a large fruit farm near Norval, and intends to produce heavily of small fruits next season. Some of the younger men continue to enlist. Walter Edwards has left the rose section to join the Thirty-seventh regiment.

The employees of the Dale Estate have organized a cricket club. The officers are: President, T. W. Duggan; captain, S. Campbell; vice-captain, A. Wicks, and secretary-treasurer, T. Boonham. The committee consists of A. Budd, W. Haines, T. Hall and A. J. Stewart. Vigorous practice commenced on the new grounds about a fortnight ago, and July 31, with the temperature at 90 in the shade, a test match was played between teams chosen by the captain and vice-captain, in which the vice-captain's eleven won by a large margin of runs.

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists — those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists— has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now —before you forget it?

Gentlemen:-

During the SIX MONTHS from March 4 to September 4 I have received from other Florists, by mail, telegraph or cable, orders to the amount of $513.25 as a result of my advertisement in the Retailers' department of The Review. With the allowance to senders the record for SIX MONTHS is:

Value of orders received----------	$513.25
Less 20% allowed senders-------	102.60
Net value of orders for SIX MONTHS--	410.65

It should be noted that this showing covers the DULL SUMMER MONTHS, when any addition to a Florists's business is decidedly welcome.

Retail Florists not advertising in The Review should profit by this letter.

Respectfully,

F. H. Weber

The Market.

In spite of the week of excessively hot weather, the cut flower market has held up remarkably well. While it is true that prices on the average are rather low, large quantities of stock have been moved. Some prominent persons' deaths called for more than the usual amount of funeral work, which accounted for the increased demand. Asters of the better grades are sold at a fair price, but thousands of short-stemmed blooms go at the buyer's price. In roses, Radiance, Maryland and Double White Killarney are the easiest sold, providing they are of fair quality. The shorter stock of Killarney and White Killarney goes to the street boys at sacrifice prices. Good white roses were in demand all the week. Gladioli are still a glut and are hardly of as good quality as heretofore. Carnations are about over.

Various Notes.

Jos. Weiner has discontinued his store at Charles and Franklin streets.

L. B. Glick, of the Leo Niessen Co., is off on a two weeks' vacation.

Hamilton's Flower Shop is showing a neat window decoration of fancy-leaved caladiums and ferns.

W. E. Milburn, of Middle River, is shipping an average of 8,000 asters daily to the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. They are of good quality and easily disposed of.

Perry motored to Pen Mar to attend the meeting of the Maryland Horticultural Society, and took a few side trips en route.

A fairly large number of local florists made the journey to Pen Mar to attend the meeting of the Maryland Horticultural Society, July 29 and 30. Some made the trip in automobiles from the city; others went by train. Some of those registered were: James Hamilton, I. H. Moss, Chas. H. Cook and party of six; William Lehr, James Glass, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Newton, C. M. Wagner, H. W. Wagner, N. F. Flitton, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Boone, Andrew Anderson and William Christie.

The annual picnic of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club will be held Wednesday, August 18, at Miller's park. A fine program has been arranged by the committee, with a large list of prizes. The usual crab feast will be given. Members are asked to get in trim for the ball game and bowling. Music and dancing are arranged for.

J. W. Penn & Sons are rebuilding four of their houses at Fullerton, and have purchased a Ford with convertible truck or pleasure body. They are shipping some good astermums to the Leo Niessen Co. W. F. E.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

There appears to be no sign of improvement of business. In wholesale circles trade seems to be dead, and huge quantities of flowers continue to pour into the market. Roses are the chief sufferers from the heat. Carnations are soft and considerably smaller in size, with an abundance on the market. Sweet peas are plentiful and of good quality. Asters in all colors are flooding the market; prices are low. Gladioli are abundant, the two best sellers being Rochester White and America. Easter and calla lilies are plentiful, but there is no great call for them. Double gypsophila is in splendid condition and sells easily. Large

Various Notes.

A special committee meeting was held July 27 to decide whether or not the Rochester Florists' Association should hold a picnic this summer. Harry E. Bates was elected chairman, and committees were appointed to plan for location, transportation, refreshments, sports and music. A delegation was appointed to visit the flower stores to persuade proprietors to close at noon on the date to be decided upon, thereby giving employees a chance to attend the picnic.

Mrs. Edwin P. Wilson, secretary of the Lady Florists' Auxiliary, met with a painful accident July 26. A rug slipped from beneath her, causing her to fall backwards and break her left arm against a door post. We are glad to state that she is making satisfactory progress.

John Curtis, of Irondequoit, N. Y., whose serious accident was recorded last week, is making good progress.

The East avenue display window of the George T. Boucher store has been attractively arranged. The floor is covered with green moss, and in the center a 5-foot pool of water with a fountain has been built. Rustic stones with Boston ferns and large vases of America gladioli are placed around the pool. The effect at evening is pretty, a large electric dining-room dome being suspended from the pergola directly over the fountain. Fish and miniature boathouses complete the picture.

Richard Roe is spending two or three weeks' vacation with relatives at Ottawa, Canada.

Miss Winslow and Mrs. Owens are taking their vacation at Silver lake, and expect to be away for two weeks.

Miss H. B. Ellis is spending two weeks' vacation with her sister, at her cottage at Sea Breeze, N. Y.

arriving daily for free spaces at the exposition and flower show, to be held at Exposition park August 30 to September 12. So far conditions look promising, and a successful show is assured.

Charles H. Vick made a short business trip to Albion, N. Y., July 30.

Edwin C. Armbrust, on his return from Ocean Grove, called on his Rochester friends, looking remarkably well after his two weeks' vacation.

Visitors last week were: C. M. Archer, of Roseville Pottery Co., Zanesville, O.; P. M. Phillips, manager of S. A. Weller Co., jardinieres and pottery, Boston, Mass., and J. Ramsfelder, of the Knickerbocker Ribbon Co., New York.

The Market.

The supply of flowers is comparatively small. Many growers are sending in nothing and stalls in the markets have a half deserted appearance. The demand is feeble, but a shade better than a week ago. American Beauty roses move slowly at $8 to $12 per hundred. Hybrid teas in variety sell at from 50 cents to $8, a small number only reaching the top figure. Ophelia, Miller, Taft, Kaiserin and Russell are leaders. Carnations get fewer each week and are of poor quality, but sell at higher prices. Asters will soon dominate the market. Continued rains and fogs have damaged many, but Queen of the Market is now of good quality. Gladioli are arriving freely from outdoors and low prices rule, many going as low as $1 per hundred.

Valley is druggy and low in price; so are all varieties of lilies. Sweet peas have been adversely affected by the continuous rains, but good flowers sell well. Among other flowers noted are cosmos, dahlias, perennial phlox, gypsophila and montbretia, but the call for these is light. There is little call for cattleyas and gardenias.

Various Notes.

The Boston delegation to the San Francisco convention, which left August 4, proved to be the smallest that ever left this city, consisting only of President P. Welch and wife and T. J. Grey and wife. Others who had talked of going changed their minds. Not a solitary grower will be present from this section, something which has never occurred before. Dull business, the long trip and long necessary absence from home, added to the August heat, proved too heavy obstacles to overcome. The Boston party will be joined at Chicago by George Asmus and W. F. Kasting. At Cleveland there will be other additions to the party. Patrick Welch is due home September 2.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Penn, who arrived home August 3 from their delightful transcontinental trip, are full of enthusiasm for the two California expositions and the many other scenic wonders enjoyed. Mr. and Mrs. William Penn start August 5 on their Pacific coast trip.

Thomas Roland will finish his indoor tomato crop in about a week. He has picked nearly 100 tons of fruit. He will follow tomatoes with roses in one large house and devote the other to winter Spencer sweet peas.

W. H. Elliott, wife and family are spending the summer at Mr. Elliott's summer home at Madbury, N. H. Excellent summer roses are arriving from Madbury, including Miller, Prince de Bulgarie and Ophelia. From Brighton the Kaiserins and Beauties are good.

Business last week at Penn's was chiefly funeral work. This week two large weddings give a little variety. One window is entirely devoted to gladioli, while the duck farm in another remains as great a drawing card as ever.

Attractive window boxes might be more used over the entrances to florists' stores. The Houghton-Gorney Co., on Tremont street, have some excellent boxes which wonderfully improve the exterior appearance of the store and give it an air of refinement.

Edward Bingham, of Dedham, who specializes in violets and English primroses, says that he has lost fully two-thirds of his primrose plants, owing to the abnormal rainfall of July. Many growers who have planted stock on low ground are having serious losses.

W. A. Hastings is receiving a splendid assortment of gladioli from the Brooklands Gardens, at Woburn. These include some of the newer varieties. His principal shipper, J. A. Nelson, of Framingham, is busy housing his carnations, and the plants were never of finer quality. Matchless and Alice are among the new additions this season.

Andrew Christensen, of Stoneham, who will make a month's transcontinental tour, will include both California expositions in his itinerary, but will not attend the S. A. F. convention.

Neil Boyle, of Malden, states that Ophelia is making splendid growth, ahead of all other roses. He continues to market a nice lot of Ward, Double White Killarney and Richmond.

The annual exhibition of gladioli, phlox, asters and other annuals will be held at Horticultural hall August 7 and 8.

July broke all records in the annals of the weather bureau for precipitation, with a fall of nearly nine and one-half inches. This far exceeds that of any previous July. We continue to have frequent thunder showers and considerable fog, which gives the country a luxuriant appearance, although it is hard on mountain, lake and shore resorts.

John McFarland, of North Easton, has a fine lot of poinsettias coming on. About 2,000 are now in 6-inch pots. These will carry one large bract each. Quantities of later propagation are coming along. Three houses are devoted to mums, the majority being Major Bonnaffon. One house is planted with Adiantum Croweanum, and one with Asparagus Sprengeri. A large quantity of valley is forced and daily shipments are made to Boston. W. N. C.

grown stock. From reports, there is little trade except funeral work. The glut of gladioli has lessened, and prices for extra choice quality have gone to $2.50 per hundred. The common varieties remain at $1 per hundred. The cut of roses is quite heavy, but extra fancy long roses are scarce. The bulk of the Killarney varieties have short stems. Hadley, Ophelia and Kaiserin have better stems and hold top price. Carnations continue to show up well and the market is well supplied. Asters are having the call at present. White and purple sell well, but the other colors drag. Sweet peas are few. Lilies and valley are equal to the demand. A lot of outdoor stock helps to crowd the market. There are good greens of all kinds.

Various Notes.

The members of the St. Louis Florists' Club should not forget the meeting to be held August 12 at Joseph Hauser's dahlia farm, Webster Groves, Mo. The annual election of officers will take place. Members can take the Ferguson-Kirkwood car to Harper place and walk one block north. Mr. and Mrs. Hauser have made many preparations for entertaining the club and are looking forward to the largest meeting ever held.

visiting the San Francisco fair at the time of the S. A. F. convention.

Mrs. Emil Schray and her two children have spent a vacation of several weeks with relatives at Moro, Ill. They are expected home this week.

Frank X. Gorly, of Grimm & Gorly, says he received a letter from Vincent Gorly, who, with his wife, is spending the summer in California, in which he says he receives all the St. Louis news through The Review, for which he watches eagerly each week.

James Gurney, superintendent of Tower Grove park, can be seen daily at the big pond watching the water lilies. This is Mr. Gurney's hobby and he has a number of new seedlings, which he points out with great pride. This pond is one of the great attractions of the park.

Count Andy Von Hoffman, manager for George Waldbart, is back from his vacation. Mr. Waldbart is sending in a fine cut of outdoor stock from his Clayton farm.

Clarence H. Bentzen, son of William T. Bentzen, eloped with Miss N. Breitling, July 26. Mr. Bentzen and his bride sent greetings to their friends from Chicago, where they are spending their honeymoon.

Patrick J. Ratigan, of Calvary cemetery, says it is not often a stork visits a cemetery, but one did come last week and left a fine baby girl. Mr. Ratigan's home is in the cemetery, near the main entrance.

L. P. Jensen, gardener for the Adolphus Busch estate, will leave this week for San Francisco to attend the annual meeting of park superintendents. He will read a paper on "Public Parks as Preservers of Native Plants." Ernest Strehle, park superintendent, will not be able to make the trip. He says Mr. Jensen will read his paper at the meeting.

C. E. De Wever is cutting a large quantity of extra fine gladioli at his Clayton farm. They are being successfully marketed by the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co.

present and the young couple were showered with presents. Mr. Gumz's many friends in the wholesale district presented to him a handsome piece of furniture and cut glass.

Ernest Strehle, park superintendent, and twenty-five of his park employees, who spent four days in Chicago last week, looking over the Chicago parks, returned home July 29 and tell of the many pleasures of their stay.

Horace Lloyd, of the Shackelford Nursery Co., informs me that they have advance orders for their daily cuts of gladioli and Alaska daisies. He considers this, their first season with the local trade, a successful one, and will grow double the quantity of stock next year.

The members of the H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Co., of Nursery, Mo., have tendered an invitation to the St. Louis Florists' Club to hold the installation meeting at their place. This meeting will take place in September.

There are a number of baseball fans in the trade who hold bees each morning in the wholesale district. One remarked the other day that our Cardinals reminded him of a flower called the trailing arbutus, to which they all agreed. J. J. B.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

It is good old summer time in earnest, and there is nothing to do but wait on an occasional customer. There are plenty of flowers to meet the demand, which is not large.

At the greenhouses everything is active. Things have never looked better at this time of the year. The early mums are already eighteen inches tall, and are looking as strong as they usually do in October. The carnations are all in the benches and are already well established. In fact, a few carnations from the new crop have appeared on the market. The growers have more and higher grade carnation plants in the field than I have ever seen before.

The new roses are doing especially well. I saw several benches of Ophelia two weeks ago, and though they had been planted only about two months before, they were already giving a profitable cut. I was much impressed with it as a summer rose. It is proving a popular seller. Hoosier Beauty, of which I have seen several thousand plants, is another rose that is doing better than was expected. It is a rampant grower so far, and is giving good blooms. It promises great things when it is a little older. White Shawyer is not turning out so well, and unless it improves as fall draws on, White Killarney and Kaiserin need have no fear for their laurels here. So far as I know, Hadley has been dropped entirely. Killarney Brilliant, while not exactly new, is being grown more extensively this season than ever before.

Various Notes.

Haury & Sons have rearranged their retail store, using fewer plants in the decoration, but adding greatly to the appearance. They are cutting good asters.

Oscar Geny, who has been in poor health this summer, is able to be back on his job. He was at the hospital for a week or ten days recently.

J. F. Corbitt has propagated hydrangeas heavily this season. He is utilizing a large grape arbor as a summer house for plants requiring shade.

The Joy Floral Co. had a striking window display, representing a scene in the Everglades of Florida. There was a stream of water, a mill, a millpond, half a dozen alligators and a beach of Florida sand, all flanked with trees draped with the gray moss of the Everglades. Agaves were growing in the sand, and added color to the scene.

Miss Carrie Chance has returned from her trip to the Pacific coast fair. She visited most of the scenic points along the route.

Leo Geny says they are getting about the usual amount of business this summer. This does not indicate that they are rushed, but well satisfied with conditions.

The Hillcrest School Farm is installing the Skinner irrigation system on about three-quarters of an acre of land, as a trial.

The McIntyre Floral Co. is planting potatoes for a fall crop. It seems to be the consensus of opinion that there is no other crop so well suited for rotating as potatoes.

Mr. Smith, one of the first florists of Nashville, has for several years confined his efforts to gardening. I have seldom seen a place so well tilled and maintained. He seems satisfied that he can do better with vegetables than with flowers.

The Joy Floral Co. is tearing down and rebuilding another greenhouse. This will make all their houses of up-

Joe Browne, proprietor of the Lischey Nursery & Greenhouses, has worked hard this summer to put his place in perfect order. Mr. Browne was sick for a long time a few years ago, and postponed making improvements until the return of better health. Now that he is hale again, Mr. Browne is planning to make things hum.

The state entomologist has notified all growers to have things in readiness for the inspector, who may be expected at any time. All greenhouses will be inspected in Tennessee, as well as nurseries. F. B.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, John M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

To make a thoroughly good crop of sweet corn six weeks of real summer weather are essential.

IT looks as though the arrival of all bulbs, French, Dutch and Japanese, this season will be irregular, due to infrequent sailings and the lack of adequate space on the boats.

CALIFORNIA reports concerning sweet peas are not encouraging; there are so many losses through the operations of the aphis that it will take the completion of the harvest to show what will be available of any variety.

CHRIS. REUTER, of New Orleans, who designates himself as "The South's Foremost Seedsman," has issued a book of 190 pages entitled "How to Grow, Pack and Ship Vegetables for Profit." It is a development of his free service bureau for southern truckers, established several years ago.

THE man who has started laying out his 1916 catalogue is up in the air to a worse degree than a year ago. Except for the seeds now in the warehouse, supply is more uncertain than last season, as the outcome of domestic crops has been put in doubt by the unusual weather conditions.

J. M. CLARK, of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, who was confined to his home several days last week as a result of ptomaine poisoning, was at his desk July 31, though not altogether recovered. His family returned July 30 from a three weeks' outing on the Clark farm at Oneida, N. Y.

REPORTS from France are not encouraging as regards seeds of the 1915 crop for export. All circumstances have been unfavorable. There will, of course, be considerable stock that will be available to America, but what these will be no one can say with certainty, or how the quality will have been affected.

WITH the British authorities steadily tightening their strangle-hold on German foreign trade, there appears small prospect of obtaining any German seeds this year except such as can come through the mails; the British have not yet seen their way clear to turning back Dutch, Scandinavian or even German mail for the United States.

JUDGING from present conditions, choice onion sets will be at a premium this year. Should this be so, those houses that have been selling onion sets at low prices for future delivery in anticipation of a heavy crop will probably find it difficult to carry out their contracts. It is generally understood that these sales were made with a guarantee of delivery and of quality.

NOTHING has developed in the pea and bean crop situation during the last week to indicate an improvement. The early varieties of peas have in many cases already been cut and are only awaiting dry weather to put them in proper shape for threshing. There is, of course, the possibility of their molding during the wait. The later varieties will, under favorable weather conditions, turn out much better. All other seed crops are coming along as well as can be expected.

THE prospect for a rather light crop of onion seed would attract more attention if onion bulbs were commanding better prices in the produce markets.

FIRST DUTCH BULBS HERE.

The first shipment of Dutch bulbs of the 1915 crop consisted of 221 cases, and reached New York on the steamer Noordam from Rotterdam July 29. Apparently the war has not affected the shipments of bulbs to the extent feared, but the quantity of future shipments is yet a matter of conjecture. The first arrival of Dutch bulbs last year was July 31, but the first considerable shipment did not arrive until August 4, a week later than this year.

The Noordam arrivals were consigned as follows:

BERMUDA ONION SEED CROP.

Consul George K. Stiles, at Teneriffe, Canary Islands, has made a report on the 1915 crop of Bermuda onion seeds as follows:

With harvesting well under way, reports warrant a forecast of the 1915 onion seed crop in the Canary Islands. Last year this constituted over one-half of all exportations from this district to the United States, hence the outlook is important to American buyers. The coming crop, which should begin moving toward American ports late in July, shows a yield above the average. On the other hand, there was considerable underplanting.

Orders are large, and all dealers report increasing prices and a strong market undertone, due to buying orders of unusual size, not only from the United States but from Cuba and Argentina. Much of the present crop was grown under contract, and many contractors have already sold their holdings at a good profit, before the crop was ready for delivery.

With the outlook tending strongly toward a short supply, there is a temptation among some dealers to mix old seed with the new, and detection until after actual sowing is difficult. It is therefore suggested that American buyers deal only with long-established exporters of onion seed, who will allow just claims.

Hyacinths, Tulips, Narcissi, Daffodils and Paper Whites

SINGLE HYACINTHS.

Select, First Size.

List of varieties best for forcing:
L'Innocence, white.
Gertrude, dark rose.
Grand Maitre, deep porcelain blue.
Gigantea, light rose.
Queen of the Blues, light blue.
King of the Blues, dark blue.
Price of any of above varieties, $4.50 per 100; $40.00 per 1,000.

Second Size Hyacinths, 17 cm.

Same list of varieties as above. Price, $3.25 per 100; $30.00 per 1,000.

Third Size Hyacinths, 15 cm.

These are good sized bulbs, 15 cm. equals about 1¾ inch in diameter. This is the most suitable size for pans. They will give a much stronger flower than the usual size of 8-10 cm., offered as Dutch Romans. I recommend them as far superior. They are well worth the difference in price.

List of varieties same as the first size. Price, $2.50 per 100. $22.00 per 1,000.

Mixed Bedding Hyacinths, $2.25 per 100; $20.00 per 1,000.

PEARSON'S MONEYWORTH PAPER WHITE NARCISSI.

True Grandiflora, about 1,000 to case, price per case, $11.00; $1.50 per 100.

Thirteen cm. and up (about 1,250 in a case), price per case, $11.00; per 100, $1.25; per 1,000, $9.00.

Yellow Paper White or Grand Soleil d'Or (French grown), price per 100, $2.00; per 1,000, $17.00.

PEARSON'S MONEYWORTH

Daffodils and Narcissi, double-nosed bulbs, are best for pot culture.

	Per 100	Per 1,000
Von Sion (the double yellow daffodil). Bulbs, extra large size, will throw three to five flowers each; mother bulbs (jumbo size)	$3.00	$25.50
XXX, large double-nosed bulbs, each bulb will bring two and more flowers	2.25	20.00
Golden Spur, Dutch-grown. Mother bulbs	2.50	22.00
Double-nosed bulbs	2.00	18.00

PEARSON'S MONEYWORTH QUALITY TULIPS

Our list is not long, but comprises the best varieties for pots and cut flowers. If you are not familiar with the different varieties, we shall be glad to advise you as to which are best for pots or cut flowers, early or late, if you will only tell us for what purpose you want them. The bulbs offered are top size, the cream of the Holland fields, and should not be confused with second and third sizes offered by some dealers for less money. A small tulip bulb will bloom, but a large one will give a better flower, with more substance. Place at least part of your order for Pearson's Moneyworth Quality: You will find "there is a difference."

PETER PEARSON

WHOLESALE FLORIST AND SEEDSMAN

5732-5748 Gunnison Street JEFFERSON, CHICAGO, ILL.

The most vexing question this season will be securing bottoms, as freight rates via British ports are both very high and uncertain. This has caused great expense to American importers, who have found all chances of profit swallowed up in war freights. The route now being looked to by many large shippers is via Habana, Cuba, or directly to New Orleans. This routing seems especially favorable for shipments with an ultimate southern destination, such as Texas, which buys largely of Canary Island onion seed. As American buyers of onion seed must pay all freight charges, they should investigate this important matter. Unless explicit directions are given to shippers here, buyers in the United States will often experience excessive freight rates and run chances of having damage by lengthy delays at intermediate ports.

Three lines have published sailings from Canary Island ports, and all carry freight and make either New Orleans or Habana. They have announced the following sailings: The Pinillos Steamship Co., two monthly sailings; the General Transatlantic Steamship Co., one monthly sailing; the Transatlantic Steamship Co., one monthly sailing. These companies maintain agents in New Orleans and Habana and announce that full particulars may be obtained from them.

With an average crop in sight and an increased demand for seed, prices have stiffened considerably, showing a five per cent increase as against ruling prices on June 1. It is generally expected that quotations will advance even higher—due to unexpectedly large buying from Cuban and Argentine agencies.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

The Charles G. Curtis Co., Callicoon, N. Y.—Twelfth annual wholesale list of native plants and trees. This stock, says the firm, is collected in districts of New York and Pennsylvania which are the natural home of certain species of the rhododendron, kalmia, azalea, pine, hemlock, juneberry, dogwood, sumach, fern, etc.

M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, Pa.—"Wedding Suggestions, a Portfolio of Keystone Quality Florists' Supplies." This is a supplementary list, containing eight large pages, finely illustrated, and intended to be pasted in the back of the larger catalogue, the "Willing Helper." Besides an extensive assortment of wedding accessories, it lists such general supplies as baskets, willow bird cages and plant stands, silkaline, crepe paper, mats, wreaths, wire, ribbons, corsage shields, etc.

McHutchison & Co., New York, N. Y., agents for the Royal Tottenham Nurseries, Ltd., Dedemsvaart, Holland—Wholesale catalogue of hardy perennials and rock plants, conifers, heaths, ferns, rhododendrons, azaleas, hydrangeas, common and rare aquatics, etc.; a clearly printed, carefully compiled book of fifty-six pages.

FREESIAS FOR CHRISTMAS.

Will you please tell me the proper time to start freesias to have them in bloom for Christmas? What temperature do they require? F. K.—Mass.

Freesia bulbs have been on the market since June 20. You should get a batch started at once. Use flower pots or pans. I prefer the latter, in sizes from eight to ten inches in diameter. These will hold twenty to thirty-five bulbs each. Use a light, moderately rich and rather sandy compost. Stand them in a coldframe and keep them there until the middle or end of September; then give them a temperature of 55 degrees at night and a position well up to the glass, in order to flower them for the holidays. You will find Purity much superior to refracta alba. C. W.

The KENILWORTH Giant Pansy

seeds are all grown by myself and are offered in the following mixtures and separate colors:

22—KENILWORTH STRAIN—The flowers are of perfect form and substance; many of the immense flowers are from 3½ to 4 inches; it is a striking collection of beautiful colors and markings rich with shades of red, brown, bronze, mahogany and many others too numerous to mention. Light, Medium or Dark Mixtures.

26—KENILWORTH CUT FLOWER MIXTURE—Is a distinct class by itself, surpassing all other strains as a cut flower or for exhibition purposes, for inside or outside growing; the large flowers are carried erect above the foliage on heavy stems, 7 or 8 inches long, in the most graceful manner, and stand the hot, dry weather well.

28—MASTERPIECE—A remarkable type; the curled, wavy petals giving the flower a double appearance, large flowers of great substance, on long, strong stems.

30—GIANT THREE AND FIVE BLOTCHED PANSIES—A superb mixture. Flowers large and of circular form and of great substance. The display of coloring is unsurpassed. A combination of almost every shade of rich velvety colors, reds are particularly conspicuous; the petals being distinctly marked with three or five large dark blotches.

NEW SEED NOW READY

All sorts and mixtures, except the new Pansy Princess, are $5.00 per oz.; $1.25 per ¼-oz.; 5000 seeds, $1.00; trade packet of 1000 seeds, 25c; any 5 pkts., $1.00. Please order by number.

PRINCESS

90—The New Upright Pansy

This strain is entirely distinct from all others. It is absolutely compact, upright growing, and extremely weather-proof, enduring many storms without damage to its flower. The flowers are mostly blotched and frilled like the Masterpiece, of good form and heavy velvety texture, on heavy stems carried well above the foliage. Attractive by the brilliancy of its colors.
500 Seeds 20c; 1000 Seeds 35c; ¼ oz. $1.00; ¼ oz. $3.00; 1 oz. $7.50.

24—Kenilworth Show—A fine strain.
38—Mme. Perret—Red and wine shades.
40—Zebra—Fine striped mixture.
42—Adonis—Light blue, white center.
44—Black—Almost coal black.
46—Black with bronze center.
48—Lord Beaconsfield—Purple shaded white.

52—Bronze with yellow center.
54—Velvet Brown with yellow center.
56—Havana Brown.
58—Havana Brown with yellow center.
60—Cardinal—Curled, bright red, dark blotch.
62—Cecily—Steel blue, margined white.
64—Goliath—Large curled yellow, blotched.
66—Hero—Curled, deep blue shaded white.
68—Emp. William—Ultramarine blue, violet eye.
70—Eros—Velvety brown, yellow margin.
72—Emp. Franz Joseph—White blotched blue.
74—Emp. Frederick—Maroon with gold edge.
76—Fairy Queen—Azure blue, white edge.
78—Freya—Purplish violet, white edge.
80—Gold Edge—Velvety brown, gold edge.
84—Superba—Orchid tints of red and wine.
86—Sunlight—Yellow with brown blotches.

MODESTY

From time to time we have modestly boosted our famous Silver Pink Snapdragon Seedlings, but it appears that we have not said half enough. Read this enthusiastic report and profit by it:

Medina, Ohio, July 22, 1915.

G. S. Ramsburg.

Dear Sir: Again we come with our $5.00 for seven packets of your WONDERFUL Silver Pink Snapdragon. They are grand. Your ads. don t do them justice. Seven times in three years we have bought your seeds.

Yours respectfully,

Hammerschmidt & Clark.

If you want the best there is in snapdragons and would begin at the right time, order seed today and sow at once The month of August is the correct season to sow seed for all winter flowering. Our Silver Pink is the leader and seedlings of it will give three to five blooms to one of any other variety in existence. Cuttings will be a disappointment and waste of time. Buy seed today and sow now.

New crop seed of our original Silver Pink, $1.00 per pkt.; 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00. Seed of Nelrose, Buxton, Garnet, Yellow, White and mixed, 35c per pkt.; 3 for $1.00.

Splendid plants of Silver Pink Seedlings for fall blooms now ready at $4.00 per 100; $35.00 per 1000. Good plants of Nelrose at $5.00 per 100. Other colors ready shortly.

Remember, we have a direct line on Snapdragon. All orders cash. Free cultural directions.

RUST ON CELERY.

What is the cause of my celery being affected by rust? My garden is on a hillside, high and dry and away from any body of water. We have the best of soil. We had none of this trouble until last year. The plants grow to a nice size before being affected. In a garden about 100 yards away, on the opposite slope of the hill, celery is grown from my seeds and there is no sign of rust on it. The soil is a little different from mine. Do you think the soil would be the cause of the trouble? I have sprayed it with Bordeaux mixture and Pyrox, but these do not seem to check it. A. M.—Pa.

It is not easy to tell what causes rust or blight on celery. It may be due to some check the plants have had, which makes them more easily fall a prey to it than plants which have been kept growing along steadily. Or it may be due to a deficiency in moisture, or, more probably, to some peculiar climatic condition. Some varieties, like Boston Market and Giant Pascal, are much more subject to disease than Paris Golden and White Plume, but none is immune from its attacks. I have found its attacks most virulent in a dry season.

Pyrox is an excellent poison and fungicide combined, but the poison would be of no benefit in combating rust. Bordeaux mixture or Fungine are reliable. It is, of course, better to start using one of these before any rust appears, acting on the idea that prevention is better than cure. However, since you have the rust, do not get discouraged. Keep on spraying, doing it when the plants are perfectly dry and the sun hot, rather than in the evening. Do this once in five or six days for the next two months, and if heavy rains intervene, apply more frequently. C. W.

THE LILY HOUSE

71 Murray Street

impressed with the splendid palms growing in New Orleans, both on private grounds and in the nurseries. Stocks of Areca lutescens, Phœnix Rœbelenii, Latania Borbonica, washingtonias, etc., are superior to the European grown, and more abundant. He intended to take in the seedsmen's convention at San Francisco, but his trip was curtailed by urgent business at home.

Judging the Cleveland gardens proved the most strenuous work of the kind ever experienced by Judges Adam Graham and Herman Hart. Prof. Carl H. Knirk, who accompanied them, decided that Mr. Graham, the oldest of the three, had discovered the fabled fountain of perpetual youth. The Cleveland Plain Dealer was fortunate in securing the services of the gentlemen mentioned, who gave their time gratuitously, solely for the purpose of increasing the appreciation of the artisan classes for the beautiful and the practical home gardens.

Lot Salter, grower for David Shannon, at Fort Hamilton, N. Y., is quite successful with chrysanthemums grown in benches, in soil three inches deep, securing two and three stems to a plant. He does not begin to feed until the end of August. White Cloud is the leader; all varieties are grown.

Yuess Gardens Co., Newburgh, N. Y., reëlected the board of officers. It has had a successful season.

Mark Crawshaw, Newburgh, N. Y., notes an improvement in many lines. He is busy renovating and preparing for a good fall business.

Schaefers, Inc., Newburgh, N. Y., will be strengthened by the addition of Duncan Aird, who supersedes Geo. F. Chadborn as manager. Mr. Aird was superintendent of the Van Duzen estate, one of the show places on the Hudson, for twenty-five years. Mr. Chadborn is retiring because of poor health.

PROGRESS—What Is PROGRESS?

Webster defines progress as moving forward, to increase, to advance, to go forward; a man makes slow progress, or a man makes rapid progress.

Some of us worry too much about making "Progress," and others forget it entirely; but we all reap the results of our efforts.

What do you expect YOUR harvest to bring?

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

We have had another warm week, but business has kept up well, though out-of-town shipments fell off a little. The Belladonna lily is making a fine show and the fragrant flowers are great favorites with eastern visitors, who are here in large numbers this year. Dahlias are showy and good; Grand Duke Alexis and Delice show up especially well. Asters are plentiful and there is an abundance of centaureas and other outdoor flowers. Indoor roses are improving. Carnations are badly infested with thrips on some places, though other growers manage to keep their flowers fairly clean. Funeral work continues heavy and all flowers are cleaning up fairly well.

Later lots of sweet peas are coming in and are highly acceptable. Cecile Brunner roses do not seem as popular as they were and there is a glut of them. They retail at 10 cents for a large bunch, so there would seem to be little in it for the growers, as few flowers are more troublesome to pick. An increasing demand for ferns has been noticeable in the last week or ten days, as well as for small kentias, Corypha australis and other decorative palms. Greens are plentiful, the only shortage being in well developed adiantums.

Various Notes.

The new store front of the Superior Nursery Co., on Slauson avenue, is a great improvement and should lead to increased business. At the side Mr. Gutting has a fine planting of dahlias for cut flowers. Such varieties as Delice, Grand Duke Alexis and a number of new cactus types are particularly attractive. In the greenhouses a fine lot of cyclamens, Begonia Glory of Cincinnati and other Christmas plants are coming along in good shape and the ferns are a clean, good-looking lot. I saw Mr. Gutting in close proximity to John Evans, of Richmond, Ind., and, unless all signs fail, it looks as though the Challenge ventilators, roller-bearing shaft hangers and a few more fittings of this kind will be used in the new plant houses that are to go up here shortly.

D. Stathatos, the Broadway Florist, is building a large new lath house at Hawthorne.

Daniel MacRorie, of San Francisco, and his father are visiting here and at San Diego for a few days.

M. Lambert, superintendent of Elysian park, left for his vacation July 24. He is going to take in the sights at the big shows at San Diego and San Francisco.

Albert Goldenson, brother of Morris Goldenson, is starting on an eastern trip at once. He intends to visit the trade in Chicago, Pittsburgh, New York and other eastern and middle-west cities.

J. W. Walters, of Chicago, has been visiting Los Angeles this week.

A letter received by the writer from W. Wern, manager of Wright's Flower Shop, says he has reached San Francisco on his return trip from the Yosemite valley and other northern points. While he says the roads in some places are rough, both he and Mrs. Wern are enthusiastic over the scenery and say they have had a splendid time.

S. Murata and wife are in San Francisco, taking in the sights. G. Newman, of the same firm, has had to undergo a slight operation for the removal of a sty from his left eye. Shipping business keeps up well here and a fine show of flowers is maintained at all times.

H. N. Gage is putting up a new office on the ranch at Montebello, also a concrete cellar, and is going to build a new residence on the Whittier road, where Mrs. Gage has some property.

Mrs. Altman, wife of the manager of Donofrio's, at Phoenix, Ariz., is in town for a couple of weeks, after which she intends to go on to the fair at San Francisco.

Heavy shipments continue to leave the store of the L. A. Floral Co., on Winston street, for Arizona and other warm sections, but, despite the unusually warm weather, there have been no complaints. All long-distance shipments are carefully iced.

A visit to the new seed farm of the Johanssen Seed Co., at El Monte, was well repaid. Oscar Johanssen, who has the management of this ranch, has everything in fine order. Asters are a little late, but the plants are extra fine and there are fine plots of kochias, verbenas, stocks, early and late cosmos and all the other specialties of the house. The land here is especially well fitted for raising small seeds, as it is finely divided yet does not bake or crack. The firm is negotiating for another 100 acres close by.

W. Armacost & Co. report cleaning up well on young rose stock.

John A. Evans, of Richmond, Ind., left here July 26 for San Francisco. Being a true Welshman, by descent, he could not miss the eisteddfod and will stay in the neighborhood of the Bay City until after the convention.

Frank Lichtenberg has opened a fine new flower department in the new Broadway department store and apparently is doing a good business.

C. Morton, of Phoenix, Ariz., and Mrs. Morton arrived in town July 29, having driven up by way of San Diego. Mr. and Mrs. Morton will call on the trade here and visit their daughter, Miss Hazel Morton. Their son, H. Morton, is looking after the business in their absence.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

For the last week the florists have not had such a rush as formerly reported. While there is still plenty of activity, the larger stores are giving some of their help a little vacation, which is much desired after the strenuous life of the last two months.

Summer stock continues plentiful and is moving in exceptionally large quantities, as the abundance of handsome flowers, even of the commoner varieties, is a constant source of wonder to people from less favored sections, and such stock is also largely used for decorative work. Carnations are going noticeably off crop; they have been in light supply for several days. There has been some complaint that the growers' pool is not grading closely enough, but growers say that the stock simply is not available. Offerings of sweet peas, also, are much lighter. Gladioli are coming in less freely, but some excellent stock is still shown. Supplies of asters have increased rapidly, but the heavy offerings are readily disposed of. Ordinary dahlias are plentiful, and the market for extra fine stock, such as some shops are showing, is limited. Tritomas, unless extra large, do not clean up. A good deal of salpiglossis is coming in and is used to good advantage in mixed baskets.

Where chrysanthemums a few years ago were usually expected in the latter part of September, they are now appearing in July, the first of the season having come in July 24. Only Monrovia has appeared so far, but Golden Glow is expected within a week or two. This gives an autumnal atmosphere to the market, which is increased by the appearance of a good many cyclamen blooms and by the increasing variety of lilies. Auratum is the latest in the market, and this, as well as tigrinum and rubrum, is exceptionally fine. Most of the stores are making striking displays of the three varieties. The rose market is in poor shape and the offerings are nothing extra in either quality or quantity. Ophelia and Hadley do fairly well, but Killarney and Maryland hardly move. Few orchids are coming in.

Various Notes.

The local ways and means committee for the S. A. F. convention is holding frequent meetings, and hopes to have all preliminaries attended to well in advance of the convention. A meeting was held July 28 and another July 31, at which considerable progress was made, and it is believed that the entertainment furnished will make the stay here enjoyable for the visitors. It was thought for a time that the attendance might be rather scant, but Frederic J. Bertrand, of the accommodation committee, says it now looks as if the attendance will be good, considering the length of the trip. He has already received a great many letters asking that reservations be made at local hotels, and is getting the matter in hand well in advance.

V. Podesta, chairman of the bowling committee, says the prospect is favorable for a good contest and he believes the local team will put up a creditable showing, as several of the members have developed into first-class bowlers.

Some of the awards of prizes in the department of horticulture of the exposition are now being announced. The Metzner Floral Co., of Mountain View, won a grand prize for seedling gladioli, which local experts believe are the finest that have ever been grown. This company also took a gold medal for carnations. The Fancher Creek Nurseries, of Fresno, received a medal of honor for a collective exhibit of ornamental and flowering plants and nursery stock. The rose exhibit of the Gill Nursery Co. won a gold medal, and the California Rose Co., of Los Angeles, took a silver medal for a collection of field roses. Silver medals were also awarded to the Vallance Nursery for a rose exhibit, and to N. F. Vanderbilt, of San Rafael, for hybrid delphiniums. The plot of Lilium Harrisii of E. Bustrum, Watsonville, took a bronze medal. In the general gardens of the exposition, south of the Avenue of Palms, the planting of pansies has been removed and begonias put in their place.

Daniel MacRorie, of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., and his father, have returned from a visit to the San Diego exposition and are now staying at the Burlingame nursery. Donald McLaren, of this company, has just returned from Ashland, Ore., where he has been for some time supervising the planting of a large park.

H. Bayersdorfer, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., with Mrs. Bayersdorfer, spent the week in San Francisco on his way home from Japan. They expect to leave for the east in a few days.

C. Kooyman is getting in a lot of freesia bulbs and says he is fairly snowed under with orders.

James Keegan, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., is taking a couple of weeks' vacation.

The E. W. McLellan Co., which has been for the last year or two at 18 Lick place, has for some time felt the need of larger quarters to handle the growing business, especially with the busy shipping season approaching, and has accordingly leased a place at 451 Bush street, opposite the California Flower Market, where the buyers all congregate in the mornings. The new store, which was open for business August 1, is 50x125 feet, ground floor and basement, and has a convenient rear entrance, which will greatly facilitate the receipt and shipment of goods in quantity. A commodious new ice room will be built. With the improved facilities, the company will be in a better position than ever to take care of its trade.

The Francis Floral Co., at Sutter and Powell streets, is enlarging the store by adding a rear room for the display of pottery and baskets, and is carrying out an artistic scheme of lattice decoration through the whole store. The new room is being entirely lined with lattice, in brown and apple-green, and a framework of the same material has been built around the large wall mirrors in the main store. Mr. Schlotzhauer, the proprietor, believes his new creations in French bisque baskets in pastel shades, to harmonize with all kinds of flowers, will be of considerable interest to visiting florists. This week he is showing an extra fine lot of tritomas, with stems four to five feet long.

Henry Penn, the Boston florist, and Mrs. Penn, have been in San Francisco for the last week.

The following is told on Fred Abie and L. G. Gardner, nurserymen of Oakland: The other day they started to walk to the nursery of Domoto Bros. It was hot, and both took their coats off, perspiring freely; the road was dusty and perhaps their beards needed trimming. Anyway, a woman sent a small boy to call them, and offered them 50 cents and a square meal if they would move a shed for her.

TACOMA, WASH.

The Market.

Business has been good for this time of year, many weddings and funerals contributing to the florists' coffers, and in all the trade there is not a single complaint to be heard. There are many tourists passing through Tacoma, and nearly every one has made arrangements to see the great mountain that is becoming so popular.

Advice to Tourists.

Any florist who is going to the fair should see that his ticket reads via the Pacific northwest, and if he wants to see one thing that will repay him for the whole trip, let him take a day to stop over and see the mighty Mount Tacoma and the most wonderful scenery in the United States, bar none. It is four hours to the glacier, though it has been made in less time. It is possible to make the trip in one day, but the traveler seldom wants to be in that big a hurry.

Florists' Picnic.

All the good florists in Tacoma, who felt that life is too short to be lived away behind the counter and cash register, went to the country home of the venerable Henry Benthien to enjoy the day of all days, July 21.

After the tour of inspection of Mr. Benthien's excellent range of greenhouses, the florists who were not members of the Order of Yellow Dogs were given an opportunity to sign application blanks. After the Supreme Dog had signed the cards and all applicants had been elected to membership, the Chief Dog and his Yellow Curs went to the innermost recesses of the woods, away from the watchful eyes of hostile prowlers, and gave the new "form." The impressive oration given by L. W. Scott, who, by the way, is the most excellent Yellow Dog of Washington, was well taken by the new "Pups." Carl Melby, of Seattle, was peeved to think that he had to give up some of his Seattle money to join, but when he found that the Yellow Dogs were to give a percentage of the money to King county to help repair the roads, he was better pleased. John Holze, of the Queen City Floral Co., was elected to the office of Grand Keeper of Records and Bones. The ceremony is exceedingly pretty, and if the members will only try to live up to the motto that has been taken, it will mean that the florists' business has been lifted to a higher level. Any florists' club may have the ritual and all necessary information to conduct a meeting if the secretary will write to L. W. Scott. Just address Chief of the Yellow Dogs, care Pacific Stoneware Co., Portland, Ore.

The Market.

The retail stores report a great fall in business, which is to be expected at this time of year. Stock of all kinds is plentiful. A few good indoor roses have been put on the market; Mme. Chatenay seems to be one of the leaders. Carnations are dropping off rapidly, but leave no shortage on the market. There are some good gladioli and asters, which hold up fairly well. Excellent orchids are to be seen and they are moving fairly well at the usual prices. Sweet peas flood the market. Some excellent lilies are offered, but suffer from the abundance of other stock.

Various Notes.

Allen Beale, of the Woodlawn Floral Shop, reports a favorable business. This firm is cutting some good orchids and Mme. Chatenay roses.

Mr. Buyer, of the H. Harrington Co., is spending a week's vacation camping and fishing at Union Bay.

Mr. Rahn, of Rahn & Herbert Co., Clackamas, Ore., spent two days in Seattle last week. He went from here to Spokane.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Bonnell and their two sons, Mr. and Mrs. John Holze, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Smith, of Tacoma, and C. E. Melby took a trip to Mt. After camping there over night, they took the 7-mile walk up the mountain, which leads through a park developed by nature that no artist can equal.

A. E. Buxton, of Brighton Beach, is throwing out his old cucumbers and is replanting for fall. The rest of the range will be planted with carnations and chrysanthemums.

Felix Rosaia, formerly of Rosaia Bros., Inc., is hard at work preparing his new store, at Third avenue and Madison street, which he will open in a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. John Holze, Mr. and Mrs. Hoffmeister, J. J. Bonnell and son and C. E. Melby spent an enjoyable day at the Tacoma Florists' Club's picnic July 20.

Mr. and Mrs. Felix Rosaia and Mr. and Mrs. Beall visited the Beall greenhouse on Vashon Island July 21.

Rosaia Bros. have their new greenhouse at Thomas completed and planted will all new varieties of roses. George Rosaia is taking his vacation on a fishing trip.

Charles W. Gilmer has returned from a visit to his home in Alabama. He has not decided yet what he will do, but will probably take a position in a local greenhouse.

George Kelly, of the Pike street market, had a canoe beautifully decorated with sweet peas and Shasta daisies at the electric pageant. C. E. M.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Last week the weather became cooler and cloudy, with occasional showers. This was favorable for the newly set carnations and chrysanthemum plants. The work of budding roses and other stock in the nurseries has been stopped, and the quality of some outdoor varieties of flowers has been affected. The supply of carnations has decreased. Roses, asters and many perennials have come in freely. Auratum lilies of good quality are plentiful, and rubrum has just made its appearance. There are practically no orchids on the market.

Florists who venture an estimate think business for July has exceeded that of last year by a considerable margin. There was a steady run of funeral work last week, slightly above the average in quantity. As there was little waste, the general condition of the market may be said to be quite satisfactory.

Various Notes.

Niklas & Son had a summer window display consisting of a tank with water lilies in the center, and blooming plants and ornamentals set in a floor of fresh green moss.

C. B. Knickman, representing McHutchison & Co., of New York, called on the trade last week. He plans to be in San Francisco for the S. A. F. convention. He said he had found business among the florists normal and is making a special effort to push nursery stock.

Mrs. Flora Tonseth, mother of Cornelius and Birger Tonseth, of the Tonseth Floral Co., died at the home of Cornelius, July 27. Mrs. Tonseth, who was 79 years of age, was a native of Norway and had lived in Portland twenty-five years. She will be missed by a large circle of friends.

Notice of the death of Alfred C. F. Burkhardt will be found in this week's obituary column.

B. Eschner, president of M. Rice Co., of Philadelphia, was a recent visitor.

The carnation plants newly set at the Van Kirk place are looking well. Some of the benches have received their first set of strings.

Pioneer days were recalled by an incident which occurred July 30. One of the employees at the greenhouse of Martin & Forbes Co. was considerably surprised and alarmed on seeing a large

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Vice-president, John Watson, Newark, N. Y.; Secretary, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

Forty-first annual meeting, Milwaukee, Wis., June 22 to 24, 1916.

H. D. LUDLOW is embarking in the nursery business at Worthington, Minn. He has had a thorough training in this line under his father.

NOTICE of the bankruptcy of J. Woodward Manning, of Wilmington, Mass., and formerly of Reading, Mass., appears this week under Business Embarrassments.

R. W. CLUCAS, manager of the Palisades Nurseries, Inc., Sparkill, N. Y., was operated on last week at the Nyack hospital for gall stones. He has been quite ill, but is now convalescing at his home.

A. M. AUGUSTINE, of Normal, Ill., is experimenting with cuttings of imported stock from various countries of Europe on a farm near Bangor, Mich., to learn if Michigan muck is suitable for the propagation of this class of shrubs. Illinois, he has found, is not well adapted for the purpose.

PROPAGATION OF TAMARIX.

Under separate cover we are mailing a spray of tamarix from a neighbor's yard. We should like to know the name of the variety, so that we can order more of the same sort. The bush is now at its best, being a mass of bloom. It blooms twice, now and again in late fall. If you cannot give us the name, will you please give us directions for propagation by cuttings, as we have tried this and failed?

C. F. M. & C.—Ohio.

The name is Tamarix Gallica. This makes a satisfactory shrub or low tree, and flowers a long time. It does especially well in sandy soil and seems also to enjoy salt spray and an alkaline soil. It can be propagated from seeds or cuttings. You can take green-wood cuttings now, place these in sandy soil in pans or flats and plunge them in a close frame. Protect from direct sunshine, spray frequently but lightly and close the frame early in the afternoon; 3 o'clock is a suitable hour now. As roots begin to form you can gradually give more light and ventilation. Mature wood may also be used in winter, when the cuttings, in short lengths, can be placed in flats in a cool greenhouse.

SAN FRANCISCO CONVENTIONS.

August 12 to 14 are the dates for the meetings of the Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen and the California Association of Nurserymen at San Francisco. These will be held in the Civic Center Auditorium. Full preparations have been made, and expectations are of record conventions. Monday, August 16, has been appointed Nurserymen's day at the Panama-Pacific exposition.

The Pacific Coast Association will open its sessions first. Following the usual preliminaries, reports of committees, election of officers and selection of next meeting place, the following papers will be presented:

"Uniform Horticultural Laws," by M. McDonald, Orenco, Ore.

"Recent Horticultural Legislation," by Dr. A. J. Cook, state commissioner of horticulture, Sacramento, Cal.

"Quality vs. Quantity and a Wider Distribution," by S. A. Miller, Milton, Ore.

THE ELIZABETH NURSERY CO.

ELIZABETH, N. J.

"The New Roses," by John Gill, West Berkeley, Cal.

The California Association will open its session Friday afternoon, August 13. The committee reports, election of officers and selection of next year's meeting place have been put just before the adjournment Saturday afternoon, August 14. The papers to be presented at the morning and afternoon sessions August 14 are as follows:

"The Department Store and the Nursery Industry," by Ernest Braunton, editor of the City and Home Beautiful page of the Los Angeles Illustrated Times Weekly, Los Angeles. Discussion by John Vallance, the Vallance Nurseries, Oakland; C. E. Howland, the Pomona Rose Co., Pomona.

"Recent Rulings in re Shipping Plants by Parcel Post," by D. W. Coolidge, president Coolidge Rare Plant Gardens, Pasadena. Discussion by Fred H. Howard, president Howard & Smith, Los Angeles; George C. Roeding, president Fancher Creek Nurseries, Fresno; Leonard Coates, president Leonard Coates Nursery Co., Morgan Hill.

"The Crime of Being a Nurseryman," by W. D. Somerville, sales manager for Howard & Smith, Los Angeles. Discussion by P. A. Dix, Davis County Nurseries, Roy, Utah; Frank T. Swett, John Swett & Son Nurseries, Martinez.

"Why Import What We Can Grow On This Coast?" by M. McDonald, president of the Oregon Nursery Co., Orenco, Ore. Discussion by John J. Reeves, manager of the nursery department Rodeo Land & Water Co., Beverly Hills; Henry S. Harrison, of the Harrison Nursery Co., York, Neb.

"Do We Need New Varieties of Commercial Fruits?" by Edward J. Wickson, editor of the Pacific Rural Press, San Francisco. Discussion by Wm. T. Kirkman, Jr., president of the Kirkman Nurseries, Fresno; D. W. Coolidge, president Coolidge Rare Plant Gardens, Pasadena.

"A Publisher's Suggestions to Nurserymen," by Frank Honeywell, publisher of the Pacific Rural Press, San Francisco. Discussion by A. T. De La Mare, publisher of the Florists' Exchange, New York city; George C. Roeding, president Fancher Creek Nurseries, Fresno.

CLEVELAND.

The annual exhibition and meeting of the Gladiolus Society of Ohio, which will be held at the Hollenden hotel, in this city, August 13 and 14, is taking the attention of the members of the Florists' Club now. A large exhibition by local retailers is planned, in addition to the society's regular premium list. There will be no charge for admission. Florists have sent out 8,000 invitations to their customers and friends. A record-breaking attendance and a magnificent display are promised. As this has been an unusual growing year, stock should be at its best.

Among the florists attending the S. A. F. convention and the expositions at San Francisco and San Diego are Fred C. Witthuhn, Frank J. Ritzenthaler, George Schaab, Jr., George W. Smith, with his wife and eldest son, Don, all of this city, and Miss Ida Merkel, of Mentor, O. They left Monday, August 2. F. A. F.

New Orleans, La.—The Metairie Ridge Nursery Co. has been awarded the contract for planting West End park. The bid was $7,539.10.

"A Bird in the Hand"—

You know the adage. Well, a Hydrangea in America is worth several Azaleas in Belgium right now. Of course, the Azaleas may get out of Belgium; we don't know; conditions may change; certainly it is not possible to get anything out of Belgium at present. The war may end next week, but the chances are it won't. Are you going to take that chance? Can you afford to depend altogether on imported forcing stock, when there is plenty of good forcing stock right here at home—"Made in America"—stock that you know you can depend on?

HYDRANGEAS, for example. We offer:

OTAKSA, with 7 to 10 branches, at $25.00 the 100.
" " 5 and 6 " at 20.00 the 100.
" " 4 " at 15.00 the 100.

French Novelties, all the best ones, at $5.00 the 100 addition for the same sizes.

They are all in six-inch pots now, plunged outside, and growing like weeds, rich, deep-green, healthy foliage, and "fat" stems that promise big heads of bloom. They will grow into money for you, and you can cash 'em next Easter.

There won't be any surplus of blooming plants next Spring. Stick a pin in that. We want every progressive florist to get in touch with us.

GARDENERS' ESSAY CONTEST.

The essay committee of the National Association of Gardeners announces the following rules for the contest of the President Everitt gold prize:

Contestants must have their essays in the hands of the chairman, Wm. H. Waite, P. O. Box 290, Madison, N. J., not later than October 1. The essay must be signed with a nom de plume, bear no evidence of the author's identification, and be mailed in a plain envelope.

The contestant will place his name and full address, stating the position he holds, in a separate envelope, writing the nom de plume he signed to his essay on the outside of this envelope, and mail same in a separate envelope to M. C. Ebel, secretary National Association of Gardeners, Madison, N. J.

The subjects have been arranged in four classes, as follows:

Class 1. Prize, $35 gold. Subject: "Horticulture as a Profession, from the Standpoint of a Gardener."

Class 2. Prize, $25 gold. Subject: "The Proper Grouping and Culture of Trees, Shrubs, Perennials and Annual Bedding Plants in the Ornamentation of Private Grounds."

Class 3. Prize, $20 gold. Subject: "Preparation of Ground for and General Treatment of Hardy Herbaceous Perennials." Name a list of species (limited to 100) providing a succession of flowers throughout the entire season.

Class 4. Prize, $20 gold. Subject: "How to Secure a Year's Vegetable Supply with the Aid of Coldframes or Hotbeds (but no Greenhouses), Including Soil Preparation."

This competition is open to professional gardeners who are engaged in the capacity of superintendents, head gardeners or assistant gardeners. A competitor is entitled to enter in one class only. The essays are limited to 3,000 words each. The judges will report their decision at the next convention of the association, to occur the first week of December.

Contestants will address William H. Waite for further particulars.

DETROIT.

The Market.

Market conditions last week remained unchanged. There was small movement, and stock of every description was plentiful. Several large funerals kept a few of the florists busy.

Flowers are being sold at ridiculously low prices. When asters and gladioli sell at 25 cents per dozen, one begins to wonder how growers can continue to build steel houses.

Various Notes.

The store of W. B. Brown was entered Wednesday night, July 28, by safe crackers, and the safe emptied of $75 cash. On Saturday night the yeggmen, or others of like profession, forced an entrance to W. Taepke's store, and succeeded in getting $90 after drilling the safe.

Dreer's Palms

FULL LINE OF DESIRABLE SIZES

OUR SUPPLIES not affected by WAR BLOCKADE

WHILE there is a general shortage of Palms, particularly of Kentias, due to the fact that practically no supplies were received by such growers as depend almost exclusively on imports from Belgium, and from present appearance it is not likely that the situation will be changed this fall, we are pleased to state our supplies have not been affected by this embargo, and we are carrying our usual full line of sizes of the usual Dreer quality; but as the general scarcity is certain to create an increased demand, we recommend you to cover your requirements as early as possible. If you are not ready to accept immediate delivery, let us book your order and we will set aside and reserve your stock and make delivery at any time between now and October 15.

Pochelon, his wife and two children; Walter Taepke and wife, Robert Rahaley and wife, George Hampton, of Jos. G. Neidinger, Philadelphia, and several friends, returned August 1 from the fishing trip which took them up the Au Sable river, twenty miles above Grayling, Mich. The party drove the four cars 240 miles Sunday, starting at 5 a. m. and reaching home at 9 p. m. Weather conditions were unfavorable, but everybody had a good time nevertheless. The roads were fair, except a 13-mile stretch just before reaching Bay City. Walter Taepke said that strip was almost like a mountain range. Mr. Fetter's car broke down at Novi, and he was obliged to finish the trip in Mr. Taepke's car. Otherwise there were no mishaps.

The Detroit Floral Co. has moved into a new store at 703 Woodward avenue, which is just one block south of the former location. The new store is larger, better lighted, and has a large show window. R. Flowerday is well pleased with the new place.

Plans have been completed for extensive alterations of Walter Taepke's store. The one display window will be transformed to two windows of larger depth, and many interior improvements will be made. H. S.

Great Neck, N. Y.—Ambrose Bullen has left the florists' trade.

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Trade is quiet, with plenty of stock except carnations, which are scarce and of poor quality. We are depending upon asters to take the place of carnations. They are arriving in large numbers, mostly Queen of the Market, and of poor quality. Gladioli are still a glut on the market, and while quantities are sold, the prices are low and leave but a small margin, if any. Roses are of good quality and enough to meet the demand. Beauties are of slightly poorer quality and the demand for them is small. Lilies are in good supply, but meet with a feeble demand. At times it is hard to clean them up, and prices have been exceedingly low in some cases. Valley is scarce; frequently there are absolutely none to be had. The sales come in spurts and hardly justify a great quantity. There are many common garden flowers, which seem to take the place of more expensive ones.

There is some demand for plants in bloom, but they are few. Ferns seem to be the only thing in plants.

Various Notes.

Frank Sperry, of the Livingston Seed Co., is home on sick leave. The doctors have ordered absolute rest for several weeks, as Mr. Sperry's condition is serious.

Ben Flynn, of Graff Bros., says trade is quiet.

Munk Floral Co. reports that a little funeral work now and then is about all coming their way.

C. A. Roth is busy at his greenhouses, although there is little trade now.

Fred Bauman reports the trade on c-t ferns small.

T. J. Ludwig has been making a run on asters and gladioli. J. M.

Grand Forks, N. D.—The J. N. Black Co., which operates confectionery stores in the Grand Theater building and the Scandinavian-American Bank building, has added a line of plants and cut flowers. Miss Mary Boese, secretary-treasurer of the company, is in charge of this department.

Tarrytown, N. Y.—The Tarrytown Horticultural Society has issued a pamphlet that will be of interest to many in the trade who have business in the locality. It contains, in addition to the premium list for the exhibition November 3 to 5, a list of patrons and members. E. W. Neubrand, of the F. R. Pierson Co., is secretary and Mr. Pierson himself is chairman of the board of directors.

The Market.

Business last week was fair, with several large funeral orders to make summer more bearable. There was the usual overabundance of all kinds of stock. Some was of high quality, but most of it did not meet the expense of cutting. The shop that secured an order was fortunate, and so great was the value given that the buyer is likely to call at the same store, say in December or January, and expect the same liberal treatment. At that time he will receive just about one-third the flowers he received last week.

Various Notes.

At the opening of the new $20,000 store of the Nunnally Co., souvenirs and music were dispensed liberally.

Atlanta florists spend a quarter of a million dollars annually out of town for cut flowers. Why not have a wholesale flower market of our own? Atlanta Chamber of Commerce take notice.

The Atlanta Floral Co. closed its city store last week, but continues to do business at the Decatur range. Mrs. Rosier, of the Atlanta Floral Co., has returned from a honeymoon trip to Florida.

J. P. Matthiessen will continue his Fair street greenhouses, specializing in carnations and palms.

The Ashford Park Nurseries have had a successful season, disposing of thousands of plants. They have an immense stock of promising young plants.

Wilson the Florist had an elaborate decoration for the cotton ginners' convention. He is displaying novelties at his store.

Wachendorff Bros. have a fine looking lot of stock at their range.

The Lawrence Floral Co. has been cutting an exceptional stock of gladioli.

Greenhouse Heating.

FROM HOT WATER TO STEAM.

We are moving our greenhouses and expect to change the heating system from hot water to low-pressure steam. There will be three houses, as follows: North house, 20x100 and seven feet high to the eaves; central and south houses, each 25x125 and seven feet to the eaves. The north house will require a night temperature of 45 to 48 degrees; central house, 50 degrees; south house, 55 to 60 degrees. We have a lot of 2-inch pipe on hand and should like to use it. How many runs of 2-inch pipe will be needed in each house? The houses will be connected. I am enclosing a rough sketch of the houses.

F. M.—Ia.

The accompanying sketch shows the office at one end of the 100-foot house and the boiler room at the other end. The other houses have both ends exposed.

While I would prefer to use 1¼-inch pipe for the returns, if the boiler is sufficiently large it will be possible to secure good results with 2-inch returns. For the house 20x100, use one 2½-inch flow and four 2-inch returns for 48 degrees. For 50 degrees in the middle house, 25x125, use one 2½-inch flow and five 2-inch returns. In the other house put in one flow and seven returns for 60 degrees.

THE FUEL MARKET.

The coal trade is beginning to show a few signs of returning life. In the Chicago district many growers have been taking in coal for several weeks and other large consumers are doing likewise, with the result that July was a month of increasing activity, although still subnormal. The market prices have been sustained for months only by curtailing production. August 2 the circular price for mine-run smokeless was advanced 15 cents, to $1.40 per ton, in accordance with custom; there was no other circumstance to warrant the advance. As a result of the increased cost of smokeless coals, which a few years ago were to be had under $1 per ton, many growers in the middle west have turned to Illinois and Indiana coals, which can be had today at $1.87 to $2.15 f. o. b. Chicago, where the West Virginia coals cost $3.30 to $3.45.

Consumers have felt that the conditions this year made early buying unwise, but the producing interests have

The Reward of Merit

Kirkwood, Mo., May 22, 1915.

Kroeschell Bros. Co.,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:-

Now that the firing season is over, and after a long, cold winter, the coldest night being 6° below zero, I want to say I am well pleased with the No. 46 WATER TUBE STEAM BOILER and the No. 14 hot water boiler; they are doing all you claim for them and more.

The No. 14 hot water boiler heating that large house to 62° with the greatest ease in zero weather without the help of the steam boiler.

THIS STEAM BOILER I THINK IS A WONDER, a quick steamer and holds the steam, the easiest boiler in the world to clean and to keep clean. The double steam trap system is working fine, keeping all the steam lines well drained.

But the threaded boiler tube piping system is the winner; the rapid circulation and even temperature obtained from this system is wonderful.

After being told repeatedly by other growers that roses could not be grown with hot water heat, we are getting the best kind of results not only from the heating systems and boilers, but also from the roses.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) W. J. PILCHER.

The Market.

Last week there was plenty of rain, with a hot wave the latter part of the week. The Country Club social affairs called for a good many outdoor flowers for table and ballroom decorations during the northern Indiana tennis tournament. Large quantities of gladioli were used, as well as asters, hydrangeas and dahlias, while Shasta daisies, hardy roses and the smaller perennials made charming table decorations. Roses are meeting with a good demand and the quality is splendid for summer roses. There are good quantities of annuals and perennials on the market, but the demand is decidedly limited.

July trade compared favorably with the volume of business in previous years. This is probably partly due to the fact that the cool weather has kept the majority of persons in the city, who would otherwise during the hot weather have thinned out considerably. Carnations are arriving in small quantities from field-grown stock.

Various Notes.

At the recent Greven-Gilmartin wedding the Flick Floral Co. carried out the decoration, which was elaborate. This firm has purchased a handsome new 7-passenger 1916 Auburn touring car and has also several delivery cars in view.

or more in a large clump. Center of leaves bright yellow, then around that bright olive green border, with deeply serrated edges. Sport from Trailing Queen or Beauty. Has all the good qualities of its parent except color, which makes it a trailing mate. A very attractive novelty.

From the Waban Rose Conservatories, Natick, Mass.: Rose Mrs. Bayard Thayer. Raiser's description—A sport from Mrs. Charles Russell. Flower is large and full. Color outside of petals, deep rose; inside, clear silver pink. Foliage large and very dark green, perfectly flat; has no tendency to curl, as is sometimes the case with Mrs. Charles Russell.

From the Waban Rose Conservatories, Natick, Mass.: Rose Mrs. Moorfield Storey. Raiser's description—A seedling, General MacArthur and Joseph Hill. A large, full rose, with heavy dark foliage. Color, shell-pink, deeper toward the center; tip of petals deep rose.

From A. T. Pyfer & Co., Chicago, Ill.: Shasta Daisy Mrs. H. G. Selfridge. Raiser's description—Seedling; parentage, Leucanthemum maximum Triumph x Leucanthemum Princess Henry. Size of flower, four inches in diameter. Very robust and a heavy producer.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

Business during the last week has been good for this time of year. The Eastland disaster created an unusually heavy demand for all kinds of flowers; much stock was shipped to Chicago, and the market here was cleaned up well. There has been an exceptionally large quantity of funeral work lately, disposing of stock that would otherwise have been moved with difficulty. The market last week was the strongest that it has been for some time, and the week shows some fine sales.

There are some fine roses on the market just now. Prices are rather low, but the supply is moving all the time. Carnations are plentiful again, but the quality shows clearly that they are on the decline. Sweet peas are plentiful, but, of course, are outdoor stock and do not hold up at all well for shipping. Rubrums and valley are plentiful. Asters are in and look well.

Various Notes.

Mrs. Bertrand H. Farr, wife of the peony specialist of Wyomissing, Pa., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Holton this week. Mrs. Farr, on leaving Milwaukee, will go up to northern Wisconsin for a stay with friends there.

Edward Stewart opened his retail store at 661 Third street, Saturday, July 31. Mr. Stewart formerly had the same location, but gave it up some time ago, when he took hold of several greenhouses at 838 Thirty-first street. He will operate both places in the future and is looking forward to a busy winter season.

J. Dilloff, with Schloss Bros., New York, stopped in Milwaukee Saturday, July 31, and Sunday, August 1. He was on his way east, having just come from St. Paul, with Chicago his next stop.

W. C. Zimmermann, 430 Grand avenue, left Saturday, July 31, for the west. He expects to attend the S. A. F. convention, and will be away until about August 25. H. J. S.

Gordon, Wis.—Mrs. L. E. Meyer reports an exceptional quality of ferns, water lilies and greens. Arbutus, she says, suffered severely from the late frosts, and is scarce.

WHAT THRIP JUICE No. 2 WILL DO

CHRYSANTHEMUMS ON LONG ISLAND.

Mr. Benjamin Hammond, Beacon, N. Y. Woodside, L. I., N. Y., Oct. 20, 1913.

Dear Sir: I find your Thrip Juice No. 2 a good thing to use on Chrysanthemums. Kindly send bill for the last gallon shipped, and oblige.

Yours respectfully. (Signed) VICTOR S. DORVAL SONS.

THRIPS ON CARNATIONS.

Ed. American Florist:

Please advise how to remedy the trouble affecting Carnation buds mailed under separate cover. Kansas. F. W. F.

The Carnation buds are badly infested with Thrips. Upon opening up two or three of the buds we found them alive with these pests. Thrips are one of the worst enemies that Carnation growers have to deal with, and the only way to fight them successfully is to get after them by spraying the plants regularly with the Nicotine preparations as soon as they are planted into the houses from the field and keep at it continually until weather conditions will allow for fumigation. For stubborn cases we spray with HAMMOND'S THRIP JUICE No. 2, applied as per directions on the cans. This is an oily substance and will cause the foliage of the plants to look a lighter green, but we have never found it to harm the foliage at all. C. W. JOHNSON.

THRIP JUICE NO. 2 ON ROSES.

Hopeland Estate, Staatsburg, N. Y., Dec. 20, 1913.

Hammond's Paint & Slug Shot Works, Beacon, N. Y.

Dear Sirs: I have used your THRIP JUICE No. 2 on outdoor Roses, also Roses indoors, as well as Bay Trees and other hard-wooded stock, and can say it is a most efficient remedy for Scale, Mealy Bug and Thrips. Very truly yours,

(Signed) CHAS. HARMAN, Supt.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 7, 1914.

Col. Wm. Sharp, for more than twenty-five years grower for Samuel Murray, says: "I have found THRIP JUICE No. 2 very effective for White Scale on Cattleyas and variegated Pineapples, Brown Scale on Ficus and Palms.

While several applications may be necessary, it is cheaper in the end than Nicotine and far more effective.

Our farmer finds it a cure for the Curculio on Plums. Send along five gallons as before." W. M.

Springfield, Ohio, Feb. 17, 1915.

Schmidt & Botley Co. endorse THRIP JUICE No. 2 for killing the White Fly. They believe in prevention, and took steps at once to destroy it.

Gustav Schneider says he uses THRIP JUICE No. 2 regularly, more as a preventive, and never had a finer lot of Chrysanthemums than last season. At one time the plants were affected with rust, but one or two sprayings brought them around.

Charlotte, N. C., Nov. 14, 1914.

Robert Lockerbie, many years with the Robt. Craig Co., and now grower for the Charlotte Cut Flower Co., says he has used all makes of Insecticides and is now using THRIP JUICE No. 2 for Thrips on Chrysanthemums and Carnations. The dilution of one to forty is proper. Sprayed on cloudy days, every week or ten days, left on foliage for 48 hours, it never fails to kill the insect and the slight discoloration on foliage is offset by its usefulness. W. M.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Market conditions are a little better than they were at last writing. The receipts are not so heavy as they were, but the falling off is primarily a forced one, caused by the growers. Sales have been so poor that it was not worth while to cut the blooms and ship them to the market. Prices are substantially the same as they were during the last fortnight.

The supply of both asters and gladioli seems endless. Easter lilies, while not so plentiful as they were, still are in sufficient supply to take care of all present requirements. But few good roses are coming into the wholesale houses. Plenty of short ones may be had. Other offerings include auratum, rubrum and alba lilies, snapdragons, dahlias and a few carnations.

Various Notes.

The Cincinnati Florists' Society will not hold the regular August meeting.

J. T. Conger has just returned from Wichita, Kan.

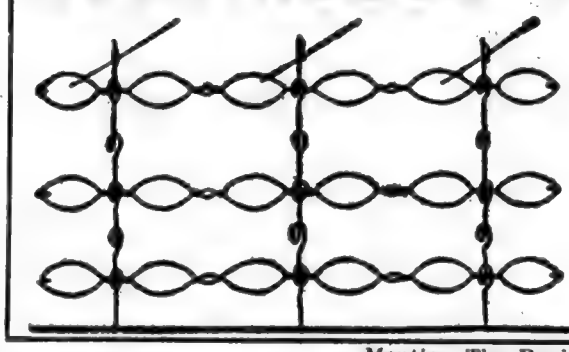
Mrs. E. G. Gillett and daughter, Rosalia, will leave August 8 for Conway, Mich.

C. E. Critchell has been having some fine early dahlias.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Kyrk have returned from their honeymoon and are keeping house at their new home, at Fisher avenue and Rapid Run road, Price Hill.

G. Brunner's Sons had a large wedding decoration July 31.

The marriage of Miss Mary Rusconi, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Rusconi, to Frank Cetrulo, was solemnized August 1. After the ceremony dinner was served at Dietrich's clubhouse.



Wm. Gardner, manager of P. J. Olinger's greenhouses, at Newcastle, was in the city July 31.

Ed Bossmeyer, of C. E. Critchell's, is on his vacation.

Visitors include Frank Farney, of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia; F. J. Donaldson, Sparta, Ky.; A. Bradford, Springfield, O.; G. A. Bechman and Joseph Goldman, Middletown, O., and Carl Baum, Knoxville, Tenn. C. H. H.

animal crawling up one of the greenhouses. Becoming frightened at sight of the workman, the animal broke several lights of glass in its hurry to escape. Several men started in pursuit with the aid of dog and gun and, after chasing the quadruped for twenty blocks, they succeeded in treeing it at Laurelhurst park, close to the home of Mayor Alber. Ben Van Kirk, of the Van Kirk Floral Co., with a well directed shot, brought the animal to the ground. It proved to be a Canadian tufted lynx and measured five feet three inches from tip to tip. Several florists tell of wild waterfowl alighting on their glass because of its resemblance to water, but this is the first time a wild animal has started up the side of a greenhouse.

A. F. Lalane and wife are spending the summer at the beach.

At a meeting of the managers of the dahlia show with the exhibition committee of the Portland Floral Society, it was decided to hold the show September 23 to 25, on the sixth floor of the new Meier & Frank Co. department store building. This location is central and as no admission will be charged, a large attendance is expected. The room is 100x200 feet, and all space not required for the dahlias will be filled by Portland growers with exhibits of seasonable plants and flowers.

Hans Lindberg, a former employee of local florists, has bought a half interest in the Latona Floral Co., at Seattle, Wash.

George W. Russell has been repairing his greenhouses, and they will all be in fine shape shortly.

Charles Cook's adiantum is looking well.

Wood Bros., of Fishkill, are disposing of a fine lot of chrysanthemums. The planted mums are doing well. Lewis Wood is on a fishing trip.

The Market

While this season of the year is always dull, this year is said to be a little the worst in a long time, there being practically nothing except funeral work, and even this line shows a falling off through the increasing recurrence of the notice, "Please omit flowers."

Asters are more plentiful and of better quality, white, pink and lavender being the leaders. Gladioli hold their popularity well. Tuesday, July 27, the local market experienced a slight flurry on account of the Eagles' parade, an extraordinary demand being created that quickly cleared the iceboxes of about everything in sight.

Various Notes.

Albert Leonard, head bookkeeper for W. E. Barrett Co., is enjoying his vacation on a farm in North Scituate.

Paul Frey has been granted permission to erect a small greenhouse at 50 Radcliffe avenue.

Paul A. Schwartz, of Pascoag, spent part of last week in New York.

Lindsay Bros., Clyde street, Clyde, report an unusually good season on cut flowers and bedding plants. They are making extensive improvements about their place.

O'Connor had two casket robes last week and more than a dozen large designs for the funeral of former Lieutenant-Governor Frederick H. Jackson.

R. N. Smith, of Pawtucket, has a cottage at Point Judith, where his family is spending the summer. He spends the week ends there.

Thomas Curley, of Harkness street, has been seriously ill during the last week, but is reported better.

W. A. Bowers has been enjoying an automobile trip of several days through the southern part of the state.

Bert West, manager for William Hay, is spending his leisure time this summer at his cottage at Buttonwoods.

Albert Burke, brother of John Burke, of Burke & Burns, is now at Palisades, Colo., where he is in charge of a large private estate. W. H. M.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

While July was a satisfactory month up to last week, it is to be hoped the finish was not a sample of the kind of trade we can expect the remainder of the summer, for apparently business died last week and was buried.

Stock of all kinds was plentiful, and some kinds were more than plentiful, especially gladioli and asters. The market has been badly overstocked with both, and the best the wholesalers can do is to sell a few of the best and get rid of the others by way of the back door.

Roses are plentiful and some of the stock is quite good. Carnations are holding on, but must go now that we have asters. Beauties, lilies and valley make up the rest of the supply. Sweet peas will not stand shipping on account of too much wet weather, as we are still averaging almost one rain every twenty-four hours.

Various Notes.

C. Warren Kinder has opened a retail flower store at Donora, Pa. Mr. Kinder is a son of I. V. Kinder, who has conducted a store at Charleroi, Pa., for several years.

The only persons going to the convention from here are Wm. F. Lowe and John Lowe. Clarke.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y.

Club Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Oyster Bay Horticultural Society was held in Fireman's hall, Wednesday evening, July 28. The attendance was the largest of the season. James Bell was elected to active membership and William O'Keefe to associate membership.

The exhibition tables carried fine exhibits of gladioli, dahlias, phloxes, asters, stocks, etc., and an interesting lot of vegetables and fruit. The president appointed Messrs. Robertson, Morrison and McIntosh as judges. They gave various awards to the following: Charles Milburn, James Duckham, James Duthie, John T. Ingram, John Soresick, Harry Gibson, Frank Kyle, F. Oliver, Arthur Patten and Joseph Marmarole.

The outing committee reported that the outing will be held August 17 at the Sagamore hotel, Oyster Bay, rain or shine; tickets for adults $1.50, children 50 cents. After the dinner there will be athletic contests, games for children, etc. The Nassau County Horticultural Society is expected to join in this outing.

Several prizes for the autumn shows were received.

A. B. Kennedy, Sec'y.

GRUBS IN ASTER SOIL.

Will you tell me of something that will kill grubworms in our yards? They are mostly affecting our asters, which are now in bud and bloom.
E. H. W.—Neb.

Procure some carbon bisulphide. Bore holes four to five inches deep and fifteen to eighteen inches apart each way. Pour a scant teaspoonful of the carbon into each hole and at once cover it. The gaseous fumes will suffocate the grubs. Do not use any naked light near the carbon, as it is of an explosive nature. It costs at retail about 25 cents per pound can.

For the black beetle attacking aster flowers, spray with Paris green at the rate of one ounce to fifteen gallons of water; add a little lime to prevent any danger of burning. C. W.

...NEWS NOTES...

Milwaukee, Wis.—J. J. Hagelgren, 746 Oakland avenue, has gone out of the florists' business.

Washington, N. J.—A. J. Bryan is remodeling one of his greenhouses at East Washington avenue. It will cover 2,400 feet of ground when completed.

Tuskegee, Ala.—Oak Grove Greenhouse has a new coleus that has been christened Yellow Trailing Queen. It is a sport either from Trailing Queen or Cecile Brown and the center of the leaf is a good yellow, edged with green and deeply serrated. It is said to be a good grower.

Riverside, Ill.—Martin H. Radke has moved his greenhouse business from Maywood to Riverside, utilizing the 25,000 feet of glass formerly operated by Mrs. Mary A. Reissig. His new location, which affords larger and more convenient business quarters, will be known as the National Greenhouse.

Elkhart, Ind.—The West View Floral Co., which was organized two years ago to take over the business of W. H. Troyer, is gradually working up a business in shrubbery and hardy plants. The firm, which is composed of N. A. Harold and S. S. Jones, operates a range of seven greenhouses and a downtown store, at 525 South Main street. Mr. Jones has charge of the greenhouses and Mr. Harold of the store.

Danville, Ill.—After the death of Mrs. T. J. Morgan last September, the greenhouses which she had conducted since the death of her husband, A. W. Morgan, in Chicago September 10, 1909, were purchased of the heirs by her daughter, Mrs. Harry P. Phelps, of Princeton, Ill., and placed in the charge of an elder sister of Mrs. Phelps. This sister is now so ill that Mrs. Phelps contemplates selling the property. If the sister regains her health, however, Mrs. Phelps says she will rebuild the greenhouses and further develop the large trade her sister has worked up.

Forest City, Ia.—The Hill City Greenhouses, started fourteen years ago by Eugene Secor and later taken over by his son, Willard Secor, recently deceased, were sold July 19 to J. H. Rine and son, H. B. Rine, greenhouse proprietors at Humboldt, Ia. The consideration in the deal was said to be $15,000. H. B. Rine will manage the Hill City Greenhouses, while his father will remain in charge of the Humboldt establishment. C. B. Simons, greenhouse foreman for Willard Secor for five years, has been retained in the same capacity.

Minneapolis, Minn.—The Armory garden, as it has come to be known since the S. A. F. convention of 1913, is again making an excellent show and Theodore Wirth, superintendent of parks, has issued a public invitation to it through the daily papers. The garden this year is nearly all planted with hardy perennials. "The main object of the garden," said Mr. Wirth, "is to make the people acquainted with the plants which are adapted for use on home grounds in our climate, and for that purpose especial pains have been taken to label the plants."

Rose Nozzle

THIS is the famous Garland Little Wonder Spraying Nozzle—absolutely the best for spraying underneath foliage to keep down insects.

The regular price is 35 cents each and many of the largest growers order them in large quantities.

Just to get acquainted we will send one free to every grower who sends a request for one with 3c in stamps to cover postage.

Hammond, Ind.—Philipp Buettner, proprietor of the East Lawn Greenhouses, reports an unusually active demand for funeral work.

Union Grove, Wis.—At the annual meeting of the Union Grove & Yorkville Greenhouse Co., the following directors were reëlected: John Martin, J. H. Smith, W. E. Tucker, J. T. Gittings and E. H. Skewes. The company's range is under lease to French & Salm.

Janesville, Wis.—J. T. Fitchett says the season of 1915 was the best on record for the sale of dahlia roots. He began cutting flowers early in July and expects an excellent season for the sale of blooms. Speaking of rapid transit, a shipment of dahlia roots that left the grower in Germany December 16 reached Mr. Fitchett June 1, after five and one-half months on the road, in fairly good condition.

POST YOURSELF ON ALL THE FACTS ABOUT GREENHOUSES--INSIDE AND OUT!

The best testimonial that we can offer anyone is to refer them to those whom we have done work for.

This is but one of a long list we have to submit, both from professional growers and those who grow for pleasure.

Tamaqua, Pa.

To whom it may concern:—

We recommend S. Jacobs & Sons for greenhouse construction work.

First, because of the superior quality of their materials, and second, because of their reasonableness in price.

The first and second greenhouses shown to the right of the photograph we purchased from the above mentioned firm in 1911, and the third house on the left in 1913. Everything for this entire range was bought from them.

Their heating apparatus has given us exceptional satisfaction. We had an outside temperature of 12° below zero just the other year, yet in spite of this we were able, under ordinary heating, to keep up a temperature of 60° in the houses.

Very truly yours,
F. W. BECKER.

We know all the facts about Greenhouses, inside and out. At it almost half a century.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

CANADIANS HOLD ANNUAL SESSION

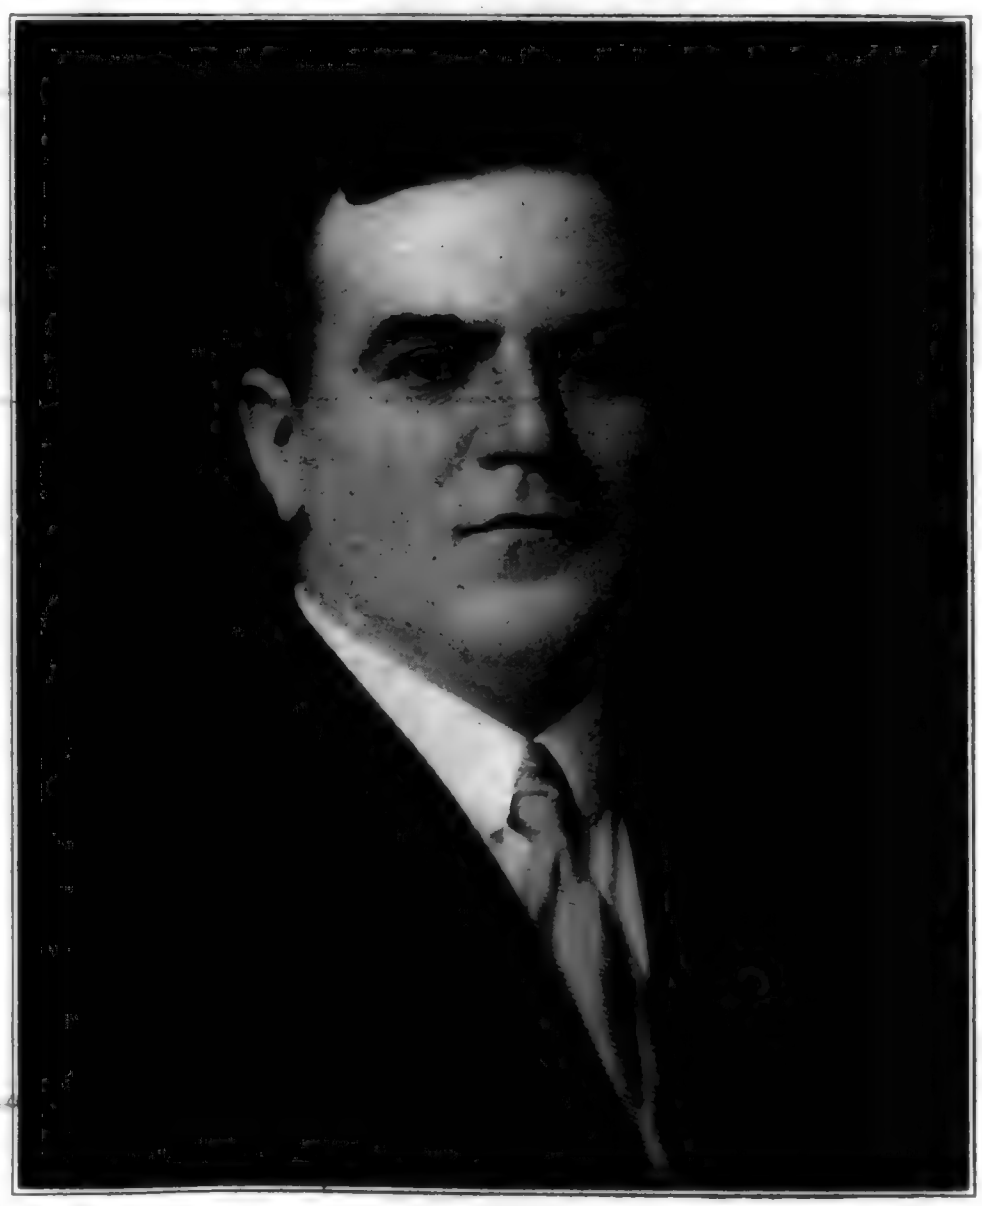
Members of the Canadian Horticultural Association convene at London, Ont., August 3 to 5, for eighteenth annual meeting. Attendance and sessions reflect hopeful spirit of the florists of the Dominion. Profitable addresses and enjoyable excursions make convention one of the most successful in the organization's history.

THE members of the local committee, in whose hands were placed the responsibilities connected with the arrangements for this year's convention of the Canadian florists, have much to be proud of. Everything was carried through on the tick of the clock, without the slightest hitch anywhere, and Chairman E. B. Hamilton, Secretary J. G. Gammage, Treasurer F. Dicks, F. Cheesman, superintendent of trade exhibit; A. Murdoch, W. W. Gammage, G. Dicks, J. Pawlitzki, G. H. Hill, E. H. Whiting, A. J. Morgan, F. Darch and J. Hunter received the sincere congratulations of the visitors upon the gratifying results of their labors.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

President.
Fred Adams.....Toronto, Ont.

First Vice-President.
Jas. A. Fraser.....Prescott, Ont.



Second Vice-President.
F. Dicks.....London, Ont.

Secretary-Treasurer.
Julius Luck.....Montreal, Que.

Exhibits Not Numerous.

Hyman hall was chosen to house the exhibits, which were hardly as numerous as usual; steadily plodding on seems to be the pervading spirit in the business world in this country at the present juncture, since no one appears disposed to base future operations on the doubtful outlook of today. The reports of officers, however, showed the association to be stronger than ever before. The membership was 113 last year, and seven new members came in at this meeting.

The hall proved well suited to the reading of the various papers, all of which were well received, the lecture on "The Cost of Production of Florists' Stock," by A. L. C. O'Brien, of Toronto, and that on "Orchids," by W. J. Jones, of the Dale Estate, Brampton, coming in for special commendation. The report of the plant registration committee was read by H. J. Moore, of Queen Victoria park, Niagara Falls, and the discussion that ensued resulted in a decision to allow florists with any new plants to send them to H. J. Moore, at the above address, for the purpose of registering them and affording any further information that might be required.

Fred Adams.
(President-elect Canadian Horticultural Association.)

Professor T. G. Bunting's paper on "Irrigation" proved helpful. The Skinner system was fully dealt with by one who has watched it in all its phases. The paper on "Insects and Pests that Affect Greenhouse Stock" did not show W. A. Ross, of the Dominion Entomological Laboratory, at Vineland, Ont., at his best. There was also a paper by Prof. Buck, of Ottawa, and one on "Perennials" by W. J. Potter, of the parks department, Toronto.

The Social Side.

The social side of the convention began at the close of the first session, August 3, when automobiles carried the members to the greenhouses of J. Gammage & Sons, on Oxford street. An inspection was made of their establishment, the largest in this vicinity, where a first-rate luncheon was served. The members of the firm were active in the preparations for this exceedingly well planned convention.

A thoroughly enjoyable trip to Port Stanley over the London & Port Stanley new electrified road was the feature that attracted everybody on Wednesday afternoon. The scenery was gorgeous, and those who could not attend the convention missed a great treat. A baseball game was played, Canadian florists vs. Londoners, the latter winning 13 to 15. Walking on the beach and dancing in the Casino filled in the remainder of the afternoon.

After the session August 5, automobiles were called into requisition, and the beauties of London enjoyed in a trip around the city and to Dicks' greenhouses. Evening brought the annual association banquet, at the City hotel, at which the patriotic speech and toast by Ex-Mayor Graham called forth great applause and put everybody in excellent humor. Advantage was taken of this opportunity to present H. B. Cowan, who for the last two years has been president of the society, with a case of silver, and the thanks of the members for the good work he continues to do in the cause of horticulture.

Next year's officers were elected at the closing session as follows: President, Fred Adams, Toronto; first vice-president, James A. Fraser, Prescott; second vice-president, F. Dicks, London, Ont. E. J. Hayward, E. Collins and Frank Wise were appointed to the executive committee. Hard-working and enthusiastic Julius Luck, of Montreal, enters upon his fifth year as secretary of the organization. The place of meeting for next year was left in the hands of the executive committee.

The Exhibits.

Among the exhibits may be mentioned a group of ferns, palms, crotons and table stock, for which J. Gammage & Sons were awarded a diploma; a display of ferns and cut flowers by John Connon & Co., Hamilton; a display of ribbons by Schloss Bros., New York; an exhibit of ribbons, baskets, etc., by A. L. Randall Co., Chicago; baskets, wire work, etc., by Reed & Keller, New York; wire work, etc., by Dennis Wire & Iron Works Co., London; pots by Foster Pottery Co., Hamilton; Dunlop hose, etc., by the Dunlop Rubber Co.; greenhouse plans and models of construction by Lord & Burnham and R. W. King & Co., both of Toronto; and gladioli by John Lewis Childs, Flowerfield, N. Y.

RETAIL STORE MANAGEMENT

WHAT THE LEADERS IN THE TRADE ARE DOING

A HINT TO SALESMEN.

As a lady keeping house is judged by her economy or lack of it, so are clerks judged by their sales and the way they go at them. It is a recognized fact that some clerks, good salesmen as they may be, are merely putting in their time, instead of conscientiously taking a personal interest in the business. How many flower stores, for instance, would be more evenly cleared of stock if the salesmen would think a little more! Just because a beautiful spray or cluster of pink carnations is being displayed on the counter, there is no earthly reason why the clerk should sell one exactly like it to the customer who is in search of funeral flowers, when, at the back of the store, there are hundreds of white carnations which need to be sold more than the pink. By a little careful handling of the customer, telling her that colors are not considered so much today as in previous years, and explaining that the white ones will make just as rich looking and attractive a spray, in most cases the salesman will persuade the customer to accept his judgment.

The same method can be applied to clear stock of all kinds of flowers. Sometimes it may be roses, at times it may be sweet peas, but almost every day, in every store, there is an oversupply of some kind of flowers.

If it be carnations, asters or sweet peas that are overabundant, let me suggest, when the customer is ordering design work, that the salesman recommend solid effects. What is more beautiful than a cross or wreath of flowers solidly worked and shaded in together, with a loose arrangement on the side of the wreath or in the center of the cross? These arrangements display artistic taste and never fail to please the customer, and at the same time dispose of stock that badly needs to be moved. In these kinds of designs many flowers can be used which are somewhat inferior, but which at the same time cost as much as the best. If this is not done, probably these flowers would be wasted and be a clear loss to the proprietor.

Each salesman and saleslady should acquaint himself or herself every morning with the stock. At a glance at the icebox they can see for themselves how the stock stands. If this is not possible, surely the manager or proprietor can say, "Sell so-and-so whenever possible, please," and the desired result will be obtained. Good judgment on the part of clerks is one of the main factors in our business, which is a business for all occasions. H. J. H.

RIGHT TO CLEAR STREET.

While walking along a business street the other evening, I saw a florist order the removal of a refreshment cart which was standing in front of his store in such a manner as to obstruct access to the store. Being always on the alert to meet the legal difficulties of the readers of The Review, I came, as a result, to consider this question: What legal rights has a florist or seedsman against obstruction of the street or sidewalk in front of his store? And this is what I find to be the law on the point, as announced by decisions of the highest courts of the country:

He is entitled to have access left free for himself and his patrons between the street and sidewalk and his store, as against any unreasonable obstruction created by an individual or the city. When this right is infringed, he is entitled to sue for damages sustained by him, or to enjoin further annoyance, if he is unable to obtain redress at the hands of traffic officers or other local authorities. But there is no right to relief against inconvenience resulting from proper use of the street or sidewalk for travel by the public, including maintenance of street car tracks, or from maintenance of electric light and telephone poles, etc. Every owner and occupant of property must bear the inconvenience arising from the street or sidewalk being torn up in the making of repairs or improvements. There are several decisions to the effect that, in order to recover for injury to property resulting from obstructing a street on which it abuts, the complaining owner must show damages different in character from those sustained by the public at large.

The right of an occupant of business premises to enjoin hacks from standing in front of the place in such manner as to obstruct access thereto has been often recognized by the courts. I recall that not long ago the Iowa or Nebraska Supreme court decided that a merchant was entitled to enjoin his town from maintaining hitching posts in an abutting street in such manner as to unduly interfere with the merchant's and his customers' access to the store. The Alabama Supreme court has sustained the right of a property owner to sue to enjoin maintenance of wagon scales in a street where they were so constructed as to interfere with ingress to, and egress from, his premises. (City of Florence vs. Woodruff, 59 Southern Reporter 435.)

In a comparatively recent case, the Pennsylvania Supreme court decided that when the occupant of a business building sets up on the sidewalk in front of the building a showcase or signs which attract crowds, obstructing the entrance used by another occupant of the same building, and cutting off the view of the latter's show windows, the latter is entitled to compel removal of the signs and showcase on the ground that they constitute a nuisance. (Green & Green Co. vs. Thresher, 83 Atlantic Reporter 711.)

The Best Rose Decoration Ever Accomplished by Max Schling.

The fact that a passageway constructed above a street to connect buildings on opposite sides was high enough not to interfere with traffic along the street was held by the Maryland Court of Appeals not to relieve it from being a nuisance as against an adjacent property owner, whose light is thereby obstructed. (Townsend vs. Epstein, 49 Atlantic Reporter 629.)

Authority for saying that a city is liable for injury to a property owner caused by permitting an excavation to remain in a street in such way as to obstruct travel is found in a decision of the New York Court of Appeals.

S.

MAX SCHLING'S BEST.

Max Schling, the original and energetic New York retail florist, has to his credit many unique decorations and arrangements, yet the success of which he is most proud has nothing whatever of originality in it. The accompanying illustration shows Mr. Schling's best. The roses are good, but nothing, in the florist's opinion, compares with the central feature of the arrangement —Max Schling, Jr., aged 1 year.

GRASSHOPPER DESIGN.

Among the many orders for unusual floral designs, few present more difficulty to the make-up artist than one recently given the Kalisch Bros. Floral Co., St. Louis, Mo. It was for a large grasshopper, the trade-mark of a printing house for whose opening the piece was ordered. How the make-up artist overcame the obstacles of this particular order can be seen by the reader for himself in the accompanying illustration. Roses and carnations were the principal flowers used. A few other kinds were made use of for particular parts of the piece.

WOULD CHANGE MEMORIAL DAY.

Herbert F. Warren, proprietor of the Peony Gardens, at Trumbull, Neb., is sponsor for a movement to change the date of Memorial day, according to the Denver Post, which stated:

"To enable florists to have three days in which to prepare for Memorial day business, Herbert F. Warren, of Trumbull, Neb., has started a movement to have Memorial day changed from May 30 to the first Thursday in June of each year. 'This,' says Mr. Warren, 'would allow three days for preparation and transportation, and one day, Friday, to straighten up shop, and all could be ready to worship God on the day that they thought right.'"

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Cluny, Alta.—The Trusts & Guarantee Co., of Toronto, which was appointed liquidator of the bankrupt Cluny Nurseries, Ltd., of Cluny, Alta., about a year ago, reports under date of July 31 the business affairs of the nurseries from July 3, 1914, to July 23, 1915. The statement lists a loss of $9,045.04 for the period stated. July 23, 1915, the assets were $27,247.66 and liabilities $37,652.55, as compared to $29,677.90 and $31,064.05, respectively, of July 3, 1914. The liquidator points out that the nurseries are more valuable this year, in some respects, than they were last year. While the stock is in good condition, it is unsalable, and there is no prospect of any income being derived from it until next spring. The liquidator adds that the company has no money, and cannot borrow any, since it can not offer tangible security. An offer has been made for the purchase of the assets, subject to an option for sixty days, which is under consideration. Among the trade creditors with unsecured claims are:

Philadelphia, Pa.—The stock of seeds, bulbs, poultry supplies, etc., of the Johnson Seed Co. will be sold at its store, at 217 Market street, Tuesday, August 24, at 10 a. m., by Referee Joseph Mellors. Samuel T. Freeman & Co., auctioneers, 1519-21 Chestnut street, will conduct the sale. A meeting of creditors will be held Thursday, August 26, at 10 a. m., at the referee's office, 1035 Drexel building, to hear the return of the sale and confirm it unless cause to the contrary is shown.

ROOTING CUTTINGS IN FRAMES.

Kindly advise me how to build a coldframe in which to root rose cuttings. Is manure necessary?

C. B.—Ohio.

A coldframe with plank sides, dug out so as to allow room for a foot of stable manure, which should be moist, mixed with some leaves to prevent violent heating and thoroughly tramped, will root rose cuttings nicely during the last half of July and the first half of August. Cover the manure with four inches of sandy loam and put the cuttings in this. It is not absolutely necessary to have bottom heat, but the cuttings will root earlier in it.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

SELECTION OF THE BUD.

Kindly advise me as to the best buds to take, the time of flowering and the length of stem, with reference to such chrysanthemums as Lynnwood Hall, Balfour, W. R. Brock, Pink Ball, Golden Wedding, Marie Liger, Chadwick, Pink Beauty, William Turner, Minnesota, Golden Age, Gilded Gold, W. H. Lincoln, Black Hawk, Marion Newell, Millbrook and Snow Bird. Is Sweetness a pompon? When does it come in and what is its color? L. L. C.—Mo.

The question of bud selection depends a great deal on how late the flowers are needed. Some growers will take the latest possible bud on such kinds as Brock, Chadwick, Pink Beauty, Lynnwood Hall and W. H. Lincoln. By this is meant that the plants are kept growing as long as possible, and the last bud the plant produces, which is known as the terminal bud, is retained, because the plant makes no further growth after that time. After September 1 the bud is safe on practically any of the varieties mentioned, but if L. L. C. wishes to have any flowers large enough for exhibition, he should try to get a bud on such varieties as Turner, Marie Liger and Black Hawk as soon as possible after August 20.

Late planting and a selection of the terminal bud contribute more than anything else to make varieties late in blooming. For instance, the variety W. R. Brock, which I distributed to the trade about eight years ago, if the bud is taken in the last part of August, will give good flowers by November 6, whereas the same variety, if it is propagated late and a late bud is secured, will give fine flowers for Christmas.

The length of stem will also depend largely on the time of planting and the method of growing. If L. L. C. has as much head room as five and one-half feet, that should be sufficient for even the tallest kinds, which will be Lynnwood Hall or Chadwick. Other kinds, such as Lincoln, Brock and Balfour, will not need over two feet of head room, unless they were propagated in February and have been growing continuously ever since. I do not know of the variety Sweetness, so cannot say whether it is a pompon or not. I cannot recollect a variety of this name.

Chas. H. Totty.

BLACK SPIDERS ON MUMS.

For several seasons we have been bothered by a small black spider in our chrysanthemum houses and it is at times exceedingly troublesome. During the growing season no apparent damage is done, but as soon as the flowers are well along toward development, especially the later varieties, the spiders spin their webs so as to completely enclose the flowers over night. We should like to hear from readers of The Review on any practical means of killing spiders of this sort. Would the salt spray solution that is used for carnations be injurious to smilax or chrysanthemums? S. F. C.—Mo.

We are likewise bothered by a small spider on mums, but in our case it is white instead of black. During the growing season these spiders are found underneath the leaves and do no apparent damage, because the plants grow rapidly and the insects move from leaf to leaf without injuring the plants to any great extent. This pest seems to be closely allied to the red spider, but it is more difficult to clean out than the latter. I have heard growers say that fumigating with cyanide once a week will keep them entirely cleaned out, but I have never tried this method and so am not in a position to pass on its merits. We keep our plants well syringed, particularly on the under side of the leaves, all summer. As a result, when fall comes and the syringing has to be dispensed with, our plants are fairly clean. Of course, it is impossible to syringe after the buds begin to show color. Spider has never been a serious trouble with us, but if it has attained the dimensions of a pest with S. F. C., it might be well to try the cyanide treatment.

I am not informed as to whether the salt spray solution used on carnations would do any good—or harm—to mums. It might be a good idea to try it.

Chas. H. Totty.

FUNGI AND LEAF ROLLERS.

I am sending you two chrysanthemum leaves, one of which is affected with some kind of disease, while the other is worm-eaten. Please tell me what I can do to get rid of both troubles. My house is whitewashed quite lightly; can that be the cause of my troubles? I am also enclosing two daisies, of which I should like to know the names. F. R.—Wis.

Of the leaves enclosed, the one F. R. calls worm-eaten has been ruined by the leaf roller. The egg is deposited by the moth inside the tissues of the leaf, and, as the caterpillar develops, it wraps the leaf around itself for defense. As a rule, the leaf roller is not particularly plentiful and the safest way would be to remove and burn the leaves.

The other leaf, I believe, is affected with a fungoid disease which is common on mums when the plants are growing too close together. Any of the recommended fungicides, such as Bordeaux, Fungine, copper solution or sulphide of potassium, will go a long way toward eradicating this disease and preventing it from spreading, by killing the spores which cause it.

In regard to the daisies, the sample flowers submitted were black when received and were useless for the purpose of identification. As a mere guess, I would say the double one is Marguerite Mrs. F. Sander, and the single one what is known as the Shasta daisy.

Chas. H. Totty.

Sweet Peas

SOWING OUTDOOR SWEET PEAS.

Please inform me as to the proper time to sow outdoor sweet peas in fall to have them in bloom early in the spring. Also, what varieties and colors are free bloomers and good sellers? I shall appreciate any information you can give me. F. S.—Pa.

In your latitude I would sow the seed early in November. Should the ground keep open and be sufficiently dry to be workable, they can be sown later—at any time before the ground freezes up. Give them a mulch of strawy manure after a crust several inches thick has formed. Do not apply it while the ground is soft, or mice may cause havoc.

Among the best selling varieties are Hercules and Countess Spencer, which are splendid deep pinks. This is the most popular shade for the market. In white, try Nora Unwin. There are one or two new and expensive sorts that are a little superior, but none of moderate price. In light shades of pink, Mrs. Hugh Dickson is still hard to beat. Florence Nightingale is a splendid lavender. If you need any other colors, Scarlet Emperor, John Ingman, rose, and Improved Miss Willmott, orange pink, are good. All the foregoing are of the Spencer type. The old grandifloras will not sell in competition with them.

I would suggest that you try starting some seeds in flats of sand about March 1. Pot the seedlings off singly into 3-inch pots. Gradually harden them off and plant outdoors about the middle of April, one foot apart. Compare the results from these with the fall-sown ones and I think you will want to start them in flats another season. C. W.

WINTER SWEET PEAS.

I have a greenhouse 25x100 feet and seven feet to the eaves. The house has no benches and I want to plant half of the space in sweet peas. Will it be all right to prepare trenches five feet apart for the peas, and not use any drainage? The soil is a heavy red clay loam and seems to dry out pretty well. I intend to plant Christmas White and Christmas Pink. Are these the best varieties to plant for a good crop about December? When shall I plant, and shall I sow the seed in flats or pots? In supporting the vines, should they be strung the same as the outside peas are supported? H. A. C.—Ala.

If your soil seems to dry out well, it probably does not need any drainage. Instead of digging out trenches, the best plan would be to give the whole border a trenching two feet deep, working in a liberal dose of rotted cow manure if you have it; if not, well decayed horse manure. If you think the soil is too stiff, you could improve it by working in at the same time a dressing of coarse sand, fine gravel, fine coal ashes or road grit.

The rows five feet apart will be all right. The old Christmas Pink and Christmas White, which are grandiflora varieties, are being largely superseded by the winter-flowering Spencers. The seed of these Spencers is high-priced, but the flowers are much more salable than those of the grandifloras. Pink and white are the two best selling colors. You will find these winter Spencers advertised in The Review. For a good Christmas crop in your latitude, I would sow early in September. Start the seeds in flats; then plant out four to six inches apart. Support with cotton twine strung from the rafters, if these happen to come right. If not, you can run overhead wires and others above the ground to run the strings from. The shoots will need loose tying in once a week in addition. C. W.

RUST ON ANTIRRHINUMS.

Enclosed herewith you will find a stem from one of our snapdragon plants, which are affected with rust. Is there anything we can do to save them? The rust has spread over the entire lot, and some of the plants dried up and died within less than a week.

L. A. E. & S.—Ohio.

There is no known cure for rust on antirrhinums. Apparently, this is a year of rain, rust and ruin. With incessant wet weather throughout the country, we shall see destructive results on all plant life from this enemy in its varied forms. With continued rain and moisture from fog, there is no opportunity for spraying, even if we had an effective remedy. Destroy, by burning, all infested plants, and, where possible, burn over the ground by scattering dry straw. Lastly, scatter lime and sulphur over every inch of infested ground. Guard closely all indoor stock. Water sparingly, and only when there is enough air or sunshine to dry off the foliage. Make free use of lime and sulphur on the soil.

PANSIES AT THE FAIR.

One of the glories of the San Francisco exposition is the Court of Flowers, which lies between the Palace of Varied Industries and the Palace of Manufactures. Nothing seems to have impressed the visitors more favorably than the showing of pansies, with their masses of brilliant color. These great beds, probably the largest ever planted in the United States except for seed purposes, were not exhibits, but were filled with stock purchased by the exposition management from various growers. Steele's Pansy Gardens, of Portland, Ore., furnished a considerable part of the stock, but was not the only one drawn upon.

BEGONIAS FOR THANKSGIVING.

I have a fine lot of Begonia Chatelaine in 4-inch pots, ready to be repotted to 6-inch pots. They have started to bloom. I have pinched the flowers off, as I wanted them for Thanksgiving. Can I keep on pinching for a while, or is it better to let them bloom and sell them earlier?

W. H. W.—Cal.

You can keep on pinching the flowers off for some time yet. Chatelaine is an everbloomer, and there is not a month in the year when it can not be had in good flower. C. W.

Wenona, Ill.—William Metzger, proprietor of the Wenona Greenhouses, is preparing to add one house, 25x75 feet, just south of the present range. It will be used for vegetable and pansy plants. When this house is completed, Mr. Metzger's range will contain about 12,000 feet of glass.

THE GLADIOLUS

GLADIOLUS BULBS DECAYING.

I am sending under separate cover some leaves and bulbs of Gladiolus Peach Blossom. These were planted in the first part of January, between carnations in ground beds. They have had two applications of pulverized sheep manure and two of lime. The watering and temperature have been the same as usually given to carnations. Recently I noticed some of the shoots dying. They turn yellow at the tip and then gradually dry up. You will notice that one of the bulbs I send is completely decayed, while the other is just starting to decay on one side. In the decayed tissues you will find some little white maggots and also a number of little, yellowish insects, similar in form to aphides. Have these anything to do with causing the trouble, or did they get in after the plant tissues had decayed? Some Blushing Bride planted at the same time and given the same conditions are slightly affected, but not nearly so badly as the Peach Blossom. Can you suggest a remedy? C. K. S.—Mich.

I think the maggots were not the cause of the plants becoming sickly, but came after the bulbs started decaying. The most probable cause of the Gladiolus Peach Blossom dying is that they had too much plant food. They are naturally much less vigorous in habit than G. Blushing Bride, which will stand an amount of feeding which would be ruinous to Peach Blossom. I am aware that good gladioli of the small-flowered or nanus type are sometimes grown with carnations, but they do vastly better in a bed by themselves, and best of all in flats containing four or five inches of soil. Considering the long period that elapses from planting to flowering time, I consider these gladioli the reverse of profitable as a bench crop, but quite profitable if grown in flats. C. W.

GLADIOLI IN OHIO.

On a visit last week to the establishment of C. Betscher, Canal Dover, O., I discovered something that was surprising to me. Possibly to the specialist in gladioli it was just an ordinary field, but 200 rows of gladioli, 6,000 bulbs to the row, in rows over 900 feet long, was a sight. Fully half of this field is taken up with seedlings of Mr. Betscher's own raising, some blooming for the first time, some on trial as first and second year sorts, and one, Eugene V. Debs, a red of unusual brilliancy, is a seedling of 1911. It promises to surpass anything in its color that is known today as a standard sort.

The majority of Mr. Betscher's crossings have been on the primulinus type crossed by the gandavensis type, and the race he has produced is tall and wiry, heavily flowered, with distinct coloring and early blooming habit. At this date, August 6, the majority of the primulinus seedlings have passed their prime, while the Kelway, Vilmorin, Childsii and other well known types are just coming into flower. America, Augusta, Mrs. Francis King and other standard sorts are grown in quantity, to a height of about three feet, while the seedlings average well over four feet, a decided difference.

Mr. Betscher has been working for six years on this new strain of gladioli, and some wonderful new varieties are bound to result from this batch of seedlings that he now has in flower.

A small field of Astermum, both pink and lavender, shows unusual promise, running over ninety per cent full double flowers. By careful selection the single and half-single flowers have been eliminated. Everblooming seedlings of hemerocallis, or day lily, are another specialty to be found here.

SOWING DELPHINIUM SEED.

Can you tell me how to plant delphinium seed to get it to germinate? I have planted several different varieties from four different seed houses and none of it seems to come through the ground, except, perhaps, one or two plants to a package. Does this seed need different treatment from other perennial seed? If so, what is the secret of success in growing these plants from seed? I have purchased a quantity of seed and wish to raise a lot of plants, if possible. F. T. W.—N. J.

I cannot understand why you have so much trouble in germinating delphinium seed. Surely at least one of the seed houses would have fresh seed of it. Sow your seed in coldframes. Screen the soil well and mix a fair proportion of sand with it. Cover lightly. Sow in rows six to eight inches apart. Protect with sashes and cover with board shutters until germination starts. Then gradually inure to light. Leave the sashes tilted at the top, so as to admit some air all the time. Water with a fine rose can after sowing. A good time to sow is April and May, or later in the season. August will be found better than July. Why not save some seed from good plants of your own? Sow when ripe.

DISEASED ANTIRRHINUMS.

I am sending under separate cover a plant of yellow snapdragon which is badly affected with what seems to be some sort of fungous disease. I first noticed this trouble just before planting outdoors. The plants made a vigorous growth and seemed to be recovering. Recently, however, the disease has become worse and is spreading to the other varieties. When a plant is badly affected the stem is attacked and the plant dies. This seems to resemble the antirrhinum rust which was described in The Review about a year ago, except that I have been unable to find any of the brown particles. Can you tell me what this disease is, and suggest a remedy? I am using Bordeaux mixture.

C. K. S.—Mich.

This disease seems to be quite prevalent at present, being especially bad where there has been considerable rain and damp, cloudy weather. It attacks cuttings worse than seedlings. The leaves are usually first affected, showing small, round spots. The disease, however, soon fastens on the stems just above the soil and in a short time completely girdles the plants and kills them. Indoor plants in a drier atmosphere are not immune from attack, but it is possible, by spraying before the disease shows at all, to keep the indoor stock clean. Outdoors all you can do is to pull up and burn badly affected plants and spray the remaining ones every fourth day with Bordeaux or Fungine. I have found the latter a reliable remedy and now use it entirely on snapdragons, chrysanthemums and other indoor plants attacked by fungoid growths.

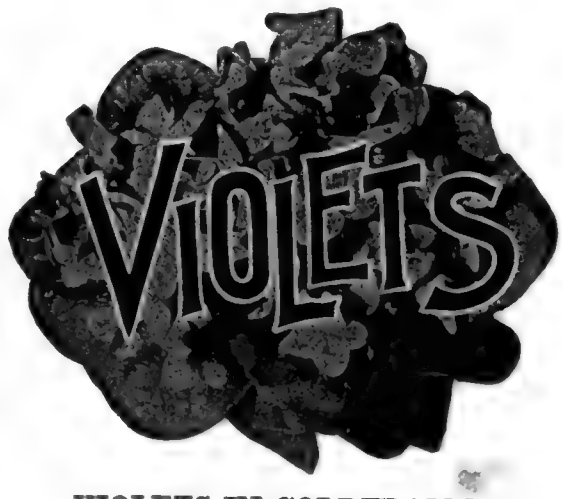
Five Acres of Lilium Myriophyllum Grown by R. & J. Farquhar & Co., at Roslindale, Mass.

Examine all snapdragon plants carefully when planting indoors and discard all that show any signs of fungus. Also, be careful not to bury the stems in the benches any deeper than they had been in the pots or flats. C. W.



LILIUM MYRIOPHYLLUM.

A 5-acre tract at Roslindale, Boston, Mass., containing approximately 1,000,000 plants of Lilium myriophyllum, or regale, shown in the accompanying illustration, was a magnet for crowds during the period of blooming.

The plants were propagated by R. & J. Farquhar & Co., of Boston, from the plants brought six years ago from Thibet by E. H. Wilson. Like the other discoveries of Mr. Wilson, this plant became the property of the Arnold Arboretum, but as the arboretum does not propagate bulbous plants, the stock was taken over by the Farquhars, who have the sole supply.

Prof. Sargent and Mr. Wilson, of the arboretum, both believe the lily to be a notable introduction to horticulture, and because of its various advantages predict a most successful career for it.

A stalk bears from one to twenty-one blooms. The flower is funnel-shaped and more or less colored in varying shades of pink on the outside. It is white on the inside, except for a clear canary yellow throat. When the sun strikes it, the dainty pink on the outside is visible on the interior. The stamens are tipped with a golden anther, and, because the pollen is of an oily character, it does not easily blow off and discolor the white tubes. The delicate fragrance of the flowers is said to be intensified in the early morning and in the evening. The fact that the odor is not heavy suggests its desirability for the sick room. The plant is said to be easily cultivated in any soil, to require little attention, and never to need staking, because of the strength of its slender stems, which are from two to four feet tall.

VIOLETS IN COLDFRAME.

To grow a bed of violets in a coldframe, should we first dig a hole in the frame and bed the stable manure? How deep should we put it? When should we plant, and what is the best variety? Which is better for covering, cloth or glass? Will the violets bloom in winter? Any other information on the subject will be appreciated, as we have never grown violets.

C. F. C.—Miss.

Dig out the frame to a depth of at least two feet. Place a foot of manure at the bottom and firm it well before putting in the soil. Double violets, of which Lady Hume Campbell is the most satisfactory variety, need earlier planting than the singles. With you the doubles should be planted about the end of September. The best single is Princess of Wales, the flowers of which are large and are carried on long stems. Do not plant these before early November. They should have one or two light freezings before sashes are placed over them.

Glass is preferable to cloth as a covering. In severe weather they would need some protection, even in your state. Doubles are more tender than singles and do well grown somewhat warmer. In the north, 45 degrees at night for doubles and 40 degrees for singles are usual winter minimums. On mild nights these figures will be exceeded; then air should be used abundantly. Violets succeed well only in a comparatively low temperature. They will bloom moderately with you in midwinter in frames, but heavily in late winter. I think probably your temperature will be a little high for successful culture of violets, but I am glad you are to give them a trial. C. W.

New Orleans, La.—The Metairie Ridge Nursery Co. is deriving considerable publicity from the new suburban electric railway, which intersects the grounds. This electric line, which is being extended to Shrewsbury, brings much free advertising to the Metairie Ridge Nursery Co., for it carries thousands of passengers directly through the nursery grounds.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Show Pelargoniums.

The wood on show pelargoniums will now be well ripened and the plants can be pruned back quite hard. At the same time, save any cuttings needed to work up an additional stock for another year. After the plants have started to break, shake out and repot them, using smaller pots, into which the roots can just be conveniently squeezed.

Callas.

Early in August is the proper time to shake out and repot the callas. As between growing single tubers in 6-inch pots and three in 8-inch pots, I find the latter size much the more profitable. Use a strong loam, with one-fourth of well rotted manure and a good dash of coarse sand. The plants can stand outdoors for some weeks after potting. The Godfrey calla I have found to be much purer in color and far more prolific than the old Calla Æthiopica. It will also produce equally large flowers when the plants are of sufficient size. It is not possible, however, to pot on small plants and get the same results as from older stock.

Freesias.

The earliest batch of freesias, which are to produce flowers for the holidays, are already above ground. These were covered with leaves and protected with board shutters until they appeared above ground. Now they are exposed to full light. They will remain in a coldframe until September. The present is a suitable time to make a successional planting of freesias to flower from the middle of January onward.

Pansies.

Nothing is gained by sowing pansies too early. In a warm, moist fall they continue to grow late and make plants of rather unwieldy size. Early in August is a sufficiently early date to sow seed for northern sections, while a fortnight later will be better farther south. For the small grower the best plan is to sow in a coldframe. Screen the soil well and sow either broadcast or in rows six inches apart. Shade with cheesecloth until the seeds germinate and then give full sun. Where large quantities are needed a good plan is to sow broadcast on beds three feet wide, having previously pulverized the soil well and removed all stones. If these beds can be located, not under, but near large trees or buildings, in order to get partial shade, all the better. Water the beds well after sowing the seed; then give a mulch of dry moss or leaves until germination starts. This prevents the soil from drying out so severely.

A number of special pansy strains are offered. The Giant Trimardeau is good. Some improvements on this also are offered. Whatever you do, purchase good seed. This will insure flowers of good size. As a rule, mixed colors are preferred by customers, but if you have need of special colors, a number of separate shades are procurable.

Violas.

The bedding violas make fine ground covers for bulb beds and can be kept flowering all summer if given a little shade and some water. They are smaller than the pansies, but much more free-flowering. A few good varieties of these bedding violas, or tufted pansies, as they are commonly called, are V. grandiflora lutea, Mauve Queen, White Perfection, and Admiration, dark blue.

Myosotis.

It is better to sow myosotis a few days later than pansies, so that the plants will not be too large when winter sets in. For a compact variety, alpestris is excellent. Blue, white and pink varieties are procurable. Myosotis sylvatica, a more robust and spreading variety, is good for use as a ground cover in bulb beds. All are good in the wild garden or rock garden, and all prefer some shade.

Hollyhocks.

If seeds of hollyhocks are not yet sown, there is still time to get plants of flowering size. Sow either in a coldframe or in rows outdoors. While the double flowers are more seen than the singles, the latter are much more refined and beautiful. Clumps of these in the hardy flower borders have been fine this season, many being eight to ten feet in height.

NEW YORKERS ON AN OUTING.

A certain coterie of New Yorkers holds the championship for versatility—not only are they proficient in the florists' business but they are champion bowlers and expert fishermen, as shown by the accompanying illustration, prepared from a snapshot by Roman J. Irwin.

It was July 28 that the New York Florists' bowling Club started on its outing down the Jersey shore. In the party were John Miesem, W. H. Siebrecht, Sr., Wm. P. Ford, H. C. Riedel, C. W. Scott, Peter Jacobsen, Wm. Duckham, C. H. Totty, R. J. Irwin and A. J. Guttman, who later were joined by Joseph Fenrich, who was picked up when the fishermen reached his home at Bradley Beach. The fishing proved good, but that was an incidental, as one of the chief accomplishments of this aggregation of good fellows is an ability to have a fine time under any and all circumstances.

ASPARAGUS TURNING BROWN.

I am enclosing a spray of Asparagus Hatcheri. Will you kindly inform me what is turning the plants brown? Whatever it is, it is going through the whole bed. I am growing the plants in a solid bed. I have noticed a few small white caterpillars and occasionally a cutworm, but it does not seem possible that so few of these could do so much damage. The bed is 2x100 feet. I fertilize with old cow manure, but have not used any since spring.

J. H. S.—Conn.

The asparagus shoot in question had turned brown in patches throughout its length; or, rather, the side shoots had done so. Its condition suggested at once that the trouble was at the roots and was not due to caterpillars. The most likely cause of such a condition is defective drainage, with the consequent souring of the soil, and the best remedy, if such is the case, would be to lift the plants, then refill the bed with fresh soil, and replant. Some provision should be made for drainage, by putting a layer of coarse cinders or broken brick in the bottom of the bed.

AZALEAS CAN COME.

British Will Consider Cases.

The British government is unwilling to permit the unregulated traffic in Belgian plants exported via Rotterdam, but is willing to consider specific applications for permits to ship azaleas where those at interest feel they can show the enemies of Great Britain will not profit by the business.

The matter of imports of azaleas was first presented to the British government by the American Consul General at London, acting on instructions from the State department at Washington in accordance with a request from and backed by data furnished by The Review. This was supported by the action of several trade bodies, in this country and in Belgium, and by many individual importers. During the many weeks that have elapsed the British authorities have had the subject under consideration and have blown both hot and cold. While refusing to modify their "orders in council" aimed to blockade the commerce of Germany, they have expressed a willingness to permit the shipment of plants from Belgium where, in each case, evidence could be presented that the money would not go into German hands. Two weeks ago the foreign trade advisers notified The Review of the receipt of the following cable from Consul General Skinner at London:

Shipments from Belgium before Cabinet. I have private advices that plan being worked out which will enable exports to go forward and payments to be made under certain supervision. Decision expected some days hence.

The correspondence of July 30, published by the State department, gave no encouragement of any relaxation on the part of the British, but a cable, also dated July 30, from Consul General Skinner and communicated by the State department to The Review shows the British attitude. The cable is:

Authorities give no encouragement that azalea business can be arranged owing to the many ramifications of this trade. Specific applications will be considered.

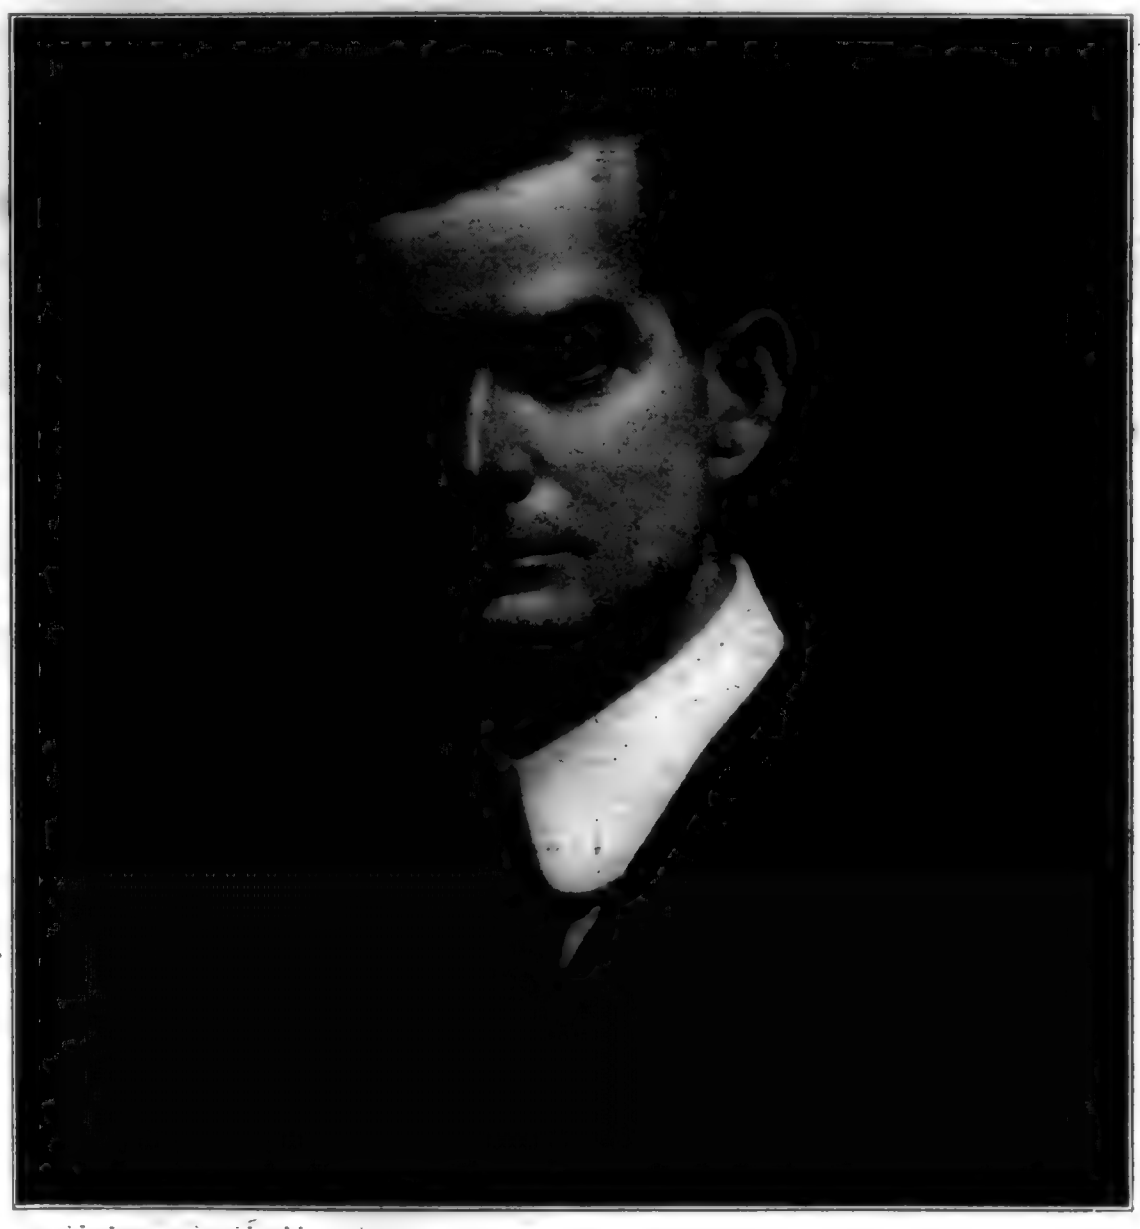
McHutchison & Co., New York, describe the modus operandi as follows:

McHutchison on the Situation.

"With reference to fall shipments of azaleas and other Belgian plants which were under embargo by the British authorities, we are pleased to be able to now advise you definitely that shipments will arrive this fall on schedule time from Belgium, unless the German authorities intervene or the progress of the war disrupts the present arrangements.

"The plan worked out is that permits are given by the British authorities to individual Belgian shippers, when proof is submitted that the stock is of Belgian origin and production, for Belgian interests, and that the enemies of Great Britain do not get any revenue or benefit from the sales. The proceeds of the sales remain in control of the British authorities so long as the Belgians remain under control of the Germans.

"It was largely by reason of the pressure brought to bear on the British authorities by the Belgian shippers that permission was given. The Belgian shippers, through their powerful organization, the Chambre Syndicate des Horticulteurs Belges, protested direct to the British authorities, and in this protest we understand they were assisted by the British national organization of florists.



"From our side, protest to the embargo was made through the State department by the New York Horticultural Importers' Association, assisted by individual importers and backed by the powerful Merchants' Association of New York. The combined pressure, strong but just, caused the British authorities to investigate, with the result that Belgian shippers who have secured permits can ship their orders to the United States.

"This decision is important to florists, who depend largely upon azaleas for their Christmas and Easter sales, but still more so to the Belgian shippers, since the United States is practically the only market left open to them."

Trade Adviser Resigns.

Incidentally, Robert F. Rose, foreign trade adviser of the State department, who has been handling the case of the Belgian plant imports, resigned August 7. It is reported that Mr. Rose quit because he believed himself unable to persuade the United States to back up his efforts to force Great Britain into an agreement permitting American exporters and importers to enjoy the rights of trade with neutral European countries. Administration officials think conditions surrounding the import and export business of this country will improve soon. They are confident of winning their contention

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE—AND WHY

JOHN WATSON.

THE striking characteristic of "Johnnie" Watson is his modesty—still if you press him he will admit that probably he has grown and sold more rose plants than anyone else in the business; his father was a rose specialist in Texas and the concern of which he is secretary, Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y., has made a specialty of roses for many years. He is on the American Rose Society's committee in charge of the test garden at Cornell University, is a member of the S. A. F., the Rochester Florists' Club, the Western Association of Nurserymen, an officer in the Nurserymen's Protective Association, also the Wholesale Ornamental Growers, and just the other day was elected vice-president of the American Association of Nurserymen. Naturally he has a wide acquaintance—if you insist he will admit he thinks he knows personally more nurserymen here and in Europe than any other man in the trade. And they nearly all call him by his first name, which has a lot to do with getting business and holding it, don't you think?

with Great Britain through an informal arrangement between this country and the London government whereby trade relations with the neutrals can be resumed.

TIME TO START PAPER WHITES.

How long does it take to get Paper Whites in bloom from the time of planting the bulbs? F. K.—Mass.

Paper Whites can be planted in flats or placed directly in the benches. Flats are preferable, as in these the plants can be forced or retarded more easily. If planted in August, they can be flowered early in November. For Christmas they can be started a month later. It is better to start them in good season and keep them in a cool cellar until wanted for forcing. The time to flower them after housing depends on the season. In a temperature of 55 degrees, allow three to five weeks. C. W.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS FOR SOUTHERN FLORISTS

MUMS IN THE SOUTH.

Taking the Bud.

Most of the plants at present are making crown buds, which should be removed at once, as it is entirely too early to let any bud develop. All the side shoots should also be pinched off, except the leading or strongest one.

Early in August is a good time to give the beds more fertilizer. First apply a top-dressing of guano, say twelve to fifteen quarts to 500 square feet of surface, and cover with a good inch of fresh cow manure. This will carry the plants along until the time when liquid fertilizers are needed, which is just as soon as the buds are taken.

This is the rock on which many southern growers get bumped. It is a mistake to take a crown bud before the last week in August or the first week in September, even on the early varieties. Golden Glow and Smith's Advance are two exceptions; the buds on these develop satisfactorily if taken two weeks earlier. Crown buds taken too early develop imperfectly, and many a good, profitable variety is condemned on this account.

Crown or Terminal Buds?

Colonel Appleton is a case in point. This variety makes few perfect flowers from a crown bud taken September 1, but on terminal buds, taken ten days or two weeks later, the flowers will come in fine shape and be almost as early. Robert Halliday makes a tempting looking crown bud early in August, but one developing near the end of the month will make a better flower. Mrs. Robinson, V. Poehlmann, C. Touset and Glory of Pacific all produce good blooms from crown buds taken late in August or early in September.

The mid-season varieties do not generally make crown buds until well into September and, as a rule, these buds make better flowers than those from terminal buds.

Crown buds, after taking, remain stationary for a long time before expanding, while a terminal bud keeps moving right along. Hence, though a crown bud may be taken two weeks earlier than a terminal bud, there is only a difference of a day or two in their time of flowering. This quicker development is a big point in favor of the terminal bud, as it makes the time so much shorter for thrips to get a chance at them. Terminal buds should be taken on all the late varieties.

If each grower would try a few different buds on each variety and put down the results in a notebook, he would find the notes of great value for future reference and guidance. In a case of this kind it is unwise to depend on the memory alone. L.

RUST ON HOLLYHOCKS.

Within a few days our hollyhocks have been reduced to an unsightly lot of almost bare stalks, with the leaves turned brown and dropping, and they are covered with a growth like that on the sample enclosed. Can you tell me what is the trouble and what spray will prevent it? R. E. H.—Mich.

This is rust, a disease which soon virtually destroys hollyhocks. As your plants are now badly affected, there is no use in trying to save them. The best way, in fact the only way, to keep them clean is to spray with Bordeaux mixture once a week, from the middle of April until the plants show flower. Do not wait for the rust to appear before spraying, as prevention is better than cure. It is also a good plan to spray once or twice the previous fall. Destroy all affected plants by burning. This disease has decimated hollyhocks for nearly half a century, but is not as bad now as twenty years ago. It is most virulent on plants growing in a dry soil. C. W.

PROPAGATING BUDDLEIAS.

How and when can Buddleia Veitchiana be propagated? E. M.—N. J.

Buddleia variabilis Veitchiana, in common with all buddleias, is easily propagated from cuttings. These will root in a warm propagating bench as quickly as heliotropes. Propagation can be started in October and, if you have a few indoor stock plants, can be continued until spring. In order to have heavy plants in 4-inch or 5-inch pots for spring sales, put the cuttings in not later than December. This is probably the most easily propagated shrub we have. It may also be increased by seeds, but these are likely to produce plants more variable in character. C. W.

Greenhouses and Residence of William A. Kintzele, at Michigan City, Ind.

KINTZELE SHOWS SUCCESS.

W. A. Kintzele has been in business at Michigan City, Ind., for many years. That they have been prosperous years, no one can doubt, for just two years ago Mr. Kintzele rebuilt his range south of the city, putting up Moninger bolted houses of iron-frame construction, 27x 250 feet. Then, the following year, he started on the erection of a dwelling of a fairly pretentious character and of good size. The range and the house are both shown on this page.

Mr. Kintzele grows a general line of stock, in which he does a wholesale and retail business. He at one time conducted a store in Michigan City, but disposed of it in 1910 in order to devote his whole time to the greenhouses, where his success has kept him busy.

HAYDEN'S NEW HOUSE.

In addition to installing a complete new heating system throughout the entire range, M. F. Hayden, at Wilmington, Del., has just finished building another greenhouse, 42x100 feet. It is of King iron-frame construction, of the pipe rafter type, supported by two runs of posts, with cross ties and cross braces. This is the type of house that has also been erected at the Florex Gardens, North Wales, Pa., and by the Montgomery Co., Hadley, Mass. An interior view of the new house is given herewith.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

After a week of storm, humidity and summer dullness, more cheerful conditions have developed. The demand, except for asters and gladioli, is about equal to the supply and apart from the flood of these the shipments, especially of roses, are readily absorbed at better prices than have of late prevailed.

Carnations have passed for the present.

Various Notes.

The outing of the Essex County Florists' Club at Gillette, N. J., postponed to August 5 because of the great storm the day before, proved a big success. Among the New Yorkers who attended were J. K. Allen, Walter Sheridan, P. J. Smith, Charles Schenck, W. G. Badgley, H. C. Riedel and A. H. Langjahr.

L. C. Bobbink, of Bobbink & Atkins, has returned from an auto tour of the Catskills with his family. Fred Atkins and wife are now enjoying a similar experience and Charles Atkins and family are enjoying their vacation at Atlantic City.

Samuel Woodrow was at Great Barrington, Mass., last week, completing his contract for the filling of twelve greenhouses on a private estate.

W. Gunther and family are at Far Rockaway.

B. Rosens has already had five shipments of red roping from Japan, all of which were reshipped from the dock on arrival, to fill advance orders.

Lecakes will remove from his present location September 1 and will occupy the store formerly J. K. Allen's headquarters.

ing has housed a seed store for forty years, being first occupied by A. D. Cowan & Co. and then by the present firm for twenty-five years. They have a branch at 117 Chambers street. C. Giessler, head of the flower seed and bulb department, has returned from his two weeks' vacation. David Don has been enjoying his honeymoon in Michigan and the Thousand islands. A. L. Don will spend August with his family in the Catskills.

George Burnett, of Burnett Bros., is in Rockland county, N. Y. Samuel Burnett spends August at Keansburg, N. J., where he has his own bungalow. W. J. Barnwell, store manager for the firm, will spend his holidays in the Adirondacks. John Hunter is back from his vacation at Port Monmouth, N. J. Geo. Burnett, Jr., and Robert Burnett have been for several weeks in the Rockland county mountains and at Ramapo. Frank Muller is at the Highlands.

Geo. Blake, of Bonnet & Blake, is back from Rochester, and is touring Long Island in his runabout.

Herman Bershad, partner of C. C. Trepel in his Brooklyn enterprises, announces the opening of another store this fall, on Fulton street. Mr. Bershad and family are spending the summer at the Loraine hotel, at Edgemere, L. I. He has just purchased a 7-passenger Chalmers automobile. Mr. Bershad is a brother of Mrs. C. C. Trepel. This lady is the efficient manager of Mr. Trepel's store at Eighty-ninth street and Broadway, New York.

Ralph M. Ward has gone up on the Labrador coast to fish.

The New York Florists' Club's party to the S. A. F. convention at San Francisco, which was to have numbered at least twenty-five, has shrunk to two, John G. Esler and Miss Esler, of Saddle River, N. J. Other New Yorkers, however, are on their way to the convention by different routes.

Charles Schimmel, of M. C. Ford's force, is back from a two weeks' vacation with his family at Greenwood lake. Richard Watson goes this week to the Thousand islands. Patrick Donegan is enjoying his yearly outing at Saratoga Springs.

There will be an exhibition, mainly of gladioli, of the Horticultural Society of New York, August 21 and 22, at the Museum building, New York Botanical Garden. An invitation is extended to all interested to take part in the exhibition. Schedules will be sent on application to the secretary, George V. Nash, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx park, New York.

GROWING COMMERCIAL ORCHIDS.

[A paper read before the convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association at London, Ont., August 5, by Wm. J. Jones, head of the orchid section at the Dale Estate, Brampton, Ont.]

In this paper I wish to speak mainly on those orchids best grown for both commercial and decorative purposes. Therefore, I must place the cattleya first, as it undoubtedly is the finest and best known commercial orchid we have, and with a fair number of its best species, it can be had in flower every month in the year.

The species of this popular genus rank among our finest orchids. They are general favorites, and there can be little doubt that, as the mode of treatment which they require becomes better understood, they will be extensively cultivated. In many of them the pseudo-bulbs are singular and pleasing in form, and the dark evergreen foliage of the plants when in a healthy condition renders them peculiarly attractive. The flowers are large, elegant in form, and scarcely surpassed in their brilliant richness and depth of color, the most frequent tints of which are violet, rose, crimson, white and purple, with their intermediate shades.

Treatment in Pots.

As soon as the flowering is over is the best time for repotting cattleyas, except a few, such as Cattleya labiata, which is best deferred till commencing to grow in the spring. I have found cattleyas thrive best in pots, and osmunda fiber the best material for growing in, with the corm or hard center of the fern chopped up and used for drainage. This the roots seem to prefer to crocks. The cause of failure of many is wrong potting; no plant should remain longer than two or three years at most without repotting. Large plants should be broken up, and all back bulbs and old and dead roots cut away, so as to give them a fresh start.

After repotting, watering must be done with care. Cattleyas do not require a great deal of water at any time. Too much water is apt to cause the bulbs to rot. So long as the soil remains moist, no water is required. The atmosphere should be kept moist by damping the floors and the ground under all benches at least once a day. When the plants have made their growth, they should be allowed to rest and be kept dry, being given just sufficient water to prevent their shriveling.

Ventilating and Shading.

As these plants grow upon the stems and branches of forest trees or upon rocks, they must necessarily be exposed to all the breezes that blow. How reprehensible, then, is the practice of many growers of orchids of trying to exclude air from their orchid houses! For the well-being of orchids it should be remembered that a free circulation of air is absolutely necessary, as well as an abundance of light, but cold draughts and the burning effects of the sun's rays must be avoided. It is not essential for them to be fully exposed to the blazing sun; indeed, the life of the plants would soon be sucked out of them if shading were not prepared.

There are so-called observers of nature who blame the cultivator for many of his acts, and he has perhaps suffered more wrong at the hands of this class of persons in the matter of shading than in any other. We are frequently told that in a state of nature such and such plants grow in most exposed situations, situations open to the full effects of a tropical sun, and nothing can be more erroneous than the manner in which we use "blinds" for the purpose of keeping away the bright light of that luminary. All I can say in answer to the objectors is that they totally lose sight of the fact that our plants are growing under glass, which has the power of rapidly burning up the leaves and disfiguring our plants for years if not for life. I must add that all plant growers are keenly alive to the advantage of strong sunlight for their plants, but that they are too practical to allow more than is advantageous to them under the artificial circumstances in which they are placed.

Keep Plants Clean.

Cattleyas require to be kept perfectly clean and free from all insects. They are subject to white scale, which should never be allowed to accumulate, as it is then difficult to remove and the plants are in danger of being injured. In order to keep the plants clean, they should be frequently looked over and all signs of scale brushed off with a small stiff brush, especially around the base of the bulbs and the axle of the leaves, where the scale mostly accumulates.

Always aim to maintain an even temperature, as too great a fluctuation is bound to cause trouble. A temperature of 55 degrees by night and 60 to 65 degrees by day will be found a good winter temperature, always admitting air on favorable occasions.

Other Commercial Orchids.

Our next best commercial orchid is undoubtedly the spray orchid, of which first place must be given to Phalænopsis amabilis. This magnificent plant, which comes from Manila, produces its graceful spikes of flowers nearly all the year around. The flowers are at least three inches across. The sepals and petals are pure white, and the lip is of the same color faintly streaked with rose pink. They continue in perfection a long time, therefore making an ideal flower for commercial and decorative purposes.

Phalænopsis Schilleriana, which also comes from Manila, has beautiful variegated foliage. The flower spikes often reach a length of two or three feet, and have more branches than the other kinds. The flowers are arranged in two rows along the spike. The sepals and petals are a beautiful light mauve edged with white; the lip is of the same color, with darker spots; the inside is handsomely spotted; indeed, the whole aspect of the plant is most attractive. They are best grown in baskets hung near the roof and kept shaded, in a moist atmosphere. When water is required, the plants should be taken down and dipped, great care being taken not to allow the water to get into the heart of the plants. Otherwise decay or spot is likely to occur. A temperature of 60 to 65 degrees, or a little more, will do no harm with sun heat, always giving a little air when the weather permits it.

Oncidiums, with their useful sprays of bronze and yellow; Vanda cærulea, with its various shades of blue, and others too numerous to mention here, but which I hope to treat of at some future date — not forgetting the odontoglossum and cypripedium, with its quaint and interesting flowers— have all proved themselves our best and most beautiful commercial orchids.

OBITUARY.

William H. Westcott.

William H. Westcott, a widely known and highly respected florist of Philadelphia, died of heart failure at his home, 7043 Ridge avenue, Friday evening, August 6. He was 72 years of age. Mr. Westcott's death was entirely unexpected. He underwent an operation a year ago, which, while successful, was a severe strain on his system. While able to be about, he was not the same as before. Mr. Westcott was out on the day of his death and ate his supper as usual. While seated in a chair afterward he was heard to gasp. When his family reached him he had expired.

William H. Westcott commenced work when a lad as assistant to his father, William Westcott, who was a private gardener. With his brother, John, he opened a flower store in Brooklyn. Later, when John Westcott came to Philadelphia to enter the firm of Pennock Bros., then on Twelfth street; William H. Westcott established himself as a grower at Twentieth and Tioga streets, in the City of Brotherly Love. Mr. Westcott grew a general line of stock, as was the custom in those days. He remained at Twentieth and Tioga streets for twenty years, leaving there to rejoin his brother, John, in the purchase of the Ferguson place at Ridge and Lehigh avenues, where they established themselves in business as Westcott's Laurel Hill Nurseries. Here their business was chiefly drawn from the great burial ground opposite. The partnership was maintained for about eighteen years and a large and successful business was conducted. William H. Westcott withdrew five years ago. He bought property farther out on Ridge avenue and erected greenhouses, in which he grew some wonderfully fine stock. Mr. Westcott was an able grower. His plants always looked well and his place clean and neat.

Mr. Westcott is survived by a widow and three children, Mrs. Edward Davis, Mrs. Frank Sudell and William H. Westcott, Jr., who was associated with his father in business. Mr. Westcott's funeral took place at his residence Monday afternoon, August 9. It was attended by members of the Florists' Club and many friends. Phil.

Frank Tylner.

Frank Tylner, of 28 Second street, South Orange, N. J., who for the last four years had been employed by William A. Manda as foreman in the greenhouses in South Orange, committed suicide by shooting himself in the head at the New Varnum hotel, Washington, D. C. He had married Miss Mary Krupha, also of South Orange, nine days before. It is not known what took him to Washington. The body was found by the hotel employees. In the room was a letter addressed to the bride. Upon finding the letter, the police ordered the body removed to the morgue. Mrs. Tylner could give no reason for her husband's act. The body was ordered shipped to Hartley, Del., the home of Mr. Tylner's mother, where the funeral services were held. He was 34 years old. R. B. M.

Nashua, N. H.—A 2½-story dwelling is being erected for W. W. Powers.

Jamaica Plain, Mass.—The Jamaica Floral Co. has installed a large show refrigerator.

Chepachet, R. I.—Alex. M. Marseilles recently returned from an eight weeks' trip in Canada.

Fairhaven, Mass.—James Garthley is moving his greenhouse to a better site, on Cedar street.

Newton, Mass.—H. W. Cotton has purchased the business and greenhouses of John C. Clarke.

North Weymouth, Mass.—William B. Dasha has broken ground for an addition to his greenhouse.

Westfield, Mass.—Edward Gillett is erecting a greenhouse to replace the one recently torn down.

Portland, Me.—W. H. & H. T. Sawyer are erecting a greenhouse, 24x60 feet, at their property at 110 Coyle street.

North Leominster, Mass.—The firm of Finney & Todd has leased greenhouses and land on Mooreland avenue.

Milldale, Conn.—Nicholas Grillo has broken ground for the greenhouses he is to build here at a cost of $10,000.

Portland, Me.—In the Portland Press for May 30 Mrs. Lizzie I. Dennett gave a few particulars of the rise of the florists' trade in Portland during her thirty years' experience in it.

Lewiston, Me.—The continual rains have seriously hampered the construction of a greenhouse for Ernest Saunders. Thus far, only the framework of the big structure has been erected.

Southington, Conn.—Frederick N. Francis and John Olson have purchased the Goodison greenhouse, at Main and Bristol streets. Both men have been in the business here before. Mr. Goodison and family have moved to Wallingford, Conn.

Pittsfield, Mass.—The Flower Shop, of which Stanley G. Barnes is manager, will observe charity day August 3. The proceeds of the sale of flowers donated and a percentage from the sales of the regular store business will be given to the tuberculosis hospital. Mr. Barnes held a similar observance last year.

Newburyport, Mass.—C. J. McGregor has begun the work of enlarging one of his greenhouses.

Hartford, Conn.—Robert Marchant is erecting an addition to his greenhouse on Huntington street, according to Lord & Burnham Co. plans.

Ellsworth, Me.—Miss M. A. Clark is building an addition to her already large range of houses. The new greenhouse, 20x70, will be devoted to carnations.

Andover, Mass.—The prize list of the annual exhibition of flowers, fruits and vegetables, to be held September 10 and 11 under the auspices of the Andover Florists' and Gardeners' Club, has been issued.

Houlton, Me.—A. E. Newell is offering 25-cent bouquets of mixed flowers each Saturday during the summer. Orders are taken at both the store and greenhouse at this price and the bouquets are placed in the cemetery if desired.

Crowell, Mass.—Fire broke out recently in the office at the range of J. J. McManmon and, before the flames could be subdued, the building was damaged to the extent of several hundred dollars. The origin of the blaze was not ascertained.

Jamestown, R. I.—John Garlate, for the last eighteen years in the employ of Samuel Smith, has received notice from Brazil of the death of an uncle, who left him coffee plantations and lands valued at over $400,000. He has arranged to go to Brazil at once.

Lowell, Mass.—The local park commissioners recently entered a requisition for the purchase of 8,000 tulip bulbs, to be set out this fall. The wanted varieties were: 3,000 Vermilion Brilliant, 2,000 Prince of Austria and 3,000 Pottebakker. Bids were opened August 5.

Holyoke, Mass.—The Holyoke and Northampton Florists' and Gardeners' Club met July 13 at the Smith Botanical Gardens, Northampton. The annual chrysanthemum show was set for November 3 and 4. The show will be held in Windsor hall. Plans are under way to make it the most elaborate and most successful show ever held. The club voted to hold a picnic this month.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.
Incoroprated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1915: President, Patrick Welch, Boston; vice-president, Daniel MacRorie, San Francisco; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.

Thirty-first annual convention, San Francisco, Cal., August 17 to 20, 1915.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

THERE will be more florists at San Francisco next week than most people suppose.

CARNATION plants from the field seem to be selling more than ordinarily well this season, a number of advertisers reporting that orders received as early as August 7 cleaned up their stock.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

O. B., St. Louis, whose initials do not correspond to those of any subscriber there, should consult Bailey's Cyclopedia in the public library; he can get his answer there without divulging his name.

THE preliminary premium list for the show at Chicago November 9 to 14 has been printed. Copies of this, and of the final schedule when ready, will be sent to any who address N. P. Miller, secretary, 179 North Wabash avenue, Chicago.

THE Cincinnati judge who last week changed the fine of the prisoner charged with abusing his wife, from $50 and costs to a bouquet of flowers and a box of candy, thereby paved the way to a reconciliation. Splendid advertising copy for some retail florist!

DAN MACRORIE, of San Francisco, has added ninety-four new members to the S. A. F., it is said, since his city was selected for the 1915 convention. This is more than doubling the Pacific coast membership. The last annual report showed: California, 50; Oregon, 16; Washington, 4; total, 70.

ILLINOISANS TO MEET.

The executive committee of the Illinois State Florists' Association will meet at the Jefferson hotel, Peoria, Ill., August 31, for the purpose of arranging dates and place for two meetings to be held in 1916. The officers are: President, C. W. Johnson, Morgan Park; first vice-president, I. L. Pillsbury, Galesburg; secretary, J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville; treasurer, F. L. Washburn, Bloomington. The last convention received an invitation to meet in 1916 at Moline or Rock Island and it was decided to also have a meeting at Urbana. The executive committee will welcome suggestions from members.

WHAT IT COSTS.

One of the questions frequently asked is "What does it cost to run a greenhouse?" So these figures should be of interest. They concern an Iowa range of 55,000 feet of glass, representing an investment of $41,243. The sales for the year ended August 1, 1915, were $30,631.92 and the expenditures were as follows:

Christmas goods	$ 1,267.86
City water	194.19
Telephone	128.67

BIG CROPS MEAN BUSINESS.

Prosperous conditions for the florists, seedsmen and nurserymen of the middle west are indicated by the August government report, showing a record-breaking yield of wheat, and bumper crops of corn, oats, barley and hay.

The total wheat crop indicated by the government report issued August 9 is 3,000,000 bushels more than was forecast in July; 966,000,000 bushels, 75,000,000 bushels more than the previous record crop.

While the harvest season has been unfavorable for oats and the season late for corn, the government figures show a promise for a crop of 1,402,000,000 bushels of oats, within 16,000,000 bushels of the largest ever raised, and of 2,918,000,000 bushels of corn, which would exceed the corn crop of last year by 245,000,000 bushels.

Final figures for the year, when the estimates are given a final revision, may show easily 1,000,000,000 bushels wheat and 1,500,000,000 bushels oats, with around 3,000,000,000 bushels of corn, or a grand total for the three crops of around 5,500,000,000 bushels.

Despite the long period of unseasonable rains, the country will have an abundance of all grains to supply foreign needs throughout the coming year. It is not expected prices will rule as high as during the last twelve months, but fair prices appear to be assured the farmers in all sections and the result will be reflected in the good business done by florists, seedsmen and nurserymen in the grain states, many of whom found the last year the most prosperous in their experience.

NEXT WEEK'S WEATHER.

Weekly weather forecast, issued by the U. S. Weather Bureau, Washington, D. C., for the week beginning Wednesday, August 11, 1915:

Special Notice—There is a tropical disturbance over the southern Windward Island section and the weather for the territory east of the Mississippi river for the coming week is largely dependent upon the movement of this disturbance. At present, indications are as follows:

For the Region of the Great Lakes—Fair weather for several days. Unsettled toward end of week, with showers probable. Moderate temperature.

For the Upper Mississippi Valley and Plains States—Fair weather for four or five days, probably followed by showers August 16 to 18. Moderate temperature.

For the Ohio Valley and Tennessee—Showers, followed by fair weather for several days, and again by showers August 16 or 17; moderate temperature.

For the West Gulf States—Thunder showers August 12 to 14, followed by generally fair weather thereafter; seasonable temperature.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

One year of European war has most apparently not exercised the baneful influence on the Chicago market anticipated by so many, for the conditions prevailing during last week show a marked improvement over those of the one just preceding and compare quite favorably with those of the same week a year ago. For the midsummer season, the volume of business transacted may well be termed satisfactory.

The supply of Beauties is perceptibly shorter, and, while there is little demand for them generally, a much greater quantity of superior quality short-stemmed Beauties could be used than find a way to the market. If the demand for Beauties does not suffer a regeneration, they will some day be a rarity on the market, as one grower after another, finding them unprofitable property, throws them out. Roses are in sufficiently short supply to be clearing well. Most of the receipts are of the shorter stock, but the quality is fairly good considering the time of year. Russell still holds the lead and continues in many instances to usurp the place once held by Beauties. One reason advanced for this is that it is a better keeper. Killarney Brilliant, too, is enjoying quite a brisk demand, while White Killarney and Double White Killarney are moved with no difficulty. Prices, of course, are relatively higher.

The most pronounced feature of the market, however, is the glut of gladioli. The regular shippers are more than able to supply the demand, but in addition to their contributions, the market is flooded with those of a host of people who, having a vacant lot or so to spare, thought growing gladioli a nice way to make some pin money. As a result, the most successful efforts of the wholesalers to move them fail to make much of an impression on the daily receipts. Unfortunately, it is not an easy thing to dispose of them by job-lot at this season of the year.

Asters are abundant, though little enough can be said of quality in general. Midseason asters are beginning to arrive in the market, and the receipts would seem to promise an improvement in quality and size of flower as well as length of stem. The demand, though, is not nearly equal to the supply, and with the quantity augmented by large daily receipts, it may be a problem to move them at all. It is reported, however, that large quantities of asters are rotting in the field as a result of the wet season. This, if quite general, will naturally have a bearing on the market.

Daisies, with many growers, are practically done for, while coreopsis, delphiniums and gypsophilas, though in the market, have ceased to cut much of a figure. Valley is scarce enough to clear well. Easter lilies are not in large supply, but it is just as well, for a few go a long, long way. Carnations are so few in number and so poor in quality that they are not to be considered. Cattleyas have not as yet experienced the usual August call, but are the scarcest item on the market. Greens are clearing fairly well, with the exception of smilax.

Club Meeting.

The meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club, August 5, was not particularly well attended. The fact that this is the season when many are taking their summer outing may account for this in part, but there is also evident a lack of interest in club doings on the part of a large percentage of the trade.

The report of the picnic committee showed that in spite of adverse circumstances and small attendance the club is a few dollars ahead. The committee is to be congratulated on this showing. Guy W. French, chairman of the transportation committee, was pleased to report that to date twenty-five reservations have been made for the florists' special, which leaves the Northwestern depot at 10 p. m., Thursday, August 12. Those making reservations are:

Make your dollars have more cents!

One dollar (value one hundred cents) properly invested in reliable merchandise should and can be returned to the cash drawer with many more cents, representing profit.

The Florist's investment must be made with full consideration of the goods and the place of purchase.

Striving to be worthy of the Florist's confidence is the A. L. Randall Company.

and John Young, New York city. By previous action of the club these are now honorary members of the Chicago Florists' Club.

President Keimel stated he had received a communication urging the club to participate in the Eastland relief work. The secretary, Guy French, was instructed to make answer to the effect that by individual donations and the contribution of flowers, together with the benefit sale of August 4, the trade had acted well its part and rendered any action in the matter by the club unnecessary.

The only exhibit was a large vase of excellent delphinium of named hybrids, staged by Vaughan's Greenhouses, Western Springs.

Florists Swell Eastland Fund.

Representatives of the retail florists, wholesalers and growers of Chicago and vicinity added to the Eastland relief fund the sum of $305.27, the proceeds of the unique flower sale August 4 at 217 South State street. All that day an unbroken stream of men, women and children filed past the tables of potted plants and cut flowers; salesmen furnished by the various wholesale and retail houses operated in relays. The committee in charge of affairs was composed of J. L. Raske, chairman; Eric Johnson, treasurer; Cornelia Ryan, secretary; W. P. Kyle and Andrew Chronis.

The sale of flowers in the audience of the Green Mill gardens the same night added nearly $175 to the relief fund.

Various Notes.

Walter F. Weed, 18 years old, and Wilburt A. Hard, 21 years old, were sentenced to life imprisonment by Judge Kersten August 5, for the murder of William Weil, the florist who was found strangled to death in his place of business at 421 West Sixty-third street on the night of April 5. The youths pleaded guilty after the state's attorney had consented to waiving the death penalty. Weed collapsed when the prosecutor asserted that under those arrangements he would insist on life sentences. The confessed murderers did not take the witness stand. They admitted strangling the florist and robbing him of a small sum of money.

Arthur F. Keenan has opened his new store at 1220 East Sixty-third street, next door to his former location, and has a well-fixtured, light, attractive store, in which business is better than before in spite of the fact that the nearest competitor, McNeilly, is selling gladioli at 15 cents per dozen. Mr. Keenan also has made many improvements in his other store, at 1306 East Sixty-third street.

Anton Then and wife and sister-in-law left August 6 for the Panama-Pacific exhibition and the S. A. F. convention at San Francisco, Cal.

J. A. Mendel, 1424 West Eighteenth street, has the sympathy of the trade in the death of his sister, Mrs. Cavanaugh, August 4.

E. H. Meuret, of Park Ridge, president of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, is planning the purchase of a new touring car.

Wm. Espel, of Benton Harbor, Mich., is making large shipments of gladiolus blooms packed upright in special crates, so that they arrive in fine condition.

A. Lange and family left August 6 for Omaha, for a visit with the family of J. J. Hess. They expect to join the San Francisco excursionists when they pass through Omaha August 13.

Anton P. Tomaszewski, who recently opened a flower store at 1228 Noble street, says business has been good enough to lead him to hope for big things.

W. W. Randall and R. E. Blackshaw were in charge of the exhibit of the A. L. Randall Co. at the convention of Canadian florists at London, Ont., last week. They returned much pleased with the diploma awarded the display.

Among those going to the Panama-Pacific exposition August 12 is M. C. Gunterberg, 158 North Wabash avenue.

little difficulty in the erection of his new chimney, which is to be forty-one feet in height. The rains made it impossible for the masons to work.

Joe Emmick, of Bassett & Washburn, has returned from his visit to the California expositions and spends all of his spare time urging his friends to go.

The salesroom and office of the John Kruchten Co. are looking bright and fresh as the decorators progress in their work.

Erich Paselk, bookkeeper in the Morton Grove office of Poehlmann Bros. Co., has taken his family on an automobile trip to the Dells, Wis. He expects to be gone two or three weeks.

Dominick Freres, Atlas block, is taking advantage of the summer lull to repaint his quarters.

John Ziska, of Joseph Ziska & Sons, was confined to his home August 10 as the result of a badly ulcerated tooth.

Weiland & Risch will drop Ophelia, Killarney and Killarney Brilliant as soon as possible and turn all of their attention to the growing of distinctive roses. Mrs. Taft will have to make room for Mrs. Moorfield Storey and Champ Weiland.

Fred Dinger, of the Garfield Floral Shop, 211 East Garfield boulevard, has returned from a three weeks' outing in northern Michigan. Mr. Black and his wife have gone to his old home in Indiana for a three weeks' rest.

John Fischer, of Fischer Bros., Evanston, and Miss Annie Halstrom, also of Evanston, were married July 31. They are now enjoying a trip to various points of interest in the east.

A. E. Kunderd, of Goshen, Ind., has been sending the E. C. Amling Co. large shipments of gladiolus blooms, many of which were unnamed seedlings of the ruffled varieties.

Fritz Bahr, of Highland Park, quietly gathered his family together, August 6, and left for the Panama-Pacific exposition and the S. A. F. convention.

An especially good year for the sale of young stock of pompon chrysanthemums is reported by Wietor Bros., who, now that it has stopped raining for a few days, are bending all their energies to finishing the planting of carnations. Many of the growers found it impossible to handle the compost or go in the field during the rainy month of July.

Miss Marguerite McNulty, of Peter Reinberg's store staff, and Miss Nettie Parker, of A. T. Pyfer & Co., started August 6 on a personally conducted tour of the Pacific coast, going by way of Minneapolis.

C. W. McKellar says he has found business rather better than usual this summer.

Charles W. Erne, of Erne & Klingel, believes there is another heavy rose crop due in a short time, so that the market will be well supplied with stock for the rest of the summer season.

Charles London says George C. Weiland, of Evanston, a member of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, has just received a shipment of Italian ceramics, including table fountains and many novelties. Miss Geirner leaves September 1 for a two weeks' visit at the Panama-Pacific exposition.

Sullivan Bros., 863 East Sixty-third street, are offering home-grown gladioli and asters. These are grown on what the brothers facetiously call their farm at Lawndale.

Fred Liebermann, with Kennicott Bros. Co., is on a two weeks' vacation. Miss Lillian Zettervalt has returned from her outing.

The store of J. B. Thurman, 4246 Indiana avenue, has been redecorated throughout in white. Mr. Thurman has been quite busy this summer with funeral work.

By way of a summer's outing, Fred Morphett, bookkeeper for A. Henderson & Co., left Chicago August 6 for Detroit. After a short visit there, he will sail the length of Lake Erie to Buffalo. Then crossing to Canada at Niagara Falls, he will proceed to Toronto for a last visit with an old schoolmate, who leaves for the front with the Canadian troops next month.

depends solely upon the preservation and display of your goods. Keep your stock fresh looking and display them well and the biggest part of your business problem is solved.

McCray Florist's Refrigerator

The McCray patented system provides for a cool even temperature under all conditions. This keeps your stock fresh and salable and prevents the loss due to withered and spoiled blossoms.

The McCray Florist Refrigerators come with plate glass doors and sides which show the flowers to an advantage and help in their sale. The different compartments vary in size to accommodate the various lengths of stems.

The outside woodwork of the McCray may be had in any finish to match your store's interior decoration. The linings may be secured in either bevel plate mirror or white enamel and are very attractive.

Decide now to boom trade this season and enlist a McCray Refrigerator as your aid. Every progressive florist should have a McCray. It will pay you to investigate.

parks by W. J. Keimel, August Poehlmann and George Asmus, representing the Chicago Florists' Club. They left for the west August 7, accompanied by George Asmus and his wife.

E. G. Hill was in town August 9 on his way to San Francisco for the S. A. F. convention. He planned to spend a day at Omaha and another at Denver, joining the Chicago party as it passes through the Colorado metropolis August 14.

W. F. Kasting, of Buffalo, was in town August 9 on his way to San Francisco for the S. A. F. convention

John Poehlmann, president of the Poehlmann Bros. Co., took a party consisting of Miss Kate Harris, of Memphis, Tenn.; Miss Sheppard, of Fort Dodge, Ia., and Mr. Johnson, of Holm & Olson, St. Paul, in his touring car August 10 for a run out to Morton Grove and a trip through the greenhouses.

C. G. Anderson, of the Minneapolis Floral Co., Minneapolis, was a visitor at the establishment of the Poehlmann Bros. Co., Morton Grove, August 8, and a visitor on the Chicago market early this week.

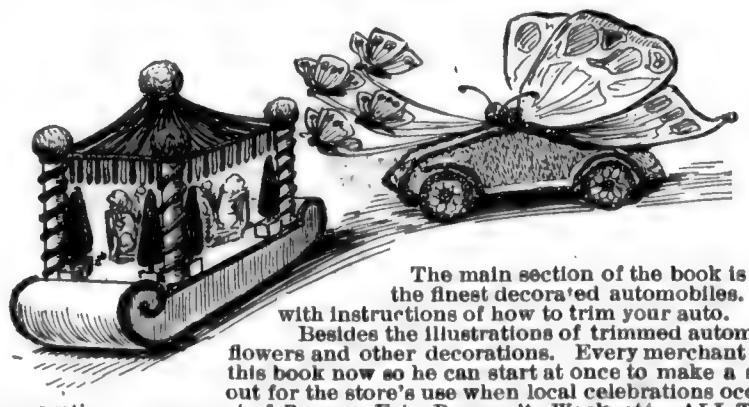
H. A. Naldrett, representing Kelway & Son, Langport, England, is calling on possible buyers here.

Paul M. Palez, of Little Rock, arrived in town August 9. Mr. Palez recently filed a petition in voluntary bankruptcy, but is quoted as saying the purpose of his visit is to pay all local indebtedness.

H. E. Philpott, of Winnipeg, is in town on his way home from the convention of Canadian florists at London, Ont.

Eltweed Pomeroy, of Donna, Tex., the range of whose work perhaps entitles him to be called the Burbank of the Lone Star State, was a caller August 10.

Charles Balluff was a visitor one day last week on his way home to Indianapolis after an outing at Fox Lake. He has bought a home at the Hoosier capital and never looked better.



Among the week's visitors are J. W. Furrow, of Guthrie, Okla., who is here on business in the interests of the Oklahoma Fruit Growers' Association, and Harry Balsley, of the Detroit Flower Pot Co., Detroit, Mich.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

There has been little change since last week's report. The supply greatly exceeds the demand. Only the choicest qualities are sold; the ordinary and poor grades are destroyed. Sacrifice sales are a detriment, as the buyer who takes advantage of such sales is able to procure a supply that suffices for a period of three or four days, whereas, if such sales are not made, the customer buys as he needs the stock, pays a fair price and is buying every day. The only apparent scarcity is in orchids. Roses continue of fine quality. Asters are much better. Gladioli are excellent and plentiful. The weather has not been favorable to sweet peas. Lilies are plentiful and cheap. Fine valley is being received daily in large quantities. Beauties are fine and sell better than formerly.

The growers are all busy going over their heating outfits and doing the needed repairs. They are also planting carnations. Some of the newly planted roses are now producing; so it looks as if the season's supply would not be interrupted. The field-grown carnation plants in this vicinity never looked better. With plenty of rain and good growing weather, the plants developed vigorously and there should be no scarcity of these. However, it is good policy to buy and plant early.

Parade and Picnic.

The public markets of Pittsburgh gave their annual picnic August 4. All the florists who lease stands were represented in the automobile parade. The firms with the most lavishly decorated vehicles were represented in line as follows: E. C. Ludwig Floral Co., Walter Faulk, John Bader Co., Ludwig Floral Co., Inc., Blind Floral Co., Beckert Bros., Oscar Heid, Mrs. Carrie Jordan, Mrs. Annie Garrity, Thomas Joyce and G. Hallam.

A silver cup was the prize for the most attractive automobile truck and the Ludwig Floral Co. received this award. A cup was also awarded to the Blind Floral Co.

A special prize was awarded to the North Side Market Association, in recognition of the float which that organization prepared, showing a replica of the North Side Market. George Hallam was the decorator.

Edward Ludwig captured a prize against a large field in the 100-yard dash at the picnic.

Various Notes.

E. E. Schaefer, manager of the Advance Floral Co., Dayton, O., was a recent caller.

Randolph & McClements executed a most costly funeral order last week, making up three floral blankets, in which over 5,000 Killarney roses were used.

G. L. Huscroft, of Steubenville, O., has sold his greenhouses, comprising about 50,000 square feet of glass, to E. E. McCausland. Mr. Huscroft will hereafter devote his entire attention to his retail store, at 173 North Fourth street, Steubenville, while Mr. McCausland will continue to operate these greenhouses, producing cut flowers for the wholesale market.

Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Elliott and daughter have returned from the coast. Mr. Elliott brought along a nice case of whooping cough; he can whoop like an Iroquois.

It is with deepest sympathy that I report the death of a promising young

The Market.

Weather conditions have been unfavorable for the little business we expect at this time of the year. It has been so hot and dry that everyone who could do so has gone to one of the summer resorts near the city. There has been little funeral work. There is a scarcity of flowers of all kinds. Even the summer roses are off crop. Peas are gone, valley is all but unknown, and carnations are not yet in. Asters and gladioli are the principal flowers on sale.

I have made thorough inspection of the growers' places and have never seen things in better condition. The houses have been overhauled and there is little disease or inferior stock.

On the private grounds of the city, bedding plants are suffering. The atmosphere is so dry that surface watering is of no real benefit. Despite its record for withstanding heat and drought, salvia is succumbing. Cannas are standing the heat better and are looking well.

There is said to be an unusually heavy demand for the Skinner and the Hearst irrigation systems. The more elaborate private gardens are installing watering systems, and the gardeners assert that they get better results and cut expenses in substituting them for hose.

Lilies are in bloom in the open, and I have seen better speciosums grown outdoors than indoors. The same is true of giganteum. Would it not pay the florist to grow lilies in the field for summer use?

Various Notes.

L. H. and O. Geny spent part of last week at Hornsprings. Oscar Geny is slowly improving in health and is able to look after business part of the time.

Floyd Bralliar, of the Hillcrest School Farm, is spending a week of rest at Graysville, Tenn.

The new window of the Joy Floral Co. is a great attraction. There is always a crowd watching the water wheel of the old mill and the alligators in the pond.

There will be a considerable quantity of bean seed grown here this season. Many of the gardeners are saving their crops for seed, for prices are too low for green beans. Stringless Green Pod and Kentucky Wonder are the only varieties that are grown in any quantity. F. B.

Texarkana, Ark.—Herbert D. Enoe, formerly proprietor of the Capitol Greenhouses, at Pierre, S. D., has taken over the State Line Floral Co., and moved here to conduct the business.

Not a Competitor of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery

National Florist

WHEN the telephone began cutting into the business of the telegraph, they introduced night letters of 50 words for the cost of 10 day words.

And what happened? The telephone was not used any less, but the telegraph was used more.

There are some people who want to do what they do quickly. The snap and go of life is for them. The F. T. D. suits their needs exactly.

There are others who never use the telegraph unless very urgent; but they use letters freely. To these people the National Florist strongly appeals.

It is also apparent that one will help the other, because both will help people to form the habit of ordering floral gifts for distant points.

Send for booklet giving full particulars about the National Florist plan.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The only encouraging feature of the market is the smaller supply of stock. This makes business seem a little better, although it is extremely dull. Roses have shortened in number. Really good stock is often quite scarce. White roses of any grade are not sufficient for the demand. Asters are much more plentiful, but not good ones; the constant rains do more harm to the Semples asters than to the early varieties. Many of the Semples arrive in poor condition, either brown-tipped or open-centered, so that it is difficult at times to select enough good flowers for the orders. Gladioli have been selling a little better, mainly because there are less of them. The quality leaves nothing to be desired. Carnations are about over. Dahlias have come, but do not sell. Easter lilies are in fair demand, while cattleyas and valley are sought at times. The difficulty of finding an outlet for poor flowers is great.

Current Events.

Widespread interest will be shown in the incorporation of the florists' supply business that has been conducted for the last fourteen years by Joseph G. Neidinger. The business was incorporated July 30, under the laws of this state. The three incorporators are Joseph G. Neidinger, president; George S. Hampton, treasurer, and Jack F. Neidinger, secretary.

The business was started in a small way by Joseph G. Neidinger, who had served his apprenticeship in a leading florists' supply house of this city, October 19, 1901, at 1226 Poplar street. Mr. Neidinger had original ideas that he intended to develop as his business grew. One of these ideas was that the florists' supply future depended on furnishing the finished product rather than raw material. With this object in view he aimed to give his customers what they needed, ready for immediate use. When he started, his force consisted of one boy and three girls. Three years later Mr. Neidinger moved to larger quarters at 1438 North Tenth street. So successful were his efforts that the business outgrew these larger quarters and in 1907 a whole building was secured, where the business was carried on for six years. Finding that his ideas were appreciated, Mr. Neidinger invited George S. Hampton to join him for the purpose of introducing these ideas to the florists of the country. This worked well. With the added help of Jack F. Neidinger and an increasing line of supplies, "The House of Merit" specialties became known and were used all over the country. It took room to manufacture these specialties, so two years ago Mr. Neidinger again moved, this time to a splendid modern building at 1309 and 1311 North Second street, where he has every facility for conducting his business. Today the force consists of twelve men, ten boys and thirty girls, convincing proof of the popularity of the ideas put into shape by the Joseph G. Neidinger Co.

more accurate, Mrs. Bayersdorfer had the rough time and Mr. B. the worry and anxiety. Mrs. Bayersdorfer developed typhoid fever while in Yokohama. She was brought safely home, thanks to the devoted care of her husband, and is now convalescing at Atlantic City.

William H. Westcott, Jr., will continue the business of his father, William H. Westcott, at 7043 Ridge avenue. The carnations, chrysanthemums and other stock are in splendid condition, bearing evidence to faithful and skillful culture.

Frank A. Harrigan, receiver for the Johnson Seed Co., closed the store at 217 Market street August 7. It is understood that the stock will be sold at public auction.

W. J. Galt is now with Jacob Becker, at Fifty-second and Market streets.

Richards Bros., of Toughkenamon, Pa., will house 35,000 carnation plants. Their stock is in fine condition.

Irwin W. Heinley, of Royersford, Pa., has leased the Ellenwood Greenhouses near Hatboro, Pa., from H. F. Whitmer.

Recent visitors include Miss Griffith, of the West Side Flower Shop, Scranton, Pa.; Miss Graham, with Robert L. Graham, Baltimore; F. L. Wertz and his friends, Messrs. Gee and Elliott, of Roanoke, Va.

Edward Dornheim, with Berger Bros., is away on his vacation.

J. J. Habermehl's Sons are planning an improved icebox at the Bellevue-Stratford.

Frank P. Meyers has been spending a few days at Ocean City, N. J.

George S. Faulkner keeps up his reputation for effective window displays at the Orchid Flower Shop.

Eugene Bernheimer has parted reluctantly with his equine friend of eleven years to make room for the modern steed, a car.

August 14 Carl A. Corts will close the city salesroom of the Joseph Heacock Co. Mr. Corts will rusticate in Maryland. The salesroom will be reopened, he thinks, about the middle of next month.

Morris Hoffman, with Fred M. Campbell, has returned to his post after a short breathing spell.

Grubs have been giving the growers a lot of trouble this season; they seem to prefer high-priced stock like Hadley and Hoosier Beauty to any of the ordinary varieties, possibly because they are younger and tender. Phil.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

There has been enough funeral work to keep many of the local florists fairly busy. Without that, trade would be extremely quiet. There is not a large variety of flowers. Asters and gladioli are the most plentiful and of these there are a great number of colors, making it possible to have pretty displays of these flowers alone, interspersed with ferns or other potted plants. Carnations are hardly seen in the market now, and the few that are occasionally seen are of poor quality. Sweet peas have begun to die out. Indoor roses arrive in fairly good quantities, but they do not keep long after being removed from the icebox. Dahlias are a little more plentiful. Cosmos is still scarce, especially in the better varieties.

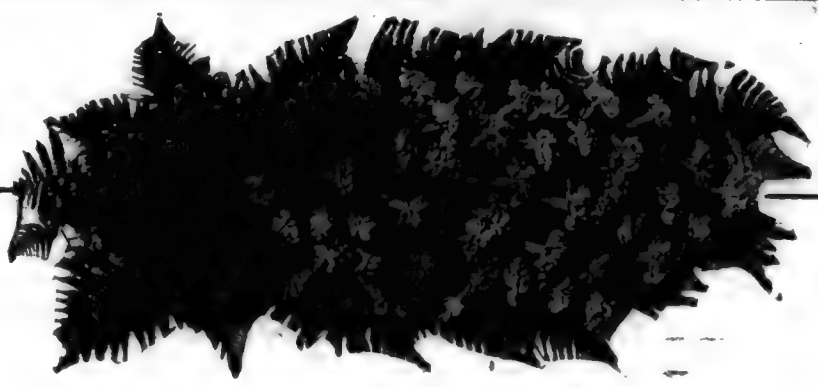
The weather has not been propitious for either growers or retailers. Excessively hot weather is followed by exceedingly cool weather for summer, and hardly two days pass without a hard rain, some of the rains having been the worst known in this section for years. This abundant rainfall, of course, has been an aid in growing some flowers, but has made it hard to keep the ground cultivated as much as usual.

Club Outing.

On the morning of August 4, the date set for the annual outing of the Essex County Florists' Club, the rain was pouring down in sheets. Not for years has there been such a downpour. It was manifestly impossible to go on the outing. But arrangements had all been made and a stock of provisions for a big, hungry crowd had been laid in by the genial chef at Gillette, about fifteen or twenty miles out from Newark. So the next day, the weather being propitious, the undaunted host of Essex county florists, with their wives and children, sisters and sweethearts, reinforced by about twenty-five of the wholesalers from New York city, left Lincoln park, Newark, in three busses, nine touring cars and twelve automobiles. There were more than 125 in the party.

Notwithstanding the heavy rain of the day before, the paved roads were in fair condition and all the members of the party enjoyed the auto ride to Gillette. At noon an appetizing clambake dinner was served.

In the afternoon a program of athletic events was run off. The proposed shoe race, sack race and running broad jump were omitted, on account of the softness of the ground. One of the features of the afternoon's sport was a baseball game between the married and single men, which the married men won by a score of 10 to 0. The children's race was won by Miss Elizabeth Pfeifer. The women's race was won by Mrs. R. J. Irwin, of New York city. In the tug of war, one of the teams was captained by Richard Yuill, chairman of the outing committee; the chairman of the other team was James J. McLaughlin, secretary of the committee. Mr. McLaughlin's team won. Ernest Hausmann won first place in the 100-yard dash participated in by the younger men, and Harry Stein won the 100-yard dash among the older men. The three-legged race was won by Harry McDonough and Haydn Plebarny. The standing broad jump was won by Harry McDonough, Haydn Plebarny being a close second.



All of the judges were selected from among the New York visitors. They were P. J. Smith, W. G. Badgley, of Badgley, Riedel & Meyer; Joseph Manda, Walter Sheridan, Charles Schenck, J. K. Allen, Harry Riedel and Alfred Langjahr.

Various Notes.

McLaughlin & Murphy have had a lot of funeral work lately. This firm recently purchased a new delivery automobile.

Business has been somewhat quiet at George Muller's, though during the last few weeks he has had to supply flowers for a considerable number of funerals.

R. P. Plebarny has been granted a permit to build a new greenhouse, to cost $2,250. Work will be begun soon and it will be completed in time for use during the coming season.

Several bouquets of pink-tinted water lilies were in the window of George Penek's store last week. The whole of the front of the window was occupied by a tank of water, in which there were goldfish. The water lilies were in jars set in this pool. Behind the water were banked gladioli, asters and other flowers.

Frank Tylner, of South Orange, who for the last four years was employed as foreman in the greenhouses of W. A. Manda, has committed suicide. Further particulars will be found in this week's obituary column. R. B. M.

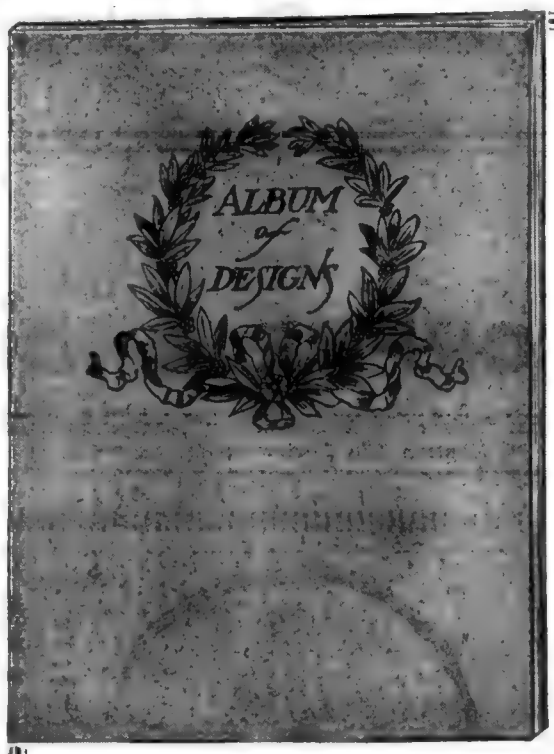
WITH LONG SPAN TO SOUTH.

Will it be practical to build a greenhouse forty feet wide with the roof facing entirely to the south? My present house runs north and south and does not get as much sunlight as seems to be necessary. One reason for this is that it is shaded somewhat by my dwelling house, which is on the east side, so that the sun must rise above the dwelling before reaching the greenhouse; then the sun's rays are reflected at an angle. I wish to enlarge the greenhouse on the present site; hence the inquiry.

If I build a 3-foot wall on the south side, with fourteen inches or more of glass, what should be the height of the north wall? I expect to use raised benches and should not object to enough height on the north side to permit having a potting room under the north benches, with space enough to allow a wagon to be backed underneath if necessary. Would such a long span cause trouble with snow? We get lots of snow here, with temperatures sometimes 20 degrees below zero.



What construction of bar and what size of glass would you use? The night temperature desired is about 45 or 50 degrees. The house would be about 40x50 feet. I have a boiler rated at 200; would another one of the same size, coupled up alongside, give me 45 degrees at night? Geraniums and bulbous plants are the principal stock grown. What arrangement of benches and how many posts would you use?

J. O. S.—N. Y.

While I prefer a width of not to exceed twenty-eight feet for a small house, there is no particular objection to one that is 40x50 feet. The use of one long slope to the south, as suggested, answers well for a side-hill house, but although the plan of having a potting shed under the north bench might be used to advantage so far as the space is concerned, there would be some inconvenience in handling the soil and caring for the beds.

The use of a three-quarter-span house is suggested. The south wall should be about six feet high, with two to three feet of glass. The ridge may be about sixteen feet high and the north wall eight feet. There would be less trouble from snow with this style than with a house having but one pitch to the roof. I would place a row of 1¼-inch gas-pipe posts under the ridge, with 1-inch braces running each way to purlins placed about five feet from the ridge. Two other rows of purlin posts, about eight feet apart, should be used. There will be room for five benches, each six feet wide. Or, if one or more wall benches, three and one-half feet wide, are used along the sides, there will be room for about four other benches, six to seven feet wide.

While a steel frame would be durable and satisfactory, if you prefer a cheaper house it can be built with gas-pipe posts and purlins and wooden gutters. Glass 16x20 inches will answer

PLANTS FOR VASES AND BOXES.

Will you kindly give me a list of plants suitable for vases, hanging baskets and porch boxes. I wish to begin now to prepare plants for collections, to be used in this way next spring. Would agaves in variety be of much use? It seems difficult to provide color for the baskets. C. S. M.—N. Y.

Some plants which are well adapted for the purposes named are: Begonia gracilis and La Vesuve, scarlet; Abutilon megapotamicum, Savitzii, Darwinii tessellatum and vexillarium; Swainsona galegifolia alba and rosea; thunbergias, tradescantias, Vinca major variegata, tall nasturtiums, Cobæa scandens, Maurandia Barclaiana, English ivy; geraniums, all varieties, the ivy-leaved section being best for hanging baskets; Asparagus Sprengeri, Ficus repens, Senecio scandens, or German ivy; petunias, Lobelia speciosa, lantanas, heliotropes; fuchsias, where they get a little shade; variegated stevias, glechomas, etc.

In addition, such palms as Latania Borbonica, Phœnix rupicola and Canariensis, Dracæna australis, agaves, Nephrolepis Bostoniensis, etc., may be used in the larger vases. You can get plenty of variegation from variegated vincas, abutilons, tradescantias and stevias. Crotons may be used if you are partial to colored-leaved plants, but personally I prefer green-leaved subjects. I am also decidedly of the opinion that the best effect is obtained by planting one variety, or at most two varieties, in a vase. You will find plenty of hanging basket material in the foregoing list. C. W.

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists — those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

Florists' Review,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:-

During the SIX MONTHS from March 4 to September 4 I have received from other Florists, by mail, telegraph or cable, orders to the amount of $513.25 as a result of my advertisement in the Retailers' department of The Review. With the allowance to senders the record for SIX MONTHS is:

Value of orders received----------	$513.25
Less 20% allowed senders--------	102.60
Net value of orders for SIX MONTHS--	410.65

It should be noted that this showing covers the DULL SUMMER MONTHS, when any addition to a Florists's business is decidedly welcome.

Retail Florists not advertising in The Review should profit by this letter.

Respectfully,

F. H. Weber

The Market.

Last week was surely a wet one; it rained nearly all the time. Vacationists could be heard complaining at every turn, and the week was a bad one all around, with the exception of business. While sales could be better and prices might be considerably higher, the week, as a whole, was satisfactory. Business has kept up wonderfully well this year, and although it is the middle of the so-called dull season, the orders keep on coming and florists are kept fairly busy. Much building has been started this summer, and this fact tends to show that the trade is not suffering so much as some would have us believe.

Roses are quite scarce, the dark, cloudy weather having held back the crop to a great extent. The market is cleaned up each morning, and it is necessary to cut some orders so as to make the supply sufficient. Carnations are being thrown out, just as fast as it can be accomplished, and the supply in consequence is small. From indications it seems that there will be a short interval between the last of the old stock and the first cut from the new plants. Last year the cut continued right through, and for a time it seemed that this year would be a repetition of last year in that respect. Asters are arriving quite heavily, and the quality is good so far. They are not moving so rapidly as they might, and are not bringing high prices by any means. Gladioli are plentiful and are moving well; in fact, there is no stagnation in any stock.

Club Meeting.

The Milwaukee Florists' Club met Thursday, August 5. Mr. Kamp, of the Kamp-Spinti Floral Co., the latest acquisition to the local organization, made his debut at this meeting. The committee that had charge of the picnic at Keipper's park, August 1, made a detailed report, which was decidedly satisfactory to the club.

There was a discussion on the annual state fair, to be held here September 13 to 17. The club is fostering the exhibition of a group, and each member agreed to donate some particular thing in his line, to make the exhibit the biggest Milwaukee has ever seen. Everyone is doing his utmost to make the horticultural exhibit on the occasion a huge success, as the advertising and educational features are extensive.

C. B. Whitnall, an honorary member of the club, gave a short talk, which was highly interesting.

Various Notes.

W. Desmond, with the L. S. Donaldson Co., Minneapolis, was a visitor Tuesday, August 3. Mr. Desmond was on his way home from Chicago.

P. L. McKee, of the J. C. Moninger Co., Chicago, was in town August 4 for a short time on business. Harry Balsley, of Detroit, was also here last week.

The Market.

Last week was one of fog, wind, rain and low temperatures. The maximum temperature was below 60 degrees on several successive days, and there was no sunshine until August 7. Consequently outdoor flowers were ruined in many cases, and all that arrived were in poor condition. Indoor flowers were not abundant and, had there been any special demand, the supply would have been quite inadequate, but business was light at the retail stores, although flowers on the whole fared a little better than during the preceding week.

Roses are not at all plentiful and the majority have short stems. Values continue to vary from 50 cents to $8 per hundred. Double White Killarney is scarce and in demand; so is Kaiserin. Ophelia, Mock, Russell and Hadley are other favorites. There is not much call for Beauties. Some second-rate carnations still arrive, but they are of no importance. Many asters have been ruined by excessive rains, and prices hold up fairly well. Of gladioli there is an immense supply, with low prices.

There is an abundant crop of lilies, especially of the various forms of speciosum and auratum. Valley is poor. Cattleya blooms easily made $1. Odontoglossum crispum sold at 25 cents each. Sweet peas are poor in quality, owing to excessive moisture. The call for asparagus and adiantum is light.

Gladiolus and Phlox Exhibition.

After a fortnight of almost continual rain, fog and wind, it was a pleasant surprise to find Horticultural hall filled with splendid exhibits August 7 and 8. Annuals had been mostly destroyed by the continuous rain, but there were splendid displays of perennial phlox, gladioli, dahlias and herbaceous flowers. For twelve varieties of hardy phlox and for general display filling thirty vases, the Blue Hill Nurseries led in each case. Some of their more noteworthy varieties were: Charles Darwin, Victor Heurlin, Rynstrom, Coquelicot, Mrs. Paul Dutrie, nana cœrulea and Eclaireur, and some good seedlings.

For twelve named gladioli C. F. Fairbanks was first, Raymond W. Swett, second. For fifty spikes, C. F. Fairbanks won. For 100 vases arranged for effect, William Sim took first with a noteworthy display of several thousand spikes. Included were grand vases of Red Amaryllis, Mrs. Beecher, Sulphur King, Baron Hulot, Niagara, Gleam, Myrtle, Faust, Winsome, Contrast, Willie Wigman, Halley, Blue Jay, Scarsdale and Klondike. For basket of gladioli, the Boston Cut Flower Co. won with a beautiful basket of Myrtle.

Chamberlain & Co. had a fine collection of gladioli; specially good were Halley, Sagamore, Prince of Wales, Myrtle, Premiere and Lily Lehmann. C. F. Fairbanks had a large and most artistically arranged display of gladioli, covering several square feet of space, awarded a silver medal and gratuity. Clark W. Brown, Ashland, and R. W. Swett, Saxonville, had other honorary displays of gladioli in quantity.

The Jennison Gardens, of Natick, C. H. Chamberlain, manager, secured a first-class certificate for a new white phlox, Leona. They also showed cultivated blueberries of immense size and a fine new late strawberry. Farquhar & Co., for an extensive collection of phlox and herbaceous flowers, received honorable mention. J. K. Alexander had a fine display of dahlias. J. P. Rooney received a bronze medal for Dahlia Mrs. Frederick Grinell. Mrs. E. M. Gill had, as usual, a good general display of flowers. George B. Gill had some fine seedling dahlias.

George Melvin received a cultural certificate for a fine plant of Epidendrum prismatocarpum, carrying twenty-eight spikes and 158 flowers. George Page, gardener to Mrs. Frederick Ayer, had a collection of palms and ferns, and Henry Stewart, gardener to Miss Cornelia Warren, had annuals, herbaceous flowers and fruit trees in tubs. The Blue Hill Nurseries had one of the most notable displays in a collection of fourteen varieties of Calluna vulgaris, or Scotch heather, which was awarded a first-class certificate. There was, as usual, a fine show of fruits and vegetables, while the Boston Mycological Society had a large display of fungi.

Various Notes.

The W. W. Edgar Co., of Waverley, is cutting a splendid lot of Lilium auratum and speciosum and longiflorum giganteum. They have an immense stock of Lorraine and other begonias, and cyclamens in splendid shape for the holidays. They do not look for any new azaleas this season, but have a fine lot carried over from last winter.

Members of the Boston Flower Exchange, to the number of twelve, had their annual fishing trip August 10, in the boat of W. N. Greenwood, of East Boston. They reported a good catch and an unlimited amount of fun.

weather we have had since July 1, A. H. Hews & Co. have dug and stored all the clay needed for the coming season's supply. They have the most modern machinery for digging, hauling and dumping the clay in their large storehouse, which measures 60x260. T. J. Benwell, their genial and popular representative among the trade growers, will round out half a century of service with the house of Hews next month.

W. B. Goodenow, of Stoughton, one of our double-violet specialists, is sending in quantities of extra fine asters and sweet peas.

E. E. Cummings, of Woburn, says that he has had 10,000 plants of single violets under water, and the stock does not look at all well. He grows cucumbers largely under glass, and the cold, wet, sunless weather has caused blight to spread rapidly among them.

The Budlong Rose Co. is receiving shipments of the new red rose, Francis Scott Key. At present the flowers are more pink than red in color, but cooler weather will change this. Russell and J. L. Mock are good. Double White Killarney is scarce and eagerly snapped up.

Julius Fagan and Miss Lyons, of Penn's staff, left on their vacations August 7. Henry Penn was impressed with the planting at the San Francisco and San Diego expositions, especially at the latter city. At San Francisco he experienced a good deal of fog.

Paul F. Brigham, of Westboro, says that the excessive rains are responsible for the loss from stem-rot of over 5,000 of his field-grown carnations. Other growers are also reporting a large loss from the same cause.

Thomas Capers, of Wellesley, has the framework of his new Hitchings house completed, and two or three more dry days will see the glazing completed.

Martin Wax and wife are at Grand Lake Stream, Me., for the month of August. Samuel Wax is again at his post.

Morris Saunders, of the staff of Wax Bros., was married last week to Miss Ida Abrahams. The happy couple are spending their honeymoon at Winthrop, Mass.

Visitors last week included Walter Kline, manager for Small & Sons, New York, who was making a New England tour with his wife; A. E. Earnshaw, representing the Bon Arbor Chemical Co., Paterson, N. J., and Mr. Dykes, representing Edward Jansen, New York.

At Thomas Galvin's Park street store one window is devoted to an aquatic display. Gladioli, lilies, ferns and palms are effectively used in the other windows. A number of the staff are away on their vacations.

Harry Quint states that business at his Boylston street store is good. He has good facilities for open-air displays and takes full advantage of them. W. N. C.

The Market.

Buyers at the wholesale markets last week showed little activity, and all asserted that business, outside of funeral work, was at a standstill. Stock is of excellent quality and in quantities large enough to fill all orders. There is always an abundance of stock left after the morning sales, and most of it finds its way to the waste pile. The weather last week was cool, which had a good effect on roses. The stock shipped in was of splendid quality. Roses are plentiful in all varieties, but little fancy long stock is arriving. Killarneys constitute the bulk of the supply. Field-grown carnations are being received, and they keep longer than greenhouse-grown stock. There is a good demand for them. Asters are in abundance; the light shades have the call. Gladioli are more plentiful than they have been, and prices are down to $6 and $8 per thousand. America sells well. Lilies and valley hold up well at all times. Hydrangeas, candytuft, dahlias, cornflowers and daisies are among the outdoor flowers that help crowd the market. Low prices prevailed on all stock last week.

Various Notes.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association held its regular monthly meeting August 4. The attendance was large and a great deal of important business was transacted. It was decided by vote to invite the heads of the five wholesale houses to attend the next meeting, September 1, and discuss the matter of Sunday closing. So far, all attempts to have the wholesalers reconsider their plans and open Sundays have failed. The association hopes to convince them of their mistake in closing Sundays.

August Hummert, vice-president of the St. Louis Seed Co., made a trip to Waterloo, Ill., August 8, to arrange for the annual picnic of the employees of his company. He has informed me that arrangements have been made for the last Sunday of this month. Outside shipments have kept them busy.

D. Ferry Lomason, representative of D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, was here last week checking up unsold seeds for his company.

F. J. Farney, of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, is here with a fine lot of novelties in florists' supplies, which he has displayed at the Hotel Jefferson.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Smith are spending a few weeks in the Ozarks. It was their intention to make an automobile trip to Omaha, Neb., but the bad roads, caused by the recent heavy rains, occasioned a change of program at the last moment.

Paula Poss, August 4, at St. Anthony's church. The couple left the same night for a honeymoon trip to the Pacific coast. Robert J. Windler, of Rogers Park, Chicago, brother of the groom, was present at the wedding and spent Thursday, August 5, looking up old acquaintances.

Frank A. Windler, secretary and treasurer of the Windler Wholesale Floral Co., and John S. Carter, head of the Nicotine Mfg. Co., left for Chicago August 11, from where they will go to the S. A. F. convention at San Francisco with the Chicago members. They expect to be home September 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Kuehn, on arriving at Milwaukee to spend a few weeks' vacation, received a telegram telling of the death of Joseph Bokern, Mrs. Kuehn's father, who died August 2.

Otto Bruenig, brother-in-law of Henry Berning, on the eve of his two weeks' vacation, broke his right arm while cranking the delivery car. He says the accident will extend his vacation a few weeks longer, but that some of the anticipated pleasure will have to be put off.

The tract of land on the Olive street road was not purchased by the C. Young & Sons Co., as announced in The Review for July 29, but by James Young, president of the company. A range of houses will be built by Mr. Young, which will be independent of the company of which he is head. His son, Charles, will manage the place when it is completed.

Paddy Patton is fast becoming an expert trap-shooter (not crap-shooter). Paddy says he will take on any of the crack shots of the trade, and there are a number who are handy with guns. This bit of news may result in a challenge.

A. S. Cerny, of Kirkwood, is now growing roses. He is the fourth of the county growers to take up rose growing. Judging by his consignments to the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., it looks as though he will have the success the other growers have had.

As the time draws near for the annual meeting of the S. A. F., at San Francisco, we find only a small number from St. Louis who will attend.

The party includes C. C. Sanders, Frank A. Windler, Joseph J. Windler and John S. Carter. We hope our old friend, Daniel MacRorie, will show them the time of their lives.

George H. Angermueller says last season was one of the best he has had in florists' supplies, and he expects to double his business the coming season by more extensive advertising.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Beyer have returned home from a few days' trip up the river. Mr. Beyer says he has taken on extra weight since he has ceased bowling, and that next fall and winter will again find him a regular weekly bowler as of old.

C. Young & Sons Co., in a circular letter to the local trade, has offered its entire stock of plants and hotbed sashes for sale. The place will be cleared at once and the tract cut into lots and sold.

David Geddis, manager of Vandervoorts' floral department, has returned from his vacation. The time was spent visiting friends in the trade at Pittsburgh, New York and Philadelphia. Mrs. Geddis and David, Jr., are still in the east, where they will remain until September 1.

President T. C. Wilson, of the Missouri Horticultural Society, and H. C. Irish, both of this city, say that efforts are being made to hold the annual meeting in November at St. Louis. It is planned to organize a state florists' association at this meeting, which is favored by many florists throughout the state. J. J. B.

SAGINAW, MICH.

The Market.

Business was good last week. The funeral work was a great help. Outdoor stock is plentiful, such as asters, gladioli, dahlias, daisies and stocks, but there is not enough call to relieve the oversupply. Roses are scarce but enough to go around. New carnations are expected soon, for some were housed more than four weeks ago.

Various Notes.

Charles Frueh & Sons are adding several houses to the Genesee avenue range, which will more than double the present capacity.

The Roethke Floral Co. is wrecking its old house, which will be replaced by one of modern construction. The Bay City flower store was sold to Boehringer Bros., of Bay City, who took possession August 1. A number of improvements have been started.

THOMAS GREENHOUSE (Est. 15 years.)

Grohman the Florist was the first to house carnations. As they were pot-grown, there is no hazard attached, and consequently early flowers will be a matter of only a week or two.

J. B. Goetz Sons have just finished a tremendous crop of indoor tomatoes. The greenhouses are being treated with gas, after which the old soil will be removed and new soil brought in for the carnations.

The hail storm of August 7 did no damage in Saginaw or vicinity, although hailstones of the size of nuts fell. Fortunately, there were no greenhouses in the path of the storm. Bay City had no hail, only a heavy rain.

The outing of the Saginaw-Bay City Floricultural Society will take place at Frankenmuth August 25. A special car will leave Bay City at 7:30 a. m., and Saginaw at 8 a. m. Dinner and supper have been arranged for by the committee. Otto Roethke has promised good weather for the day.

Martha Kurzhals and Helen Ott, with B. Schroeter, Detroit, have returned home after visiting friends and relatives. Gee.

BRAMPTON, ONT.

Word has been received that the greenhouses of T. A. Ivey & Son, of Brantford, Ont., suffered heavily in the hail storm August 8. Mr. Ivey estimates that over 10,000 feet of glass was broken, this being the most severe loss that has ever been experienced in the greenhouse business in Canada. The same storm passed over Brampton, but little hail fell. August 9 was the eighth consecutive day on which heavy rain has fallen and this summer is proving the wettest on record. The damage to vegetables and outdoor crops is far more disastrous than in any previous year.

Golden Glow mums are being cut in small quantities this week, and indoor asters and gladioli are proving a great help during the scarcity of carnations.

John Dobbie, of Niagara Falls, called on his way home from the London convention last week and reports a successful gathering.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Dale left August 4 for an extended trip through California. W. G. P.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, John M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

IT looks as though carrots will be a short item again this season.

RALPH M. WARD, of New York, is on the Labrador coast on a fishing trip.

GERMAN seeds continue to show up, small lots at a time, mostly via Holland but also via Scandinavian shipping points.

ONION sets are now being harvested at Chicago. A year ago, August 8, they were all in the barns. There is every indication of a short crop.

NOTICE of the referee's sale of the stock of the Johnson Seed Co., Philadelphia, to be held August 24, appears this week under the head of Business Embarrassments.

THERE were 252 cases of bulbs, 66 cases of immortelles, 218 parcels of seeds and 166 parcels of roots on the steamer from Ollioules, France, that reached New York last week.

BRUSSELS sprouts and spinach are two of the items that it will pay to give a little more space in the 1916 books. The consumption of these vegetables is increasing steadily or even rapidly.

SEED growing in Denmark is assuming large proportions. For instance, it is stated that L. Daehnfeldt, Ltd., of Odense, had this year over 10,000 acres under seed crops, principally for export.

IT has become the fashion to predict crop shortages, here, there and everywhere. No doubt the life of the seedsman is becoming more complex every day, but things seldom are so bad as they seem—or sound.

CONSIDERABLE quantities of flower seeds, including cyclamen, pansy, aster, antirrhinum, cineraria, mignonette, petunia, stocks and many other items produced under glass and in the open, are now being grown in Denmark, where seedsmen see chances to cut into Germany's trade.

THE U. S. Civil Service Commission will conduct an examination August 18 in various cities of the country to secure a laboratory aid in seed testing in the Bureau of Plant Industry of the Department of Agriculture in Washington. The position pays $720 a year and is open to men and women.

THE English can stop exportation of German goods via Rotterdam or Copenhagen in the case of articles of exclusive German production, but such seeds as are grown in Holland or Scandinavia as well as in Germany present a more difficult problem. Until the spies get the evidence, more or less German stock is pretty sure to get by the blockade.

S. F. LEONARD, president of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, and his wife returned last week from a visit to the Panama-Pacific exposition and a tour of the Pacific coast country. As they returned by way of the Canadian Pacific, Mr. Leonard says he never saw so many soldiers in his whole life. He says the California seed crops are looking well. The onion and lettuce crops in particular seem to be flourishing.

MORE HARRISII ARRIVE.

The second shipment of Harrisii bulbs of the season reached New York August 3 on the steamship Bermudian from Bermuda. This shipment is but a fraction of the number of cases received July 26, the first consignment of the year. The consignees of the lot were:

Consignee.	Cases.
Crossmond, L. D., & Co	12
Henderson, P., & Co	44
Pierson, F. R., Co	64
Total	120
Previously reported	612
Total to date	732

DUTCH BULBS.

It is to be expected that, shipment having started, every boat from Rotterdam will bring consignments of Dutch bulbs. The first lot reached New York August 4 and consisted of only 221 cases. The second lot arrived August 5, on the Ryndam, and was as follows:

Consignee.	Cases
American Express Co	7
American Shipping Co	2
Hampton, J. W., Jr., Co	23
Lang, R. F	21
Maltus & Ware	1
Vandergrift, F. B., & Co	4
Wyman, C. H., & Co	1
Total	59
Previously reported	221
Total to date	280

Although the first bulbs are a little late in arriving and the first shipments are not so heavy as last year, there seems every reason to believe there will be all the tulips, hyacinths and narcissi this market can absorb. Already the London auction houses are offering bulbs, but it looks as though the principal exporting houses, through their association, mean to do what they can to prevent the demoralization of the market in America, having apparently learned their lesson last year.

Rare Chance to Buy
The Swas-teeka Exhibition Cannas
Shown at San Francisco and San Diego Fairs

Robert Pyle
President

HERE IS A CHANCE for some of you enterprising westerners to secure an assortment of our very finest Swas-teeka Cannas, the choicest of Mr. Wintzer's wonderful creations. We sent 3000 of them to beautify the exhibition grounds at both the San Francisco and San Diego Fairs.

In that fertile Californian soil they have multiplied until now there are 10,000 to 15,000.

All of them are for sale.

You can have the entire lot at an exceedingly attractive figure, or in quantities of 100 and over.

If you are interested, write me at once.

From the 16th to the 20th you can reach me in San Francisco, at either the St. Francis Hotel or the Pennsylvania State Building. From the 20th to the 23rd at San Diego, care of Edward J. Swayne, Watts Building.

Address your wire or letter to me, Robert Pyle.

CRIMSON CLOVER SEED SUPPLY.

There is apparently a larger supply of crimson clover seed on hand at the present time than in any previous year, much of which is of poor quality, according to specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. While this would indicate that the price should be normal or less than normal, it is rapidly advancing.

The greater part of the crimson clover seed sown in the United States is normally imported from France and Austria. In the fall of 1914 conditions of trade with Europe were such that there appeared to be danger of a short supply of seed for this summer's planting. The desire of the seed trade to secure as much seed as possible, together with the improvement in trade facilities with France during the winter and spring, resulted in the importation of 12,000,000 pounds during the year ending June 30, 1915, as compared with 7,500,000 pounds the year previous and 1,500,000 pounds in 1910. The quantities of crimson clover seed imported into the United States in the last few years have been as follows:

Fiscal year.	Pounds.
1910	1,552,000
1911	3,529,000
1912	3,406,000
1913	5,376,000
1914	7,524,000
1915	12,036,000

During May and June much seed of poor quality was imported, more than 1,000,000 pounds, made up of several lots, germinating from twenty-nine per cent to sixty-two per cent. Crimson clover seed of a bright, greenish yellow color usually germinates well, while a brownish color indicates poor germination.

DANISH SEEDSMAN HERE.

Carlos Jensen, manager of the export department of L. Daehnfeldt, Ltd., Odense, Denmark, arrived on the steamship Frederik VIII from Copenhagen, and is now in this country calling on his friends in the seed trade, en route to the exposition at San Francisco. Some members of the trade will probably remember him from his visit five years ago, when he journeyed across the continent and back. As Mr. Jensen has in charge all the cultures of vegetable and flower seeds of the firm, in Denmark and abroad, his travels are frequent and far, and his acquaintance in the seed trade large. His firm, L. Daehnfeldt, Ltd., is now in its sixty-fifth year, and is stated to be the largest in Scandinavia, operating 10,000 acres.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

L. Daehnfeldt, Ltd., Odense, Denmark.—Wholesale catalogue of flower, vegetable and root seeds. It is clearly printed and well illustrated and consists of sixteen large pages and cover, besides a pink insert which features cauliflower, cabbage and other specialties. Enclosed, also, is an 8-page "preliminary list of garden and flower seeds for delivery after crop 1915," with the notice that "this offer is absolutely without engagement and is only subject to immediate order."

R. H. Bath, Ltd., Wisbech, England.—A special autumn trade list of bulbs, roses, carnations, peonies, violets, currant and gooseberry bushes, raspberry canes, strawberry plants, sea kale and rhubarb, with specialties in pansy, viola and sweet pea seeds. A compact, accurately compiled list, consisting of twenty-eight long, narrow pages, in convenient form for the pocket.

Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, Ill.—An attractive catalogue of plants and florists' supplies. It contains forty-four large pages, about 10x14 inches, and the paper, typography and illustrations are all of excellent quality. The list of supplies is varied and comprehensive, occupying the first thirty-four pages of the book. Among the plants are included palms, araucarias, crotons, pandanus, ferns, cyclamens, begonias, spring bedding plants, roses, chrysanthemums, carnations, etc.

The KENILWORTH Giant Pansy

seeds are all grown by myself and are offered in the following mixtures and separate colors:

22—KENILWORTH STRAIN—The flowers are of perfect form and substance; many of the immense flowers are from 3½ to 4 inches; it is a striking collection of beautiful colors and markings rich with shades of red, brown, bronze, mahogany and many others too numerous to mention. Light, Medium or Dark Mixtures.

26—KENILWORTH CUT FLOWER MIXTURE—Is a distinct class by itself, surpassing all other strains as a cut flower or for exhibition purposes, for inside or outside growing; the large flowers are carried erect above the foliage on heavy stems, 7 or 8 inches long, in the most graceful manner, and stand the hot, dry weather well.

28—MASTERPIECE—A remarkable type; the curled, wavy petals giving the flower a double appearance, large flowers of great substance, on long, strong stems.

30—GIANT THREE AND FIVE BLOTCHED PANSIES—A superb mixture. Flowers large and of circular form and of great substance. The display of coloring is unsurpassed. A combination of almost every shade of rich velvety colors, reds are particularly conspicuous; the petals being distinctly marked with three or five large dark blotches.

NEW SEED NOW READY

All sorts and mixtures, except the new Pansy Princess, are $5.00 per oz.; $1.25 per ¼-oz.; 5000 seeds, $1.00; trade packet of 1000 seeds, 25c; any 5 pkts., $1.00. Please order by number.

PRINCESS

30—The New Upright Pansy

This strain is entirely distinct from all others. It is absolutely compact, upright growing, and extremely weather-proof, enduring many storms without damage to its flower. The flowers are mostly blotched and frilled like the Masterpiece, of good form and heavy velvety texture, on heavy stems carried well above the foliage. Attractive by the brilliancy of its colors.

500 Seeds 20c; 1000 Seeds 35c; ⅛ oz. $1.00; ¼ oz. $2.00; 1 oz. $7.50.

24—Kenilworth Show—A fine strain.
38—Mme. Perret—Red and wine shades.
40—Zebra—Fine striped mixture.
42—Adonis—Light blue, white center.
44—Black—Almost coal black.

WORMS IN TOMATO SOIL.

I am a grower of tomatoes under glass and have had considerable trouble with my plants this spring. They seem to be growing nicely and have four or five clusters of flowers, when the leaves suddenly turn yellow about the middle of the plants, causing the plants to become stunted. In some houses five per cent are affected; in others, less. The soil around the plants contains little worms close to the plants and in the fine roots. Under separate cover I am sending a sample of the soil containing the worms, of which there are two kinds. Would lime water destroy this pest? I shall appreciate early advice.

I. O.—Wash.

The sample of soil with worms did not come to hand. All soil pests can be destroyed without any injury being done to your plants. I would advise the use of carbon bisulphide. This comes in pound cans and the cost averages 25 cents at retail. Bore holes a foot apart each way in your soil, using a pointed stick. Pour a scant teaspoonful of the carbon into each hole, immediately filling it up. The carbon forms a gas which will kill all worms and larvæ in the soil, without harming your plants. As it is explosive in its nature, avoid the use of any naked lights while applying it. It is most effective when the soil is quite damp. I would suggest the desirability of sterilizing your soil before planting another season. If you cannot use steam, use the aforementioned carbon. C. W.

MUSHROOMS IN GREENHOUSE.

I have three feet of space under the heating pipes between my sweet pea houses that is too much shaded for growing most things. Would mushrooms grow there, and, if so, how should I prepare the soil and space? I have no benches. W. W. M.—Colo.

Mushrooms can be grown in a greenhouse, cellar or shed. They prefer a winter temperature of 55 to 60 degrees. The beds should not be placed near heating pipes or boilers, or the surface soil will dry out too much. Much of their successful culture depends on having a fairly even temperature, one which is moist rather than dry and not exposed to strong light. If you think you have these conditions in some measure, you might try mushroom culture.

Secure fresh horse manure and shake out the long straw. Throw the manure into a heap and turn it each day to allow the rank heat to escape and prevent burning. Add one-fourth as much loam from a pasture as you have manure and mix it through the manure. This prevents excessive heating. After the strong heat has gone, make up the bed, lay a layer over the space to be planted and tramp or pound as hard as possible. Add more manure and continue to firm it well until it is nine inches thick. Plunge a thermometer in the bed. The temperature in the bed may run up to 100 or even 115 degrees. Spawn it on the decline, at 85 to 90 degrees.

Burpee's Winter-flowering Spencer Sweet Peas, Originated at Fordhook Farms and Grown at Floradale Farm. Absolutely fixed—true to color and type.

We began hybridizing the original Winter-Flowering Sweet Peas, namely, Burpee's Earliest of All (Christmas Pink), Burpee's Earliest White, Burpee's Earliest Sunbeams and Burpee's Re-selected Earliest of All, with the finest varieties of the summer-flowering Spencers, at our FORDHOOK FARMS in 1909. It is, however, quite a slow process to thoroughly "true" and "fix" these seedlings, and it being against the principles of our business to put any novelty on the market in an unfixed condition, we are offering only two varieties at present. The stocks of these we know to be absolutely fixed, true to color and type. After our crops are harvested we may be in a position to offer, in a limited way, several other winter-flowering novelties, particulars of which will be found in Burpee's Annual for 1916.

FORDHOOK PINK This is the result of a cross made at our Fordhook Farms in 1909. The color is a beautiful shade of rose-pink on white ground; the coloring deepening towards the edge of the standard and wings. The flowers are of largest size, exquisitely waved and usually produced in threes and fours on long stems. Unsurpassed for cut flower trade. Awarded Certificate of Merit at the Spring Show of the PENNSYLVANIA HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY, Philadelphia, March 23, 1915.

In sealed packets containing twelve seeds each. Per Pkt. 25 cents; ¼ oz. $1.35; ½ oz. $2.25; per oz. $4.00.

FORDHOOK ROSE The result of a cross made at our Fordhook Farms in 1910. This lovely novelty is a charming shade of rosy-carmine. The flowers are of largest size and usually borne in threes and fours on long stiff stems. Awarded Certificate of Merit at the INTERNATIONAL SHOW, New York, March 20, 1914, and at the Spring Show of the PENNSYLVANIA HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY, Philadelphia, March 23, 1915.

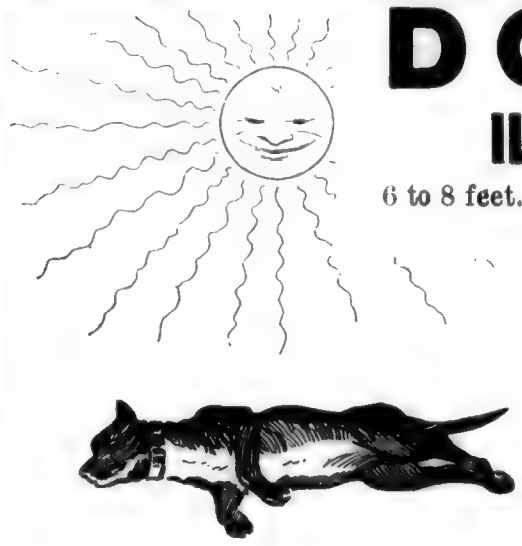
In sealed packets containing twelve seeds each. Per pkt. 25 cents; ¼ oz. $1.35; ½ oz. $2.25; per oz. $4.00.

YARRAWA

The Sweet Pea Par Excellence for Winter-flowering Under Glass

We were awarded Certificates of Merit for this superb novelty at the International Flower Show in New York, March, 1914, and at the Spring Show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, Philadelphia, March, 1915.

YARRAWA is an easy and good "doer," invariably giving an excellent account of itself, whether grown in pots, boxes, raised benches or solid beds.



YARRAWA has the heavy foliage and rank, strong growth of the summer-flowering type and is a true winter-blooming Spencer. From seed sown early in October at Fordhook Farms, the plants came into bloom December 20th and flowered profusely until May. The flowers are exquisitely waved and when well grown will average two and one-half inches in diameter, many of them being duplex or double flowered, thus adding greatly to the general effect of the bunch. They are borne usually in fours on extra long, strong stems. The color is a most pleasing shade of bright rose-pink, with light wings. As the supply of seed will be limited, we advise ordering early.

Floradale-grown seed exclusively—¼ oz., $1.00; per oz., $3 50; per ¼ lb., $12.50; 1 lb., $45.00.

of an ordinary walnut. Plant the pieces a foot apart each way over the bed, covering them to a depth of two inches. In eight days give the bed a covering of two inches of loam; then cover with hay or straw and leave until mushrooms appear, which may be in five or six weeks, but is sometimes longer. On one occasion I waited seventeen weeks and had a grand crop, so you must not be of too nervous a temperament. When watering is necessary, heat the water to a temperature of 100 degrees. The less watering needed the better. The manure when made up into beds should be fairly moist. It should squeeze together without water oozing from it. Dry manure is valueless.

Mushrooms succeed best during the winter months. Better not spawn before the middle or end of September. Close in your beds with boards and burlap, to exclude air and light. You will find mushroom culture interesting, if less profitable than some magazine writers have depicted it. C. W.

SEDALIA, MO.

Hail storms early in the morning August 3 and August 5 damaged stock in the field, such as gladioli, but broke little glass in the houses of the Archias Floral Co. or the State Fair Floral Co.

The Sedalia Floral Co. expects to complete its planting by August 15. Cutting has already commenced on new rose stock. Carnations planted in the benches in May are yielding blooms. The company has 5,000 mums to single stem in fine condition. America and Mrs. Francis King gladioli retail at $2 per dozen. Funeral work has kept the store help busy for the last three weeks.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

The supply of cut flowers has decreased and this prevented what would otherwise have been a glut, as business fell off even more than the supply. Even the flowers which found their way to market were offered at sacrifice prices. Gladioli fell off in both quality and quantity and only the best of them were bought. Asters are just between seasons; Queen of the Market is about over and the later varieties are not yet coming in any quantity. The best realize only fair prices, while the short-stemmed ones go begging. Roses are of about the usual summer quality and are in poor demand. Sweet peas are passed by entirely and carnations are conspicuous by their absence. There is a fair demand for lilies, due to funeral work, and a little valley is still being moved. Outdoor flowers, such as phlox, Golden Glow, etc., are in little demand. The stores only carry enough stock for display purposes. The street fakers are handling large lots of stock and Cassier's Giant—A grand mixture of the finest blotched varieties, large in size and rich in coloring.

Trimardeau Mixed—Enormous size, beautiful colors.

Princess—New. Compact, upright-growing, weatherproof class of Pansies, mostly blotched and some frilled flowers; very valuable.

Masterpiece Giant—Curled Spencer or so-called double Pansies; extraordinarily good.

Triumph of the Giants—Remarkably beautiful and showy class; very large, frilled blooms, rich colors.

Psyche—White, each petal having a violet blotch; waved petals.

Giant Adonis—Light blue; beautiful.

Giant Andromeda—Rose, with lavender.

Giant Emperor William—Cornflower blue; showy.

Giant King of the Blacks—Fine.

Giant Lord Beaconsfield—Deep purple-violet, shading to white.

Giant Mme. Perret—Fine wine shades on white ground; very showy.

Giant Mauve Queen—New.

Giant Snowflake.

Giant Striped—Fine dark shades.

Giant White—With purple eye; very fine.

Giant Yellow—With large black eye.

Giant "Non Plus Ultra"—A mixture of striking colors containing the Blotched and Masterpiece varieties in greatest proportion. Don't fail to grow some of this.

WORRY

There possibly have been no tradesmen so severely affected as have florists been by abnormal weather conditions this season. Incessant rain and fog have played havoc with plants and blooms both indoors and out, and much stock has spoiled by damping and rotting.

Don't worry if you have lost your stock of snapdragon cuttings. You are better off. You are just in time to get seedlings started, and seedling plants, especially of our Silver Pink, are so far superior to cuttings as to make cuttings a waste of time and space, especially where you would most likely have stunted, hard-wooded stock.

Seedlings start readily, grow so rapidly, and bloom so freely that they are an absolute pleasure from start to finish, to say nothing about the great profit by a long flowering season. Seeds sown in August will make fine, stocky plants to follow 'mums.

New stock seed of my original Silver Pink at $1.00 per pkt.; 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00. Seed of Nelrose, Garnet, Yellow, White, Buxton and mixed, at 35c per pkt.; 3 for $1.00.

Splendid seedling plants ready as follows: Silver Pink, $4.00 per 100; $35.00 per 1000. Garnet and White same price. Nelrose and Yellow, $5.00 per 100.

Remember, we grow snapdragon. Our stock is perfect. Free cultural directions. All orders positively cash or C. O. D. offering it at less than the price of cutting and shipping, especially roses of the Killarney type.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club was held August 9, President Hamilton occupying the chair. The cool evening brought out a fair attendance. I. H. Moss spoke on the recent trip to the western Maryland fruit belt, and moved that a vote of thanks be tendered the Washington County Fruit Growers' Association for the enjoyable trip. The resolution was adopted. The outing committee, through Chairman F. C. Bauer, reported everything in readiness for the annual outing, to be held August 18 at Miller's park. The shore will be open all day. Games will start promptly at 2 p. m. The grounds can be reached by the Bay Shore line to Dundalk, where a short line will convey passengers to the grounds. The River View cars connect with the short line at the park terminal. Tickets will be 50 cents for each member attending, but no charge for members' families.

Various Notes.

A heavy rain storm, accompanied by high winds, passed over the city on the night of August 3 and played havoc with outdoor crops, especially dahlias and asters. In some instances these were flattened down to the ground as if a herd of cattle had roamed over them. At the farms of R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., White Marsh, some parts of the dahlia fields were flooded and many of the plants were washed out entirely; others were practically drowned.

At Mrs. Buettner's store, at Third and Fleet streets, a plate glass window was blown in by the storm.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mason announce the marriage of their daughter, Elizabeth, to J. Ward Perry at the home of the bride's parents, August 4. They will be at home to their friends at Park lane and Harford terrace after August 10.

Stevenson Bros. have planted a good batch of Ophelia and Mrs. Chas. Russell and are cutting some good summer blooms.

The only attendants from this city at the S. A. F. convention will be Mr. and Mrs. R. Vincent, Jr., who left August 11 for Chicago, where they expected to take the florists' special for the west.

Lehr Bros. are sending in some good Double White Killarney to the Leo Niessen Co. and they have been in good demand. W. F. E.

...THE...
Chrysanthemum
By Arthur Herrington
Formerly president Chrysanthemum Society of America.
The most complete and comprehensive work on the cultivation of the chrysanthemum that has yet been published in America. Its scope and character may be gleaned from the list of contents, which comprises chapters on composts; planting; benches, boxes or pots; general cultural details; crown and terminal buds; feeding, its object and application; care of the buds; exhibition and judging; specimen plants, plants in pots; raising from seed and hybridizing; sports; hardy chrysanthemums; chrysanthemums for south and west; insect pests and diseases; classification and selection of varieties for special purposes; history of the chrysanthemum, etc. The book will be welcomed for the lucid, comprehensive, as well as the practical character of its contents. Handsomely illustrated. 168 pages, 5x7 inches. Price 50c postpaid.

VIOLETS

BY GEORGE SALTFORD.

The cultural directions are clear and concise and every detail of successful growing is covered in this neatly printed, freely illustrated pamphlet of 48 pages.

It is said that this book, more than any other agency, has contributed to the wonderful expansion of the Hudson River violet industry the past three years.

ASTERS IN OREGON.

The accompanying illustration was prepared from a photograph of a field of the New Early Comet aster at the establishment of Herbert & Fleishauer, McMinnville, Ore. This variety is the result of six years' development of the original sport. It was in bloom this year July 13, several weeks earlier than any other large-flowering variety. The flowers are of comet type, with long, curled petals. It has been produced in white, three shades of pink and in lavender and purple. This firm originated the Oregon Monarch, H. & F. Late Branching, White Rochester, Red Ridinghood, Pacific Beauty and other successful varieties.

New Early Comet Aster at Herbert & Fleishauer's, McMinnville, Ore.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

The last week has been a most disappointing one to shippers and retailers alike. The transient trade has been practically nothing, and the usual run of funeral work failed to materialize. Many of the Arizona and Nevada towns to which stock is shipped from here are practically deserted, the population having removed to the beach towns, and orders have for this reason been cut in two or canceled entirely. At home the asters, carnations, centaureas and other summer staples have piled up day after day, and the only glut of the season so far has occurred. Vacations are the order of the day, many well known faces being missing temporarily.

Various Notes.

While the usual shipments of summer stock from the L. A. Floral Co. have been light, F. Sperry reports a much larger demand than usual for lilies of the valley, orchids and other choice stock.

Tassano Bros. report progress good on the new building, and Tony says he is going to increase his building program materially next season. Bernard, the youngest brother, has martial stirrings, and may return to Italy, while Tony or Angelo has a northern trip in prospect shortly. The firm supplied the greens for the German song feast at the Shrine auditorium recently.

W. Wern, manager of Wright's Flower Shop, has returned from his automobile trip looking and feeling far better for it.

The Freeman-Lewis Co. reports business good. Richard Grover leaves this week for a two weeks' vacation, and Mr. Freeman is looking forward to a hunting trip shortly.

Morris Goldenson leaves this week for a visit to San Francisco.

The Germain Seed & Plant Co. continues busy in the landscape department, several important contracts being signed up and pending. This firm has the planting of the roof garden at the new Broadway department store. Mr. Meyberg has returned from a short trip and M. L. Germain leaves for a month's vacation this week.

H. W. Turner has been working hard getting the new houses finished before going to the convention at San Francisco. The new roses being tried out this season are an interesting lot.

R. S. Woodruff, of Eugene, Ore., has been visiting here and is likely to prolong his stay.

Howard & Smith report business good in cut flowers at the store.

At the August meeting of the Los Angeles County Horticultural Society, held at Kruckeberg's hall August 3, P. D. Barnhart descanted upon the "Trials of a Gardener" to a large audience. Unfortunately, Mr. Barnhart spoke more of his own trials than in a general sense, and for this reason was not perhaps as convincing as he usually is. Other speakers followed in a lighter vein, and the general view of the society seemed to be that an employer who paid the piper ought to call the tune. Jacob Dieterich is down on the program for next month to tell us what an S. A. F. convention looks like. We look for something a little above the average September 7.

Fred Hills and Mrs. Hills are driving to the convention from Los Angeles. They left August 9.

Paul Staiger says he has never had a better business at this season than this year, the change to the West

Washington location having proved a good one in every way.

Ed. Rust, of South Pasadena, has discontinued his salesyard on West Washington street.

C. L. Washburn, of Bassett & Washburn, Chicago, was a caller last week. He reports having an excellent time here, and is about to return at once. The years seem to sit lightly on the members of this firm, past and present, for I never saw Mr. Washburn looking better. E. B. Washburn, who accompanied his father, has a coat of true California tan, and looks as though his new home suited him also.

H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The market has been devoid of excitement during the last week, but business continues good. The schools will open shortly, and that should help counter trade a little. The better known shops continue to get many orders for conventions and exposition affairs. Sweet peas are scarce, and such as appear are of poor quality; they will soon be out of the market. Carnations also are increasingly scarce, as the old plants are being pulled up, and there is considerable demand, notwithstanding the larger supplies of asters. The latter are good and find a ready market.

Some varieties of outdoor summer stock that have been so plentiful are playing out, but in general there is still an abundance. Coreopsis, gaillardias, gypsophilas, nice mignonette and fine, large scabiosas can be had in any quantity at reasonable prices. Gladioli still hold up fairly well. Just now there is a large cut of Mrs. Francis King, Panama and Niagara, better than the usual average in quality. The weather has been too warm for dahlias, which average a trifle small, but some fine stock is coming from north of the bay, and common varieties are plentiful. The big German gathering here has caused a boom in cornflowers.

Mums are much better and more plentiful, but it will be some time before there will be enough for shipping. In addition to Monrovia, a few Golden Glow are seen, and a few blossoms of October Frost have been brought in, but not enough to sell. Lilies are still much in evidence; this week cold storage giganteums have been added to the offerings. Good roses are scarce, and all offerings clean up readily. There is a good cut of Ophelia, but little of other varieties. A good many nice amaryllis blooms are offered. A few more orchids are appearing, but they are still scarce. Gardenias are in good demand, with supplies fair in both quantity and quality. There is little interest in potted stock. Some fine cockscomb, including odd varieties, is seen, and there are a few primulas, but they are not much in demand.

Various Notes.

The E. W. McLellan Co. has moved into its new store, at 451 Bush street, but it will take some time to put the place in its final shape, as many improvements are to be made, in keeping with a general enlargement of the scope of the company's business. The store is finely lighted from both front and rear, and contains more space than will be needed for the company's own use. Arrangements are accordingly being made to sublet about 2,000 square feet on the ground floor as stalls for the independent growers, who have been selling their stock on the street, with no shelter in wet weather. A large section of the basement will be sublet to the Chinese growers, who bring in many of the asters, mums, sweet peas, etc. The E. W. McLellan Co. will engage in the wholesale shipping business on a larger scale than ever, handling during the coming season, in addition to its own products, the stock of about forty aster and mum growers, and violets from a considerable acreage. Two large iceboxes will be built, more than doubling the former cold storage capacity, and a section will be devoted to a line of general florists' supplies. The basement will be changed to permit the company's motor truck to run in. The company is making large shipments of asters to outside points at present. A J. Charles McCullough, president of the J. C. McCullough Seed Co., Cincinnati, is visiting San Francisco this week.

B. M. Joseph's flower shop is doing some conspicuous advertising, frequently using a corner of the front page of one of the leading morning papers for an announcement such as the following: "Place a welcoming package from Joseph's in your guests' room."

Alex. Mann says the exposition has not helped to overcome the usual midsummer dullness out in the Richmond district. He says he feels no more direct effect from the fair than if he were in some outside town.

The United Flower & Supply Co. has installed a large new icebox in preparation for the chrysanthemum season, and has everything in readiness to begin shipments as soon as the cut is sufficient. S. H. G.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Trade has been better than usual for the first week of August. The presence of a great many tourists, brought to the coast by the San Francisco fair and the many national conventions being held in the large coast cities, has increased the demand for flowers. Local social affairs, except those held in honor of visitors, have been few. The call for funeral work has been good, using up the surplus stock and preventing great waste.

Gladioli, asters, auratum and rubrum lilies, roses, carnations, sweet peas and an assortment of blooms from outdoor plants are the flowers used. Some dahlias are shown, but they have not yet become a prominent feature of the window displays. The reports of business for July, now that figures are available, are even more encouraging than expected.

Various Notes.

The next meeting of the Portland Floral Society will be held August 17 in the Masonic Temple, at 8 o'clock.

Otto Reuble is operating the Keil range of greenhouses, at Woodmere. He has benched the carnations and put in more Sprengeri. He has about 3,000 cyclamens, in 2½-inch and 4-inch pots. He has picked the last of several benches of tomatoes, which he retailed at the public market. Mr. Reuble grows mums, asters, ferns and an assortment of pot plants.

Henry Penn, of Boston, accompanied by Mrs. Penn and a party of friends, recently called on some of the Portland florists.

Andrew Walden was found hard at work finishing the benches of the house he has added to the range bought from Jay Gould last spring. The house was partly filled with carnations and mums, and the other benches were ready for soil. Mr. Walden's houses were well filled with general stock, suitable for the retail trade. He does most of his own work, but finds time to experiment with new varieties of mums. He said he had found business better than he expected.

Often the better halves of growers are not given credit for their efforts, but not so with H. T. Fleishauer. He writes from McMinnville: "From the start, Mrs. Fleishauer has kept close watch of the growing end of the business, and, being fond of flowers, she has given all her time to the study and direction of the work on the asters during the entire season. She is largely responsible for the unusually fine quality of stock produced."

Leo Wiedemann, who is operating a range of greenhouses near Lakewood station of the Oregon City car line, intends to carry over one house of carnations. He says it pays to have carnations ready to cut every day of the year. He grows two houses of Cecile Brunner roses.

S. G. Lubliner, who has a flower store in the Portland hotel building, says the tourist trade is good. Mrs. Lubliner is at the beach and Mr. Lubliner goes down for weekends.

A call at the plant of the Woodmere Floral Co., of which R. L. Scott is manager, found R. W. Slaughter in charge. Frank Williams, who has had charge for several months, left last week for Canada with the intention of enlisting in one of the English regiments. The range presented a greatly improved appearance. The outdoor space has been laid off in plats and beds, with neat graveled walks. While the Woodmere Floral Co. does not cater to the retail trade, it does not consider it a wasted effort to have the beds of stock plants arranged in a pleasing manner. One house is filled with palms and other foliage plants. Several benches of carnations have been set, and some bedding stock and perennials are grown, but the specialty is ferns. Roosevelt, Whitmani, Scottii, Amerpohlii, Teddy, Jr., and a variety of table ferns are grown extensively and find ready sale. Some experimental work has been done, and several new varieties of ferns are in process of development.

Max Smith recently showed a large basket of salpiglossis in a variety of colors.

The Tonseth Floral Co. had some blooms of the scarlet dahlia, Minnie Burgle, on display. This is an attractive flower and is said to be a good keeper.

Mr. Koch, of the Peoples Floral Shop, said there was still some demand for bedding stock. S. W. W.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

There has been no unusual demand for flowers during the last week, but trade seems to be holding up remarkably well for these months. All the large downtown stores report an unusually big business for the month of July.

Carnations and roses are about equal to the demand. Outdoor stock is in its prime, and is moved at a small but profitable price. The demand for ferns and potted stock is just commencing.

Club Meeting.

The Seattle Florists' Club met Tuesday, August 3. A report from the entertainment committee of the S. A. F. stated that members were not coming as a body by way of Seattle, making it impossible for us to entertain them, as first planned. Mr. Sullivan, of the Hollywood Gardens, extended an invitation to all florists and their friends to take a trip to the Hollywood farm on a date to be set later, which was accepted unanimously by the club.

Felix Rosaia suggested that we should have an information bureau for obtaining and disposing of surplus flowers. This would be a convenient thing for the stores as well as the growers, and a committee was appointed to look into the matter.

Various Notes.

The Orpheum Floral Co., Felix Rosaia manager, at Third and Madison, had a grand opening July 31. A splendid decoration of gladioli and various flowers and palms made the store a most attractive place.

The Burns Floral Co. reports favorable business, due principally to the many funerals.

J. Jacobsen, of the Latona Floral Co., has recently taken H. Lindberg as a partner into the business. They are devoting their greenhouses to carnations, poinsettias, chrysanthemums and various pot plants.

A. E. Buxton, of Brighton Beach, had a birthday Sunday, August 1, which was celebrated by some of his florist friends.

Miss Riley, bookkeeper for the Hollywood Gardens, has returned from a week's vacation. Ed. Peterson, of the Hollywood Gardens, is spending his week's vacation on his new ranch, at Kirkland.

Thomas Wiley is busy getting his place in condition so that he can leave for the San Francisco convention August 13.

Among the visitors last week were Miss Matilda Meinhardt, of St. Louis; Sidney H. Bayersdorfer, of Philadelphia; Samuel Brooke, of Portland, Ore.; Mr. Graham, of Hoyt Bros. Co., Spokane; A. J. Clarke, of Portland, Ore., and Frank McCabe, of A. L. Randall Co., Chicago. C. E. M.

Seattle, Wash.—Articles of incorporation have been secured by D. A. Fetta and F. T. Rosaia, under the name of Orpheum Floral Co. Capitalization is $5,000.

St. John's, Newfoundland.—J. G. McNeil, who left for the war abroad November 16, was last heard of when leaving England for the Dardanelles. His place, which comprises about 18,000 feet of glass, is managed by his sister. P. E. Russell is the grower. Over 3,000, nearly ten per cent of the population, have left this city to join the European army.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Vice-president, John Watson, Newark, N. Y.; Secretary, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

Forty-first annual meeting, Milwaukee, Wis., June 22 to 24, 1916.

THE Howard Rose Co., Hemet, Cal., reports that a large part of its mailing of price lists to eastern customers was aboard the mail car destroyed by fire at Yorba, Cal., August 4.

THE Southern Nurserymen's Association will meet in annual session at Hendersonville, N. C., August 25 to 27. The St. John hotel will be headquarters. A full and interesting program is being arranged.

IN spite of the fact that the nursery has been practically on the firing line throughout the last year, V. Lemoine & Son, Nancy, France, issued their peony list as usual in July and it brings word that the annual autumn catalogue will be issued in September.

TEXANS HOLD SUMMER MEETING.

The Texas State Nurserymen's Association held its midsummer meeting at College Station August 4 and 5, during farmers' week, when the conventions of several state agricultural and allied organizations drew a large attendance to the home of the state agricultural college and experiment station.

W. B. Munson, of Denison, president of the association, occupied the chair at the sessions. Prof. H. Ness, of the experiment station, made the opening address. F. B. Paddock, assistant state entomologist, spoke in place of Prof. Wilmon Newell, on "Some Common Insect Pests of the Hackberry and Their Control." Other papers on the program were:

"The Pecan," by Herman Locke, New Braunfels.

"Breeding the Tree to Points," by Charles L. Edwards, of Dallas.

"Relation of the Orchard and Nursery Inspection to the Nurserymen of Texas and the Policies of the Present Administration," by Prof. Edward Ayres, of the state nursery inspection department.

"Lessons to Be Learned from Our Past Season's Trade," by J. R. Mayhew, of Waxahachie.

At the banquet August 3, at which nurserymen, florists and horticulturists of other kinds gathered, John S. Kerr, of Sherman, acted as toastmaster. Murray Ramsey, of Austin, discussed the benefits of a botanical garden to the nurserymen of the state. "Our Wealth of Native Southwestern Trees" was the subject of Will B. Munson. Short talks were given by Eltweed Pomeroy, of Donna, and E. W. Kirkpatrick, of Sherman.

LOW SHRUBS FOR TERRACE.

Can you advise me what shrubs to plant on a terrace? I want something hardy, which grows about two feet high and has berries. The terrace is under some maple trees, the roots of which are quite thick on the surface of the ground, and the soil is not extra good. The trees cast a great deal of shade. I wish to plant something on the terrace to cover the ground.

F. W.—Ore.

Only a few low-growing shrubs can be had which will make a suitable ground cover under the conditions described. I would suggest Euonymus radicans as probably the best ground cover for such a location; that is, if you prefer an evergreen. It has dark,

"A Bird in the Hand"—

You know the adage. Well, a Hydrangea in America is worth several Azaleas in Belgium right now. Of course, the Azaleas may get out of Belgium; we don't know; conditions may change; certainly it is not possible to get anything out of Belgium at present. The war may end next week, but the chances are it won't. Are you going to take that chance? Can you afford to depend altogether on imported forcing stock, when there is plenty of good forcing stock right here at home—"Made in America"—stock that you know you can depend on?

HYDRANGEAS, for example. We offer:

OTAKSA, with 7 to 10 branches, at $25.00 the 100.
" " 5 and 6 " at 20.00 the 100.
" " 4 " at 15.00 the 100.

French Novelties, all the best ones, at $5.00 the 100 addition for the same sizes.

They are all in six-inch pots now, plunged outside, and growing like weeds, rich, deep-green, healthy foliage, and "fat" stems that promise big heads of bloom. They will grow into money for you, and you can cash 'em next Easter.

There won't be any surplus of blooming plants next Spring. Stick a pin in that. We want every progressive florist to get in touch with us.

shiny foliage. The flowers are not attractive, but the fruits are showy. The plant is hardy, withstands drought and succeeds well in the shade. NO QUARANTINE OF CHESTNUT.

Following a public hearing on the subject, the federal horticultural board has determined not to quarantine chestnut nursery stock for the purpose of preventing the distribution of the chestnut bark disease. The board announced that the disease spreads slowly, and opportunity has already existed for several years for the distribution of this disease in small quantities to areas where extensive new plantings of chestnut are being made. Recommendation is made that plantings of chestnut stock be carefully inspected for the presence of the disease.

DENVER, COLO.

The Market.

The market last week was quiet. The supply of stock continues to be too heavy for market requirements, and the oversupply, combined with the small amount of business, has served to bring prices down to a low point. Several stores are retailing carnations at 25 cents per dozen, and roses at 35 cents and 50 cents. Gladioli dominate the market. Some fine dahlias are arriving. All other outdoor flowers are plentiful, but there is not much sale for them. Snapdragons are good. Sweet peas are good and arriving in large quantities. The shipping business holds up well.

Various Notes.

Frederick Jacobson, formerly with the Denver Wholesale Florists' Co., has opened a store at 813 Fifteenth street.

Miss Webb, of the Park Floral Co., is taking a month's vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Kerr, of Houston, Tex., and T. A. Gettys, proprietor of the Alameda Greenhouses, Roswell, N. M., were recent visitors.

John Berry, of Denver, and C. N. Fohn, of Colorado Springs, are on their way to the convention at San Francisco. They will visit Los Angeles, Spokane, Seattle, Portland and other coast towns before returning home.

Samuel Lundy has been spending his vacation in California. R. S.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

The Market.

Business is slow, but is as good as can be expected at this time of year. There is some funeral work all the time and a more or less steady call for palms and ferns.

Various Notes.

George N. Borden is spending two weeks' vacation at Jolly island, Lake Winnipesaukee, N. H.

Wm. P. Pierce had an unusually good week of funeral work. His new designer, Fred Covell, is turning out some beautiful pieces.

Post & Gray are making a great many repairs and improvements at their greenhouses. They report a steady call for palms at their department in the store of the Steiger-Dudgeon Co.

Henry J. Walsh has left his position with S. E. Shaw and returned to Kingston, Mass.

E. M. Davenport, on Pleasant street, has some fine sweet peas and the crop has held on well. W. M. P.

NEW NEPHROLEPIS FERN—JOHN WANAMAKER

In presenting this fern to the trade, we feel confident that it will make a place for itself.

The John Wanamaker fern is a wonderful advance over all plain or wavy frond varieties. The side pinnae of the fronds are very fully undulated, giving the plants a very wavy appearance. It will make as many fronds as Teddy, Jr., plants in 4-inch pots having over sixty fronds. It is a beautifully formed plant, full and compact.

Orders will be filled strictly in rotation.

In 4-inch pot

NO winter-flowering plant of recent introduction has given better satisfaction for the Holiday trade, to the florist and customer alike, than this beautiful begonia when properly grown; it lasts in bloom in the residence for a long time, and gives satisfaction.

We have this season a fine lot of young, thrifty plants to offer (the best we ever had), strong plants from 2½-inch pots ready for 4-inch, at $18.00 per 100, $150.00 per 1000; extra heavy plants in 4-inch pots ready for 6-inch, at $40.00 per 100.

These will make fine specimens for the Christmas Trade.

What plant can you grow that gives you better and quicker returns?

The Market.

The demand for stock varies greatly. One day it is brisk; the next day it is slow. The supply is large enough to take care easily of present needs. The prices do not show any substantial advance over those of a fortnight ago.

Asters are plentiful. The season for early ones is about over and the first of the later ones are arriving. The choice blooms are limited in quantity and sell readily. The poorer grades move slowly. Gladioli continue to come in strongly, but are not quite as good as they were. Roses have decreased somewhat in supply, but are still plentiful. Lilies are excellent and may be had in good quantities. Other offerings include snapdragons, fine rubrum lilies, pond lilies and dahlias.

Various Notes.

Competition among the florists exhibiting at the Carthage fair this week is keen. The exhibitors are Ben George, Henry Schwarz and Fred Backmeier.

C. E. Critchell has a hedge of buddleias now in full bloom at his home in Rose Hill. The spikes of flowers are long and fragrant and are attracting considerable attention.

P. J. Olinger is spending a fortnight in Evanston, Aurora and Chicago, Ill.

Gus Kohlbrand, of E. C. Amling Co., Chicago, was in this city recently, visiting his mother.

L. Davis, of P. J. Olinger's place, has returned from Memphis, Tenn., where he went to visit his daughter.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange has been handling some excellent rubrum lilies.

Among recent visitors were Henry Lodder, of Hamilton, O., and Joseph Hill, of Richmond, Ind. C. H. H.

Cincinnati, O.—In a mysterious $250,000 land deal, in which over 300 acres between Madisonville and the Little Miami river have been purchased by real estate brokers, J. F. Fahrenkamp received $24,000 for about forty acres.

Evanston, Wyo.—The business of Louis B. Westholder is assuming large proportions. He has two main stores and eight branch stores along the Union Pacific route through Wyoming, and contemplates the addition of a branch store at Cheyenne and another at Laramie.

Port Huron, Mich.—The greenhouses of Matthias Ullenbruch were badly flooded during the heavy storm of August 3. The largest house was inundated to a depth of four feet, and fields containing 10,000 asters and 15,000 carnations were flooded. The damage was estimated at $500.

Detroit, Mich.—The Miller Floral Co. was victimized August 2 by an operator of the worthless check scheme. In the afternoon they received a telephone order for a $4 bouquet, the speaker saying he would call later for the flowers. Two hours later, a man about 38 years old called and took the flowers, tendering a check for $22.50. He was given the bouquet and $5 in change, and told to return later for the remainder. But he never came back. The check was found to be worthless.

Bailey's Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture.

First, second and third volumes now ready. Remaining volumes will be issued as soon as possible. The following are a few of the features to be found in this new work:

KEY TO IDENTIFICATION OF PLANTS.

This is a device to enable one to find the name of a plant. The name thus found is quickly referred to under its alphabetical location, where full information will be found in regard to it.

SYNOPSIS OF PLANT KINGDOM.

This is one of the most important features of the new edition. It constitutes a general running account of the classes, orders and groups of plants, with a brief sketch or characterization of 215 of the leading families comprising those that yield practically all the cultivated plants. These family descriptions give the botanical characters and the number of genera and species and the ranges.

THE GLOSSARY.

This is an analysis of all technical terms that are used in the work and in similar works.

TRANSLATION AND PRONUNCIATION OF LATIN NAMES.

In Volume I is inserted a list of between 2,000 and 3,000 Latin words used as species—names of plants, giving the English equivalent or translation and the pronounciation.

ILLUSTRATIONS.

There are 24 colored plates, 96 full-page sepia halftones, and more than 4,000 engravings which serve as guides in the text.

CLASS ARTICLES.

Special effort has been made to secure the best cultural advices for the plants requiring peculiar or particular handling.

GENERAL INDEX.

The final volume will contain a complete index to the entire work, enabling the reader to locate volume and page of any subject he has in mind. With the Index, Key, Synopsis and alphabetical arrangement of the Cyclopedia, any reasonable question asked by the consultant will receive a ready answer.

This work consists of six large quarto volumes, more than 3,600 pages, 500 collaborators, approximately 4,000 genera, 15,000 species and 40,000 plant names. Price, $6.00 per volume; $36.00 per set. Can be paid for one volume at a time.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

The Market.

After a week of continual rain, the sun shone Saturday, August 7, and the weather has been fine since.

The beginning of the week was dull and stock plentiful, but at the close several large funerals cleaned up the market, especially on good roses.

Carnation planting, which has been delayed by the wet weather, is going ahead again, and the benches are nearly filled.

Local asters, so far, are of poor quality, while carnations are practically off the market. Rubrum lilies and gladioli are displayed in quantity.

Various Notes.

Henry Smith was busy Saturday, August 7, getting out a large blanket of sweet peas.

Alfred Hannah & Sons' window last week showed a fine collection of assorted gladioli.

Arthur F. Crabb was busy August 7 with a large funeral order, for the funeral of a prominent citizen of Greenville, Mich.

None of the local florists are going to attend the S. A. F. convention this year.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Early in the week business showed an improvement, owing to the large quantity of funeral work. The recent rains and wind storms have been partly to blame for the particularly quiet time since then. The market is well stocked and in some flowers there is a glut. However, this week's heavy rain storms have slackened up outdoor stock considerably, thus giving greenhouse flowers a chance to be cleared. There have been large shipments of Sunburst, Ophelia, Mrs. Ward, Maryland, Hadley and Milady, all of which have sold fairly well, considering the time of year. The red varieties have hung fire and the same can be said of carnations, which are much smaller and poorer in quality. Sweet peas are fairly plentiful, but a scarcity of pink varieties is noticed. A large quantity of lavender is on the market. Easter lilies are slackening up a little. Valley is scarce, but there is no particular call for it. There is a deluge of asters in all colors, but they move pretty well. Gladioli are plentiful and sell readily. Candytuft, phlox, mignonette and coreopsis are plentiful and are being used to good advantage in basket work.

Various Notes.

Miss Carrie Huitweiller, of J. B. Keller Sons, is enjoying a well earned vacation in the Adirondacks.

Harry E. Bates was in Buffalo last week on a business trip. Arthur Elder is also attending to business in Geneva, Elmira, Utica and Binghamton.

Among the recent visitors to our city were E. H. Bishop, of D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich., and H. F. Maharg, of the Wick Narrow Fabric Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

In a recent wind storm in Irondequoit, N. Y., three large apple trees belonging to C. W. Curtis were blown down, causing the loss of a large quantity of fruit.

Milton Selinka, of Schloss Bros., New York, was in town last week and was successful in landing several good orders.

The Rochester Floral Co. is showing a large assortment of sizes of hardy hydrangeas in front of the store. Business with this firm is improving.

We are glad to say that Mrs. E. P. Wilson is getting along nicely. The broken bone in her arm is mending satisfactorily, as was shown by an X-ray examination.

Dreer's Palms

FULL LINE OF DESIRABLE SIZES

OUR SUPPLIES not affected by WAR BLOCKADE

¶ WHILE there is a general shortage of Palms, particularly of Kentias, due to the fact that practically no supplies were received by such growers as depend almost exclusively on imports from Belgium, and from present appearance it is not likely that the situation will be changed this fall, we are pleased to state our supplies have not been affected by this embargo, and we are carrying our usual full line of sizes of the usual Dreer quality; but as the general scarcity is certain to create an increased demand, we recommend you to cover your requirements as early as possible. If you are not ready to accept immediate delivery, let us book your order and we will set aside and reserve your stock and make delivery at any time between now and October 15.

With the summer here and a scarcity of plants, most of the florists are making window displays of ferns and palms. Salter Bros. have placed small yellow coleus around the edge of the window in a peculiarly effective way. Geo. T. Boucher's window is unique in its arrangement. On the banks of a tiny rivulet lie a fallen tree and a stump. Beside these are large clusters of water rushes and growing ferns.

Harry E. Bates, chairman of the picnic committee, states that the florists' picnic will take place August 19, at Salmon's grove. There will be refreshments, sports and games, and a good time is promised. A good attendance is expected.

Julius Berg, of Lion & Co., New York, was in town last week, showing an elegant display of new fall samples of chiffons. He reports business good.

The Vick & Hill Co. is shipping in a good quantity of annuals. Business conditions make the sales somewhat slow, though the quality is fine.

Max the Florist, on Lyell avenue, is doing a fair amount of business in that part of the city.

H. E. Wilson had an exceedingly busy day with funeral work on Saturday, thereby making a good clearance for the week. H. J. H.

Bucyrus, O.—F. J. Norton is remodeling his range on West Charles street.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

After the wettest July on record, August started in with downpours that have beaten down, damaged and destroyed all kinds of growing stock. Several growers report fields of asters ruined, with losses mounting into the hundreds. Hundreds of acres of corn, beans and other crops have been destroyed.

Business has been far below the normal, even for this dull season of the year. Funeral orders are the only activities that give the retailers any excuse for keeping open shop. Gladioli this year are one of the leaders, vying with asters in demand. The wonderful development of gladiolus spikes during the last two or three seasons has won a large public appreciation.

Various Notes.

A new flower store, to be known as The Strand, is opening at 89 Washington street.

Max Viller, of Johnston Bros., has been spending a few days' vacation at Block island.

W. W. Thompson, of West Hartford, Conn., with his family, is spending August at the seashore near Westerly, R. I.

Edward O'Brien and family are spending a three weeks' vacation with relatives in Maine.

The Carmichael Orchards, at Shannock, are cutting large numbers of fine gladioli, which they are shipping to the Boston and New York markets. They have had several large decorations at Narragansett Pier and Watch Hill recently.

The greenhouses of the R. A. Buxton estate at Pascoag were sold at auction August 4 to Edward F. Lovejoy, for $1,000.

Patrick Reynolds, landscape gardener, has just completed a fine piece of work at the estate of Mrs. Trowbridge, at Franklin.

William E. Chappell, secretary of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island, has returned from his southern trip much improved in health.

Charles Hunt is giving his range of houses on Burnside street a complete overhauling.

Aaron Cohen, of the Joseph Koppelman staff, has gone on a vacation trip to Newport and Block island.

Joseph Koppelman has just completed benching 40,000 carnations in four of his houses at East Providence.

Miss Annie Peckham, of Carpenter street, is on a vacation trip with relatives in Maine.

Thomas Curley, whose serious illness was noted last week, is at a private hospital in a critical condition.

Frederick Deitz has left for an automobile trip to New York and Newark.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

PIPING A PROPAGATING HOUSE.

Please let me know how much hot water piping will be needed for a side house, 7x52, on the north side of a carnation house. We intend to use it for a propagating house. V. B. W.—Ia.

To heat the propagating house to 60 degrees, use a 2-inch flow pipe and two 1¼-inch returns, unless considerable bottom heat is desired, in which case an additional return should be put in. The flow pipe should be on the back wall and the others under the benches on the other side.

The Market.

Business last week was quiet. Carnations are about done for. Sweet peas are in abundance. We are receiving a few asters, but they are small and short of stem because of cold weather and heavy rains. Gladioli and roses are plentiful.

Various Notes.

John P. Brown was busy last week filling funeral orders, but reports general business quiet. James Cusick, of this firm, is spending his vacation at Falls, Pa.

C. W. Baldwin, who is spending the summer at Camp Wyo-Wanna, White Ferry, Pa., on the Susquehanna, says that fishing on the river has started again, after high water, and he is looking forward to good catches.

The Most Modern Greenhouse Heating System in St. Louis County

W. J. PILCHER

KIRKWOOD, MO., May 22, 1915.

Kroeschell Bros. Co.,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:-

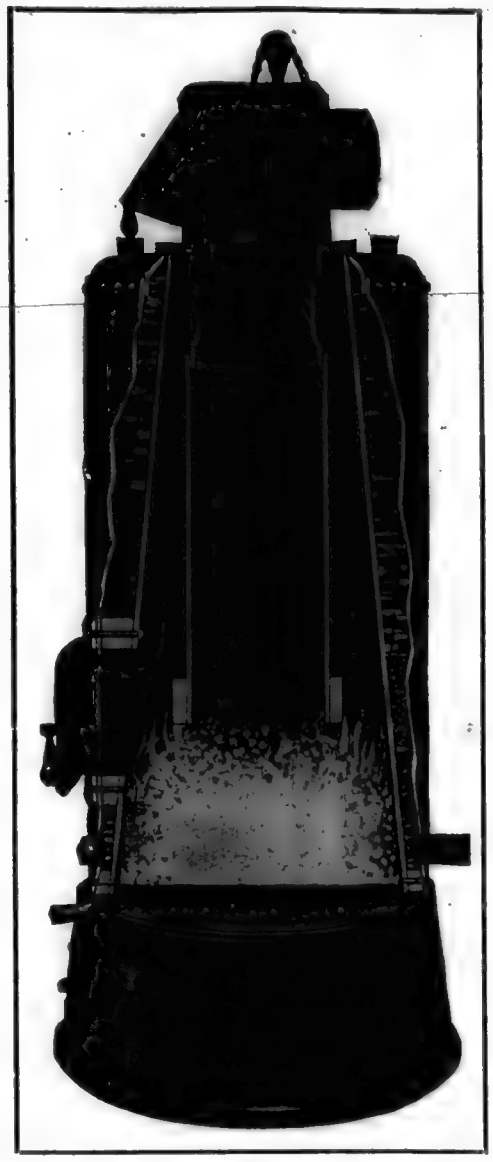
Now that the firing season is over, and after a long, cold winter, the coldest night being 6° below zero, I want to say I am well pleased with the No. 46 WATER TUBE STEAM BOILER and the No. 14 hot water boiler; they are doing all you claim for them and more.

The No. 14 hot water boiler heating that large house to 62° with the greatest ease in zero weather without the help of the steam boiler.

THIS STEAM BOILER I THINK IS A WONDER, a quick steamer and holds the steam, the easiest boiler in the world to clean and to keep clean. The double steam trap system is working fine, keeping all the steam lines well drained.

But the threaded boiler tube piping system is the winner; the rapid circulation and even temperature obtained from this system is wonderful.

After being told repeatedly by other growers that roses could not be grown with hot water heat, we are getting the best kind of results not only from the heating systems and boilers, but also from the roses.



Yours very truly,

W. J. Pilcher

are built to fill the requirements of the florist having 3000 sq. ft. or less of glass. Constructed of the best quality steel, strongly riveted and calked, with no cast-iron sections, they will give the most perfect service possible.

With a magazine holding enough coal for twelve hours or longer they keep an even and continuous fire for that length of time, requiring little or no attention.

For the man who does his own firing they are ideal, permitting him to enjoy a full night's rest without worry as to the condition of his fire.

BARNYARD MANURE IS NOT A COMPLETE FERTILIZER

being deficient in Phosphoric Acid, hence it is advisable to use phosphoric acid in some form in which it would be most effective to the plant. Get your soil in proper condition for the flowering crops you wish to produce.

RADIUM MAKES THINGS GROW

What Radium Fertilizer will do for your grass, flowers, shrubbery, etc., in hot weather, is proven in above picture, where increased growth and foliage amounting to at least 25% was secured. Give it a trial—plants are living things and need food while they are growing.

RADIUM

FERTILIZER (Plant Food)

Contains nitrogen, phosphoric acid, potash and radium. One lb. will fertilize 80 sq. ft., or a plot 10x8 ft. Sold by dealers, or prepaid east of Mississippi River (west, add 5c lb.), as follows:

12-oz. can,	$0.25	5-lb. can,	$1.00
2-lb. can,	.50	10-lb. can,	1.75

Gentlemen:—Your valued letter received regarding improvements in your Bench Forms. We are not in need at present, as we are not building any this year.

The Benches made from your forms in 1910 are just the same as when first made, and stay just where you put them.

They have saved us $300.00 per year in repairs, and will continue to do this until we are obliged to build new houses above them.

They are all you claim for them in every way. Yours very truly, EVENDEN BROS.

Any information gladly given.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

The storm of Tuesday, August 3, seems to have done but little damage in and around Washington except to the aster crop, although reports from places farther south tell of the destruction of large quantities of outdoor stock. Washington could well do without more than fifty per cent of the asters now coming into the market. This condition even exists with carnations so poor that no one wants them and dahlias scarce by reason of the extreme heat.

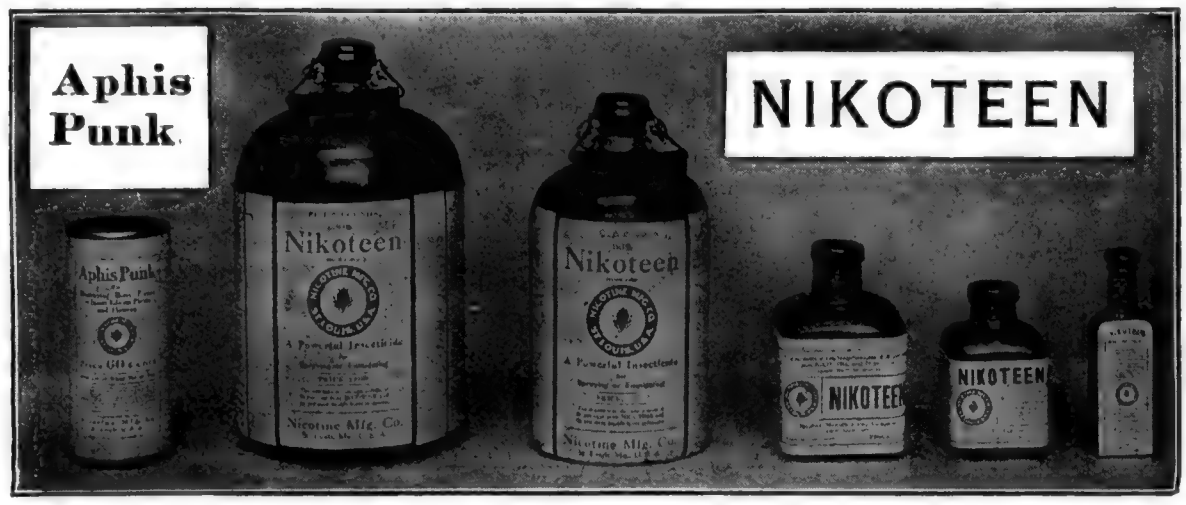
Prior to last week it had been almost impossible to move orchids, gardenias, valley and the better grades of American Beauty roses, but funerals have created a demand for these which it was found extremely difficult to meet. Valley sold well, and several large orders were telegraphed to northern producers. Good white roses have been in demand, but there are thousands of inferior quality and in colors that cannot be disposed of at any price. The growers are beginning to cut the new crop, and much of the stock is with such short stems as to be absolutely worthless. Enormous quantities of gladioli find their way into the market.

Various Notes.

The most important event of the week, calling for exceptionally large quantities of high-grade flowers, was the funeral of the late William P. Boardman. There were more than fifty high-class designs furnished by the local florists. J. H. Small & Sons furnished more than half, and had charge of the flowers both at the house and the cemetery. William F. Gude, as vice-president of the Emergency hospital and successor of Mr. Boardman to the presidency, was one of the honorary pallbearers.

Among those scheduled to attend the convention of the S. A. F. are the following Washingtonians: Mr. and Mrs. William F. Gude and their two children, Amelia and Louis Gude; Theodore Diedrich, and Mr. and Mrs. Christian Schellhorn. Adolph Gude, Jr., is already in California and will join the party on its arrival.

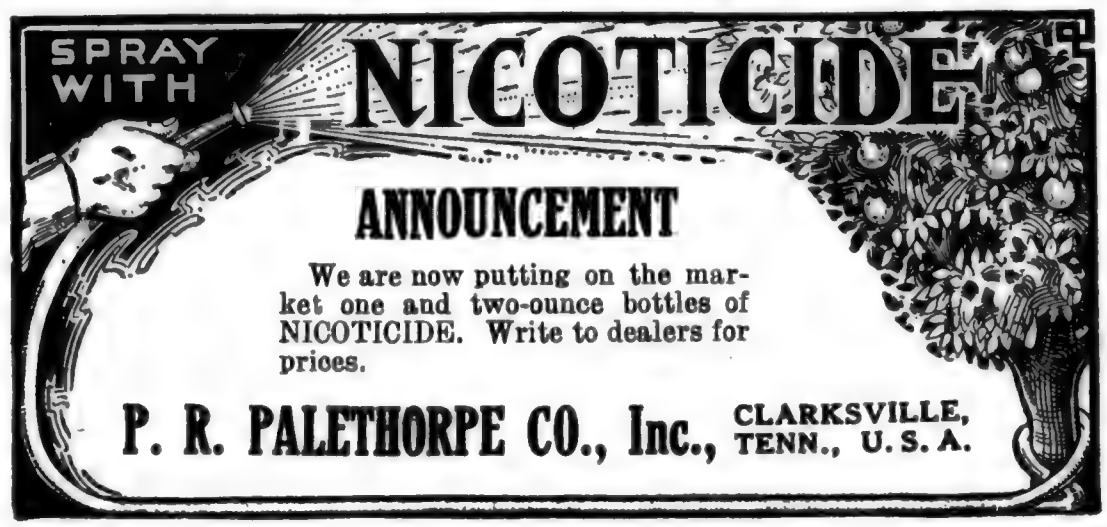
Frank Good, manager of the F street store of F. H. Kramer, had an unpleasant experience during the storm of August 3, when he and a friend were driven almost to Colonial Beach in a 30-foot cabin launch. Just before the storm broke, a piece of rope became tangled in the propeller, and later when the 40-mile wind hit them, the steering gear jammed and the chain broke. They spent the greater part of the night drifting along, and next day were towed back to Washington.



James Dalgleish, with J. H. Small & Sons, accompanied by Mrs. Dalgleish and their daughter, is spending a month's vacation in Arlington, Vt. Ed. Teague, also with J. H. Small & Sons, is at Atlantic City for a three weeks' stay.

Mrs. Beatrice Moss is spending a two weeks' vacation at Atlantic City, N. J. Mrs. Moss is connected with the store of F. H. Kramer, on F street, northwest.

Gude Bros. Co. has just finished setting out at the Mount Olivet greenhouses 50,000 fine carnation plants, which were started outdoors at the Anacostia range.



Robert F. Rose, foreign trade adviser of the State Department, who has worked for the release of the large quantities of Belgian plants desired by the importers of this country, has resigned his position to engage in private business. C. L. L.

WHAT THRIP JUICE No. 2 WILL DO

CHRYSANTHEMUMS ON LONG ISLAND.

Mr. Benjamin Hammond, Beacon, N. Y. Woodside, L. I., N. Y., Oct. 20, 1913.

Dear Sir: I find your Thrip Juice No. 2 a good thing to use on Chrysanthemums. Kindly send bill for the last gallon shipped, and oblige.

Yours respectfully. (Signed) VICTOR S. DORVAL SONS.

THRIPS ON CARNATIONS.

Ed. American Florist:

Please advise how to remedy the trouble affecting Carnation buds mailed under separate cover. Kansas. F. W. F.

The Carnation buds are badly infested with Thrips. Upon opening up two or three of the buds we found them alive with these pests. Thrips are one of the worst enemies that Carnation growers have to deal with, and the only way to fight them successfully is to get after them by spraying the plants regularly with the Nicotine preparations as soon as they are planted into the houses from the field and keep at it continually until weather conditions will allow for fumigation. For stubborn cases we spray with HAMMOND'S THRIP JUICE No. 2, applied as per directions on the cans. This is an oily substance and will cause the foliage of the plants to look a lighter green, but we have never found it to harm the foliage at all. C. W. JOHNSON.

THRIP JUICE NO. 2 ON ROSES.

Hopeland Estate, Staatsburg, N. Y., Dec. 20, 1913.

Hammond's Paint & Slug Shot Works, Beacon, N. Y.

Dear Sirs: I have used your THRIP JUICE No. 2 on outdoor Roses, also Roses indoors, as well as Bay Trees and other hard-wooded stock, and can say it is a most efficient remedy for Scale, Mealy Bug and Thrips. Very truly yours,
(Signed) CHAS. HARMAN, Supt.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 7, 1914.

Col. Wm. Sharp, for more than twenty-five years grower for Samuel Murray, says: "I have found THRIP JUICE No. 2 very effective for White Scale on Cattleyas and variegated Pineapples, Brown Scale on Ficus and Palms.

While several applications may be necessary, it is cheaper in the end than Nicotine and far more effective.

Our farmer finds it a cure for the Curculio on Plums. Send along five gallons as before." W. M.

Springfield, Ohio, Feb. 17, 1915.

Schmidt & Botley Co. endorse THRIP JUICE No. 2 for killing the White Fly. They believe in prevention, and took steps at once to destroy it.

Gustav Schneider says he uses THRIP JUICE No. 2 regularly, more as a preventive, and never had a finer lot of Chrysanthemums than last season. At one time the plants were affected with rust, but one or two sprayings brought them around.

Charlotte, N. C., Nov. 14, 1914.

Robert Lockerbie, many years with the Robt. Craig Co., and now grower for the Charlotte Cut Flower Co., says he has used all makes of Insecticides and is now using THRIP JUICE No. 2 for Thrips on Chrysanthemums and Carnations. The dilution of one to forty is proper. Sprayed on cloudy days, every week or ten days, left on foliage for 48 hours, it never fails to kill the insect and the slight discoloration on foliage is offset by its usefulness. W. M.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

The market is flooded with gladioli, asters and lilies. Some of the stock is extra choice, but the greater part of it is only of ordinary grade. Valley is scarce, and pink and white Japanese lilies are sufficient for the demand. Carnations have almost passed. Roses are good for this season. The colors are good and the stems are of medium length. Many of the roses are from new stock and free from mildew.

Various Notes.

A visit to the place of C. Knuth disclosed the usual spick-and-span order. His place, fronting on Euclid avenue, is seen by thousands of commuters of the suburban car line. Mr. Knuth grows geraniums, mums and Boston ferns.

The nomination of officers at the August meeting of the Cleveland Florists' Club resulted as follows: President, Herbert Bate; first vice-president, Albert Lindgren; second vice-president, Claude C. Tyler; secretary, Frank A. Friedley, and treasurer, George W. Smith. There being no opposition for any of the offices, the nomination amounts to an election, the formalities of which will be gone through with at the regular meeting September 13.

Snapdragons in the fields are almost a total loss this year. Rust is the enemy, which has completely devasted some fields, and only a few have been fortunate enough to escape. Last year rust appeared in only a few places, but this year it is general. Reports from every section of the city tell of ruined snapdragons.

Visitors last week were Walter E. Cook, of Stumpp & Walter Co., New York, on his way to the coast, and Ben Feldner, of the Roseville Pottery Co., Zanesville, O.

Harry B. Jones, of the Jones-Russell Co., has returned from a quiet week spent at Girard, Pa.

Timothy Smith, of Smith & Fetters Co., with his wife and family, has gone to Portage lakes for a two weeks' vacation.

H. P. Knoble, Herbert Bate and Frank Friedley made a flying trip to Buffalo last week. They saw Postmaster William F. Kasting, and S. A. Anderson, who is first a fisherman and second a florist. F. A. F.

Herbert Bate, chairman, has notified the executive committee that the following men have accepted the appointment to serve as judges for the Cleveland flower show, November 10 to 14: J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.; Emil Buettner, Park Ridge, Ill.; Michael Bloy, Detroit, Mich.; Eugene Dailledouze, Brooklyn, N. Y.; John H. Dunlop, Toronto, Canada; Wm. Nicholson, Framingham, Mass. The final premium list is in process of last revision and is expected to be ready for mailing early in September.

Prairie du Chien, Wis.—C. C. Case is building a greenhouse and expects to embark in the florists' business shortly.

Eben Junction, Mich.—H. B. Elliott has been experimenting with gladioli and finds they can be grown here to perfection. So he plans to make a specialty of them in addition to his nursery business.

North Shore Exhibition.

The exhibition held August 4 and 5, under the auspices of the North Shore Horticultural Society, on the Winthrop estate, was a great success in number of exhibits and quality of flowers, although crowds were prevented from attending because of the drenching rain, which continued throughout the greater part of both days.

There were many amateur exhibitors, and the displays made by gardeners on local estates showed the artistic ability of the exhibitors. There was keen competition for the society's silver medal for the best dinner table decoration, which was won by the president, Mrs. W. Scott Fitz.

Among the notable exhibits by professionals was the large exhibit of dahlias by J. K. Alexander, East Bridgewater, Mass., which won the society's first prize for the largest and best exhibit. B. Hammond Tracy, of Wenham, Mass., made an artistic display of gladioli, winning the silver medal. Non-competitive exhibits worthy of special mention were the display of phlox by the Cherry Hill Nurseries, West Newbury, Mass., the exhibit of phlox and hardy perennials by R. & J. Farquhar & Co., Boston, Mass., and the display of gladioli by J. K. Alexander, East Bridgewater, Mass.

A good deal of the credit for the success of the show, so far as good exhibits are concerned, is due the secretary, Thomas A. D. Howden, Prides Crossing, Mass. J. H. A.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

For the fall exhibition of the American Rose Society, to be held in Cleveland November 10 to 14, the following prizes have been offered:

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., for the best fifty blooms of Hadley roses, $25.
Lamborn Floral Co., Alliance, O., silver cup.
Vaughan's Seed Store, New York and Chicago, silver medal.
W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, $10.
Robert Scott & Son, Sharon Hill, Pa., for fifty Killarney Brilliant, $25.

These prizes are specials, in addition to those of the regular list, and in all probability there will be a number more added. There is much interest arising in this exhibition, and there are two prizes to be offered for the best unnamed rose that will be placed upon exhibition.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

The weather for the last two weeks was unsettled and a great deal of rain fell. There were a few hot days. Business is good for midsummer, and there is considerable funeral work. Gladioli are the principal flowers and great quantities of all colors are being received. The prices range low. Asters are plentiful and of excellent quality. Carnations are small and pale in color. All kinds of roses, with the exception of Russell and Key, are poor and show the effects of warm weather. There are some good Killarney Brilliant and Maryland. Sweet peas are poor. They were spoiled by the frequent heavy rains. Needless to say, they are cheap. Harrisii lilies are abundant and are almost a drug on the market. Speciosum lilies are plentiful and used a great deal in funeral work. Gloxinias, hydrangeas and Boston ferns are sold in large quantities for use on verandas, in sick rooms and in the homes.

Various Notes.

W. J. Palmer & Son are quite busy this week with funeral work, and the entire force is kept hustling. William Palmer is in Canada on his vacation.

J. B. Wiese has returned from his automobile trip through the Berkshires. He is growing some excellent calendulas, which he is wholesaling to the downtown trade. John Wiese is spending his vacation in Salamanca.

The Lenox Flower Shop had a good display of hydrangeas and gloxinias last week. Vases filled with gladioli were effectively arranged among the flowering plants.

L. H. Neubeck is producing some good Americas and other pink varieties of gladioli at his greenhouses at Williamsville. At the Main street store, he is showing some excellent Japanese lilies grown in tubs.

John Myers is having a two weeks' vacation.

At the branch store of W. J. Palmer & Son, some choice tritomas are being shown. The summer carnations are unusually large and good in color.

J. Benson Stafford has a neat win-

"We Understand Our Business Thoroughly"

Our thorough knowledge of the finer points in greenhouse construction enables us to save that much on the cost of our output—and we are giving you the benefit of this saving. We have always given 100 cents value for every dollar—sometimes more. As we have never yet had any complaints, we lose nothing by guaranteeing our material against defects.

Willens Personal Service

Every bit of the work is personally directed by one of the Willens'. If we do the erecting, one of the Willens' personally supervises the work. Careful attention is paid to the minutest details, each of which is conducive to longer life and better greenhouse service. If you have never tried us or are dissatisfied in your past dealings with others, begin now to benefit by our service and material. Write us today.

What They Say:

Willens Construction Co.,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen: The greenhouses you built for me last summer and with which I am so well pleased, received several severe tests within the last few days. During one cold spell of 30 degrees below, I easily maintained the desired temperature in the greenhouses.

I am well pleased with the material and also your pleasant business methods and am convinced that I have the finest greenhouses in Nebraska.

Yours very truly,
L. Buckendorf,

dow display of a huge vase of flaming red gladioli, tied with an elaborate bow of blue ribbon. The vase stands on a pedestal, with hydrangea plants grouped artistically on one side.

Edward Sceery, of Paterson, N. J., stopped here on his way home from the San Francisco exposition.

Miss Tillie Stroh reports business quiet for August.

Edward Slattery spent a few days in Cleveland recently, on a pleasure trip.

The Colonial Flower Shop last week showed some charming combinations of wild flowers. Lavender monarda, or bee-balm, blended with Queen Anne's lace, made an effective vase. Helianthus, arranged in an oblong Italian jar, gave a bright color effect and brought out strong contrasts.

Walter Lenie is spending two weeks at Conesus lake.

H. P. Knoble, of Cleveland, was a visitor here last week on business regarding the Cleveland flower show, to be held November 10 to 14. It is expected there will be a large attendance from Buffalo and Rochester. Much interest in the bowling contest is looked for.

The Allen Flower Shop, Wm. Norman, proprietor, on the corner of Allen and Franklin streets, is a new flower store. It is neatly furnished. The woodwork is done in old ivory and a splendid refrigerator has been installed. E. C. A.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.

Business last week had the summer aspect, though conditions here are different from those of other cities. There are a great number of visitors, who are good flower buyers. The better grade of stock finds a good demand. A noticeable call for blooming plants is unsatisfied. There was a large amount of funeral work last week.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., is showing some fine phlox at one of the stores on the Garden Pier, in addition to the permanent exhibit. On seeing the pier, the first thing that greets the eye of the observer is the aquatic garden, where water lilies are in bloom. These flowers are wonderful. Farther back on the pier cannas, geraniums and Lilium auratum beds are in full bloom, Thousands of visitors flock to the gardens night and day to enjoy the wonderful place. The company is to be congratulated on the dignified advertisements used in this exhibit, which is one of the leading attractions of the boardwalk.

Some fine asters were seen in the store of Edwards Floral Hall Co. The asters were the company's own cut. H. C. H.

Iron Frame house at South Vineland, N. J., with the rafters 12 feet apart and glazed with 20-inch glass.

Build Your Greenhouse Now

THERE are several plain, common-sense reasons why now is the time of times to build.

Materials are as cheap now as they will be in many a year to come.

Every day the war lasts means a larger and larger demand from Europe for our building materials, as soon as the war ends.

STEEL AND IRON

Germany, the greatest iron and steel producing country of Europe, will not be able to supply the demand. She will not have able-bodied men enough to carry on the work. So Germany must turn to us for her main supply for some time to come.

Germany's present enemies will be slow to turn to Germany for their supply, even when she is able to furnish it. For a long time after the war is over, they will still continue to be enemies, which means such countries will buy largely from the United States.

All of which means that the demand will be so great that prices on all iron and steel will, without a doubt, go higher and higher for several years to come.

GLASS

Glass is also bound to be higher, because practically all of the Belgian glass factories have been completely destroyed. If it's true that 40% of the world's glass supply has been coming from Belgium, then, with this supply entirely cut off, there will be a big demand for our glass, which is certain sure to make prices higher.

GOOD TIMES ARE HERE

The big business men of our country say that "never before in its history has there been such prosperity as is now on the eve of starting."

So order your greenhouse as soon as possible. Contract for it before prices go higher.

Send for our commercial catalogue.

Lansing, Mich.—An indefinite charge made by the board of park and cemetery commissioners, to the effect that local florists had overcharged and collected for work not done, was answered by a resolution published in the State Journal by Gordon B. Smith, G. Fred Bauerle, William Krieger, the Lansing Floral Co., G. H. Riley and J. A. Bissinger, denying the charges, which the board refused to make specific, and pronouncing the action of the board hasty and unwise.

In addition to specializing in carnations, chrysanthemums, roses, sweet peas and ferns, he said the firm produces three tons of lettuce annually, and manufactures porch and window boxes and hanging baskets, which have helped build the business.

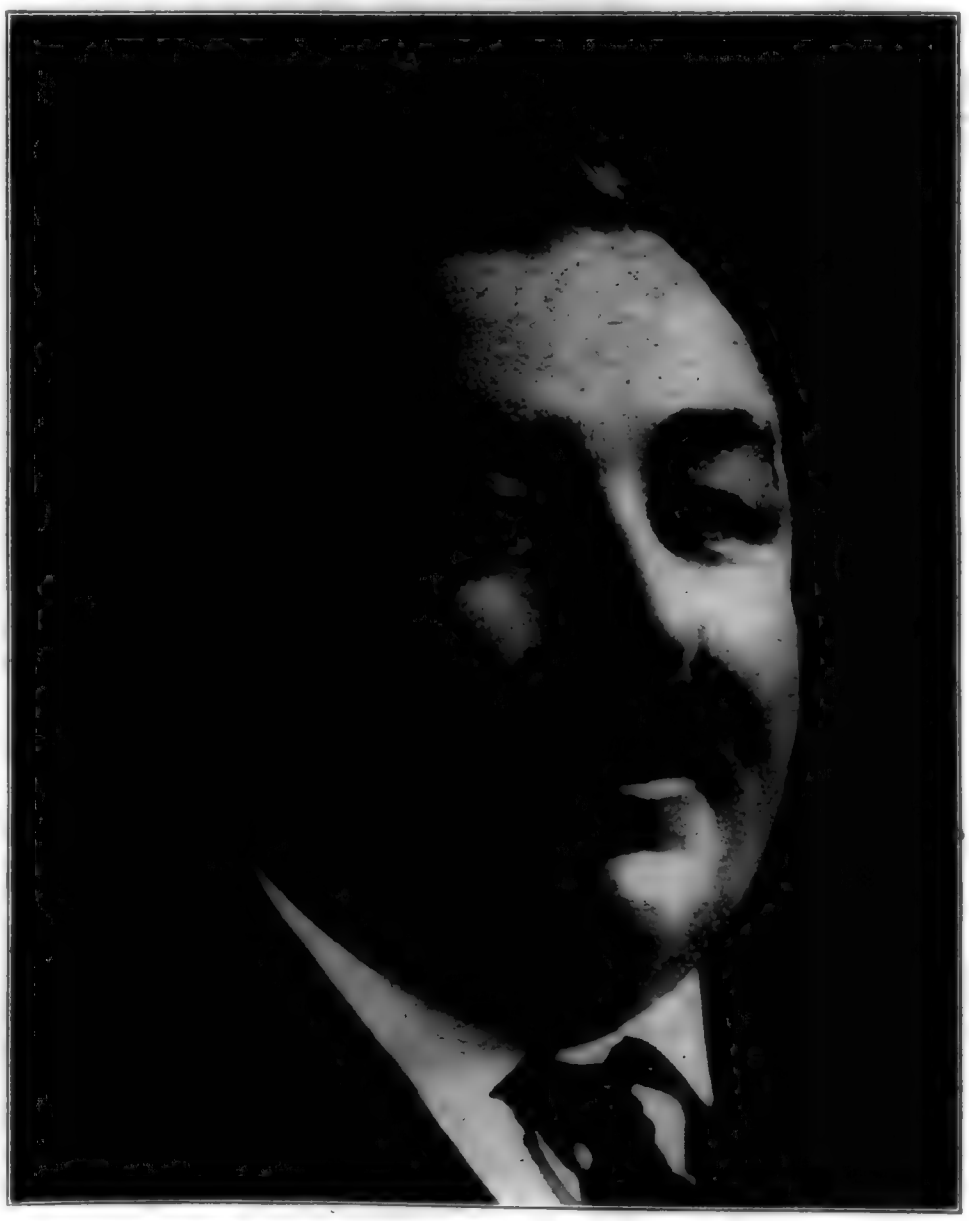
THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

'FRISCO FLORISTS' ROYAL WELCOME

This is Gala week in the history of the Society of American Florists and marks the realization of the long cherished idea of a convention on the Pacific Coast. The Society many times has been received with open-handed hospitality, but never has it had a warmer welcome than at San Francisco. Too much to see and to do to do business.

THIS is the grand holiday for the Society of American Florists. It is a milestone in the affairs of the organization itself, marking its first excursion west of the Missouri, and it is an adventure for most of the eastern members who are in San Francisco this week; few of them have visited the Pacific coast before. And as for the Pacific coast members, well, they simply have laid aside their business and personal affairs and are devoting the week to the entertainment of their guests.

San Francisco has long looked forward to this week, having sent a delegation of its best to Chicago in 1912 to extend the invitation, and now that its desire is realized nothing that will add to the enjoyment of the visitors is being left undone.



OFFICERS ELECTED

"Pooh-Bah Dan" MacRorie.
("Lord High Everything Else" of the San Francisco Convention.)

A Success.

Of course the San Francisco convention is unlike most of its predecessors, but that was to have been expected. Comparatively few of the old-timers, the regulars, the wheel-horses, are present. Instead, the attendance is made up of new men—and their wives—people who have not attended many national conventions. They are making an acquaintance with the S. A. F. and with florists from a distance that cannot but be mutually beneficial. The success of a convention depends, not on its size, but on what those who are there are able to get out of it—and certainly no convention in this trade ever gave more in new and pleasant experiences, in strange and beautiful sights, or in the broadening influence of travel and the hearty welcome of a people who are glad to have the chance to play the part of host.

The Attendance.

According to the last annual report, the S. A. F. had 1,633 members, of whom 1,382 live east of the Mississippi. When it is considered that only 251 members of the society live within 2,000 miles of the convention city, the attendance at San Francisco must be rated as extremely good; a great deal better showing, comparatively, than has been made in years when four-fifths of the society's membership lived within a night's ride of the meeting.

Not only was the attendance large in consideration of the geographical distribution of the membership, but it was, in fact, far larger numerically than most of those who usually send exhibits had supposed it would be. While the largest party, that which centered at Chicago, started with only thirty-five persons, counting women and children, large numbers of florists have been on the coast this year and all centered at San Francisco for convention week. A notable feature is the percentage of men who are accompanied by their wives and children. Nothing like it ever has been known in the whole history of the society and the holiday spirit has prevailed to an unusual degree.

It was to have been expected that the trade on the coast would turn out practically to a man. The fact that this is the first time the S. A. F. has visited the coast insured that, and then there was the great addition to the membership there, Vice-president MacRorie having enrolled over 100 new names in California, State Vice-president E. T. Mische eleven from Oregon and State Vice-president J. W. Duncan three from Washington. Such gains in membership showed the local interest, although it must be remembered that San Francisco is as far from San Diego, Cal., or Portland, Ore., as Buffalo is from Chicago.

The Trades' Display.

It can not be said that the society has lost anything at all by going to San Francisco except that the trades' display is the smallest in many years. This was inevitable. Most of those who put up large exhibits, year after year, are located in the east. Their best displays are made close at home, or in a city where the trade interests are large enough so that practically the entire exhibition can be sold to local buyers, thereby saving the exhibitors the labor and expense of repacking the stock for shipment. Under the circumstances, with so great a distance and the certainty that the average visitor would be more intent on sightseeing than on buying stock for fall trade, it could not be expected that the trades' display would equal other years. That it proved to be decidedly small was no surprise.

The convention is being held in Exposition Memorial Auditorium, where the entire east side of the fourth floor was placed at the disposal of the society for the week without cost. No finer accommodations could be asked. Meeting room and exhibition hall are side by side, but separate. There is quiet. The name of the building led many to suppose it to be on the exposition grounds; instead, it is downtown, in the Civic Center, the heart of things.

The Garden.

The convention garden is proving something of a task. It was splendidly done at Minneapolis; so well, in fact, that it inspired efforts to duplicate that success under conditions by no means equally favorable. The men have been available—when you stop to think of it, it is remarkable how much talent the society can command—but location, soil and stock have been lacking. At Minneapolis the garden was a square of ground of just the right size right beside the convention hall. At Boston it was marsh land filled in for the purpose, some little distance from the hall, while at San Francisco no available site could be found nearer than Golden Gate park. The separation of the two parts of the exhibition tends to weaken both by causing a division of interest; the better the garden is the more people it pulls away from the meetings and indoor display. This year the garden was good, but the counter attractions were too numerous for either garden or meeting to hold the visitors for long.

The Program.

When the directors were planning the program they wisely took into consideration the many things that would call the members and the business sessions were mapped out to be as few and as brief as possible. As it was then put:

"In view of the many and varied attractions of the convention and convention city, the executive board decided that it would be unwise to take up the time of the convention with the reading of essays. Realizing, however, the value of the presentation of essays at the society's conventions, the secretary was instructed to invite essays from various gentlemen willing to prepare them, such invitations and the number of them to be within his discretion, the essays to be furnished to the trade papers for publication during the convention period, and to be printed as part of the proceedings of the convention."

The following essays were presented:

"The Problems Attending the Establishment of Permanent Convention Gardens," by Theodore Wirth, superintendent of parks, Minneapolis, Minn.

"The Necessity of National Publicity to Advance the Interests of Commercial Floriculture in the United States," by Albert Pochelon, Detroit, Mich.

These papers will be found in this issue of The Review.

The Routine Business.

Unfortunately, the order of business brings the driest part of the program at the time there is the largest attendance. Practically everyone who goes to the annual convention is present at the opening exercises, which are set for 2 p. m. They invariably enjoy the oratory of the mayor or his silver-tongued substitute, and they applaud the florist's reply. The address of the president of the S. A. F. is listened to with respectful attention, if it is not too long, but when the secretary and treasurer begin reading their lengthy statistical reports, enunciating even so clearly as do Messrs. Young and Kasting, followed by multitudinous committee reports, the members one by one tiptoe from the hall, until only a little band of the faithful remain. Would that some parliamentarian might devise an order of business that would put what our theatrical friends call "punch" into the order of business for the opening session to stimulate interest in the subsequent proceedings.

At San Francisco promptness is the rule, and the first business session opened on the stroke of the clock. Vice-president MacRorie introduced the mayor, Hon. James Rolph, Jr., to deliver an official welcome to the society. He handed over the keys of the city most eloquently, showing the great amount of practice he is getting this year in extending the official glad hand. For the society ex-President W. F. Gude, of Washington, made a felicitous response.

When President Welch was introduced—and it was the first convention of the S. A. F. in many years at which such an introduction has been more than a formality—he was greeted with cheers so prolonged as to prove that the popular Bostonian's fame had spread across the continent, even to the shores of the Pacific. Either that or he had made friends wonderfully fast in the few days he had been in the convention city ahead of the gathering of the clan. As soon as he could make himself heard, Mr. Welch spoke a few words of thanks for the ovation and then read the carefully prepared discussion of the work and needs of the society printed in full in this issue of The Review. The address was, as usual, referred to a committee, consisting of George Asmus, of Chicago; Henry Kruckeberg, of Los Angeles; E. J. Fancourt, of Philadelphia; C. W. Ward, of Eureka, Cal., and H. Plath, of San Francisco.

Secretary Young, of New York, who has been in San Francisco a month preparing for the convention, also was greeted with applause when his annual report was called for. He began with the minutes of the meetings of the executive board, which, however important, are not nearly so interesting as the sights on the Zone at the fair. When the minutes were approved and ordered printed in the record, Mr. Young presented his report of the work of the secretary's office, which also was approved and ordered printed. Mr. Young then presented the minutes of the general meeting of the national flower show committee held at Chicago March 1 and 2, which also were ordered printed in the society's annual volume as a matter of record.

Treasurer W. F. Kasting, of Buffalo, who prides himself on the completeness and accuracy of the society's financial records, presented his annual report, a summary of which appears in this issue. It was accompanied by auditor's certificate and was ordered printed.

The reports of state vice-presidents were presented and were ordered printed without reading.

The report of the society's entomologist, Prof. W. E. Britton, of New Britain, Conn., was presented and ordered printed. It appears in this issue of The Review.

W. F. Gude, of Washington, who is among the most active workers for the society, presented a report as the organization's official representative at the national capital, as chairman of the committee on tariff and legislation and as chairman of the committee on W. R. Smith memorial. All these were ordered printed and appear in this issue of The Review.

The report of Benjamin Hammond, of Beacon, N. Y., as chairman of the committee on school gardens was accepted and ordered printed. It appears in this issue of The Review.

A report from Irwin Bertermann, of Indianapolis, chairman of the committee on national publicity, was presented and ordered printed. It is in this issue of The Review.

George Asmus, of Chicago, chairman of the national flower show committee, presented a brief report as to the state of the preparations for the great exhibition to be held at Philadelphia in March, 1916, which was accepted with applause and ordered printed. It is in this issue of The Review.

A telegram of sympathy and good cheer was ordered sent to ex-President Edwin Lonsdale, ill at Lompoc, Cal., also a message of similar import to Wallace P. Pierson, who was taken suddenly ill and operated on for appendicitis in a San Francisco hospital August 18.

President's Reception.

The president's reception, always a fine affair, was unusually brilliant this year and the attendance was large. All San Francisco florists were there and their ladies fair graced the occasion, enjoying it to the full while adding to the enjoyment of others. The reception was held in the beautiful colonial ballroom of the St. Francis hotel, which had been handsomely decorated for the occasion, and nearly 400 were present. President and Mrs. Welch, Vice-president and Mrs. MacRorie, ex-President and Mrs. Gude, Director and Mrs. Hess, Director and Mrs. Peterson, Director and Mrs. Kerr, ex-President and Mrs. Asmus, ex-President and Mrs. Vincent, ex-President and Mrs. Wirth, ex-President Hill, Secretary Young, Treasurer Kasting, Mr. and Mrs. Plath were among those in the receiving line. Dancing followed, continuing to a late hour, and, although many do not dance, everyone had a good time. Light refreshments were served.

Next Meeting Place.

The by-laws require that the place of next meeting be selected on the opening day, invitations being presented at the afternoon session and the choice determined by ballot at the evening session, during the reception.

Invitations were extended by the New York Florists' Club, by the Houston Florists' Club and the Texas State Florists' Association, and by the New Orleans Horticultural Society.

The vote was overwhelmingly in favor of Houston, Tex.

The St. Francis Hotel, S. A. F. Headquarters at San Francisco this Week.

The New Officers.

Daniel MacRorie was nominated with a hurrah and there was no one to run against him for the presidency for 1916.

Robert C. Kerr, leader of the Texans, was the unanimous choice for vice-president.

Although William F. Kasting last year sought to keep the convention from going to San Francisco, the big-hearted Californians turned in and gave him a unanimous reëlection as treasurer.

The only contest is over the secretaryship, J. R. Fotheringham, of Tarrytown and San Francisco, being nominated against John Young, of New York.

Action on President's Address.

The committee to which the president's address was referred made the following recommendations:

1. That the convention city be chosen two years in advance, to give time for the development of the convention garden.

2. That counsel be employed by the board of directors.

3. That the Washington representative be ex-officio a member of the executive board.

4. That the constitution be amended to provide for the election of directors.

5. That only elected delegates from subsidiary bodies be admitted to the executive board.

6. That an appropriation be made for the committee on publicity.

7. That action toward forming a credit and collections bureau be referred to the executive board.

8. That the production in America of stock heretofore imported be encouraged.

9. That the constitution be amended to provide for alphabetical divisions of the membership to accelerate the casting of ballots at the annual election.

All the recommendations were concurred in by the society.

The Local Hospitalities.

The local hospitalities were by no means all on the program—every San Franciscan has spent the week in entertaining his friends from out of town. The reception committee, headed by John R. Fotheringham, was at the station to meet the Chicago special cars Monday evening, August 16, and escorted these and other visitors to hotels.

Arrangements had been made for a reception and general introduction in the green room of the St. Francis hotel Tuesday morning, August 17, under the auspices of the Women's Auxiliary of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, but this was changed to a steamer ride out through the Golden Gate into the Pacific ocean on the U. S. revenue cutter Unalga, which had been made available through the efforts of John McLaren. Nearly 200 were in the party, including members of the S. A. F. and the American Association of Park Superintendents, with their families. To those who were from the east it was a new and novel experience and one that was highly enjoyed. The course was past the exposition grounds and afforded a magnificent view of the city and its fair.

Wednesday evening, August 18, a new feature in S. A. F. entertainment was provided. The men were taken to the Elks' Club for a smoker and high jinks, while the ladies, chaperoned by W. A. Hofinghoff and his committee, were entertained at a theater party at the Orpheum.

August 19, while the men are concluding the business of the convention and bowling, the ladies will enjoy an automobile ride around the bay and down the peninsula, where luncheon will be served under the big trees in San Mateo county.

The annual bowling contest for ladies was provided, Wednesday afternoon, August 18, but was not so attractive as usual to the visitors, who found many other things they would rather do in San Francisco. The men's bowling tournament is set as the usual Thursday afternoon feature, at Graney's alleys, but no eastern city has sent a team and it is feared the lure of the Zone at the exposition will prove stronger this time than the attractions of the individual contest on the alleys.

August 20 has been officially designated as S. A. F. day at the exposition and the ceremonies there will take the place of the picnic which customarily has closed convention week. The exposition authorities are to present to President Welch, for the society, a bronze plaque commemorative of the event.

THE TRADES' DISPLAY

Recent Trades' Displays.

At	Sq. Ft. Sold	Receipts	Expenses	Profit
Chicago	17,314	$7,412.55	$4,106.67	$3,251.88
Minneapolis	9,053	3,975.20	2,248.48	1,726.72
Boston	9,975	3,990.00	2,470.22	1,519.78

It was in the trades' display even more than in the attendance of members that the S. A. F. convention of 1915 showed the effect of the distance to San Francisco from eastern trade centers. The number of exhibitors at Chicago in 1912 was 108; at Minneapolis in 1913 it was sixty-five; at Boston in 1914, after allowing for the withdrawal of the supply houses that had their stock tied up by the war, it was sixty-eight. All these exhibitors were eastern concerns and it could not be expected that any large proportion of them would exhibit on the other side of the continent. It is the interesting fact, however, that three concerns sent large displays all the way from Philadelphia. The show seldom has been staged in so good a hall. It is large, light and airy; the display made an especially good general effect and to a large percentage of those present it was the largest showing of trade commodities they had ever seen brought together in one place. The exhibitors were as follows:

Advance Co., Richmond, Ind.

A full-size Advance ventilating machine, nickel-plated for exhibition purposes, was the principal feature of this display, which also included a full line of pipe fittings and a new expansion pipe joint. R. E. Jones was in charge.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia.

This was the largest exhibit in the hall, occupying half the space along the west wall. In addition to a general line of florists' supplies, a large variety of staple and novelty baskets was shown. A complete wedding outfit was on display, also a new willow birdcage with stand and vase to hold flowers. The assortment of metal and other wreaths occupied the wall space. Sydney Bayersdorfer and Martin Reukauf were in charge.

Richard Diener, Colma, Cal.

This display, staged on a table of twenty-four square feet, consisted of cut spikes of forty unnamed seedling gladioli of excellent promise; large flowers and choice, clear colors.

Domoto Bros., San Francisco.

This exhibit consisted of a table of plants of the newer varieties of hydrangeas.

John A. Evans Co., Richmond, Ind.

John A. Evans, who has not missed a convention in many years, was on hand with the usual section of a greenhouse in which the sash are operated by the Challenge ventilating machine. His fifty feet of space also enabled him to show fittings and the new Evans salt sprayer for clearing carnations of red spider.

Herbert & Fleishauer, McMinnville.

This exhibit occupied a table of twenty-four square feet and consisted solely of cut blooms of asters grown by the exhibitor in Oregon. Many of the varieties had been originated by the exhibitor and all the strains have been improved by careful selection. The stock is grown primarily for seed, but large quantities of cut blooms are sold in the Portland market. J. G. Bacher was in charge.

Henry J. Kessel, San Francisco.

This exhibitor, who uses the name of the Richmond Fernery in his local business, used a table of twenty-four feet for a display of Adiantum California in pots of various sizes. The variety is rapidly gaining friends.

MacRorie-McLaren Co., San Francisco.

One of the specialties of this exhibitor is the phalænopsis, and a group of plants was staged arranged to occupy 100 square feet.

Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia.

This exhibitor used 200 square feet to effectively display a large line of high grade ribbons, chiffons and corsage ties, including several new colors to match the latest popular flowers. Basket cages also were a feature of this exhibit, which was in charge of E. J. Fancourt, assisted by J. R. Fotheringham.

J. A. Peterson & Sons, Cincinnati.

On fifty feet of space this firm showed several sizes of the begonias for which it has a national reputation and all of which were originated on its home place. The varieties were Glory of Cincinnati, Melior and Mrs. J. A. Peterson. J. A. Peterson was in personal charge of the exhibit.

H. Plath, San Francisco.

The Ferneries, the trade name under which this exhibitor is known locally, had eighty feet of space on which he showed a large collection of ferns, including a number of varieties not common in the east, and a line of palms, principally kentias.

A. L. Randall Co., Chicago.

This exhibit occupied 200 square feet. It included a general line of florists' supplies, with a special display of baskets nearly all of which were the product of the exhibitor's own American factory; many new and original shapes and finishes were shown. The exhibit also contained a line of sun parlor furniture of willow, which has proved popular for flower stores. Frank McCabe was in charge.

Mrs. Francis J. Reidy, San Jose, Cal.

This exhibitor had a fine table of dahlia blooms, the collection containing only seedling varieties of the exhibitor's own raising. Not only were the flowers good but the colors were excellent.

M. Rice Co., Philadelphia.

This exhibit, in charge of Arthur Zirkman, occupied 200 square feet and included a general line of florists' supplies, but specialized on novelty baskets and new ribbons. A conspicuous feature was a new aisle post and centerpiece with high vase.

Superior Nursery Co., Los Angeles.

The exhibitor, who has a new nephrolepis to which the name Superior has been given and which has already established a local reputation, took this opportunity to show it to growers from a distance, staging plants in a variety of sizes on a table of twenty-four square feet.

Swiss Floral Co., Portland, Ore.

A table of forty square feet was used for the display of the exhibitor's new petunias, Pride of Portland and Elks' Pride. These originated at Portland and are promising varieties. They were shown in pots. J. G. Bacher was in charge.

THE CONVENTION GARDEN.

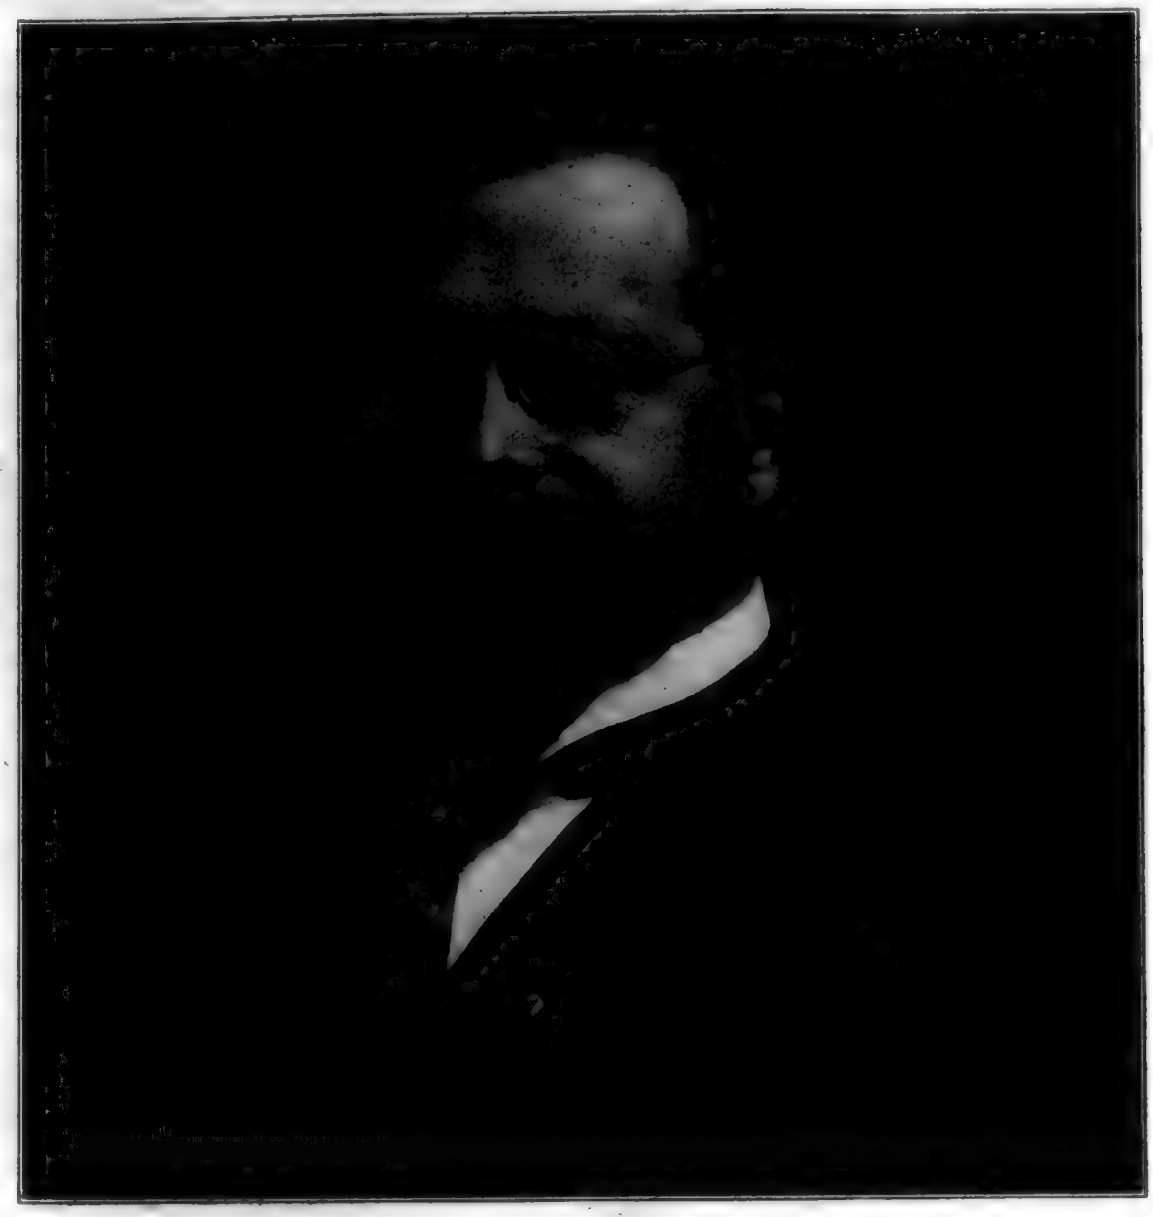
Exhibitors and Space.

The following are the exhibitors in the S. A. F. convention garden planted in Golden Gate park, San Francisco, under the direction of Dan MacRorie as superintendent:

Hans Plath, San Francisco	250 sq. ft.
Eric James, Oakland, Cal.	250 sq. ft.
Santa Barbara Nursery Co., Santa Barbara, Cal.	250 sq. ft.
Frank Pelicano, San Francisco, Cal.	250 sq. ft.
Cottage Gardens Nursery Co., Eureka, Cal.	2,500 sq. ft.
Domoto Bros., San Francisco	1,500 sq. ft.
Howard & Smith, Los Angeles, Cal.	1,500 sq. ft.
MacRorie-McLaren Co., San Francisco.	1,000 sq. ft.
Henry W. Turner, Montebello, Cal.	500 sq. ft.
W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia.	750 sq. ft.
Hillsborough Nurseries, Burlingame, Cal.	500 sq. ft.
W. F. Kasting Co., Buffalo, N. Y.	300 sq. ft.
Ferrari Bros., San Francisco	250 sq. ft.
Fred Grohe, Santa Rosa, Cal.	200 sq. ft.
Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J.	500 sq. ft.
Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa.	200 sq. ft.
Swiss Floral Co., Portland, Ore.	100 sq. ft.
Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago	1,000 sq. ft.
C. Kooyman, San Francisco	100 sq. ft.
E. Gill Nursery Co., Oakland, Cal.	... sq. ft.
Schwerin Bros., Visitacion Valley Nurseries	... sq. ft.
Fancher Creek Nursery Co.	... sq. ft.
Richard Lohman, San Rafael, Cal.	... sq. ft.
Wm. Monroe	... sq. ft.

Considering the distance from the great centers of business and population, it is considered that the S. A. F. convention gardens in Golden Gate park at San Francisco make a decidedly creditable showing; particularly so to the growers and nurserymen of the Pacific slope, many of whom have installed large, handsome and interesting exhibits, and to Superintendent MacRorie.

The Setting of the Garden.



A large space was set aside for the purpose on the south side of the park, in a slight hollow sheltered from the trade winds and making the most of the sunshine. Plenty of space was available for any number of exhibits that might have been offered and, as it turned out, the plats were well scattered. A notable feature of the garden is the arrangement of the beds around and among groups of California redwoods and specimens of other conifers planted in the park; and some flower beds, harmonizing nicely with the general scheme, have also been planted by the park, the space between being filled with new lawn. The trees, though adding not a little to the beauty of the gardens, so obstruct the view that it is impossible to do the gardens justice in a photograph, but the accompanying illustrations will give a general idea of their appearance from different points.

The view on page 23 shows the scene as the observer stands at the sweet pea beds of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., which, of course, do not appear. In the foreground is a part of the rose garden of Henry W. Turner, of Montebello, Cal.; farther to the front are the roses of the Gill Nursery Co., while still farther is a large bed of brilliant petunias put in by Schwerin Bros., of the Visitacion Valley Nursery, surrounding the central redwood tree. A corner of a handsome bed of asters planted by H. Plath also is seen to the left, and farther off on this side, a large bed of mixed gladioli, planted by C. Kooyman, of San Francisco. In the distance to the right is seen a bed of brilliant poppies, put in by the park.

The view on page 22 is as it appears to the visitor standing at a large planting of salvias from the Cottage Gardens Nursery, Eureka, Cal., and shows principally two extensive beds of brilliant begonias put in by the same exhibitor. To the right, also, is shown a part of a collection of dahlias by Fred Grohe, of Santa Rosa.

Notes on the Exhibits.

The most numerous exhibits by any one house were those of the MacRorie-

McLaren Co., which has exerted itself in every possible way to make the gardens a success. One of the most interesting exhibits is a collection of fifty-two varieties of acacias shown by this house, something that has never been exhibited before, and that well illustrates the wide divergence in type and habit of the many members of the acacia family. This company also has exhibited a collection of about 200 varieties of ornamental shrubs, many of which were new to the eastern visitors, and another large plot has been occupied with two varieties of hydrangeas; while many other beds were planted by this company in other parts of the gardens.

Another interesting collection of shrubs is that of the Santa Barbara Nursery, containing 100 specimens, all different varieties.

The Dahlias and Gladioli.

The gardens are especially strong in dahlias, this being no doubt due to the fact that the growers of the San Francisco district have given much attention to this flower, which attains great perfection under California conditions. Most of the dahlias are banked together on a southern slope and had to be rigorously held back to keep the best blooms for the convention period. Here Henry A. Dreer, Inc., of Philadelphia, Pa., has a bed of the new Kalif dahlia, which shows up nicely. Adjoining this, Frank Pelicano, of San Francisco, has a collection of 300 dahlias, in eight varieties, Burgle predominating. Richard Lohman, of San Rafael, Cal., exhibits two varieties, Else and Burgle. William Monroe has a collection of eighty-nine varieties.

Howard & Smith, of Los Angeles, make a strong showing, including quite a variety of stock. They show 117 varieties of dahlias, about a dozen varieties of fuchsias, all well grown and blooming nicely; a large bed of delphiniums, and a bed of Crimson King verbenas, which in size and brilliance fully justify their name.

Gladioli are not an especially prominent feature. Vaughan's Seed Store is exhibiting three varieties, which show up fairly well, and C. Kooyman has a nice miscellaneous collection.

Miscellaneous Exhibits.

Chrysanthemums for a large bed were sent out by C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., but it was not possible to show any blooms by the convention week.

Of the two important rose beds, H. W. Turner's is of one variety, September Morn, while that of the Gill Nursery Co. includes quite a collection of varieties.

The Germain Seed & Plant Co., Los Angeles, occupies a good sized bed with an exhibit of lobelias and gazanias, the latter a plant that almost has disappeared from the trade in America.

E. James, of Oakland, has an interesting collection of cinerarias and antirrhinums.

W. Atlee Burpee & Co., of Philadelphia, Pa., and Lompoc, Cal., devote their space to thirty-three new varieties of sweet peas, which have never been shown before and which, unfortunately, could not be had in bloom at this date.

Fred Grohe, Santa Rosa, occupies a small plot with dahlias in eight different varieties, and a pleasing assortment of petunias.

The Swiss Floral Co., of Portland, Ore., has a handsome display of Salvia Red Cross.

The salvia of the Cottage Gardens Nursery is an eye catcher, while its extensive display of bedding begonias is one of the brightest spots in the gardens.

W. F. Kasting Co., Buffalo, shows a bed of cannas and the Hillsborough Nurseries, of Burlingame, Cal., has a large and attractive display.

A few of the exhibits, such as those of Domoto Bros., Ferrari Bros., the Fancher Creek Nursery, etc., were installed from pots on the eve of the convention, too late to be included in this description.

It should be remembered that a considerable number of those who ordinarily would be leading exhibitors in such an affair as the convention garden are maintaining large all-season exhibits on the exposition grounds.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY.

[The following is the report of Irwin Bertermann, chairman of the committee on national publicity, presented at the San Francisco convention, August 18, 1915.]

National publicity is a much talked of problem, hard to solve, yet with wonderful possibilities and a great future, particularly in the field of the florists' profession.

As a result of the talk of Philip Breitmeyer during the board of directors' meeting at Chicago, March 2, our president appointed George Burton, Irwin Bertermann and W. F. Kasting a committee to deal with the problem. Little has been done further than making the following report, which we trust may have a stimulating effect in an undertaking the national society stands much in need of.

Large appropriations for the furtherance of publicity throughout the land are impractical from a financial standpoint and unless carefully safeguarded and given detailed attention, there is much liability that a large percentage would be wasted.

Advertising experts of the larger cities have in several instances made suggestions to prominent members of the S. A. F. in regard to national publicity. In the main, their ideas were practical and would no doubt bring results, but it was evident that the cost was at no time in accord with the measure of direct returns receivable by the florists' fraternity. In fact, one prominent expert had it that $25,000 would be a reasonable sum with which to start in the city of New York. This, of course, sounds well and no doubt would be of immense value, but at the same time it would be impossible to carry such a project forward throughout the country.

Advertising Strength in Trade.

One of the self-evident features that has brought itself clearly to the front in the last few years is the following: That the great national flower shows given in large centers, the extensive advertising campaigns of the larger individual firms of the country and the national publicity campaigns of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery show that there is a great wealth of strength in the S. A. F. itself, that we have a strong advertising feature to stand on within our organization.

There are approximately 2,000 of the better florists throughout the country closely united, willing and only waiting the call to send forth the proper issues before the public. It is true that one florist has not the strength in the smallest fraction of a large newspaper, but one individual florist has within himself the power to carry forward a campaign which will interest thousands of people.

The florists of a large city like Chicago alone, if properly united on a single subject, can place it before an immense population. This is shown in the newspaper features of united florists' advertising in Detroit, Cleveland and Philadelphia newspapers.

It is the firm belief of this committee that if any special line of advertising be taken up and set before the members of this organization in the proper manner, the advertising will be carried throughout the breadth of the country and the expense from the parent source be entirely within the reasonable bounds to be expected.

Working Through Organization.

A few hundred dollars expended by this organization, or collectively by individuals, in properly placing an outline before its members and in aiding them to carry it out, will within a reasonable time insure its appearance as a national message to the flower buying public. This has been clearly demonstrated through the efforts of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery, each individual member using feature advertising on his letter-heads, on a majority of 1,000,000 folders or in his advertising space in newspapers and periodicals. This same plan can easily be carried forward, as there is not a member of you who is not willing to aid the parent association and himself in such a manner. The sum of money expended at the start, whether it be $1,000 or $5,000, will easily return to the source in the way of strength and influence or in membership itself, for everyone connected will be pleased with the results and satisfied with the good accomplished.

We say confidently that if the Society of American Florists wants its members to sell a particular flower next Christmas or if it wants a certain line featured or if it has any publicity of any special nature in mind, it can safely accomplish its object through its membership and at a cost less than one-twentieth of what would be charged by any professionals who are interested in doing the work without the aid of 2,000 florists themselves.

It did not take long for the Mrs. Russell rose to be known generally. Why? Because thousands of florists boosted it. Neither would it take long for any worthy publicity to reach the public if handled along the same lines.

The coming great Philadelphia show will in itself add a stimulus to the local flower business and with an advertising secretary of the S. A. F. acting with its members themselves, publicity space could be procured for a few dollars that could not be had for a larger sum in a direct manner. Many new, immensely worthy exhibits will be shown there, and great good will come to this organization and financial benefit to the trade if this be used as a small instance by every florist in his dealing with the public.

SNAP SHOTS

After the convention the visitors, almost in a body, will move down to Los Angeles and San Diego.

Apparently, the toughest job of all is cut out for the man who tries to go Theodore Wirth one better in the matter of the convention garden.

That steamer excursion was all right; there was a lot to see. But one participant describes it laconically, thus: "Cold wind; hot Scotch."

Everywhere one goes on the Pacific coast one meets old friends—florists who have settled in the land of sunshine and flowers.

What a fiend for work that D. MacRorie is! Or is it that he has the happy faculty of getting all the other fellows going strong?

The only member of the National Flower Show Committee present at San Francisco this week is the chairman, George Asmus, of Chicago.

It took the S. A. F. thirty years to get around to visiting the Pacific coast, but the prediction is made that the society will be back there before it is anything like that much older.

Of the so-called affiliation directors, only one is present at the convention this week, Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., who represents the Rose Society on the executive board. Of the appointed directors, Messrs. Hess, Peterson and Kerr, just half the board, are on the job.

Charles Willis Ward has become one of the most ardent of California boosters. He will give a party of eastern friends a touch of real life in the redwood forests next week.

The man who didn't come will be sorry when he hears about the trip. It is worth anybody's time and money, and especially so for florists, seedsmen and nurserymen.

Certainly those Californians are great boosters — for California — but they have something to boost! It's a great country and all the trade visitors this week want to come back.

"We here (in the Boston convention) can send the society to the Pacific coast, but, I ask you, who will bring the society back again?"—W. A. Manda, August 18, 1914. Now we have the answer: The society will return east by easy stages, which is by far the pleasantest way to make a long journey. The Texans are bringing it back part way next year.

AMONG THOSE PRESENT

THE ATTENDANCE from the towns surrounding San Francisco was large—indeed, almost everyone in the trade in the central Californian section was present—and there was a good representation from other parts of the Pacific coast country, while from east of the mountains the attendance was not, perhaps, so large as was expected a year ago, but nevertheless was excellent when it is considered that at Boston 128 votes carried the convention to San Francisco. Those from outside of San Francisco whose presence was noted were as follows:

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

The full text of the address of Patrick Welch, President of the Society of American Florists, delivered at the convention at San Francisco, August 17, 1915.

ON any occasion the members of this society, especially those residing east of the Rockies, could have visited this city with pleasure and profit, but at this time, when the great Panama-Pacific international exposition is being held here, we deem ourselves most favored.

It is needless for me to say that I am honored as the presiding officer of this great national society, one of the few in the United States possessing a charter issued under a special act of the National Congress and signed by the President.

This great opening of our convention proves that we are not an association of New Yorkers, New Englanders, Pennsylvanians or Virginians, but confirms our boast that we are a national association in representation as well as in name.

We should and we do feel proud of our profession for the wonderful progress it has made. According to the last available census, that of 1909, the sale of plants and flowers advanced from $18,758,864 in 1899 to $34,872,329 in 1909, an increase of ninety-one per cent. The total number of establishments in the United States in our business in 1909 was 10,614. The leading states in value of flowers and plants are:

New York	$5,110,000
Penna.	3,761,000
Illinois	3,681,000
New Jersey	2,839,000
Mass.	2,432,000
Ohio	2,357,000
California	1,374,000
Indiana	1,202,000
Michigan	1,132,000
Connecticut	1,042,000

Membership.

A society gains much of its influence and usefulness from a large membership, and while the Society of American Florists has been adding strength to its membership, I feel we can do much more in that direction. What work can be more pleasant than the gathering together in one great organization of all our business associates in this country?

Experience has shown us that what is everybody's business is not attended to by anyone, and so I say, let the increasing of the membership be an individual matter of pride to us all. We all have a high estimate of the benefits derived from membership in our society; let us memorialize it during the coming year by doubling our membership list. This is an age of coöperation and affiliation, and what was formerly advanced individually is now accomplished only by thorough organization.

If we are to perform the mission of this society, we can only be satisfied when we have joined to its ranks every man engaged in floriculture and horticuture, whether he is doing business in the north, south, east or west of this grand country of ours.

Every state in the Union in which we have members is wisely entitled to a national vice-president; wisely, I say, because every state has then at least one national officer within its limits. One of the principal duties of the vice-president is to increase the membership in his state. Therefore, I urge the vice-presidents during this year to conduct active, spirited campaigns for new members in our society.

Few men join an organization such as ours without being invited, and anyone, on being informed of the progress which this society has made in the last thirty years, will hardly hesitate to become a member when he is invited.

We are proud indeed of the position of our society today, with 2,000 members and $30,000 balance in our treasury, thanks to the wise, discreet and courageous policy displayed by our officers. I feel that with a little effort, on the part of our vice-presidents especially, our membership can be materially advanced and our usefulness increased accordingly.

(President of the Society of American Florists.)

National Show.

For the last six years we have witnessed the success of the national flower show, and recognized its great value as a medium for educating the public in the love and admiration of horticulture and floral products. It has proved a safe financial enterprise for the society.

To insure the continuance of the national flower show and in keeping with the ambitions of the society, it is necessary that the best and most efficient members should be placed on that committee.

There is no branch of the work which the S. A. F. has undertaken that calls for coöperation with all other interests as much as the work of the flower show committee; coöperation with the rose, carnation, sweet pea and gladiolus societies, the private gardener and all other kindred organizations. What can be accomplished through coöperation in other fields can likewise be accomplished here. All that is required is to emphasize the benefits that are to be derived and the determination to secure them.

We have always been successful in securing the aid and support of the horticultural interests in the city where the national flower show has taken place, and that we must always continue to have, for without it we cannot have a full measure of success.

There is no better agency for horticultural advancement than the one which has for its end a national flower show once in two years.

School Gardens.

I am much impressed with the work accomplished in the past by the permanent committee on school gardens under the leadership of its able and efficient chairman, Benjamin Hammond.

This work is of much practical benefit and interest to the boys and girls of this nation, bringing health and strength to growing children. Its installation in school districts throughout the country would bring thrift to many a rising family. The school garden affords much pleasure and broadens mentality.

The training tends to improve home surroundings. A little instruction in this line helps to form habits of thrift and economy. Every member should assist in this work, with a hope that it may create an interest in your town or city and be of inestimable value to the future welfare of commercial floriculture.

The Convention Gardens.

Our convention gardens of Minneapolis and Boston have undoubtedly met with the approval of the great majority of our members and the profession in general. Their value from an educational and commercial point of view is recognized by all and the question before us now is: How can we best continue this important work, in what way and manner can we improve and advance its scope, and how can we secure for those gardens permanent existence in the cities where we establish them?

In the way of advancement it should be made possible to improve upon the plan of the Boston garden. I should like to see those gardens designed and executed in such a way that they will represent good garden landscape effects, as well as good plant cultivation.

It is necessary that all proper planting material and appurtenances known to good garden architecture be employed in the creation of those gardens, where each individual plant or group of plants would be given its proper place in the garden as a whole.

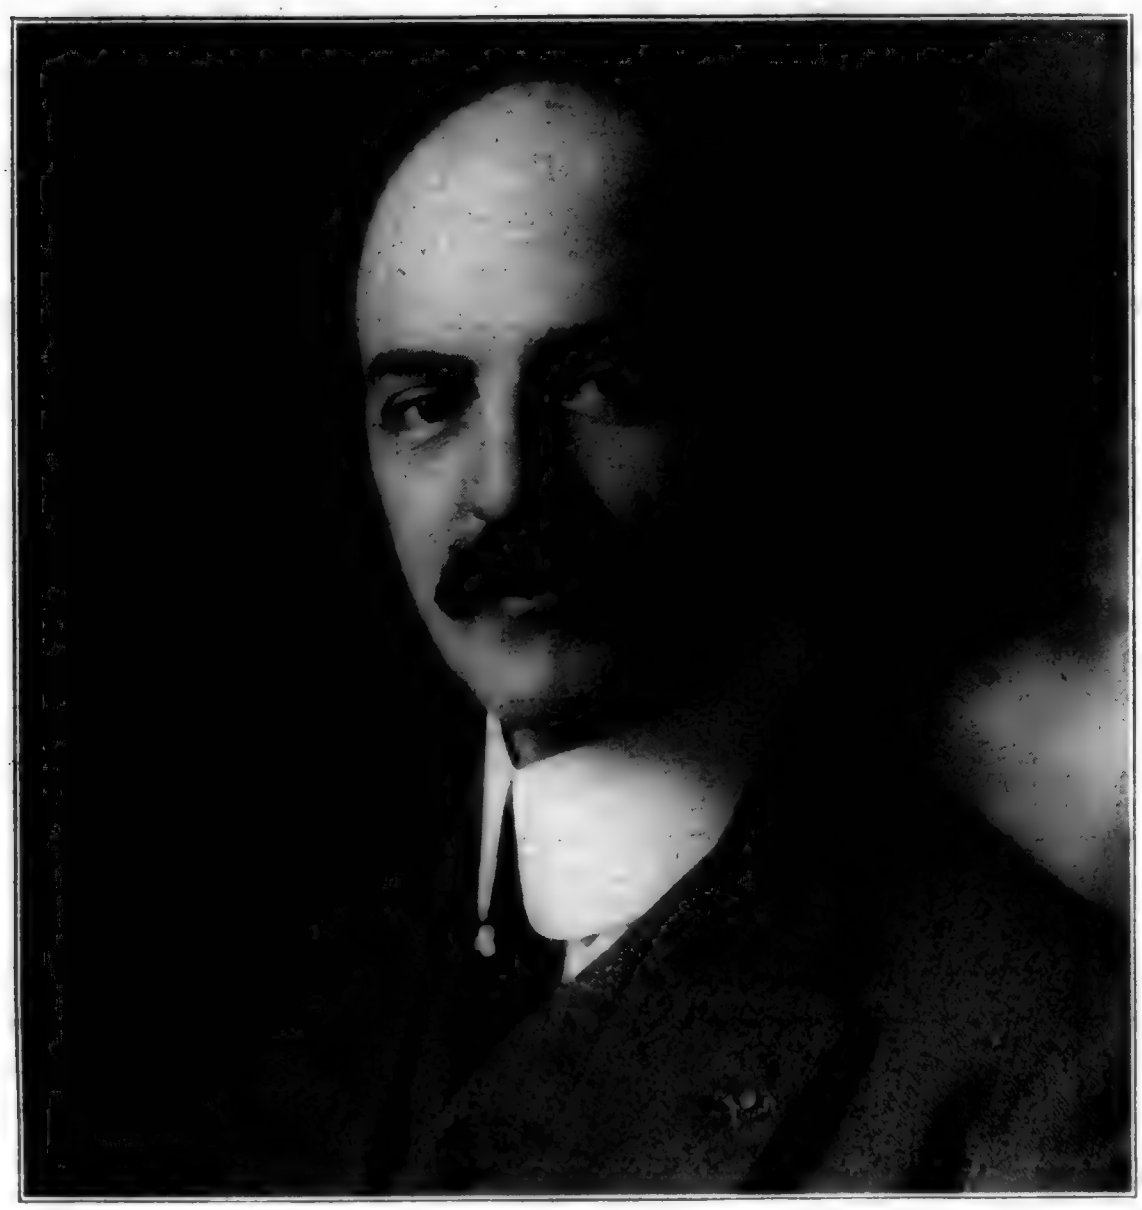
This, I realize, cannot be done in one short season, but would require not less than two years of planning and execution.

To make this possible, it would be necessary to select the convention city two years ahead of the meeting instead of one, and I want to advance the question at this time, why could not this be done?

If the convention garden work can be enlarged upon along the lines of this suggestion, I believe that the secretary and the local authorities of the convention cities having the execution of the plans in charge should have the assistance of a permanent committee of the S. A. F. consisting of three members well versed and experienced in this work. They would be appointed by the president, one for three years, one for two years and one for one year. Each president thereafter would make an appointment annually.

In this connection I recommend that after the appointment of this committee the first question they should consider would be an amendment to the constitution providing for the choice of the annual convention city two years in advance. Their recommendation should be submitted to the executive board for consideration before being acted upon by the national convention.

Legislation.



The pioneers in commercial floriculture took conditions as they found them, surmounted difficulties and conquered many obstacles. They did it in their own way, without any great assistance from legislation, but that method can no longer go on. We must see to it that no hostile laws are put upon the statute books. Legislation emanating from Congress or from any of our state legislatures may be helpful or may result in great injury unless prevented by the active work of our legislative committee.

The requirements of this committee call for a reasonable annual appropriation to be used when needed to encourage favorable and prevent hostile legislation. I would strongly recommend that the chairman be given power to secure counsel in Washington or in any of our states, to appear before national or local legislative committees and make known our needs whenever in his judgment this may be necessary.

I would also recommend that our representative in Washington should in the future be given the same privilege that is accorded all other executive members, namely, the right to vote on all questions that may be brought up for adjustment before the board of directors at the annual meeting. At present he is required to attend all meetings of this board, but is denied the right to vote, which is depriving the society of the benefits that would accrue from the exercise of this privilege by a member whose judgment and experience are of great value to the society.

Election of Directors.

The constitution and by-laws under which we now work are practically as adopted at a meeting of the incorporators of the society in Washington in 1902, immediately after our charter had been signed by the late President McKinley. I am satisfied from observation and experience in its workings that the election of two members of the board of directors annually, in place of their appointment by the president, would result in creating a much livelier interest in the annual convention, bringing the work of the society nearer to the members and relieving the future presidents of the difficulty of making these selections.

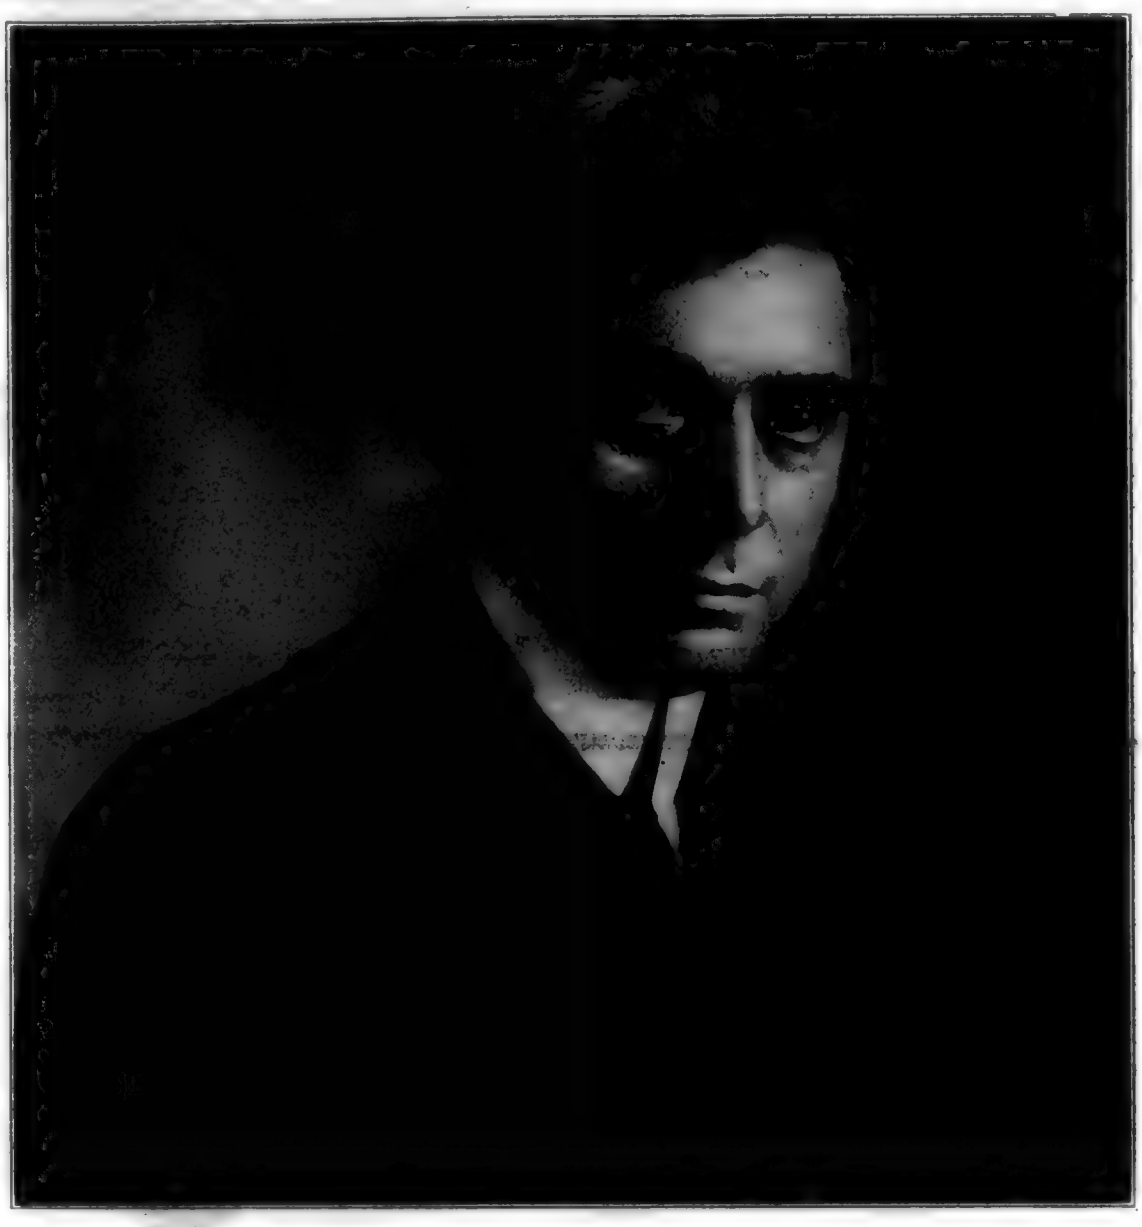
Ex-President Frank R. Pierson, in his address at Rochester, N. Y., in 1910, had the same idea in mind when he said, "I am firmly of the opinion that we would more nearly follow out the ideas of democratic government by the election rather than the appointment of directors."

The changes which have taken place in the make-up of our board of directors within the last two years make it necessary that the society itself should elect two directors annually, especially since the privilege is extended to local clubs and the national organizations having 100 S. A. F. members to elect one.

I would recommend that this society in convention authorize the amendment of the constitution so that hereafter two members shall be elected to the board of directors at our annual convention.

Coöperation.

The parent society has ever been renowned for her many activities in behalf of advanced horticulture. It has played an important role with patience, zeal and determination, to the end that coöperation between the allied societies should be a fitting and notable achievement. To the committee comprising Theodore Wirth, George Asmus and William F. Kasting we owe a debt of gratitude for their labor, loyalty, unfailing patience and persistence.



The first practical step toward real affiliation with the kindred societies and florists' clubs throughout the country was passed at the last convention in Boston. Under the terms of this amendment the New York, Boston and Philadelphia Florists' Clubs, the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, the American Rose Society and the American Carnation Society are now represented on the board of directors by their presidents. This increase in the board ought to prove of great value to this society and contribute much toward a liberal policy between the clubs and the parent society.

The wisdom and success of having the various minor organizations made a sectional part of the S. A. F. is no better exemplified than in the instance of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery and the consequent effects upon the parent body. This organization has grown immensely within the last four years. Approximately 235 firms have joined the Florists' Telegraph Delivery and resultantly members of these firms are also members of our national society.

The benefits from this important branch of the flower business are not retained by the retailer alone, but are passed on through the various branches to the humblest employee of the grower. This certainly makes it worth while for every retailer of standing to join and receive the benefits of its workings and also to assist the national association, which has helped materially in its formation.

We ought to make every effort to induce other clubs throughout the country to become interested in this movement.

I would recommend that the constitution be amended so that the members before taking their seats on the board of directors have the consent of the majority of the club or society they represent.

Publicity.

It is needless to point out the value of publicity for the dissemination of proper knowledge and educating the public in the more general use of horticultural products.

It is necessary for the society to organize a publicity bureau, whose work would be along the lines of a campaign, directed primarily for the annual increase of the sale of flowers, plants and plant products, through new

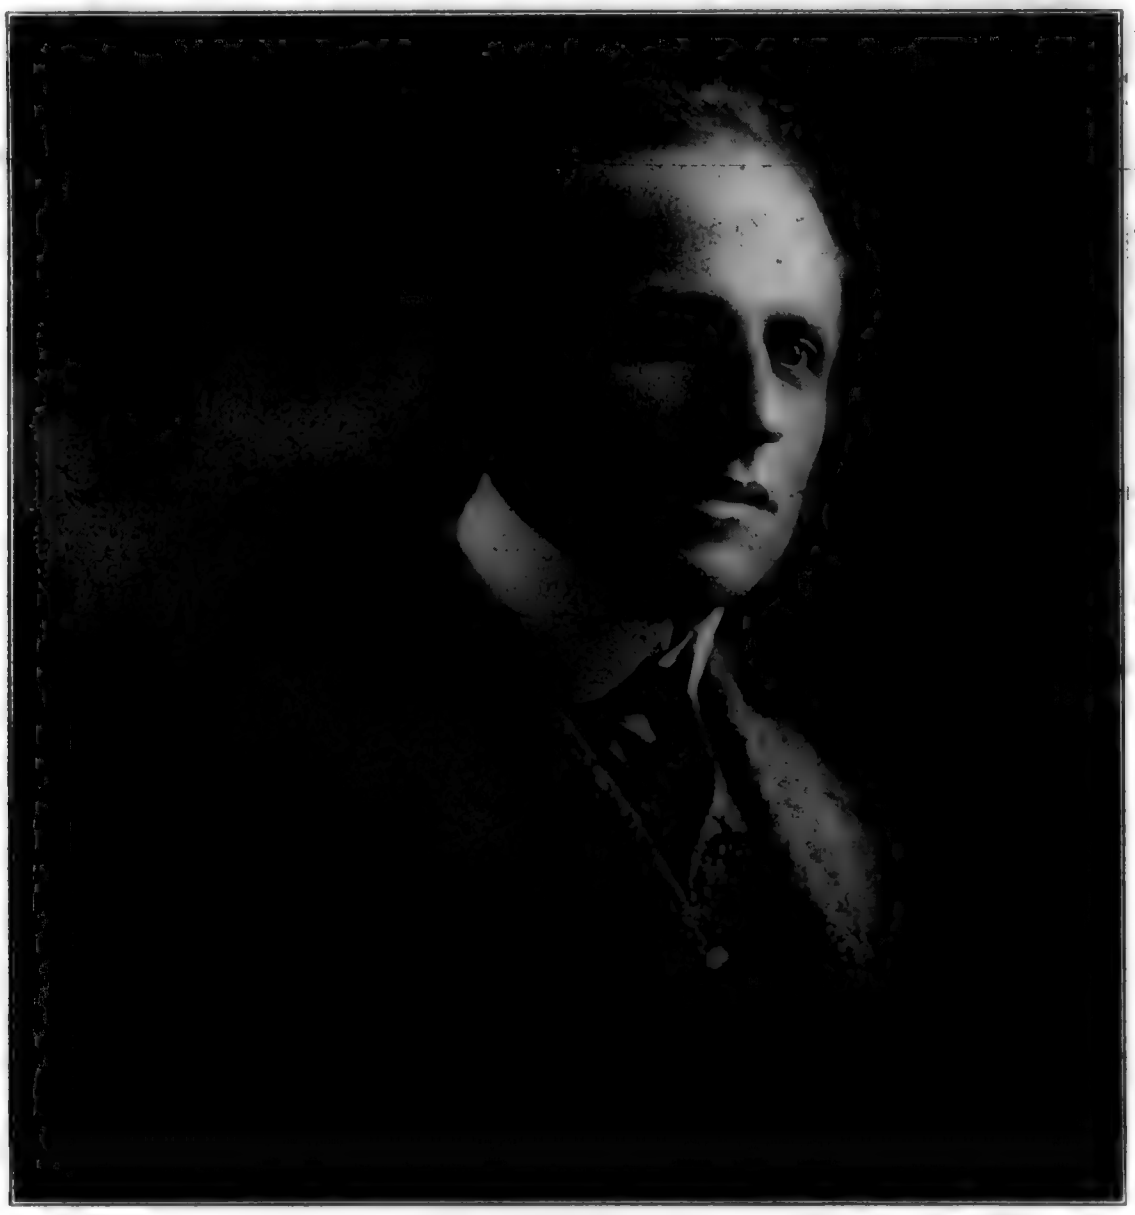
REPORT ON SCHOOL GARDENS.

[The following is the report of Benjamin Hammond, chairman of the committee on school gardens, presented at the San Francisco convention August 17, 1915.]

Our country is so large that to nationalize any movement is no small work, and to hold the interest of all sections in a particular work or object is difficult. But there is one effort that meets with almost universal appreciation, and that is school gardening.

The florists of this country are of a trade that greatly helps to develop beauty all around, and the Society of American Florists is stimulating interest in home gardening by teaching gardening and floriculture in the schools. Proofs come from many points that the effort is having a helpful result.

This season our letter, sent to every school board or school superintendent where a member of the S. A. F. is located and to every state commissioner of education, contained a picture of the beautiful Washington statue and surroundings at Grand avenue park, Milwaukee, Wis. This picture, with its spirit of emulation represented by the mother directing her son's attention to Washington as an example, seemed to strike a chord of admiration.



From one place, where efforts were made to interest the children in gardening, a report came saying: "The children want flower seeds, for the flower beds started have set an example. The demand is for geraniums, coleus, dahlias and roses."

The newspapers of the country are paying more heed to this flower garden movement, and small yards of the cities show the good results.

To a dark backyard, overshadowed by buildings, two boys invited us, to see their garden. The youngsters had dug up a bit of waste ground, planted it, weeded and watered the ten or dozen square feet until it looked like an irrigated patch near Denver, Colo., so prolific it was. Those lads were pleased. That kind of work helps develop American citizens of character.

In many villages and small towns improvement societies exist, and these societies are usually excellent supporters of the florists' craft, directly and indirectly. Small prizes, well distributed, encourage the children to keep up the home yards.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

[The following is the report of John Young, secretary of the S. A. F., presented at the San Francisco convention, August 17, 1915.]

At the time of our last convention the florists' trade, in common with many other industries, was feeling the effect of conditions brought about by the regrettable war precipitated in Europe, and while these conditions have not improved by any means, we have become somewhat accustomed to them, and we should congratulate ourselves that business has not been much worse. Some localities have felt the depression more than others, while in other communities business has been near to the normal point. The cut flower section has felt the decline perhaps more keenly than other sections of the business, but preparations for another season have been pushed along in an atmosphere of cheerfulness, with the hope that the business horizon will clear before the end of the year.

Our trade exhibition has suffered this year from causes beyond control. The florists' supply trade has been unable to make the usual showing, for the reason that imported goods are just now a poor possibility, and our own manufacturers have not had time to adjust themselves to circumstances, at least as far as the production of novelties in various lines is concerned. Distance and cost of transportation to San Francisco are other factors which have tended to cut down our exhibits. Notwithstanding, our trade exhibition is this year most creditable, and the interest it has provoked quite as strong as at previous conventions.

Membership.

The bulk of our increase in membership is provided by California and the other Pacific coast states. While it is not unusual for the society to experience a large influx of members from a convention city and nearby territory, the business standing of those initiated this year is extraordinarily high in the aggregate, and your secretary hopes this means that the names of these new members will long remain on our membership roll, reminding us that their interest in the society and its work was not merely of a passing character.

The following have sent in one or more names for membership since the last convention:

THE LOCAL MANAGEMENT.

Congratulations are plentiful for the local members of the trade in whose hands were the arrangements for the convention. Although the S. A. F. has hitherto been a thing outside the experience of the city of San Francisco and likewise of most of the florists there, preparations were carried out with skill worthy of the charter members of the society from eastern cities.

Of course, the largest share of credit goes to Daniel MacRorie, who has worked steadily since his election to the office of vice-president a year ago, for the success of the convention. His addition of over 100 names to the membership list speaks volumes for his efforts, and he has been equally energetic in his activities in other lines in preparation for the annual meeting. With him, H. Plath and Angelo J. Rossi formed the local advisory committee of the S. A. F. The energy and enthusiasm shown by these leaders have also been displayed by the other committeemen, producing the results so much appreciated by convention visitors. The committee chairmen were as follows:

NEED FOR NATIONAL PUBLICITY PROGRAM

A paper by Albert Pochelon, Secretary of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, on "The Necessity of National Publicity to Advance the Interests of Commercial Floriculture in the United States," presented at the San Francisco convention of the Society of American Florists.

I SHALL try to treat this subject from the standpoint of secretary of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery, an association which has done a great deal of work in the way of publicity. So far, of course, every member has been doing his or her share in their different localities to draw their patrons' or would-be patrons' attention to the telegraph or out-of-town service, and the results gained in the last few years have been much beyond expectation.

Must Indorse Florists.

This much for the introduction of the points which I will bring out now. If the florists throughout the country can be indorsed in a national advertising campaign, drawing the public's attention to the Florists' Telegraph Delivery shops all over the country, and the public impressed that F. T. D. not only stands for telegraph orders, but also for the best service, prompt test pay, surest and most honest delivery that can be obtained in the florists' trade of today, much good may be accomplished.

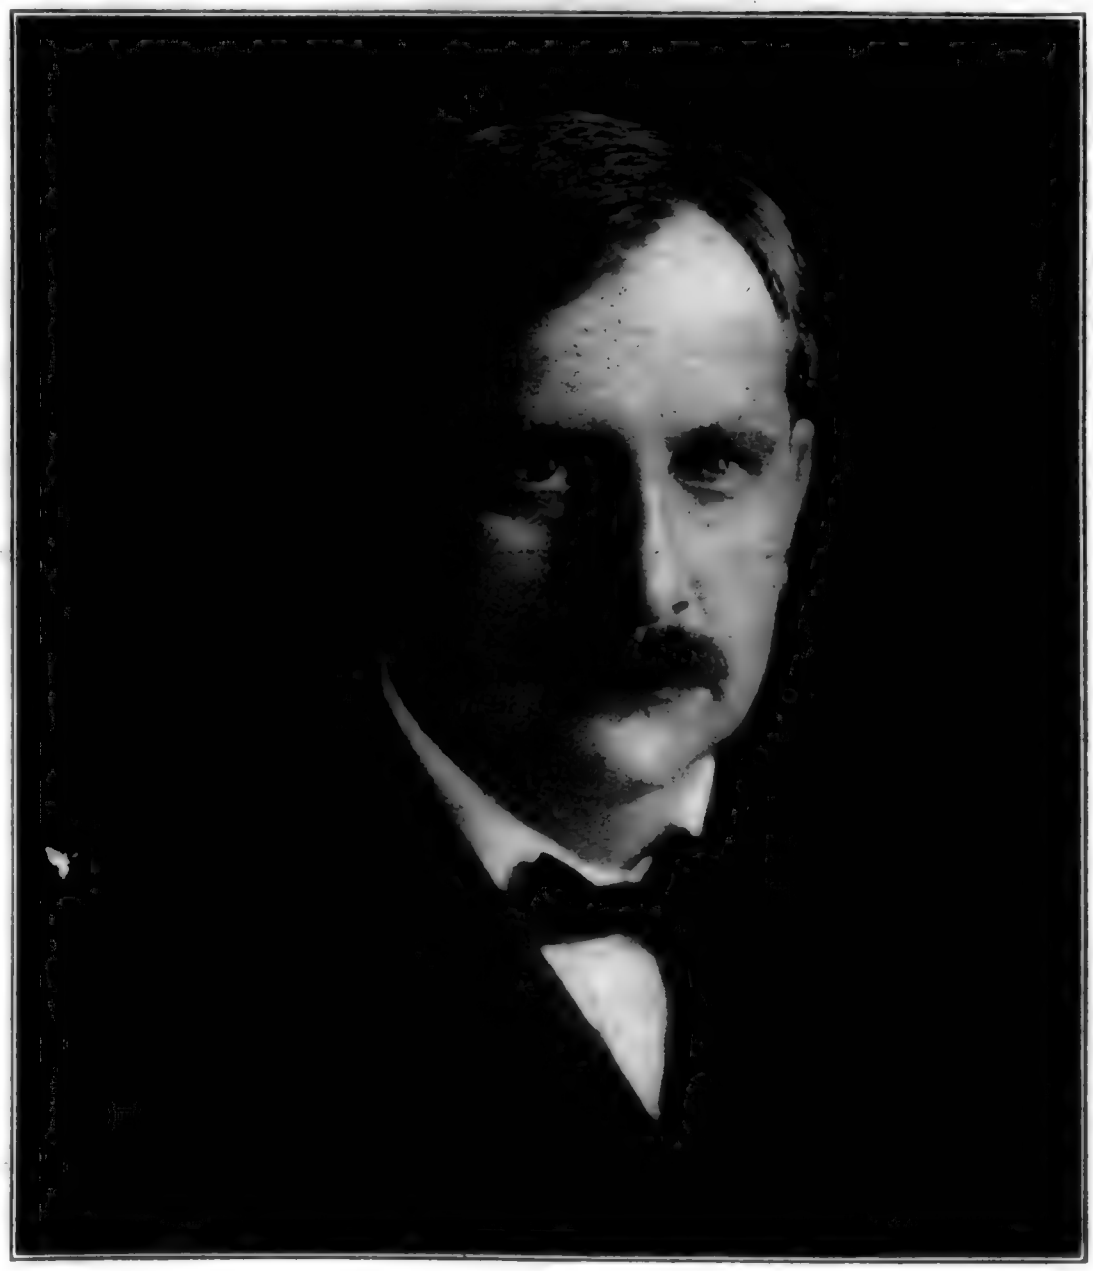
Immediately after reading the above lines you may think that I am too much F. T. D., but that is not at all so. Just remember that every good retail florist in the United States and Canada has the same right to join the F. T. D. and work with us, not alone for his or our benefit, but for the good of the florists' trade.

Today you may consider the F. T. D. a pretty good organization of the sales department in the florists' trade. If you want to undertake a national campaign, you will have to get a body of retailers who are business-like enough to see the benefit of such a campaign, and who will get up a fund to spend for this advertising. This fund must be guaranteed before any attempt to spend it is made. This campaign must go through periodicals as well as through local daily papers.

For many years the relaying of orders has been, you might say, limited to steamer deliveries in New York and to funeral work, but the day is here when this relaying can be applied to every occasion for which we sell flowers in our shops.

Many a retailer has shipped flowers from his town for 100 or more miles and felt that he would rather make the sale than relay the order. Has he gained anything by so doing? No, he has hurt the florists' trade. In almost every instance, these shipments have arrived poorly, whereas, if the man in the respective town had made the delivery, the patron would have received the full value for his money, and the florists' out-of-town service would have been advertised.

Do not forget for one moment that you may do $10,000 worth of advertising and then not be able to deliver the goods right. In such case you will do more harm than good to the florists' trade. I therefore advise, first of all, before any national advertising campaign is begun, that the society ascertain who can handle and deliver the goods the best and then back up the advertising. I should hate to think that an order sent by me to a brother florist in another town would not be handled as conscientiously as I would fill it myself.



Boost Trade, Not Self.

There is absolutely no doubt in my mind that our trade is still the least advertised of many a trade. It seems a great many retailers are waiting for some one outside the trade to advertise their goods, and you may rest assured they surely will have a long wait.

If we had 500 retailers about the country like Henry Penn and a few others whom I could name, who have spent money on a large scale for advertising and yet have done it cautiously, the whole florists' trade would gain a great deal. But, instead of being thankful to such men, what do a great many narrow, jealous retailers do? They knock, criticise, and run down the many advertising florists. At the same time they forget that if all the people the advertising florists have made flower buyers of should go back to the advertisers' shops for everything they need, they could not handle the business. Many a man and woman have I induced to use flowers on their tables, and if all should come and trade with me alone, I could not handle all the business.

Let each retailer make up his mind to cultivate a want for flowers on occasions when people do not

LAW AND LEGISLATION.

[The following is the report of Wm. F. Gude, chairman of the committee on law and legislation, presented at the San Francisco convention, August 17, 1915.]

Perhaps the most important action your committee was called upon to take during the last year was in reference to the fall shipments of azaleas and other Belgian plants, which are at present under embargo by the British authorities. These plants are exclusively of Belgian origin and production, and since the enemies of Great Britain do not get any revenue or benefit from their sale, it was felt that the embargo, while not helping the British forces, would work considerable harm to the Belgian shippers and the American importing florists.

This matter was taken up with our State department upon the request of McHutchison & Co., New York. The United States trade advisers informed us how to proceed in the matter of securing permits for the importation of azaleas, etc., from the British authorities, and we have good reasons for believing that these shipments will arrive this fall on schedule time. Definite information will be given in the trade papers as soon as an official decision is rendered by the British authorities.

Express Rates.

Your committee had but two other propositions referred to it during the last year. One of these propositions was brought up by J. A. Peterson, of Cincinnati, O., who complained of the classification of express rates in reference to plants shipped in pots and plants shipped out of pots, insisting that there should be a lower rating on plants shipped in pots or tubs.

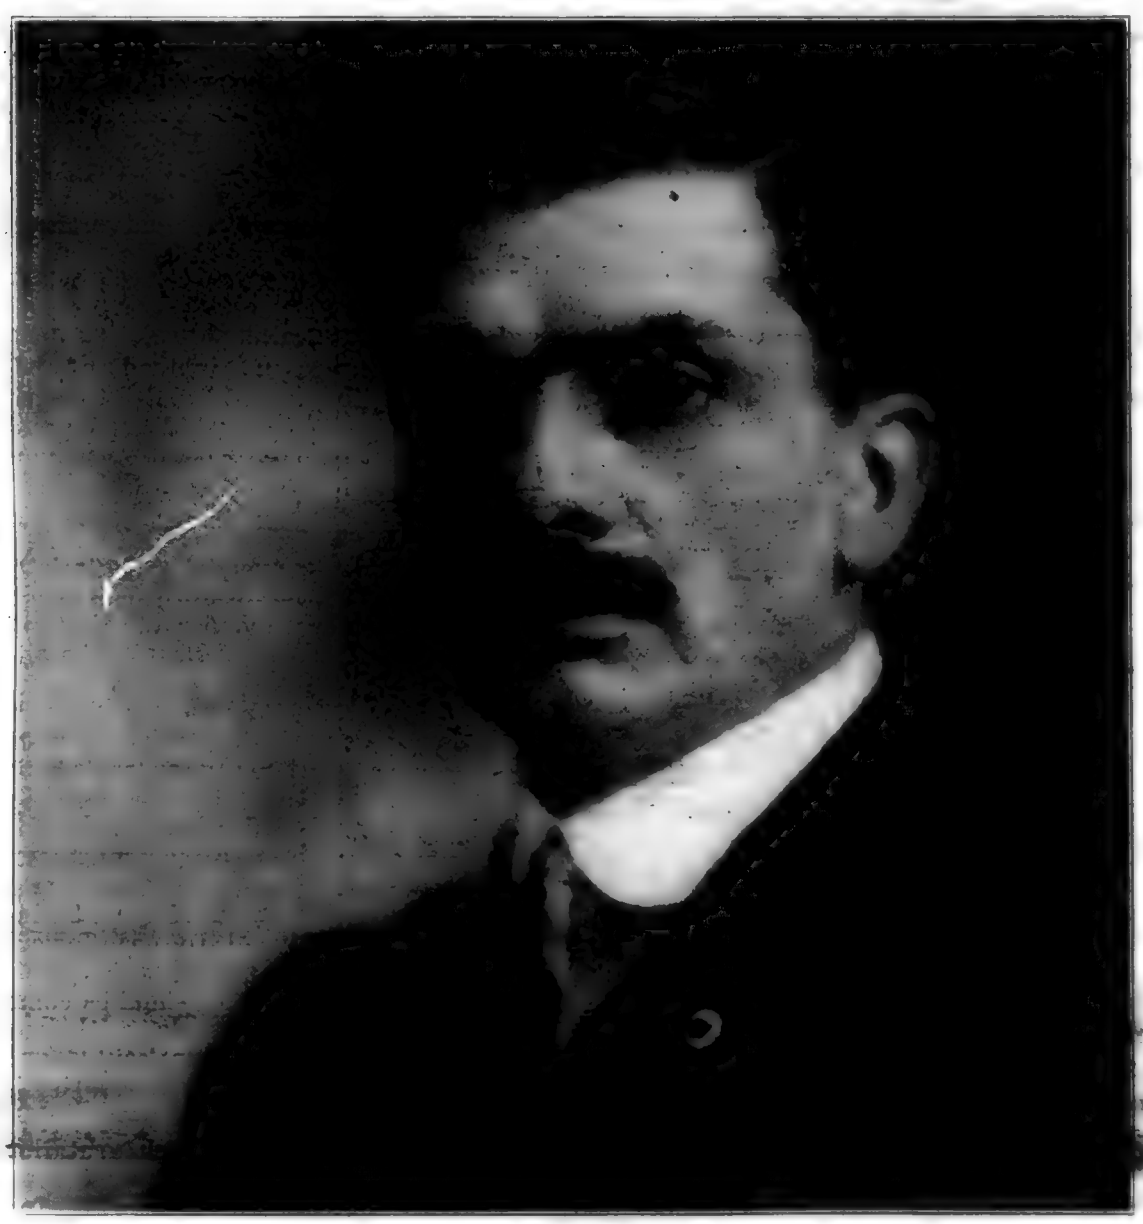
The matter was promptly taken up with the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the commission, in turn, corresponded with the several transportation companies, requesting an expression of their views. After receiving all the data that could be reasonably obtained, including copies of the correspondence between the Interstate Commerce Commission and the express companies, your committee reached the conclusion that, as the express companies seemed to be losing money on the present rates, it was an inopportune time to attempt to bring about a reduction of our rates. In other words, your committee felt that it would be the part of wisdom to "let well enough alone," that an agitation of this matter at this time might result in our rates being raised, rather than lowered, under the authority given the Interstate Commerce Commission by Congress, in March last, to revise or change the express rates.

Subsequently, your committee received notice from the Interstate Commerce Commission that a hearing would be given on the question of express rates, May 26, 1915. Feeling that the florists should be represented, your committee had A. Leftwich Sinclair, an attorney, of Washington, D. C., appear at this hearing, as counsel for our society.

In his reports Mr. Sinclair explains the purpose and scope of the hearings attended by him and points out the procedure which will have to be followed if our society wishes to obtain a formal hearing on the question of the rating of plants. Mr. Sinclair suggests that, before filing the necessary petition with the Interstate Commerce Commission, our society should arrange for a conference with the representatives of the various express companies with a view to an amicable adjustment of this matter.

Boiler Bills.

The other question referred to your committee relates to legislation concening boiler inspection. It appears that, from time to time, numerous bills are introduced in the state legislatures to require the inspection and regulation of boilers. It has been suggested that, within the next year or so, there will probably be a large number of bills of this character introduced in the state legislatures, and that our society should provide machinery by which we can resist the passage of legislation which would work a hardship on our industry.



As illustrating the vicious character of some of these bills, your committee is informed that, only a short time ago, there was introduced in the legislature of the state of Pennsylvania a bill requiring every owner of a low pressure heating boiler to pay $5 a year for the inspection of that boiler, if his boiler should have over four feet of grate area and carry over ten pounds of pressure. Had that bill passed, every florist in the state of Pennsylvania would have been obliged to pay to that state the sum of $5 a year, or more, depending on the number of boilers in use.

Your committee is also informed that there are statutes in force in several of the states which provide that every steam boiler carrying over ten pounds of steam pressure must be in charge of a licensed engineer, and that a movement is on foot looking to the enactment of similar laws throughout the country.

All such propositions, in the opinion of your committee, should be fought by our society with all the force at its command.

It is, therefore, recommended that the scope of your committee be enlarged, without delay, so that the committee can keep in touch with proceedings of the state legislatures, as well as those of Congress, and be prepared to resist the passage of all bills found to be detrimental to the members of our society.

If the foregoing recommendation of your committee is adopted, your committee should be authorized to arrange for a reporting service of some kind, and to employ counsel to represent the society, whenever, in the judgment of your committee, the services of counsel are required.

AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

[The following is the report of Wm. F. Gude, Washington representative of the S. A. F., presented at the San Francisco convention, August 17, 1915.]

The last year has been one of watchful waiting rather than strenuous action in the national capital, so far as the interests of our society are concerned. The demands on your representative there have not been excessive, from which I assume that the florists of the country have no fault to find with the laws enacted by Congress during the year.

In the early part of the winter a communication was received by your representative in which objection was raised to the classification of express rates on potted plants and plants not in pots. Another communication was received, relating to bills introduced in the state legislatures providing for the inspection and regulation of steam boilers. Both of these communications were referred to the committee on legislation and will, doubtless, be dealt with by that committee in its annual report.

The most important event of the year, both locally and nationally, was the formal dedication of the rose gardens at Arlington Farms, June 2, 1915. Some fifty florists came from different cities, as far away as Boston, to be present at the ceremonies.

A meeting of the American Rose Society was called in the rooms of the American Institute of Banking, on F street, Washington, D. C., where the entire party met, on the date mentioned, at 1 p. m. After this meeting, the party went in automobiles to the Arlington Farms, three miles away, in a downpour of rain. While the gardens were in full bloom and showed up well, the drenching rain storm, which had lasted three days, had a depressing effect on the general beauty of the gardens.

After viewing the gardens, the party returned to the city, where the formal dedication took place. Interesting addresses were made at the dedication by officers of the national government, the president of the rose society and others.

Eric James.

(Chairman Advertising Committee for the San Francisco Convention.)

After the dedicatory exercises had been concluded, the party went by automobiles to Twin Oaks, the home of Mrs. Charles J. Bell, daughter of the late Mrs. Gardner G. Hubbard, donor of the Gardner Hubbard memorial medal. Mrs. Bell had extended a kind invitation to the party to inspect her rose gardens. The party was most cordially received by Mrs. Bell. After the inspection of Mrs. Bell's gardens, refreshments were served. An hour and a half was pleasantly and profitably spent at Mrs. Bell's beautiful home, after which the party returned to the city, and left for their homes. The affair was voted a big success and one of the most interesting events in the annals of floriculture and horticulture.

I am pleased to state that the pride taken in the S. A. F. by the florists of the national capital is surpassed by no other city in the Union, and is attested by the presence here today of nearly a dozen members of this society from Washington, 3,000 miles away.

REPORT ON NATIONAL SHOW.

[The following is the report of George Asmus, chairman of the National Flower Show committee, presented at the San Francisco convention, August 17, 1915.]

Since making my last report, at the convention in Boston a year ago, matters pertaining to the show in Philadelphia next spring have progressed rapidly and favorably. At a meeting held in Philadelphia last November, the general local organization work was drafted and chairmen of committees carefully selected. They are as follows:

Press, publicity and advertising—W. F. Therkildson.
Securing exhibits—William Kleinheinz.
Decorations—John Habermehl.
Special premiums—Wm. P. Craig.
Special features—Chas. Grakelow.
Lease and contracts—A. Farenwald.
Music—Leo Niessen.
Printing—S. S. Pennock.
Concessions—Henry F. Michell.
Trade tickets—E. Fancourt.
Lectures—J. Otto Thilow.
Bureau of information—Frederick Cowperthwaite.
Secretary and treasurer—A. A. Niessen.
Committee-at-large — George Burton, Louis Burk, Robert Craig.

Good Work Already Done.

These gentlemen appointed from among the craft in Philadelphia others to serve on these committees. The chairmen of these committees form what is known as a local executive committee to carry out in detail the work of the show. Such committees have met from time to time, about once a month, and are enthusiastic about the coming exhibition. Through the generosity of the H. F. Michell Co. and H. A. Dreer, Inc., the grass plots in front of the big Convention hall, where the show is to be held, have been beautifully planted and serve as an advance notice of what will happen in the near future in the building. There recently appeared in the Philadelphia Record a half-page illustrated write-up, showing the building, front and grounds, as treated by the above mentioned firms. This shows the good work that is being done by the publicity bureau, of which W. F. Therkildson is the head.

I also wish to mention the good work of Adolph Farenwald and the committee on lease and contracts. By their earnest efforts the rental for this mammoth building has been reduced to the low rate of $100 per day. We have been able to secure the coöperation of the American Carnation Society. As 1916 will be the twenty-fifth year since its organization, the society will celebrate its silver jubilee at Philadelphia in connection with the show. Its premium list has been prepared and, underwritten by the society, will be published in the next edition of the schedule, which will go out sometime next fall. By this time the American Rose Society will have its list completed and it will also be a part of the next schedule.

Preparations Extensive.

The plant growers, of whom there are so many in the vicinity of Philadelphia, are already making preparations. The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society has also joined hands, and has appointed a committee of three to work in conjunction with and act as part of the local executive committee. The guaranteed fund of $10,000 has been completed, and contains the usual country-wide list of guarantors.

William P. Craig, chairman of committee on special premiums, reports a large list of donors, and expects in the near future to more than double what he now has.

The size of the building, which will enable all of the show to be on one floor, should prove favorable, and the large balcony, with its great seating capacity, will appeal to the public, as it seems to delight the patrons to sit among the flowers and listen to the music.

The installation of heat for the building has been cared for and will be at a normal cost. The total premium list, as offered, is $15,000, the largest sum ever offered in this country at a flower show.

I will conclude my report by saying that in my estimation the coming exhibition at Philadelphia will, from all standpoints, eclipse anything ever before attempted in this country, and I have no doubts about the financial success. The fact that the annual convention of the society is not held in the east this year will no doubt help to sell space at the National Flower Show, as the records of previous exhibitions show that the attendance of the trade at past exhibitions has been greater than at the convention, and it is at a season of the year when the buyer is usually in the market for supplies for his spring or Easter business.

Atchison, Kan.—The Groves Floral Co. has engaged Edward F. Kliem as grower. He was formerly with the Stuppy Floral Co. and E. V. Myers, of St. Joseph, Mo.

Racine, Wis.—R. E. Miller and his wife, proprietors of the Racine Floral Co., are enjoying a two weeks' visit with relatives in Beloit. They have an establishment that is of metropolitan modernity in every detail.

Thawville, Ill.—Fred Townsend believes florists and nurserymen should practice what they preach and has planted his home grounds in a manner that makes his residence one of the show places of the town. The bedding occupies practically every foot of space.

MAKING CONVENTION GARDENS PERMANENT

A paper by Theodore Wirth, of Minneapolis, on "The Problems Attending the Establishment of Permanent Convention Gardens," presented at the San Francisco convention of the Society of American Florists.

THERE can be no question as to the importance and desirability of arranging for convention gardens wherever our annual meetings are to be held. The usefulness and value of such gardens as a medium of publicity and education will not be doubted by anyone who gives the subject due consideration.

Question for Local Promoters.

There is, to the best of my knowledge and belief, no great difficulty in establishing such a garden for each convention, and the only real problem, it seems to me, is to make it permanent. This necessarily is a question which, in the main, must be solved by the local promoters of the garden. The same spirit that was employed in its creation should be able to solve the question of its future existence, permanency and growth.

I have, in the past, presented the question whether or not it would be possible to select the convention city two years in advance, instead of one, in order to provide for two years' growth of the hardy material which could be used to advantage in the planting of the garden.

Personally, I wish this could be done, because I realize the great and enduring benefits that would accrue, and I believe that all plantsmen will agree with me. There can be no doubt that the value of the gardens, from every point of view, would be greatly enhanced by this additional time given them in preparation, and that the interest of professionals and the public alike, before and after, as well as during the convention, would be correspondingly increased.

However, if this plan is not deemed feasible, there is still one advantage open with the present arrangement, which has not been made use of in our past undertakings along this line.

If our brother florists and horticulturists of the city ambitious of securing the next convention are anxious to have the best garden thus far made, they will select a piece of land for that purpose far in advance, and will submit a well arranged plan to the convention at which they make their bid for the next meeting. If they land the prize, they should prepare the grounds at once, and secure without delay all planting material that can be transplanted to advantage in the fall. In this way, most of the perennials, shrubs and trees will be well established in the spring, and make a good showing at convention time.

Theodore Wirth.
(The Man Who Made the Minneapolis Garden.)

Concentrate Control.

Early solicitation among prospective exhibitors is, for many reasons, absolutely necessary. A time limit should be set for allotment of space in the garden, and the special attention of such prospective exhibitors must be called to this. All space not applied for by a certain date should then be offered to nearby and local growers with a slightly extended time limit. This limit should be set so as to give the committee in charge an opportunity to secure suitable planting material for filling the unsold spaces in the garden in good time.

It is absolutely necessary, in my opinion, to give the committee in charge of the garden all necessary power and means, and to concentrate the actual direction and supervision in one active, experienced, dependable man. Tell this man to go ahead, and then do not interfere with him, but give him all the assistance he needs when he asks for it. I believe it would be a good investment, generally speaking, to send him on a two months' trip to visit personally the principal growers in all parts of the country for the purpose of soliciting exhibits. Let him start right at the convention. The right man will thereby awaken the general interest of the trade and secure the desired support. Correspondence would not be nearly so effective.

I cannot lay too much stress on the necessity of giving all exhibits the best possible attention and care, and of guarding the interests of the exhibitor in every possible way. Be sure that he gets the space he bought, that his plants are properly labeled, and his firm's name is properly displayed. Give him all he is entitled to and as much more as you can.

It is too much to expect that many distant firms will keep up their exhibits after the convention year. Yet some of the wide-awake and progressive growers will undoubtedly be glad to make use of our gardens permanently and thus exhibit their goods and special novelties in different parts of the country at the same time. In most instances it will, therefore, become desirable and necessary, after the first year, to change the layout of the garden and to devote the larger part of the grounds to hardy material, and a much smaller portion to the tender annual bedding plants.

This we have done at Minneapolis and the new layout will be as beautiful and instructive to our people from now on as the real convention garden was to us professionals two years ago.

Under Society's Auspices.

The convention garden must, in my opinion, always be created and maintained under the auspices of the national society. The price for space should, if at all possible, be the same wherever the garden is, and should be high enough to defray the expense of maintenance. The chairman of the local garden committee should be appointed a member of a similar committee of the S. A. F., and as such could act as the executive officer of both committees.

The garden should be located on public land, in order to make its future existence possible, and I know of no good reason why every city park administration should not be not only willing, but really anxious, to coöperate with us in the establishment of such trial and exhibition grounds, which cannot help being of educational value to the people of their city.

Our esteemed president, Patrick Welch, has assigned to me the subject herein presented, but I am not sure that I have covered the ground to his entire satisfaction. There are really no great problems, no great obstacles, that I can see, attending the establishment of permanent convention gardens, and I believe that if the old saying, "Where there's a will, there's a way," is applied at all times, there can never be any doubt as to our ability to establish such convention gardens wherever we may go, and to make them successful in every instance.

ENTOMOLOGIST'S REPORT.

[The following is the report of Dr. W. E. Britton, entomologist of the S. A. F., presented at the San Francisco convention, August 17, 1915.]

All who have been troubled by the chrysanthemum leaf-miner, or marguerite fly, Phytomyza chrysanthemi Kowarz., should obtain bulletin No. 157 of the Massachusetts Agricultural Experiment Station, Amherst, Mass., issued recently.

For the last twenty-five years this insect has caused damage to composite plants in the northern states. The adult is a 2-winged fly which lays an egg in an incision just under the epidermis of the leaf. This egg hatches in five days, and the larva mines in the parenchyma of the leaf for about two weeks, when it transforms to the pupa stage inside the leaf. Two weeks later the adult emerges. There are ten generations each year.

Spraying the plants with nicotine solution is a remedy. If Black Leaf 40 is the kind used, it should be diluted at the rate of about one part in 400 parts of water, or roughly two teaspoonfuls in a gallon.

Another chrysanthemum pest new to our continent is the chrysanthemum midge, a European insect which has recently caused much damage in some large commercial greenhouses in Michigan. The presence of this insect was recorded by Dr. E. P. Felt, state entomologist of New York, in the Florists' Exchange, Vol. XXXIX, page 856, April 10, 1915. It causes a swelling on the main stem near the surface of the ground, galls or enlargements on the midribs of the leaves, and close, ill-shaped heads, which ruin the plant for commercial purposes. It will probably be difficult to control this pest.

Further injury to chrysanthemums may be here recorded by a mite, Tarsonemus pallidus Banks, mentioned in my report of last year. This time it occurred in October in a commercial greenhouse at Hartford, Conn., and many of the petals had withered and turned brown.

New Pest on Pines.

During the last year one of the destructive European sawflies, Diprion (Lophyrus) simile Hartig, has been found in this country, where it has apparently become established. The insect passes the winter in its cocoon on or under leaves and rubbish near the ground. There are apparently three broods each year in Connecticut, the cocoons of the first and second broods often being formed on the twigs. The larvæ are about an inch long, greenish yellow with brown markings, and have the appearance characteristic of sawfly larvæ. They feed upon the needles of several species of pine, including the white pine, Austrian pine, Pinus densiflora, P. excelsa and P. flexilis. It will doubtless be found to attack other species as well.

The eggs are laid in longitudinal incisions in the needles and are placed end to end.

The cocoons are brown oval bodies about three-eighths of an inch long and of a tough, leathery texture.

The adults have a wing-spread of from about half an inch in the male to three-fourths of an inch in the female. The male is black, but the female has yellow thorax and abdomen.

Though this insect occurs in four towns in Connecticut, it will probably be found in other states. Just how it was brought to this country is not known, but probably cocoons came over on nursery stock and either passed the inspectors or perhaps came in before the inspection system was established. Parasites of this sawfly have been observed in Connecticut. Spraying the pine trees with lead arsenate, three pounds in fifty gallons of water, is the best remedy.

A preliminary illustrated account of this insect may be found in the Journal of Economic Entomology, Vol. 8, page 379, June, 1915.

Juniper Web Worm.

Several samples have been received by the writer of juniper twigs webbed together by a juniper web worm. On rearing the adult, it proved to be Dichromerus marginellus Fahr. Dr. E. P. Felt has recorded this insect from Long Island and from the Hudson river valley in New York state. This is also a European species which has appeared in the United States during the last few years. The real damage from it will be in ornamental plantings in parks and on private grounds, and doubtless may be prevented by a thorough spraying of lead arsenate early in spring and again late in summer.

REPORT ON SMITH MEMORIAL.

[The following is the report of Wm. F. Gude, chairman of the committee on the Wm. R. Smith memorial, presented at the San Francisco convention, August 17, 1915.]

On account of the general depression in business all over the United States and further on account of various other disturbances throughout the world, which affect us generally, the memorial committee thought best not to push the project during the last year.

The following statement shows the money collected to date:

Your committee feels hopeful of receiving some good sums from influential citizens and a liberal support from the Congress of the United States.

Your committee has not decided what form of a memorial to suggest, as their decision will no doubt be largely governed by the amount of subscriptions collected and government influence that they may be able to secure.

Columbus, O.—H. C. Phelps is to erect a range of greenhouses at his country place near here.

Whiting, Ind.—Louis E. Klemm and his wife, of the Klemm Greenhouses, have returned from a most delightful trip through Virginia. Mrs. Klemm, who was recently quite ill, is now making an uninterrupted recovery.

Kenosha, Wis.—Louis Turner & Sons have moved into their new location in the Flatiron building. They now have one of the most up-to-date stores in the state. All decorations are in white. The store was formally opened August 14, when, it is estimated, 5,000 people passed through its doors, each lady receiving an American Beauty rose and each gentleman a carnation as a souvenir.

THE ALLIED SOCIETIES

TELEGRAPH DELIVERY.

The by-laws of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery provide that its members must also be members of the S. A. F. and that the annual meeting shall be held on the Wednesday of the S. A. F. convention and in the same city, the officers elected holding until their successors are selected. In the absence of the president, Vice-president Gude called the San Francisco meeting to order, with an attendance of 26 members. The report of the secretary was presented, for inclusion in the S. A. F. book of Proceedings for 1915. The list of members appears as a page advertisement, corrected to August 15, in this issue of The Review.

Officers were elected as follows:

President—Irwin Bertermann, Indianapolis, Ind.

Vice-president—W. F. Gude, Washington, D. C.

Secretary—Albert Pochelon, Detroit, Mich.

Treasurer—Wm. L. Rock, Kansas City, Mo.

New directors—F. Pelicano, San Francisco; A. Lange, Chicago; Frank Stuppy, St. Joseph, Mo.

After a long discussion of amendments to the by-laws, it was recommended that satisfactory references be required from new members and that any member refusing to pay bills be stricken from the list promptly and members notified.

There will be meetings of the board of directors at Cleveland in November and at Philadelphia in March, at which the attendance of members of the association will be urged.

LADIES' S. A. F.

In recent years the second evening of convention week has been set aside for the annual reception by the Ladies' S. A. F., which has become one of the chief social features of the biggest trade gathering, but this year the reception was omitted because of the small attendance of active members, most of whom live in the east. The president, Mrs. Gude, of Washington, was present, as was the vice-president, Mrs. Asmus, of Chicago.

In opening the annual business session, held on the morning of August 18, at San Francisco, President Mrs. Gude said: "It is with much pleasure that I welcome you to this, the ninth annual session of the Ladies' S. A. F., and I extend to you all a cordial and heartfelt greeting. We are assembled here to consider the work of the past year and to make plans for the future. May our deliberations be guided by wisdom and may this session be so filled with good work that nothing will mar the harmony of the occasion. May our experience help us to improve our present opportunities. Keeping in mind at all times the saying that it is good for men to dwell together in unity, and practicing that, it is even better for women to meet and confer together in harmony, sincerity and devotion to our cause, assisting the men in their able calling by enabling us to make them brighter and happier by the inspiring influences gathered at these meetings. And so when we return to our homes from this convention may we all feel better and happier for having met, refreshed in health and spirit and better enabled to pursue our duties for the coming year. May good health, happiness and prosperity ever abide with you."

The report of the secretary, Mrs. Maynard, of Detroit, showed the society to be stronger in membership than ever before, and the report of the treasurer gave evidence of a good financial position.

Officers were elected as follows:

President—Mrs. John Vallance, Oakland, Cal.

Vice-president—Mrs. W. W. Coles, Kokomo, Ind.

Second vice-president—Mrs. Robert C. Kerr, Houston, Tex.

Secretary—Mrs. George W. Smith, Cleveland, O.

Treasurer—Mrs. A. M. Herr, Lancaster, Pa.

Special committee—Mrs. J. G. Hancock, chairman.

FLORISTS' HAIL ASSOCIATION.

The secretary's report compiled for the meeting of the Florists' Hail Association at San Francisco, August 19, showed the organization to be continuing its flourishing career, having added over a million feet to the amount of glass insured and over $2,500 to its reserve fund. The association now carries insurance on an equivalent of 40,411,003 square feet of glass, and has 1,621 members. The cash balance on hand is $36,730.12, of which $1,713.90 belongs to the reserve fund. The remainder of the reserve fund, $34,000, is invested in bonds. During the year the association paid $5,513.80 for an equivalent of 110,276 square feet of single thick glass, and $13,771.28 for an equivalent of 196,733 square feet of double thick glass. There are a number of unadjusted losses on hand, proofs of which had not arrived at the time of the report.

The officers of the association are: President, E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind.; vice-president, J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.; secretary, John G. Esler, Saddle River, N. J., and treasurer, Joseph Heacock, Wyncote, Pa.

The treasurer's report for the year showed the following:

RECEIPTS.

Balance	$27,734.80
Twenty-seventh assessment	28,973.55
Membership fees	1,096.14
New members	712.45
Additional membership	591.77
Extra one-half assessment	92.22
Extra whole assessment	314.04
Reinsurance	284.99
Interest on reserve fund	1,347.50
Interest bank deposit, Jenkintown National Bank	412.04
Interest bank deposit, Rittenhouse Trust Co.	19.40
Refund of overpayment on loss of Stuppy Floral Co.	12.00
	$61,590.90

DISBURSEMENTS.

Losses paid July 30, 1914, to July 26, 1915	$19,285.08
Expenses	3,699.70
Investment	1,876.00
Balance on hand, Jenkintown National bank	13,782.97
Balance on hand, Rittenhouse Trust Co.	22,947.15
	$61,590.90

President Hill called the San Francisco meeting to order and made an informal report on the Wilcox loss at Council Bluffs, which he had inspected on his way to the coast. This is by far the largest loss the Hail Association ever has sustained and will approximate $16,000, but its payment will not in any way impair the strength of the association or the confidence the trade reposes in it. Secretary Esler was present.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

In the absence of President Pennock and Vice-president Reuter, ex-President W. R. Pierson called the midsummer meeting of the American Rose Society to order at San Francisco this week. The attendance of members was light, but Secretary Hammond was on hand with all the official records. Robert Pyle, who has two strings to his bow, the rose and the canna, also came on from West Grove, Pa. He cherishes two ambitions for the Rose Society; the development of its chain of test gardens and the extension of its membership among the amateur rose lovers, for both of which he works at every opportunity. The secretary's records show the Rose Society to be making steady progress. Thirty new members, mostly amateur, have been added during the year, but the organization still is largely professional, 160 out of its 260 members growing roses for a profit. The society has $3,250 in its permanent fund, safely invested, and $1,000 in its general fund. The showing is all the better from the fact that when Wm. C. Barry proposed making Mr. Hammond secretary the society was in debt to exhibitors, for premiums unpaid. The secretary keenly feels the need of literature with which to keep the society in touch with its members, especially the amateurs. A quarterly bulletin will cost $500 or more per year, in addition to the work in preparing and distributing it.

The Rose Society will hold its next meeting at Cleveland in November and its annual meeting at Philadelphia in March.

PARK SUPERINTENDENTS.

The American Association of Park Superintendents, Gustav X. Amrhyn president and R. W. Cotterill secretary, selected the same date and place as the S. A. F. for its convention this year, and its members are participating in the S. A. F. meetings and entertainments as well as having a program of their own. The opening session was Wednesday morning. Papers are being eliminated to give time for sightseeing. August 22 the park men go in a body to San Diego.

The by-laws were amended to reclassify the membership and to require five years' experience for senior members. The admission fee was raised to $10.

NURSERYMEN'S CONVENTIONS.

Reports of the conventions of the Pacific Coast Nurserymen's Association and the California Association of Nurserymen last week at San Francisco appear in the Nursery Trade Department, page 94, in this issue.

NATIONAL GARDENERS.

The National Association of Gardeners, of which John W. Everitt, Glen Cove, N. Y., is president, and M. C. Ebel, of Madison, N. J., is secretary, is holding its annual convention in connection with that of the S. A. F. this year. The attendance is small and the interest is in the multitude of examples of good gardening to be seen in the vicinity rather than in discussions in the meeting hall.

AMERICAN GLADIOLUS SOCIETY.

The American Gladiolus Society ordinarily has held its annual meeting in connection with that of the S. A. F., but this year decided that it was inexpedient to do so. Most of the membership and all of the officers are in the east and it is, of course, impossible to ship cut blooms across the country to San Francisco. Consequently the society voted to hold its annual meeting this year at Newport, R. I., opening August 18. It was early apparent that the Newport show would be the largest and most interesting thus far held by the society. In addition to the usual number of large trade exhibits, the show this year brought out exhibits from a large number of private gardeners of the Newport district.

OHIO GLADIOLUS SHOW.

Entries Many and Good.

The third annual flower show of the Gladiolus Society of Ohio, held August 13 and 14 at the Hollenden hotel, Cleveland, attracted the gladiolus experts of the central states to this flower show and convention city. Their entries, all of high quality, totaled 142, twice the number at last year's exhibition.

In addition to the vases of the gladiolus men, there were the various displays of the Cleveland retailers to excite comment and admiration and also the notable exhibit of Fordhook hybrids of W. Atlee Burpee & Co. These blooms, containing some rare and remarkable shadings and colors, were declared by the judges, F. W. Griffin, of Cleveland, and W. C. Werner, of Painesville, to be worthy of special mention.

The Cleveland retailers put the flower of the exhibition to splendid use in their various displays. Table decorations were exhibited by Knoble Bros., Smith & Fetters Co., James Eadie Co., Jones-Russell Co., J. M. Gasser Co. and Westman & Getz. Basket arrangements were shown by A. M. Albrecht, Knoble Bros., J. M. Gasser Co., Jones-Russell Co., Westman & Getz, James Eadie Co., D. Charlesworth & Son and Ohio Floral Co. Knoble Bros. exhibited a corsage bouquet, and A. M. Albrecht a bride's bouquet.

An exhibit of asters was made by C. Betscher, of Canal Dover, and one of asters and centaureas by the Carl Hagenburger Co., of West Mentor. General displays of gladioli were made by the following:

A. H. Austin Co., Wayland, O.
C. Betscher, Canal Dover, O.
Bidwell & Fobes, Kinsman, O.
Joe Coleman Co., Lexington, O.
Madison Cooper, Calcium, N. Y.
M. Crawford, Cuyahoga Falls, O.
R. A. Cawley, Painesville, O.
R. E. Huntington, Painesville, O.
Miss L. C. Mizer, South Euclid, O.
Munsell & Harvey, Ashtabula, O.
Perkins-King Co., West Mentor, O.
James F. Rychlik, Painesville, O.
E. E. Stewart, Brooklyn, Mich.
Jacob Thomann & Sons, Rochester, N. Y.
Wayside Gardens, Mentor, O.

The Prize-Winners.

The quality of the vases entered for premiums was excellent, and the unusually large number of entries made the prize-winning standard high. The society's certificate of merit awarded for seedlings or other varieties never before shown at the society's exhibition was won by the A. H. Austin Co. on three varieties and by Jacob Thomann & Sons on one. The awards in the remaining classes were as follows:

AMATEUR CLASSES.

Best display, ten or more varieties, six spikes each—Madison Cooper, first.
Vase of any yellow variety, ten spikes—Miss L. C. Mizer, first.
Vase of any pink variety, ten spikes—Madison Cooper, first.
Six spikes, any named variety—Madison Cooper, first; R. A. Cawley, second; Miss L. C. Mizer, third.

OPEN CLASSES.

Best display of seedlings never before exhibited, three or more varieties, three or more spikes each—A. H. Austin Co., first; J. Thomann & Sons, second.

New seedling, any color, six spikes—A. H. Austin Co., first.
Vase Europa, ten spikes—E. E. Stewart, first.
Vase America, ten spikes—Wayside Gardens, first.
Vase Mrs. F. King, ten spikes—J. F. Rychlik, first.
Vase Mrs. F. Pendleton, ten spikes—R. E. Huntington, first.
Display seedlings, 100 spikes, one or more each—Wayside Gardens, first.
Display winning largest number of premiums—R. E. Huntington, first.
Best arranged display—R. E. Huntington, first; Bidwell & Fobes, second.
Collection red—Munsell & Harvey, first.
New variety, never shown here, twelve spikes—R. E. Huntington, first.
Best display by one exhibitor—A. H. Austin Co., first.
New white seedling, six spikes—J. Thomann & Sons, first.

The committee in charge of the exhibition was composed of H. J. Alford, of Garrettsville, chairman; R. E. Huntington and Mrs. A. H. Austin. C. Betscher is president of the society, Mrs. A. H. Austin, vice-president, and Wilbur A. Christy, of Warren, secretary and treasurer. F. A. F.

OBITUARY

Thomas A. Ivey.

Thomas A. Ivey, of Thomas A. Ivey & Sons, Ltd., Port Dover, Ont., was killed Saturday night, August 14, in a collision between the taxicab in which he was riding and a locomotive. The automobile had all but cleared the railroad tracks, at a crossing in Port Dover, when its left rear guard was struck by the locomotive. Mr. Ivey was hurled against a post, and then on to the sidewalk. When the train was stopped and the automobile moved, he was found beneath the car. He was alive, but so seriously injured that he died shortly after arriving at the city hospital.

The deceased was 68 years of age, and well known throughout Canada. The home and business establishment is at Port Dover, but Mr. Ivey carried on a wholesale and retail business at Montreal, Hamilton, Hazelwood and Brantford.

Mr. Ivey is survived by his wife, four sons and three daughters. The sons, John, T. L. B., Harry W. and Benson A., were associated with Mr. Ivey in his business. The daughters are Mrs. Joseph Lambe, Mrs. M. E. Howell and Miss Ida M. Ivey, all of Port Dover.

John Macdill Clark.

John Macdill Clark, secretary of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, died at his home, 5954 West Huron street, early Sunday morning, August 15. About three weeks ago he suffered from what he was pleased to term a touch of ptomaine poisoning, but he could not be constrained to regard the matter in a serious light and was back at his desk in a day or two. The afternoon of August 10, however, he experienced such severe pains that he was prevailed upon to go home. The night of August 12 he underwent an operation at the West Suburban hospital and the attending physicians declared there was practically no hope of recovery. Contrary to expectations, Mr. Clark seemed to rally wonderfully and up to late August 14 there seemed some possibility of his overcoming the strain, but by midnight he began to lose ground rapidly and died about 5 o'clock. Death was due to an ulceration of the stomach.

Mr. Clark was born in Kirkcudbright, Scotland, May 8, 1860. He came to this country with his parents at the age of 7 years and lived near New York city, receiving his education in the public schools. He first worked for the clothing firm of Brooks Bros., New York, but soon left this position for one with the seed house of Cowan & Co., New York. After this he worked successively for the Robert Buist Co., of Philadelphia, and Vaughan's Seed Store, of Chicago, until January 1, 1885, when he cast his lot with S. F. Leonard, then starting in business for himself. When the Leonard Seed Co. was incorporated in 1891, he was chosen to be secretary. This office he held at the time of his death.

For many years Mr. Clark had been prominent in the seed trade as an expert in types, possessing rare qualifications for his peculiar work, and bringing a practical knowledge and experience to bear on the subject that gained for him a high place in the esteem and confidence of seed trade and agricultural circles. He was a member of the farmers' institute of the eighth congressional district, and for several years had been one of its directors. His business associates pay him the respect of stating that to his even temper, his untiring efforts and close attention to detail, together with his efficient cooperation with the rest of the organization, is due to no small extent the unfaltering advance of the house. In his more than thirty years' connection with the company there has never been a moment of friction. His associates will not try to fill his place; they will merely learn to do without him.

Mr. Clark is survived by his wife and three children, James, Leonard and Margaret Clark, all of Chicago. The funeral services were at the home Tuesday, August 17, and interment was in Forest Home cemetery. There were many flowers.

John M. Clark.

Elias G. Fuhren.

Elias G. Fuhren, who operated a range of greenhouses for many years on Wilkens avenue, near Violetville, Baltimore, Md., died August 10 at the age of 62 at his home, 1823 Frederick avenue, Baltimore. He is survived by his wife, two sons and two daughters.

Fred B. Barrington.

Many members of the trade, especially in eastern Massachusetts, will deeply regret to hear of the death of Fred B. Barrington, who for the last twenty-five years had conducted a store in Gloucester, Mass. His death occurred August 13. He had the leading flower business in his city and was well known in Boston wholesale circles.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Toledo, O.—Frank H. Foster, assignee of the bankrupt Art Floral & Decorating Co., has sent out checks to the company's creditors in payment of a first and final dividend of fourteen and one-half per cent. A receiver was appointed for the company May 26 upon suit of the State Bank of Oak Park, which had obtained judgment on a note against the concern for $612.40. The head of the company, which was incorporated in 1912, was Samuel Graff, who, with Nate Lewis as his partner, conducts the Art Floral Co., at 7 West Monroe street, Chicago.

Randolph, Mass.—Marcus L. Tirrell filed a petition in bankruptcy August 9, scheduling liabilities of $454 and no assets.

Webb City, Mo.—The recent failure of J. E. Meinhart was incidental to the closing of the Mineral Beet bank, which held Mr. Meinhart's paper for several thousand dollars. In reality, the bankruptcy was forced by state order. The greenhouses and personal property of Mr. Meinhart were sold at mortgagee sale. All collections were transferred to A. D. Hatten, representative of the defunct bank's stockholders.

Punxsutawney, Pa.—Robert M. Campbell is building an addition to his greenhouse.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1915: President, Patrick Welch, Boston; vice-president, Daniel MacRorie, San Francisco; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo

Thirty-second annual convention, Houston, Texas, August 15 to 18, 1916.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

HAVE something to smile about—and smile. Nobody wants to buy flowers of a grouch.

GROW good stock and income is assured; the success of the business then will depend on the ability with which the money is handled.

TAKING the summer business by and large, the trade has small reason for dissatisfaction, especially in the middle west. Nearly everywhere the production of stock has been unusually large and little has gone to waste.

IF there was a flood of gladiolus blooms last year, some stronger adjective is needed to describe the inundation of the present season. It is without precedent. And yet, most of the stock finds a sale at some price; there seems an unlimited outlet.

THE rains have given the growers something to think about. Carnations are affected by a rust and roses never had so much mildew as this season; indeed, the atmosphere has been so saturated for so long a time that, over a considerable part of the country, growers find themselves confronting problems that are wholly new.

IT is figured that, the embargo holding effective, lily of the valley will begin to shorten in supply about January 1, with a real scarcity developing as spring approaches. Some dealers have a six months' supply. The Danish crop will nearly all come to America, with a little from Holland, but it will be only a fraction of the usual imports from Hamburg.

HONORABLE MENTION.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper. Among those who have this week enrolled themselves for more than one year in advance are:

TWO YEARS

Stoll & Bro., Brooklyn, Md.
Stoeckle, A., Watertown, N. Y.
Adgate & Son, Warren, O.
Beckett, C. L., Co., Peabody, Mass.
Opelika Floral Co., Opelika, Fla.
Sands, Murray, Jackson, Tenn.
Carpenter, Wm., Des Moines, Ia.
Hershey, Harley L., Louisville, O.

The Review stops coming when the subscription runs out. The green notice with the last copy tells the story; no bills are run up; no duns are sent.

GETTING THE AZALEAS.

With reference to the British embargo on the exportation of Belgian products via Rotterdam to America, the American Consul General at London cabled the State department at Washington August 10:

Referring to the Department's communication of July 9, export of azaleas from Belgium permitted only on condition no payment until end of hostile occupation or payment to bank in England on undertaking from bank that no money will be withdrawn except under license. I suggest that if payments are thus made, licenses to remit limited amounts to Belgium for personal support or imperative business necessities will probably be granted occasionally.

Apparently the English government intends to prevent money becoming accessible to its enemies, but will not otherwise interfere with Belgian exports. It remains to be seen what will be the attitude of the German civil administration in Belgium under the circumstances. Will it permit the export of merchandise to be paid for in England?

THE VOTE WAS JUSTIFIED.

When a majority of one vote sent the Society of American Florists from Boston, in 1914, clear across the continent, to San Francisco for the 1915 convention, there were some who considered it too long a jump. Perhaps it was, for individuals, but The Review was not of those who considered it so for the organization. It must be remembered that money-making is no part of the objects of the society.

To advance the love of floriculture and horticulture in America; to promote and encourage the development of their industries; to classify their products; to hold meetings and exhibitions; to cooperate with the national and state governments and horticultural bodies in disseminating horticultural knowledge.

That is the way the constitution phrases the purposes of the organization and certainly these objects have been well furthered by holding the convention in San Francisco his week.

In no way has the society suffered save through decreased receipts from the sale of space in the trades' display. The promptness with which the members for 1914 have paid the dues for 1915 has been an evidence of the strength of the S. A. F. as well as a tribute to the indefatigability of its secretary. July 30, 1914, the society had a total cash balance of $30,192.40, while by July 30, 1915, this had increased to $32,390.46. Surely, the society was in a position to forego its usual profit from the trades' display for the sake of breaking new ground—and that it was fertile soil is shown by the fact that Vice-president MacRorie has obtained in California in the last seven months 102 new members, a number of life members among them.

The S. A. F. has gone as far afield this year as it can go, but the results have justified the confidence of those who cast the votes that brought it about. Indeed, the success of the Pacific coast convention will no doubt make it easier to carry the society to other parts of the country not yet visited and it is to be expected that as the years go by the S. A. F. will be found to have become in fact as it has been in name, all-American.

MAIL LETTER WITH PARCEL.

Announcement has just been made by the Postoffice department that it is permissible to attach a letter inclosed in an envelope having postage prepaid at the first-class rate, to the outside of a parcel of third or fourth-class matter properly prepaid at the regular rate. The particular advantage of this is that letter and parcel reach the addressee together. C. L. L.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Although none too evident, there has been a real improvement in market conditions during the week. To be sure, there still is more stock than the demand requires, but in some lines there has been a gradual shortening, while in no one has there been any appreciable increase in supply.

If the gladiolus problem were eliminated there could be no possible cause for complaint. But gladioli are everywhere, and as they are cheaper than anything else, retailers yield to the temptation to get all they can for their money and use them wherever they can to the exclusion of other flowers. Asters are plentiful, but there are few enough good ones. Early asters have about ceased coming to the market and the midseason varieties are arriving haltingly. Really good asters are clearing at a satisfactory price, but poor ones cannot be moved at all.

Beauties are clearing better than they have cleared for many weeks. There is a shortage of stock in lengths less than twenty inches. The quality on the whole is none too good. Roses, while there are increased supplies in certain quarters, are clearing well. The greatest demand, of course, is for Russell, but Killarney Brilliant and all the yellow varieties, with the exception of short Wards, are making a remarkably good showing for the time of the year. Richmonds, however, are sluggish. Milady has the preference in red.

A few Golden Glow chrysanthemums have found their way to the market, but they are snapped up so quickly that not all buyers know of their arrival. They are of good size, stem and foliage. Valley is selling steadily enough, and the growers seem to have reduced the supply sufficiently to keep it well within the clearing line. Lilies are in good supply and meet with a fair demand. Cattleyas are scarce, but as it does not take much stock to satisfy the demand, there is generally enough to go around. Daisies, coreopsis, delphiniums and gypsophila can be found on the market, but with most growers they are done for. A few dahlias have made their appearance, though in this market they have never been accorded an overly cordial reception, and apparently this

Cut Flower Service

Mail this coupon and you will receive regular bulletins giving grades and prices

No one greenhouse, whether his or someone else's, gives the progressive florist a consistent supply.

His own greenhouse brings good profit, but for year-round supply the sagacious florist depends on a trustworthy service, such as the A. L. Randall Co., of Chicago.

It is, in fact, a co-operative service receiving the choicest offerings from the nation's largest growers and in turn distributing them to thousands of florists throughout the country.

Saving in shipping expense, labor and time, together with the certainty of always receiving the lowest prevailing prices, warrant your accepting Randall Service as an ally in your march to success.

season will prove no exception to the rule. Greens are moving. More cannot be said of them.

Wholesalers Get More Space.

It must be that the Lemoyne building, at the southwest corner of Wabash avenue and Lake street, has proven an excellent location for the two concerns that moved into it just before Easter, as this week they have both closed leases for additional space in which to handle their increased business.

The E. C. Amling Co., which uses the street floor store at 174 North Wabash, with a large sales space in the interior of the building on that floor and a working and storage space in the basement, has doubled its street frontage by leasing the store at 176 North Wabash. The walls are to come out. A part of the new space is to be used for office purposes, which will permit a large increase in and a more advantageous use of the selling space.

The A. L. Randall Co. has made a lease for five years on all the heretofore unoccupied space in the basement of the Lemoyne building, in which the company heretofore has occupied the entire second floor. With the space under sidewalks and areaways, the basement is larger than the upper floors, which are 115x169. The new space is to be used for shipping and factory departments, permitting the use of all the second floor for selling and the display of merchandise except the space reserved for the office force.

Chicago Club Entertains.

Members of the Chicago Florists' Club entertained the out-of-town florists who gathered here August 12 to go in a party to the San Francisco convention. Acting on invitation of the club, the visitors gathered at the Auditorium hotel at 1:30 p. m., where they were placed in automobiles and taken for an extended tour of the boulevard and park systems of the city. The tour terminated at the Bismarck gardens, where a delightful dinner was served. Following this, the visitors were taken to their trains.

Those supplying automobiles for the occasion were: Arnold Ringier, of the W. W. Barnard Co.; G. F. Sykes, of the Lord & Burnham Co.; Fred Lautenschlager, of the Kroeschell Bros. Co.; P. J. Foley and his son, of the Foley Greenhouse Manufacturing Co.; E. F. Kurowski, of the John C. Moninger Co.; J. C. Vaughan, of Vaughan's Seed Store; H. N. Bruns; W. J. Keimel, of Wendland & Keimel; Philip C. Schupp, of J. A. Budlong, and Guy French, of French & Salm, Union Grove, Wis.

The following were in the party that left at 10 p. m., August 12, to attend the S. A. F. convention in San Francisco, occupying two cars:

W. J. O'Carroll, Chicago.
Rudolph Schiele, Chicago.
Michael Barker, Chicago.
M. C. Gunterberg, Chicago.
Arthur Weber, Chicago.
Emil Reichling, Chicago.
Theodore Diedrich, Congress Heights, D. C.
Thomas McAllister, Chicago.
J. A. Peterson and wife, Cincinnati.
L. M. Kresken and his sister, Miss A. H. Kresken, Cincinnati.

Various Notes.

Arthur Weatherwax, who has been with W. J. Smyth for fifteen years, has bought the fixtures of Mrs. Sarah Lindon and will go into business for himself, as the Drexel Flower Shop, at 828 Forty-seventh street. He hopes to open September 4. The neighborhood is excellent and there is little competition.

Seven houses are being added to plant A of the Poehlmann Bros. Co., Morton Grove. Their erection was found necessary to take care of the rapidly growing plant department. Miss C. Burkhardt, of the city office, has returned from a vacation at the Dells, Wis. R. J. Parker has returned from a trip through lower Wisconsin.

John Evert, who is known to his colleagues on La Salle street as the Mum King, is second vice-president and director of the United States Automatic Safety Appliance Co., in which his brother also is a stockholder. The Evert brothers like nothing better than to take their florist friends to the company's office at 108 South La Salle street and show them the working of the model of its automatic train stop, "pronounced by the railroad officials," to quote the company's literature, "the greatest invention in the history of railroading."

Erne & Klingel say July was much ahead of last year with them, but that August is not making so good a showing; prices, especially on roses and gladioli, are too low to make good business however much stock is handled.

J. W. Breakey, 3907 Cottage Grove avenue, has completed the erection of a fashionable twelve-apartment building at Sixty-first street and Langley avenue. Mr. Breakey will make his home in one of the apartments.

The moving of the range of the August Erickson Co., from 3437 Foster avenue to 5825 Rogers avenue, is progressing rapidly. Three houses are ready for glazing and it is expected to get the others up soon. Mr. and Mrs. Erickson are at present visiting a daughter at Warner, Alberta.

James Rolan, who now has a flower and confectionery store at Twelfth and Halsted streets, has opened a new store of the same character at Twelfth street and Kedzie avenue.

W. H. Kidwell took an interesting means, August 14, to do his part to reduce the gladiolus surplus. He cleaned up a table in a wholesale house, working up enough of his purchase to get his money back and a profit. Then, in the evening as people were passing to the neighboring picture shows, he put a boy on the sidewalk to hand out a flower to each person. Soon the distribution was going on inside the store and 4,000 spikes were given away. Mr. Kidwell considers it an excellent way to advertise.

W. J. La Grotta, proprietor of the Andrew McAdams store, Fifty-third street and Kimbark avenue, is building an addition to his greenhouses. It is of Foley construction. Mr. La Grotta reports good business.

After a most pleasant trip to Pasadena and the expositions, C. L. Washburn and Mrs. Washburn returned August 15. Mr. Washburn lost no time in getting to work, as he was in the Bassett & Washburn greenhouses at Greggs two hours after his arrival. O. P. Bassett and wife will arrive in the city August 20. They have made the trip overland in an automobile.

Philip C. Schupp, of J. A. Budlong's, has his hands full these days looking after his own work and that of the bookkeeper, Miss Mabel Schultz, who has gone on a two weeks' vacation.

P. W. Peterson, superintendent of the Thompson Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill., celebrated his thirty-seventh birthday anniversary August 16.

Eric Johnson, in charge of the cut flower department of the A. L. Randall Co., never will believe that Friday, August 13, was an unlucky day, for it

Be Sure You Get Your Money's Worth

"Mawruss, there is one ting you must all the time remember, if you want to make for yourself a success in pizness," said a diamond bedecked Israelite in a sixty dollar tailor made, to his aged youthful offspring.

"Yes, Mawruss, mine poy," he continued with a knowing smile, "to be, like your fadder, a good pizness-man (rising inflection) you must all the time be sure to get your money's worth, if you spend anything."

And the Jew, through wisdom inherited from Solomon, no doubt, hit the nail of good "merchant-ship" on the head.

"Be sure you get your money's worth," that is one question you always put to yourself when you buy a suit of clothes, or a new hat. Do you ask yourself in the same way when you are buying stock for your store, "Am I getting full value for my money?"

It does not usually occur to the Florist, that there must be good value to his stock. He is apt to think in dividends, not values. If he thinks the public will stand for poor quality—he buys poor quality. If he is offered a batch of stock that is off grade, and he thinks he can sell it at a profit, he does not bother with the minor detail that he is not giving the ultimate buyer his money's worth.

When I say the average Florist does not care whether his customer gets value or not, I am not hitting at you who are building up good profitable business, I mean the man who tears down his sign and "cusses" his luck for not being able to get a good location for his shop or stand. The man that can not understand his neighbor's success and his own failure, can as a rule, put it up to this one thing—he does not give the consumer his money's worth. Possibly he gives him fresh flowers, but the variety is off (he bought them because they were cheap). On the other hand, his stock might be of good variety but the stems too short (he would not have bought them but—cheap).

Never get anything, at any price, that you would not buy if you were asked to pay the full price. If you do, you will lose by the deal. Not in cash on that particular sale, perhaps; a good salesman can sell a three-legged blind mule to the man that knows nothing about what he is trying to buy. But is the man that has been stung apt to come back and try again?

MIND YOUR P'S AND Q'S.

No, I am not merely suggesting that you mind your own business, though that is good advice too. What I mean is this: "Prices" and "quality" must both be kept in mind, not "prices" alone. First be sure the quality is right, then talk price. I don't care how cheap a lot of Beauties may be, if their petals are discolored I don't want them at any price. Flowers are bought for their beauty and attractiveness alone; if in that they fail they are worthless. You can not make a bad blossom a good buy, no matter what you cut the price to.

Then again, it is one thing to sell flowers that are apparently good stock, and seem to be in fine condition, and a good bit different to handle real quality cuts. KENNICOTT BROS. COMPANY, you have seen, terms itself "The House of Quality Plus." The reason is this: The aim of the House of Kennicott is to mind their P's and Q's. Their "prices" and "qualities" both are right. What more is there to be considered on the question of good value of stock?

Mind, the House of Kennicott does not aim to be the cheapest, nor claim to be the biggest, nor the best. But the fact that it has been doing business for over thirty years means something to the man who thinks.

KENNICOTT'S QUALITY CUTS, though not attempting to be cheap, have won a name for themselves. True enough, but there is another thing that The House of Quality Plus stands for. Stop and consider the "Plus." That is not for euphony, merely.

"Plus" in the Kennicott slogan means (1) "service": desire to please, ability to satisfy; (2) "honor": desire to treat customers square, give full count, and never stuff orders and charge for more than the order called for; (3) "courtesy": willingness to rectify errors in filling orders, shipping stock, and the hundred and one other mistakes that even the most efficient and most willing are bound to make occasionally.

The Kennicott policy of fairness has won for the House a place in the hearts of many buyers both in and out of Chicago. Due to the never tiring efforts of the employees, the manager, and Mr. H. B. Kennicott, the president of the company (who takes a personal interest in every account on the books) Kennicott Bros. Company is bound to grow to be, if not the largest, the best house on the Chicago market.

As the House grows in quantity of business transacted the management continues to give each order the same personal care and attention. At this time the concern handles more stock than ever before; hence with the same personal service, the House is even better able to give each buyer just what he wants.

Since the installation of the new management The House of Kennicott has not only increased the amount of cut flowers handled (at the same time holding its place as headquarters for Decorative Greens) but it is also handling a larger amount of supplies each month than it did formerly in six. From now on KENNICOTT BROS. COMPANY will have a full line Chiffons, Ribbons, etc., as well as their old stand-by, Wire Work.

You may not be aware of the fact that Kennicott's Wire Designs have not only been on the market longer than any other make of Wire Work that Chicago boasts, but that the quality of the wire and the standard of workmanship is not equaled in any other shop, at any price—and Kennicott's Designs cost no more than inferior grades.

Do not take this statement as Gospel, prove it for yourself. Surely it bears investigation.

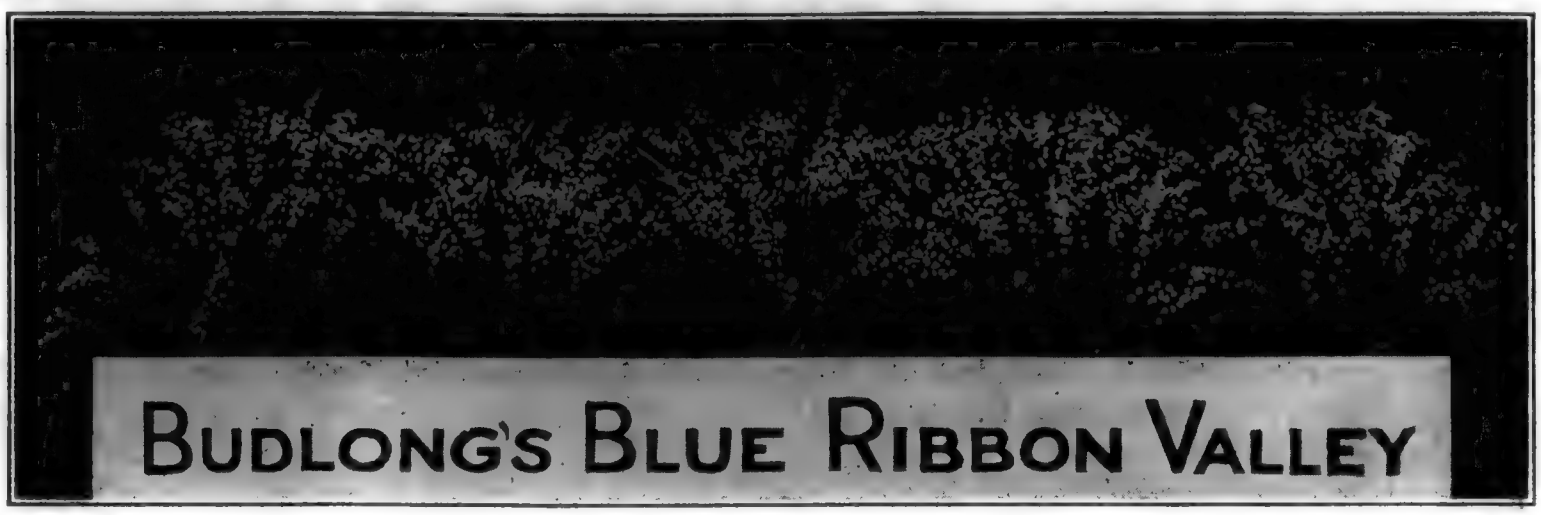
In closing let me tersely sum up the question I have discussed, and try to impress upon you the importance of these few facts:

1—It does not pay to do business unless you make a fair profit.

2—You can not build a permanent business without satisfied customers.

3—You can not satisfy customers without giving them good value.

4—You can not give good value to customers, unless you insist on getting good value when you buy your own stock.



5—Good value does not mean stock at a low price, but high grade stock at the right price.

6—KENNICOTT BROS. Company, The House of Quality Plus, for over thirty years has stood for a square deal.

7—KENNICOTT'S CUTS ARE QUALITY CUTS.

Think these seven statements over. Now, what is the logical thing to do?

Felix Reichling, sales manager for Peter Reinberg, reports that Edward Schmeltekopf, of Park Ridge, will again operate his greenhouses this season instead of leasing them as in the past. The range will be planted with carnations. Mr. Reichling adds that the sales of field-grown carnation plants are the heaviest in the history of the Reinberg establishment.

About September 1 Daniel Branch will move into his new building, erected on the site of his old stand, 313 East Fifty-first street, which was destroyed by fire last spring. All fixtures in the new store will be of antique oak. This will give Mr. Branch one of the best looking stores on the south side.

Thomas Sullivan, of the Woodlawn Floral Shop, 871 East Sixty-third street, is visiting friends in South Haven, Mich.

Allie Zech, of Zech & Mann, leaves August 21 for Tomahawk Lake, Wis., with his wife. Here he will enjoy two weeks of game fishing.

W. H. Hilton, 1509 East Fifty-third street, is planning a two weeks' automobile trip through the country by way of a vacation. His store has been repainted and redecorated.

After many weeks of pain, E. F. Winterson is beginning to feel like himself again. He ran a nail into his left leg, close to the shin bone, and gangrene set in. The sore still is open, but less painful than at first.

U. A. Campiche has redecorated his store at 6002 South Halsted street. He reports heavy funeral work.

Al Fisher, with J. H. McNeilly, 1431 East Sixty-third street, has returned from a two weeks' outing in Michigan.

An order was placed with Bassett & Washburn by Mr. White, of A. Lange, August 14. A little later a boy about 16 called for the stock and signed the name of W. Setock. He had been gone but a few minutes when another boy called for the same stock. An investigation followed which revealed the fact that no one by the name of W. Setock had any connection with the A. Lange store. They are still looking for the boy.

Saddie Palinsky, daughter of the late W. L. Palinsky, 2865 Palmer street, has been enjoying a rest at Lake Zurich, Wis.

Frank Ayers, known as right-hand man for C. W. McKellar, is vacationing.

A. C. Kohlbrand, shipping manager for the E. C. Amling Co., has returned from a fortnight's outing which began with a visit to his old home at Cincinnati.

R. A. Clark, proprietor of Clark's Flower Store, 23 South Crawford avenue, who has been in business only five months, reports a volume of sales in excess of his anticipations.

GLOEKLER FLOWER REFRIGERATORS

Gloekler Fixtures in Store of A. W. Smith Co., Pittsburgh.

THE essential part of the preservation of cut flowers is a cold, dry circulation of air. That is the fundamental principle of Gloekler Flower Refrigerators. It keeps the refrigerator sweet, clean and sanitary, and at the same time results in a saving of ice consumption. It requires perfect insulation to produce this condition, and the Gloekler method of reinforced cork insulation has been proven by test the only practical way of producing such a result.

And then, the selling quality of the refrigerator—that is a big point for consideration. These refrigerators display flowers so attractively that they almost sell themselves. They are as valuable as an extra salesman in your store. They present an insistent argument to the customer to buy, but in an unobjectionable way. And, after all, the first aim of the florist is to sell.

Gloekler Refrigerators are made of selected materials, finished to exactly harmonize with your store interior, and completed with our own heavy, attractive hardware.

Many splendid styles and sizes in stock for quick shipment. We build any size or style to order. Any finish.

A NEW CATALOGUE of FLORISTS' REFRIGERATORS shows flower store interiors in full color. Send for your copy. It's free and it's worth while. Write TODAY.

The police are looking for the man who represented himself to be the owner of a string of furniture stores on the south side and thereby obtained merchandise. Such well known concerns as Hibbard, Spencer, Bartlett & Co. and The Hub were deceived, so that Weiland & Risch take their small loss philosophically.

Visitors.

Benjamin Hammond, of Slug Shot fame, and J. S. Carter, the Nikoteen man, were in Chicago last week to attend a conference of insecticide manufacturers. The consensus of opinion was that, while the manufacturers do not object to the regulation of the business, the departmental methods are unreasonable and should be tested in court.

Last week wholesale florists had a call from Mrs. J. W. Begbie, of Shreveport, La., who was accompanied by a sister from Springfield, Ill.

J. J. Karins, representing Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, was in town last week.

SAGINAW, MICH.

The Market.

Business was good last week, although weather conditions were most unfavorable. It rained almost every day. The weather was much too cool for this time of the year. Carnation planting, which had a fine start, has been delayed by the wet weather. Outdoor flowers have suffered because of the continued rains, especially asters. Sweet peas are completely ruined.

Various Notes.

The arrangements for the outing of the Saginaw-Bay City Floricultural Society, which will take place August 25 at Frankenmuth, a 15-mile ride from Saginaw, have been completed. Charles Frueh is chairman of the entertainment committee. A special car leaves Bay City at 7:30 a. m., and Saginaw at 8 a. m. Everyone is looking forward to a big time. A whole day without business cares will be a benefit to all. The attendance is expected to reach the 100 mark. The sports for the day will be many. Proprietors of Bay City and Saginaw will have a 5-inning game of baseball.

Zorn & Gaertner say that asters are not of the quality they should be. The heavy rains are doing much damage. This concern has nearly seven acres devoted to asters, which form their main summer crop. A loss would mean much to them.

F. H. Stevens, of the Stevens Gladioli Co., who lost his entire stock of bulbs by fire last March, has turned his acreage into lots. He is growing bulbs, but not in such quantity as in the past.

Desner & Fisher are adding two greenhouses to their range, which will give them about one-third more glass.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Thayer, of Midland, Mich., visited the trade August 9. Mr. Thayer is much pleased with this summer's business. Funeral work has been plentiful. The erection of two houses and the installation of more boiler capacity is under way. Gee.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

There has been little change in the market since the last report. Gladioli are not coming in so heavily as formerly. Asters are better in quality, but are only in fair supply. The decreased supply and better quality brought prices up to a fair level. Lilies are overplentiful. They were especially so the latter part of last week, when the price dropped and the demand fell off. Beauties were moving fairly well, but this week the demand fell down flat. The rose situation may be called poor both in regard to the demand and the quality of stock offered. Outside of funeral work, the stores are doing little business.

Fall and Winter

The season of the long-stemmed flowers such as the long Beauties, Killarneys, Chrysanthemums, etc., is at hand. The proper treatment of such decorative stock is aided most effectively by using long handled baskets such as the one in the illustration herewith. It is an easy matter to include the basket in the sale of the flowers.

Lay in a stock of these specials and use them in your own decorations, together with a suitable assortment of standard shapes and sizes, and watch your sales increase.

The public is becoming educated in the proper handling of flowers, and the florist who is progressive and meets the demand half way, is the florist that profits.

We shall be pleased to send you our catalogue, but would much rather that you see the baskets themselves, so if you stop off in Chicago in your travels pay us a visit.

GREENWICH, CONN.

Society's Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society was held in the society's rooms in Doran's hall, Friday evening, August 13, with President Sealey in the chair. The attendance was good, although not so large as usual, owing, no doubt, to the extreme heat. The only exhibit was a specimen plant of Torenia Fournieri grandiflora, shown by Owen A. Hunwick, who was accorded honorable mention.

The fall show of the society will be held at Stamford, Conn., November 5 and 6. Letters were read from several good friends of the society, offering substantial prizes for the premium list. The outing committee made its final report and was discharged, with a vote of thanks. Messages were read from several members of the society en route to the Pacific coast to attend the exposition. All reported having a pleasant journey.

The next meeting will be held September 10, when a fine showing of seasonable flowers will be expected.

Society's Outing.

Tuesday, August 10, was the date of the annual outing of the society, which was held at Edwards' Rye Beach Inn, Rye Beach, N. Y. The members and their families and friends, with a goodly number of members of the florists' trade, including representatives of the trade press, formed a large and happy party, which was further augmented by the addition of a large delegation from the Tarrytown society. The day was ideal and the various games and athletic events went off with a swing, starting at 10:30 a. m.

An excellent shore dinner, served by the hotel management, was a feature. After dinner the amusing pastime of "breaking the flower pots" was indulged in. This was followed by the tug of war between representatives of Westchester and Fairfield counties. Fairfield county won. The winners in the other events, which continued until sunset, were as follows:

Quoit match, between Westchester and Fairfield—Won by Westchester, 23 to 18.

Wheelbarrow race—Neil McInnes and Colin Aitcheson, first; Wm. Whittin and Alex. Clarkson, second.

Race for single women—Marie Addor, first; Annie Peters, second.

The Market.

Business last week was fair. The supply of first-class stock was a trifle short. Asters and gladioli are the present leaders, the latter being at their best, while asters show the effect of severe beatings by the heavy rains.

A number of retailers are making the annual renovations and improvements at their stores, and the growers are overhauling and repairing their houses, and preparing for rebenching.

Various Notes.

The annual outing of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island will consist of a trip down Narragansett bay, stopping at Rocky Point for a Rhode Island clam bake, and then continuing to Newport, where the party will be met and entertained by some of the gardeners of that city.

Edward Murray, formerly of this city, but now employed at Boston, is at Block island for his vacation.

Robert Johnston, of Johnston Bros., was a member of a fishing party on Narragansett bay last week.

Thomas Curley, who underwent an operation for stomach trouble, is reported comfortable.

Miss Annie Peckham has returned from a two weeks' automobile trip through the Berkshires.

Mr. Mead, of Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co., of Boston, was a business caller last week.

Charles W. Morey, of North Smithfield, has the sympathy of many friends in the death of his infant son.

The Elmhurst Hill Greenhouses is the name under which Richard L. Hogan will conduct his business in the future.

John Burke, of Burke & Burns, left last week for Denver, accompanied by his brother-in-law, Thomas Burns.

Charles Hunt is talking of opening a downtown store this fall.

NEWPORT, R. I.

John A. Forbes, gardener of the Bythe-Sea estate, left August 10 for San Francisco to attend the convention of the Royal Clan of Caledonians.

A pretty floral decoration of pink and blue was arranged by J. G. Leikens for a recent dinner. The exterior decorations were of hanging baskets of hydrangeas, and the tables were decorated with pink and blue heads of hydrangeas, with statuettes to resemble a garden of the period of Louis XV.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The arrival of Golden Glow chrysanthemums August 12 lent a bit of brightness, a forerunner of the fall. That is about the only change in the midsummer situation. Flowers are a trifle less plentiful than a week ago. There is some business, out-of-town and local, for which really good flowers are none too plentiful, but the general tone of the market is decidedly summery. Cattleyas continue scarce at even higher prices than heretofore. Easter lilies are good, but meet with only fair support. Valley is hardly so good as usual. Roses are quite scarce. I mean roses of quality; the poor ones are plentiful. Asters still show the effect of the daily rains. Gladioli keep up well. There are a few carnations and many of the outdoor assortment of garden flowers.

Current Events.

Some of the bright minds in floral circles have been grappling with the question of what should be done with the fine equipment in the wholesale cut flower houses. There are plenty of able salesmen on duty, even during vacation season. There is an abundance of cold-storage space, but not nearly enough for the salesmen or the cooling rooms to do. Would it be feasible, they ask, to take up mushrooms, berries, fruit, lettuce, asparagus, tomatoes, and so forth? Might not the idea be a source of profit alike for grower, wholesaler and retailer during the summer? It really seems that something might be done to cut down expenses, possibly even to realize a profit, if all three classes of florists took hold in earnest. Is the suggestion worth trying?

Here is a mashed potato story with a moral. Leo Niessen tells it. He says: "I have a friend who is extremely fond of mashed potatoes, thinks it hard to get enough of them. Unfortunately, my friend swallowed a penny—no, I think it was a pin, one day. The doctor said, 'You must go on a diet. Take nothing but mashed potatoes and milk.' My friend thought this was delightful. The proposed cure really seemed a balm for the torture and uncertainty of that pin. The first day all went well. The second day mashed potatoes became less of a treat. On the third day it was decidedly difficult to eat them. The fourth day they were positively horrid. Fortunately, on the fifth day the pin disappeared." Now, the moral of this story applies to the growing of the Killarney rose. A buyer goes to a flower store and asks what flowers they have that are pretty. The salesman produces Killarney. The same buyer goes later to another flower store, and asks the same question, with similar result. Do you wonder that the flower buying public is tiring of Killarney?

shock to his friends, as Mr. Anderson seemed in excellent health when he attended the funeral of his friend, William H. Westcott, August 9. Afterwards he motored Robert Craig home, stopping on the way to see Henry I. Faust, at Merion. Mr. Anderson is resting quietly. His family is much encouraged by his condition.

Charles Henry Fox is summering at Ocean City, N. J.

Mr., Mrs. and Miss McCamley and Miss Alice Parker, of Philipsburg, Pa., have been visiting here. Miss Parker is the daughter of George G. Parker.

Leo Niessen, George Burton, Edmond A. Harvey and William H. Engler visited a number of greenhouses in Montgomery county August 11. They called at the Burton places, Myers & Samtman, Victor Groshens, Edward Towill and the Joseph Heacock Co.

Edward Reid and family have been enjoying a short motoring trip through Pennsylvania and New York.

The Marguerite II, Commodore A. B. Cartledge's boat, safely withstood some terrific storms in the run from Chesapeake bay to Essington, Del.

Ludwig P. Vollers is beautifying his House of Flowers in an original and striking manner.

George Aeugle found that the heavy rain had put many of the aster plants under water, in his visit up the state last week.

Arthur Zirkman is representing the M. Rice Co. at San Francisco this week.

Franklin Ely, of Henry F. Michell Co., is enjoying his vacation.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. are represented at the S. A. F. convention by Sydney H. Bayersdorfer and Martin Reukauf.

Stuart H. Miller spent several days last week at Lancaster, Reading and Allentown.

Robert Scott & Son are cutting Russell and Ophelia. Phil.

BOSTON.

The Market.

We are getting the warmest weather of the season and trade is at its lowest ebb. Outside of funeral work there is little doing, and wholesale flower circles have a half deserted appearance. Most of the growers are now sending nothing in. The majority of the rose and carnation men are through planting. The supply of roses has slightly increased, but they clean up fairly well. Of carnations a few small blooms still arrive, but they cut little figure. Sweet peas are not good. The heavy rains have spoiled many of them, and those coming are mostly short-stemmed.

Asters and gladioli are the two leaders. Many of the asters were destroyed by the incessant rains. Good flowers sell well, but there are many poor ones. Gladioli are in overwhelming supply and are hard to move. Valley continues poor. Lilies are abundant and there is a considerable assortment of annuals and perennials. Cattleyas are scarce and dear. Few gardenias are coming in.

Various Notes.

Neither the Boston Coöperative Market nor the Boston Flower Exchange will hold its annual auction sale of stalls this season. The directors in each market have decided to give all stallholders the privilege of renting their present stalls at last year's prices. There is some grumbling over this policy, but the majority of stallholders and growers favor it.

B. A. McGinty, who for the last ten years had handled roses from W. R. Morris, of Wellesley Hills, is looking for a new shipper of roses, Mr. Morris having engaged Robert Stewart to handle his flowers. He is now shipping in some good Russell and Black Beauty. Mr. McGinty handles all the flowers and plants from W. Hannan & Sons and T. A. Cox, of Dorchester, and A. N. Eaton, of South Sudbury.

Edward Winkler, of Wakefield, has just completed an addition, 40x125, to one of his carnation houses. He will plant his new Morning Glow almost exclusively this season, and started benching 20,000 of it this week. He still picks good flowers of this variety, which proves a good summer carnation. He reports a fine sale for field carnations and he did the heaviest July business in his history.

N. F. Comley, of Burlington, has six large houses planted with carnations, about 70,000 in all. The varieties grown are Fenn, Pocahontas, Beacon, Benora, Matchless, Pink Delight, Gloriosa, Mrs. Ward, Rosette and White Wonder. He has 60,000 single-stem mums, chiefly Bonnaffon, White Bonnaffon, Eaton, Patty, Chadwick and Pacific Supreme. Two houses are planted with roses. In a number of houses now devoted to cucumbers and tomatoes, these will be followed with single violets. Two large houses are planted with the newer Spencer sweet peas, the plants of which are now three to four inches high.

F. J. Dolansky, of Lynn, is cutting some good Odontoglossum crispum and Phalænopsis grandiflora. He will soon have some Cattleya labiata.

Mann Bros., of Randolph, now have among other flowers statice, helichrysums, globe amaranths, Shasta daisies and montbretias.

Harry Stone, shipper at Penn's, is away on his vacation and will travel as far as Chicago. Funeral business at Penn's was active last week.

A. A. Pembroke, of North Beverly, has had his carnations all benched for some time and will soon be cutting flowers. He has planted chiefly Pink Delight, Alice, Champion, Benora, Matchless, Rosette and Gorgeous.

The Boston Cut Flower Co. had fine gladiolus displays in both windows last week. Funeral business here has been good of late.

Fred B. Barrington, who for the last twenty-five years had operated a store on the main street of Gloucester, Mass., died August 13. The deceased had the leading flower business in Gloucester and was well known in local wholesale circles.

The annual exhibition of products of children's gardens will be held at Horticultural hall August 28 and 29.

Those who feel that it is necessary to go to Scotland to see Scotch heather in full beauty, should take note of the fact that William Anderson, superintendent for Bayard Thayer, South Lancaster, Mass., now has 50,000 in full bloom on hills there. This beautiful and much prized plant is quite hardy here and is being increasingly planted.

August has already given us four inches of rain. The frequent showers have kept vegetation wonderfully luxuriant. Agricultural crops in Massachusetts are generally far below the average. Hay retails at $35 per ton, the highest price since the Civil war. Much of it was destroyed by the excessive rainfall. W. N. C.

The Market.

The rainy season seems to have exhausted itself. Clearer skies and more sunshine prevail. Last week was a scorcher, and asters, gladioli and mosquitoes were much in evidence. Excessive rains for weeks have made vegetation rank. There must be millions of asters and even greater quantities of gladioli, and the buyer can name his own price. Thousands come and go into oblivion daily, never reaching a retailer.

Good American Beauties brought a fair price all the week. The season at Newport is at its height, and at all the fashionable summer resorts there are receptions and dinners galore. Everything first-class of any kind of rose is quickly taken. It is the great percentage of short-stemmed stock that makes the average so low. The new cutting has begun.

There are few carnations yet, and few of these desirable; so prices continue low. Orchids, too, are off crop and anything of value holds. But the demand is light and no further advance is anti ipated.

There has been no change in lilies or valley worthy of notice, and certainly no shortage. Goldenrod and Hydrangea paniculata grandiflora help to fill the retail windows. Sweet peas are improving and a few tritomas are arriving.

Want the Convention.

A special meeting of the Florists' Club was held August 16 at which it was decided to telegraph an invitation to San Francisco for the S. A. F. to hold its convention in 1916 in New York.

Various Notes.

L. B. Nason and Frank K. Lamereaux, of Port Jervis, motored to Delaware Water Gap and through the Delaware valley last week, a distance of over 240 miles.

It is a remarkable fact that no resident of this big city attended the S. A. F. convention except the secretary. Those who made the trip live in New Jersey or Connecticut, and the number is easily counted.

The plans of Roman J. Irwin's new home, at Chatsworth Heights, Larchmont, are most attractive and elaborate.

Robert MacNiff, of the MacNiff Horticultural Co., celebrated his birthday August 12.

The veteran wholesaler, J. K. Allen, will celebrate his sixtieth birthday August 20. Mr. Allen has given his entire time and talents to the florists' business during the last thirty-nine years, and has been in its wholesale cut flower department since 1882.

H. C. Riedel left Saturday, August 14, for a month's vacation. He will visit friends in Canada and his firm's violet growers at Rhinebeck, while away.

C. C. Trepel and family are in the Catskills. Mr. Trepel's conservatory on the top of his store at Broadway and Eighty-ninth street is rapidly approaching completion.

H. E. Froment will return next week from the Adirondacks.

M. C. Ebel, of Madison, N. J., was unable to take the gardeners' and park superintendents' trip to San Francisco, because of a long continued fight with Job's comforters.

Roy Bailey, of Dakota, son-in-law of J. B. Nugent, is visiting his relatives in this city. Miss Hanft, bookkeeper for Young & Nugent, is at Flemington, N. J.

Saturday, August 21, and Sunday, August 22, the New York Horticultural Society will have an exhibition at the Museum building, Bronx park. The exhibits will be gladioli, annuals and montbretias. Dr. M. T. Cook will lecture on "Fungous Diseases in the Flower Garden." J. Austin Shaw.

Wertheimer Bros. say that in spite of the war they are showing more foreign novelties this year than in many seasons. The assortment of domestic novelties also has been increased and they report a rousing business, and look forward to a banner season.

REPORT ON SCHOOL GARDENS.

In California this year, the superintendent of schools, Thomas L. Heaton, of San Francisco, has been busy in his efforts for a school garden exhibit at the exposition. San Diego and Los Angeles stand as a testimonial to the efforts of school authorities to encourage gardening at home. A letter recently received from Morris M. Rathbun, of Los Angeles, tells of cash prizes distributed, ranging from $5, for the individual home student gardener, to a $500 prize for the school making the best showing in 1915. This work cleaned up many neglected lots, and turned waste places into beauty spots. Los Angeles, to do this work well, employed an expert teacher-florist, and good results of the work are seen in many of the cities and towns of the Pacific coast. At Portland, Ore., work of this kind is being carried on under the direction of a landscape artist from Chicago, who is specially employed to give instruction in this line.

In every state this good work is being carried on. School gardening has its greatest application in our great cities. School gardening aims to take hold and interest the city boys. At a flower show held in New York, in the Museum of Natural History, the school children came in classes to view the exhibits. They were children born in congested sections of New York, some of them never having been in the country, and the wonder at seeing so many flowers was expressed without reserve.

In Philadelphia the school garden work is well organized, and the back yards of thousands of little houses reveal a taste and industry of great importance to anyone. Probably no other city is doing more by organized effort in home and public gardening instruction than Toronto, Ont. It has a climate opposite to that of southern California, yet the same appreciation of the beautiful and the value of economic thrift is evidenced in both sections. Down the Ohio river, in city after city, school gardening and home gardening are being carried on. At Evansville, Ind., J. D. Carmody has encouraged this sort of work, and lately has given valuable land for garden and park use. This illustration serves simply to show the interest in this great work. It is one that grows, and no craft can do more to encourage it and profit by it than the florists of America. In so doing the homes of the people of America are made the more beautiful.

Evansville, Ind.—Charles S. Wigginton is preparing several acres of ground for the culture of peonies next season.

PRESIDENT WELCH'S ADDRESS.

and varied channels, and also to take means to prevent any society, corporation or individual from decrying the use of these products for special occasions.

We often learn of repeated attempts made to discourage the use of our products. Such cases should be taken up by the publicity bureau, and every means possible taken to offset the effects of such adverse influences. I am much in favor of a standing committee of five members whose duty shall be to coöperate with the retailers, wholesalers and producers so that our business shall be brought before the public in a much more favorable and effective light than it has been in the past.

We should have recourse to the leading daily papers throughout the country, which I believe will gladly publish from time to time articles on commercial floriculture. This will have a wonderful effect, for it will bring before the American people the merits of our business and the enjoyment derived from the use of our products.

The hour has come when we should give this question our best thought and action. I think greater benefits can be secured from aggressive work of this nature than any other we can engage in. I feel that the results would justify a reasonable expenditure annually for the maintenance of such a committee.

National Credit Department.

I am forcibly reminded by a large number of the members of our society of the pressing necessity for creating a national bureau of credits, a central office where credit information can be kept and references obtained. The commercial interests of our business have grown to such an extent during the last fifteen years as to call for a more up-to-date standard of business practice.

There ought not to be any objection to such a movement, as it is highly probable that it would do a great deal of good, and there is but little danger that it would do any harm. It should, however, be carefully guarded so that it could be used mutually by both debtor and creditor. The slightest intimation that a creditor was benefiting to any extent at the expense of the debtor would create dissatisfaction and lead to serious results. The rights of commercial life, liberty and the pursuit of trade should be upheld and not interfered with.

It is apparent, however, that ways and means should be considered and adopted by which the financial standing, honesty and integrity of the commercial florists could be measured, determined and circulated among our members to the end that honest, upright, just and creditable business men may be singled out from the unjust and unscrupulous operators.

I regard this problem as a fundamental one, and believe it should be considered and a plan adopted only after careful study. I would suggest the appointment of a committee of nine members, to be selected from the large floral centers of the country, to consider this subject and report at the meeting of the board of directors in 1916.

American Products.

There is a constantly growing sentiment in this country among those who have given the subject study that the time has now arrived when a large part, if not the whole, of the horticultural products which have been imported from Europe should be grown in this country. This is something I have had in mind for some time past.

We should not seek to take advantage of the unfortunate conditions existing in Europe at the present time, and this society will do its part toward helping to maintain the commercial honor of the United States so that we shall emerge from this war period with the love and admiration of all nations concerned.

Our climate, soil and other conditions are, according to our best authorities, well adapted for the growth of palms, bulbs, nursery stock, etc., which now go to make a total of imports of over $2,000,000 annually.

I would recommend that a permanent committee of three be appointed to study this problem and seek the advice and counsel of the United States Department of Agriculture, and devise ways and means by which those interested may be encouraged and assisted in taking up this work, which ought to bring about good results, and report annually to the society in convention.

Voting.

Experience has taught us that our present system of electing officers at our annual convention occupies too much time. It is wrong to ask a man to stand in line for half an hour and sometimes longer before he can cast a ballot for the choice of officers.

As a remedy for this condition I would suggest that a list of the members be alphabetically arranged in four books:

Book No. 1 to include all names beginning with the letter A and ending with the letter D.

Book No. 2 to include all names beginning with the letter E and ending with the letter K.

Book No. 3 to include all names beginning with the letter L and ending with the letter R.

Book No. 4 to include all names beginning with the letter S and ending with the letter Z.

It will be necessary that one teller for each book be appointed to check names, also one to receive the ballots.

This calls for an amendment to our by-laws, which I hope will be passed and made effective at the opening session of our next annual convention.

Finish.

The trade and commerce in seeds, plants and flowers are of such national magnitude and importance that they are justly classed among the great business interests in this country. There is no more charming art and occupation than the cultivation of flowers, plants and fruit-bearing trees. There is no calling more conducive to human welfare than that of the horticulturist.

Today let us applaud the work of our chosen officers for what they have done in the past, but let us make this applause count by seeing that the good work continues. Let us see to it that the society is built up and its influence increased by the combined efforts and with the coöperation and assistance of all kindred organizations, so that the next generation can look with pride on the work accomplished and take for their motto the inspiring words of Edward Everett Hale, "Look up and not down, look out and not in, look forward and not back, and lend a hand."

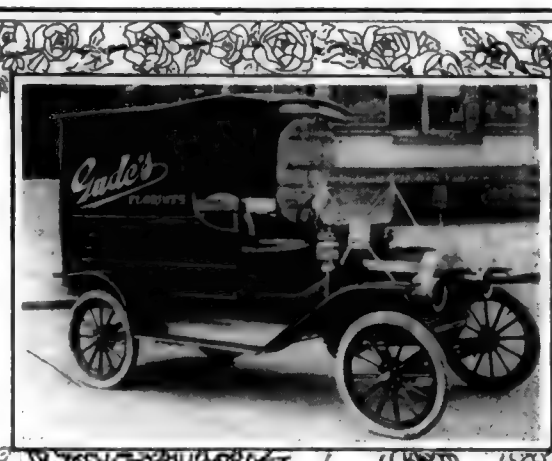
THE JOHN HENRY COMPANY, LANSING, MICH.

THE ROCHESTER EXPOSITION.

The attractive proposition made by the management of the Rochester exposition for a flower show has secured the attention of the best known growers in the country, as had been expected. With no charge for space and the promise of adequate service, with a daily average attendance of over 20,000, it would have been surprising if growers had not responded to the invitation to send exhibits to the Rochester show. August 30 to September 11 are the dates. The exposition is held at the city's own exposition park, which has ten large fireproof buildings, and one of the best has been assigned to the flower show. A committee of the Rochester Florists' Association is cooperating with the management and hopes to make the Rochester show a meeting place for florist and grower, seedsman and importer. They believe that there is need for such an exhibition, as it will give the florists a chance to see, without traveling the country over, what the growers have to offer in new and standard varieties of plants and flowers. A personal invitation has been sent to every florist in New York state, as well as in some adjoining states, informing them of the names of the exhibitors and suggesting that they combine business with pleasure by arranging to spend an early fall vacation in the Flower City and, at the same time, see what the growers have to offer.



Following is a list of the exhibitors: J. K. Alexander, East Bridgewater, Mass.; C. Betscher, Canal Dover, O.; John Lewis Childs, Flowerfield, L. I.; Wilbur A. Christy, Warren, O.; Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia; R. & J. Farquhar & Co., Boston; A. E. Kunderd, Goshen, Ind.; Burt Olney Greenhouses, Albion, N. Y.; A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn.; F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; Geo. L. Stillman, Westerly, R. I., and the following Rochester houses: Edward Brockman, George B. Hart, W. T. Logan, Henry P. Neun, Salter Bros., F. Schlegel & Sons, Jacob Thomann & Sons and James Vick's Sons.

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists — those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists— has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now —before you forget it?

Fred H. Weber,

...Florist...

Boyle and Maryland Aves.

St. Louis, Mo., September 5, 1914.

Florists' Review,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:-

During the SIX MONTHS from March 4 to September 4 I have received from other Florists, by mail, telegraph or cable, orders to the amount of $513.25 as a result of my advertisement in the Retailers' department of The Review. With the allowance to senders the record for SIX MONTHS is:

Value of orders received----------	$513.25
Less 20% allowed senders--------	102.60
Net value of orders for SIX MONTHS--	410.65

It should be noted that this showing covers the DULL SUMMER MONTHS, when any addition to a Florists's business is decidedly welcome.

Retail Florists not advertising in The Review should profit by this letter.

Respectfully,

F. H. Weber

The Market.

The market last week was in an overcrowded condition. But for funeral work, business would have been at a standstill. Local retailers bought sparingly. Moderate weather prevailed, and it looked as if summer would pass with little sultry weather. The bulk of the cut stock arriving consists of roses, of which the majority are short-stemmed. Ophelia, Russell and Hadley have long stems, and are of better quality than Killarneys, Richmond and Ward, which are in greater supply. Beauties are scarce. Carnations are poor, and a good supply arrives daily from the field. Asters come in large numbers. The light shades have the call. First quality stock demands $3 per hundred. Heavy outside shipments of gladioli caused a big slump in the price of homegrown stock. The supply of single everblooming tuberoses greatly exceeds the demand. There is a quantity of common outdoor stock on hand most of the time.

Club Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the St. Louis Florists' Club was held August 12, at Joseph Hauser's dahlia farm, Webster Groves, Mo. It was by far the largest attended meeting of the year. The fifty members, together with ten visitors, who made the trip, were loud in their praise of the manner in which they were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Hauser. An inspection of the dahlia fields was made before the meeting. President Bourdet called the meeting to order, and, after disposing of the regular opening preliminaries, W. A. Rowe, chairman of the trustees, made a report on the club's recent picnic. A final report will be made at the next meeting.

The resignations of Frank Wild and Mrs. M. M. Ayres were accepted. Mrs. Ayres was made an honorary member of the club. Applications for membership were filed by Edward A. Guntly, of Windler's Flower Store, and A. S. Cerny, of Kirkwood. A. H. Burkemper, of the Grasselli Chemical Co., and S. O. Vandevine, gardener at the Samuel C. Davis estate, were elected to membership.

The election of officers followed, which resulted in the reëlection of the present officers: President, Jules Bourdet; vice-president, W. S. Wells; secretary, J. J. Beneke, and treasurer, Wm. C. Smith. Wm. W. Ohlweiler was elected to serve a 3-year term as trustee. The other trustees are W. A. Rowe, two years, and Frank Windler, one year.

Walter Weber, of the H. J. Weber & Sons' Nursery Co., Nursery, Mo., invited the club to hold its next meeting at their place, which was accepted with thanks.

After the adjournment of the meeting, Mr. and Mrs. Hauser, assisted by Mrs. Hauser's sister, Mrs. W. J. Pilcher and Mrs. G. Grossart, served an elegant luncheon to all present. Before departing for home, the members of the club gave three cheers for the host and hostess.

The Illinois florists who attended the meeting were: J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville; George Madsen, of Alton; E. W. Guy, Gustave Grossart, A. G. Fehr and W. E. Ogle, of Belleville.

Various Notes.

The M. M. Ayres Floral Co., on Grand avenue, is ready for the fall season. The store has been given a new coat of white, and a number of excellent decorative plants are in evidence. Mrs. Ayres had just returned from a few

The summer cut of roses from the establishments of W. J. Pilcher, of Kirkwood, and Werner Bros., of Clayton, is large and of extra fine quality. Werner's Richmond and Pilcher's Killarneys are among the best shipped in. Both places are in fine shape for the fall and winter seasons.

Frank Sanders, son of C. C. Sanders, was recently married to Miss Heeps. It was an elopement, and few of his friends knew of it. It is reported that Frank Sanders will open a retail establishment this fall, in the extreme west end of St. Louis.

recently purchased R. J. Windler's interest in the business.

Miss Julia Mottell, cashier for the Nicotine Mfg. Co., was held up by a highwayman August 14, while on her way to the office with the weekly pay roll. Miss Mottell is an athlete, and soon routed her assailant. She saved the money. The would-be robber escaped. John S. Carter, head of the company, is at San Francisco attending the S. A. F. convention.

Samuel Seligman, of Wertheimer Bros., New York, is calling on the trade.

William W. Ohlweiler, general manager of the Missouri Botanical Garden, who was elected chairman of the St. Louis Florists' Club trustees last week, is a hustler, and, with W. A. Rowe and Frank Windler to assist him, the club meetings for the coming season will prove interesting. J. J. B.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.

The Market.

Business conditions last week remained unchanged. The same dullness and small movement of stock prevailed. There have been a number of small affairs, such as dinner dances and table decorations, which have been a help to the business at one or two stores. The midsummer dance of a local organization called for a large decoration, in which evergreens and gladioli were principally used. A large number of corsages were sold for this affair.

Outdoor flowers are cheapened by an ever increasing number of farmers who come to the city with their outdoor flower stock.

The hydrangeas in bloom on the hotel and cottage grounds are fine specimens, noticeably the Otaksa. Some of the plants are entirely covered with flowers and measure almost six feet across.

Most attempts in former years to grow good asters outside have met with little success because of blight, but this year some exceptionally fine flowers are seen. There has been plenty of rain, which may have helped at the start.

Various Notes.

W. R. Thoms, of the Egg Harbor Flower Shop, will move in about a month to a new, up-to-date store, a few doors from his present location. The store, 20x60, has two windows for display purposes. There is a greenhouse in the rear, 16x42, and a lot, 20x100, for evergreens, etc. Mr. Thoms' business has grown from nothing to its present prominent standing in five years. A force of five people attend to the many patrons, and a Ford delivery car is kept busy getting the goods to the buyers.

The trade from all parts of the country was well represented by visitors last week. The latest arrival was Charles Baxter, of Pennock Bros., Philadelphia.

Most of the stores are featuring gladioli, on account of the gladiolus show which is to be held here. The cards advertising the show have a good illustration of a number of gladioli. It is the opinion of several florists that these cards have stimulated the sale of gladioli. There has been considerable interest aroused in the show, and, to all appearances, it will be a great success.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Business is quite unsatisfactory. Rain has fallen almost every day since July 15. Consequently much outdoor stock has been spoiled, especially asters, phlox and gladioli. Flowers are cleared at exceedingly low figures. Roses, which have been overplentiful, are fewer, but there still remain plenty for our needs. The supply of carnations is limited. There is a large quantity of asters in all colors but pink, which appears to be scarce just now. Sweet peas have suffered terribly from the rain, and the supply is extremely limited. Easter lilies are in fair demand. Valley is good, but does not move fast. Ismene lilies are useful in design work. Outdoor stock, such as tritomas, hardy phlox and dahlias, does not sell well. Gladioli sell well, and large quantities of America, Mrs. Francis King and Rochester White are consigned daily. The supply of greens of all kinds is plentiful.

Various Notes.

Schuyler Arnold, of Spencerport, N. Y., visited his father at the latter's new home, at Ensenore, N. Y., Sunday, August 8. His seed farm at Spencerport is doing nicely. He has made ship-

Fred Thomann attended the Ohio Gladiolus Society's show at Cleveland August 13 and 14, where J. Thomann & Sons exhibited a large quantity of Rochester White gladioli and other varieties.

A great deal of funeral work was made for the funeral of George F. Loder, "the father of the Mystic Shrine," which took place August 12.

Stephen Greene, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, was in town last week and had a large showing of samples at the Seneca hotel.

T. T. Fryer, of the Tajimi Co., New York, displayed his large line of Japanese goods at the Powers hotel Tuesday, August 10. S. Nishigima, manager for the Nippon Garden, Satow & Suzuki, proprietors, was also a recent visitor.

John Volmer, of J. B. Keller Sons, is spending two weeks' vacation in the country. Wm. H. Keller has returned from Sodus, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram E. Wilson and family spent an enjoyable time at Eastman-Durand park Friday, August 13. They were later entertained at a beach supper.

James Vick's Sons report a slackening up of trade, but say that business is satisfactory for this time of year.

H. E. Wilson's store at 88 East Main street has just received a fine collection of fern dishes, vases and pedestals from the Zanesville Pottery Co., Zanesville, O.

During the slack days most of the florists are working up some novel idea for the flower show at the exposition August 30 to September 12. Spaces are well taken. The committee under Geo. B. Hart is working hard to make the Charles W. Unglaub has completed two houses, 23x150 and 28x150 feet, which were erected by the veteran greenhouse builder, Fred Oates. These have been planted with carnations, which are Mr. Unglaub's specialty.

Seven houses, each 20x100 feet, are being rebuilt by the Good & Reese Co. They were built about twenty-three years ago, of all-wood construction. Concrete is being used in the outer walls and gutter-posts, for bench legs, sides and bottoms, and in the ridge-posts as high as about one foot above the benches, the upper part of the ridge-posts, the Y braces and the roof-bars being of clear cypress.

The three extensions recently completed by the Leedle Floral Co. are of the King Construction Co. type, and have been planted with roses. The entire heating system is being remodeled by the installation of a vacuum system by the use of Squires improved steam traps and Dean steam pumps. This company has now fully covered its two acres of land between Plum and Franklin streets, so that any further enlargement would necessitate starting a new range on the 3-acre tract between Franklin street and the Pennsylvania railroad.

Miss Esther Blake, daughter of B. C. Blake, whose residence and greenhouses are on Johnson avenue, was married at the home of her parents Monday, August 9. The groom is Harry S. Hawkens, of Richmond, Ind.

Leman Bradford is opening a retail shop in one of the new rooms provided by the remodeling of the Mitchell block, at 106 East High street. His daughter, Miss Zatae Bradford, will be in charge. Mr. Bradford has been serving temporarily as a member of the county board of complaints for final review of tax returns.

which continued throughout the spring and thus far into the summer has no parallel within the recollection of the proverbial "oldest inhabitant" connected with the florists' fraternity. The conditions have been exceptionally discouraging to indoor growers, who have hoped in vain day after day and week after week for just a little sunshine. Rose growers are still hoping that the latter part of August and the early fall will bring them a sufficient amount of clear weather to enable them to make up in some measure for the heavy loss sustained thus far in the season. At best it hardly seems possible, from the present outlook, to bring the crops up to the average quantities.

Ge Dale.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

The market is extremely dull. Many who were fairly busy during the earlier weeks of the summer have almost nothing to do. There are a few funerals and occasionally a wedding, but even these do not keep the florists busy, except in spurts. This condition, however, is to be expected at this time of the year.

Last week was much more pleasant than the week preceding. The weather was warmer. This gave the growers an opportunity to cultivate their fields, and check the growth of weeds that the heavy rains started.

Asters and gladioli continue to arrive in large quantities, and form the staple cut flowers. Roses are not so plentiful or of so good quality as those of other seasons, but they are sufficient for the slack trade of this season. The inflow of dahlias does not seem to increase. Only a few cosmos are seen. Many florists make liberal use of Boston, maidenhair and other ferns in their window decorations.

General business conditions in Newark have slightly improved. Trading is still slack, owing to the season and the business depression which the country has been experiencing. There are indications, however, that there will be considerable improvement during the coming fall and winter, and that business will be better than the corresponding period of last year. Many florists look forward to a busy fall.

Various Notes.

The Ivy Flower Shop is the name of the flower store which was opened at 454 South Orange avenue, several months ago, by Rose F. Schneider.

Fred Wolfinger has had considerable funeral work and one good-sized wedding decoration. Business is fair, considering the season.

James Rose has had to vacate his store at 654 Bergen street, because of the wrecking of the old building. He is temporarily at 1414 Stuyvesant street, Irvington.

Jacob H. Harvey reports that business is quiet. Up to the first of August he was busy, but since then there has hardly been a thing moving. Occasionally a little funeral work will come in, but this is less than usual.

Mrs. C. M. Hutchinson, whose greenhouses are opposite the Evergreen cemetery, is spending her vacation at Bradley Beach, on the New Jersey coast. She has had two of the old greenhouses torn down, to make way for the new ones being erected. The new greenhouses will each measure 28x93.

The Newark shade tree commission reports that fifty-four trees were ruined in the hard storm of two weeks ago, and that 400 others were injured. The commission planted 1,307 trees on the assessment plan last spring. Only the actual cost of the tree, subsoiling, guard, stakes and labor constituted the assessment.

Good progress is being made on the building being erected by the Elizabeth Nursery Co., Elizabeth, to replace the packing and storage building destroyed by fire last spring. R. B. M.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

The unsettled weather continues. Business is dull, and it is hard to move anything in the line of cut flowers. Great quantities of gladioli, asters and roses are going to the waste pile. The little demand for flowers has caused prices to fall. Beauties, however, hold their price, as there is a scarcity of them. Asters are getting better each day and increasing in size of bloom. Some extra choice blooms can be had. Gladioli are the flowers of the season and are used for every purpose imaginable. Harrisii and Japanese lilies are arriving, but have little demand. Buyers of summer flowers are demanding garden flowers, but few are to be had. Sweet peas are scarce and poor on account of the heavy rains. Asparagus and hardy ferns are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Miss Edna Sauer is spending two weeks at Angola with her sister, Mrs. Schieble.

Joseph Streit is cutting excellent speciosum lilies in large quantities. His gloxinias are good. The few remaining wooden benches in his greenhouses are being replaced with cement benches. Mr. Streit expects to have all the houses fitted with cement benches by September. Miss Susan Streit has returned from Warsaw, N. Y., where she spent her vacation.

W. F. Kasting, and W. H. Mansfield, of Lockport, N. Y., are attending the S. A. F. convention at San Francisco.

The beds of annuals and perennials at Delaware park are a mass of blooms, and the many varieties of flowers make an interesting collection. The border of torenia, which is now in full bloom, is most unusual and attractive.

Miss Edna Goehring is spending her vacation at Akron, O.

A flower carnival was held in the town hall at Lancaster, N. Y., August 12 and 13. Barney S. Myers, C. F. Guenther and Fred Wise, of East Aurora, were judges. Premiums amounting to $200 were given.

Arthur Wilkey will take a vacation the last two weeks in August.

Jerry Brookins, of Orchard Park, grows excellent asters, and is beginning to cut his crop. They are large in size and have long, firm stems.

Miss Long, of the Buffalo Cut Flower Co., is on her vacation.

Edward Reid, of Philadelphia, was a visitor here last week. Stephen Greene, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, was also a caller.

S. A. Anderson has a good summer window display. It consists of a cascade falling over rocks, stones, grasses and mosses from a height of about twelve feet into a pool at the bottom. The water from this pool empties into a pond. English ivy, cork bark and green moss make up the entire setting. A few good-sized plants are placed here and there in the window. Shells, pond lilies, turtles and goldfish are in the pool.

Horticultural Society Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held at Pembroke hall, August 11, President Ernest Westlake presiding. F. Hitchman, of Manhasset, and H. Gibson, of Oyster Bay, were elected to active membership. H. Gaut, J. McCarthy and V. Cleres were appointed judges of the exhibits of the evening. Awards were made to A. Walker for a vase of twelve asters, mixed; to E. Westlake for specimens of gladioli, mixed, and to F. Petroccia for six ears of corn. An exhibition of Campanula pyramidalis by W. Noonin received the thanks of the society.

The exhibits for next month will be three stalks of celery, one muskmelon, outdoor-grown, and six tomatoes.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, John M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE unexpected death of J. M. Clark, secretary of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, is reported in this week's obituary column.

GREIL BROS. Co., Montgomery, Ala., wholesale grocers, liquor dealers and druggists, intend opening a wholesale seed department about September 1 and will deal in seeds of all kinds. The company was established in 1865 and incorporated in 1896.

THE Stokes Seed Farms Co., Moorestown, N. J., has issued an invitation to all who are interested, directly or indirectly, in the subject of vegetable growing to visit its Windermoor seed farm August 20. A special train will be run from Philadelphia.

AUTOMOBILE bandits held up and robbed Rudolph Feige, assistant cashier of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, August 14, relieving him of the weekly pay roll. Mr. Feige, who had been to the bank, was returning to the offices of the company at 226 West Kinzie street with a satchel containing $800 in currency, when he was struck on the head and the satchel was snatched from his hands by two men, who jumped into an automobile in which were two others. The machine ran west at high speed and disappeared up Orleans street. The loss was covered by insurance and the claim has been paid.

FIRST FRENCH BULBS ARRIVE.

The first large shipment of French bulbs, 2,795 cases, arrived at New York August 7, on board the Patria, from Marseilles. This was ten days later than the first shipment last year, and not much more than half the number of cases. Last year's first shipment arrived July 28 and consisted of 4,780 cases. French bulbs usually come in three or four large batches of several thousand cases each, followed for a month or so by small, occasional shipments. As reported in last week's Review, a single consignment of 252 cases arrived ahead of the large shipment.

The Patria shipment was consigned as follows:

Consignee.	Cases.
American Express Co.	638
Farquhar, R. & J., & Co.	11
International Forwarding Co.	264
Kuyper, P. C., & Co.	118
Maltus & Ware	1,090
Stumpp & Walter Co.	225
Vandergrift, F. B., & Co.	74
Vaughan's Seed Store	375
Total	2,795
Previously reported	252
Total to date	3,047

ANOTHER WARRANTY CASE.

The seed trade's non-warranty clause will appear in court again when the suit brought against L. P. Gunson & Co., of Rochester, N. Y., by nine farmers in the vicinity of Huxley, Ia., comes to trial. They ask $1,240 damages because, they assert, seed oats which they purchased of the firm did not come up to representations. Last February the nine farmers entered into contract with L. P. Gunson & Co. for the purchase of seed oats at $2.50 per bushel, the quantities varying from ten to twenty bushels. They assert the oats were Burpee's Winter-flowering Spencer Sweet Peas, Originated at Fordhook Farms and Grown at Floradale Farm. Absolutely fixed—true to color and type.

We began hybridizing the original Winter-Flowering Sweet Peas, namely, Burpee's Earliest of All (Christmas Pink), Burpee's Earliest White, Burpee's Earliest Sunbeams and Burpee's Re-selected Earliest of All, with the finest varieties of the summer-flowering Spencers, at our FORDHOOK FARMS in 1909. It is, however, quite a slow process to thoroughly "true" and "fix" these seedlings, and it being against the principles of our business to put any novelty on the market in an unfixed condition, we are offering only two varieties at present. The stocks of these we know to be absolutely fixed, true to color and type. After our crops are harvested we may be in a position to offer, in a limited way, several other winter-flowering novelties, particulars of which will be found in Burpee's Annual for 1916.

FORDHOOK PINK
From photograph made at Fordhook

FORDHOOK PINK

This is the result of a cross made at our Fordhook Farms in 1909. The color is a beautiful shade of rose-pink on white ground; the coloring deepening towards the edge of the standard and wings. The flowers are of largest size, exquisitely waved and usually produced in threes and fours on long stems. Unsurpassed for cut flower trade. Awarded Certificate of Merit at the Spring Show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, Philadelphia, March 23, 1915.

In sealed packets containing twelve seeds each. Per pkt., 25 cents; ¼ oz., $1.35; ½ oz., $2.25; per oz., $4.00.

FORDHOOK ROSE

The result of a cross made at our Fordhook Farms in 1910. This lovely novelty is a charming shade of rosy-carmine. The flowers are of largest size and usually borne in threes and fours on long, stiff stems. Awarded Certificate of Merit at the International Show, New York, March 20, 1914, and at the Spring Show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, Philadelphia, March 23, 1915.

In sealed packets containing twelve seeds each. Per pkt., 25 cents; ¼ oz., $1.35; ½ oz., $2.25; per oz., $4.00.

YARRAWA

The Sweet Pea Par Excellence for Winter flowering Under Glass

We were awarded Certificates of Merit for this superb novelty at the International Flower Show in New York, March, 1914, and at the Spring Show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, Philadelphia, March, 1915.

YARRAWA is an easy and good "doer," invariably giving an excellent account of itself, whether grown in pots, boxes, raised benches or solid beds.

YARRAWA has the heavy foliage and rank, strong growth of the summer-flowering type and is a true winter-blooming Spencer. From seed sown early in October at Fordhook Farms, the plants came into bloom December 20th and flowered profusely until May. The flowers are exquisitely waved and when well grown will average two and one-half inches in diameter, many of them being duplex or double flowered, thus adding greatly to the general effect of the bunch. They are borne usually in fours on extra long, strong stems. The color is a most pleasing shade of bright rose-pink, with light wings. As the supply of seed will be limited, we advise ordering early. Floradale-grown seed exclusively—¼ oz., $1.00; per oz., $3.50; per ¼ lb., $12.50; 1 lb., $45.00.

represented to be pure mammoth cluster, but proved to be mixed with large quantities of common oats and barley and infected with smut. The issue appears to be the fact of warranty by the seedsman.

BRAZIL OFFERS BUSINESS.

The U. S. Department of Commerce announces that a company which conducts an agricultural experiment station in Brazil reports that it is experiencing difficulty in securing seeds. It desires to correspond with seedsmen and nurserymen. A booklet containing varieties of seeds used and prices paid, etc., may be examined at the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, through which correspondence on the matter may be had in English.

"TULIPS" ARE TULIP BULBS.

Customs Appraisers Overrule Protests.

Some months ago The Review reported the efforts of certain importers of tulip bulbs to secure a refund of half the duty paid on them since the present tariff act went into effect, October 3, 1913, and to establish the rate under that act as 50 cents per thousand, instead of $1, by means of a protest heard before the Board of General Customs Appraisers. The Board now announces its decision in one of these cases, which will govern in the others. It is ruled that the word "tulips" as used in the tariff act is a grammatical error, "tulip" having been intended, and that it does not obscure the intent to tax bulbs of the tulip at the higher rate.

The decision is on the protest of Maltus & Ware, of New York. In its decision the Board says:

"The merchandise involved in this case is tulip bulbs, so invoiced, mentioned as tulip bulbs in the report of the appraiser, characterized as tulip bulbs in the protest, and conceded by all to be tulip bulbs. They were assessed as such under paragraph 210, tariff act of 1913, at $1 per thousand. The importers protest in the following language:

"'The reason for objection, under the tariff act of October 3, 1913, is as follows: Said merchandise is not dutiable as assessed. It is covered by, and is dutiable under, the last clause of paragraph 210 (as "other" bulbs, roots, root stocks, corms, and tubers) at only 50 cents per thousand. If not as aforesaid it is covered by, and is free of duty under, the proviso of said paragraph 210.'

"Paragraph 210 reads as follows: 'Orchards, palms, Azalea indica, and cut flowers, preserved or fresh, 25 per centum ad valorem; lily of the valley pips, tulips, narcissus, begonia, and gloxinia bulbs, $1 per thousand; hyacinth bulbs, astilbe, dielytra, and lily of the valley clumps, $2.50 per thousand; lily bulbs and calla bulbs or corms, $5 per thousand; herbaceous peony; Iris Kaempferi or Germanica, canna, dahlia, and amaryllis bulbs, $10 per thousand; all other bulbs, roots, root stocks, corms, and tubers, which are cultivated for their flowers or foliage, 50 cents per thousand: Provided, That all mature mother flowering bulbs imported exclusively for propagating purposes shall be admitted free of duty.'

"No testimony was given, the case being submitted upon the record. It will be noted that the provision under which these bulbs were assessed is the second clause of paragraph 210, which reads, 'lily of the valley pips, tulips, narcissus, begonia, and gloxinia bulbs, $1 per thousand.'

"The whole contention arises over the meaning to be given to the word 'tulips.' If it were in the singular no question would arise. It is claimed, however, that if it is to be considered an adjective applying to bulbs, it should have been 'tulip' instead of 'tulips,' and therefore the grammatical form of 'tulips' excludes tulip bulbs from classification under this clause. We think the context leads to the irresistible conclusion that the word 'tulips' was intended to bring within that clause tulip bulbs.

"As stated by the Supreme Court of the United States in Virginia v. Tennessee (148 U. S., 503, 519): 'Noscitur a sociis is a rule of construction applicable to all written instruments. Where any particular word is obscure or of doubtful meaning, taken by itself, its obscurity or doubt may be removed by reference to associated words. And the meaning of a term may be enlarged or restricted by reference to the object of the whole clause in which it is used.'

"We are not disposed to observe grammatical refinements for the benefit of litigants when to do so would render the terms of a statute nugatory

seeds are all grown by myself and are offered in the following mixtures and separate colors:

22—KENILWORTH STRAIN—The flowers are of perfect form and substance; many of the immense flowers are from 3½ to 4 inches; it is a striking collection of beautiful colors and markings rich with shades of red, brown, bronze, mahogany and many others too numerous to mention. Light, Medium or Dark Mixtures.

26—KENILWORTH CUT FLOWER MIXTURE—Is a distinct class by itself, surpassing all other strains as a cut flower or for exhibition purposes, for inside or outside growing; the large flowers are carried erect above the foliage on heavy stems, 7 or 8 inches long, in the most graceful manner, and stand the hot, dry weather well.

28—MASTERPIECE—A remarkable type; the curled, wavy petals giving the flower a double appearance, large flowers of great substance, on long, strong stems.

30—GIANT THREE AND FIVE BLOTCHED PANSIES—A superb mixture. Flowers large and of circular form and of great substance. The display of coloring is unsurpassed. A combination of almost every shade of rich velvety colors, reds are particularly conspicuous; the petals being distinctly marked with three or five large dark blotches.

NEW SEED NOW READY

All sorts and mixtures, except the new Pansy Princess, are $5.00 per oz.; $1.25 per ¼-oz.; 5000 seeds, $1.00; trade packet of 1000 seeds, 25c; any 5 pkts., $1.00. Please order by number.

PRINCESS

20—The New Upright Pansy

This strain is entirely distinct from all others. It is absolutely compact, upright growing, and extremely weather-proof, enduring many storms without damage to its flower. The flowers are mostly blotched and frilled like the Masterpiece, of good form and heavy velvety texture, on heavy stems carried well above the foliage. Attractive by the brilliancy of its colors.
500 Seeds 20c; 1000 Seeds 35c; ¼ oz. $1.00; ¼ oz. $2.00; 1 oz. $7.50.

24—Kenilworth Show—A fine strain.

and defeat the clear intention of Congress.

"In Singer Manufacturing Co. v. McCollock (24 Fed., 667), the court used the following language, which we think applies in this case: 'In the construction of statutes the rules of grammar are less important than the intention of the legislature. And the sense and spirit of the statute prevail over the strict grammatical construction of its words, "for the letter killeth, but the spirit giveth life."'

"The importers in their brief advance the argument that the word 'tulips' as it occurs in paragraph 210 may be held to cover cut tulips. We do not think this contention is supported by the context. We are therefore of the opinion that the classification of the collector can not be successfully assailed.

"The protest is overruled."

The Board also overruled the protests of the International Forwarding Co., of A. C. McClurg & Co., and others at Chicago in similar cases.

Other Decisions.

In the case of Maltus & Ware, of New York, against the duty on gladiolus bulbs and mother flowering bulbs, the Board said: "Gladiolus bulbs classified under paragraph 210, tariff act of 1913, under the provision for 'all other bulbs * * * which are cultivated for their flowers or foliage,' were claimed free of duty under the proviso of the same paragraph covering 'mature mother flowering bulbs imported exclusively for propagating purposes.' Protest unsupported and overruled."

In the protest of J. D. Irwin & Co., of New York, involving the duty on budding knives and pruning knives, the Board holds these knives were properly classified under the specific provisions therefor in paragraph 128 of the 1913 tariff act and overrules the protest.

Another case decided by the Board was that of the protest of Vaughan's Seed Store, of Chicago, involving the duty on nursery stock. The government's motion to dismiss the protest on the ground that it was signed by the wrong party is overruled, it being shown that it was signed by an agent for the importer. The merchandise, nursery stock, was classified under paragraph 211 of the 1913 tariff act and was claimed free of duty as works of art, collections in illustration of the progress of the arts. The protest was overruled.

Woman versus Mystery

We hear many men say woman is a mystery. And we all know a mystery is a truth which we cannot fully understand. Well, perhaps we are, but even at that most real men are very much interested in the Little Mysteries, and the male earth being who does not like the Mysteries and does not treat them right must certainly find this a lonesome Paradise.

Well, we cannot just exactly help it ourselves, because we don't always just understand ourselves, and it is not our fault always. For one, I know I am a mystery to myself. I enacted the funniest drama in my life that I ever heard of, just the past month, and now I know I am a mystery to myself, at least.

Everyone in our trade knows I travel a great deal for business, and I meet hundreds of men and am never embarrassed by anyone, from a beggar to a multimillionaire, because I am not looking for beaux or sweethearts, just friends—and real friends they are. I'll put our tradesmen second to none for being fine fellows, real men; but the few who are not are soon forgotten in the rush, not worth worrying about.

Well, here is where I took a change for the worse. I was motoring past a hotel and saluted a friend and went on, paying no further attention, and—well—the worst is yet to come. * * *

MAXIMS

Ever notice how much truth is often squeezed into a brief sentence?

Note this one—"The rat which has but one hole is soon caught."

Likewise the Snapdragon which has but one virtue is soon done. A glance at the record of recent years will show some of the "great ones" on the bargain counter, others sinking into oblivion, and some clear off the file d, while our Silver Pink SEEDLINGS grow in favor each day, with sales double those of a year ago. A multiple of good points is the reason. Beauty of color and habit of growth, combining wonderful productiveness, have made our Silver Pink Seedlings famous. Seedling snapdragons have such advantage over cuttings as to make cuttings a waste of time. Seedlings make better plants in less time, are practically disease-proof, and will flower, and flower, and flower, while plants from cuttings are done at one small crop.

A. H. Faxon, Southbridge, Mass., when sending a repeat order for plants, says: "I like your S. P. Snapdragons very much. What you say about seedlings is true."

At present we have only seeds and seedlings to offer. New crop seed of our original Silver Pink Snapdragon, $1.00 per pkt.; 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00. Seed of Nelrose, White, Yellow, Garnet and Mixed, 35c per pkt.; 3 for $1.00.

Fancy seedling plants of Silver Pink, $4.00 per 100; $35.00 per 1000. Of Garnet, White and Mixed, same price. Of Nelrose and Yellow, $5.00 per 100.

Free cultural directions. All orders cash or C. O. D.

fall sowing, including wheat, rye, grass, clover, alfalfa, rape and winter vetch; seed drills also are listed. A conspicuous place in the catalogue is given to the special mixtures of grass seeds for lawns, for hay or permanent pasture, for the renovation of old pastures, for woodland pastures, etc.

BEACON, N. Y.

Business last week was as dull as the weather was bad. It rained nearly every day. There were no outdoor flowers to speak of, and all the florists were dependent upon roses, gladioli and snapdragons.

George W. Russell's carnation plants are looking well. He has everything in readiness for planting, which will be done as soon as the weather becomes dry enough.

At the Spy Hill Conservatories business is exceedingly quiet.

Benjamin Hammond has gone on a three weeks' trip to California. He will visit the exposition and attend the S. A. F. convention.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Business was quiet last week. There was plenty of good stock to be had, but the demand was not large enough to utilize the supply.

Some fine late asters are being received. Several growers are complaining that the overabundance of rain will not permit them to cut the blooms. Gladioli and Easter lilies are plentiful. The rose cut is not so heavy as it was, but it is sufficiently large to satisfy all present needs. Good rubrum and album lilies can be had now. The first carnations from the young stock arrived last week and they experienced a good market. The supply of greens is ample for all immediate requirements.

Various Notes.

Several florists have received cards, mailed at Omaha, from Miss Ada Kresken and Lawrence Kresken, who are on a trip to the Pacific coast.

C. E. Critchell received his first cut of carnations from the young plants last week. As the demand for blooms was good, the lot was quickly sold.

The John C. Moninger Co. has started rebuilding the greenhouses of Edward Freis and Henry Gockel, at Newport, Ky. The houses were damaged during a recent storm.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange shipped in a car of sphagnum moss last week.

Visitors last week were J. E. H. Morichard, of S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, and Samuel Seligman, of Wertheimer Bros., New York.

...THE...
Chrysanthemum
By Arthur Herrington
Formerly president Chrysanthemum Society of America.

The most complete and comprehensive work on the cultivation of the chrysanthemum that has yet been published in America. Its scope and character may be gleaned from the list of contents, which comprises chapters on composts; planting; benches, boxes or pots; general cultural details; crown and terminal buds; feeding, its object and application; care of the buds; exhibition and judging; specimen plants, plants in pots; raising from seed and hybridizing; sports; hardy chrysanthemums; chrysanthemums for south and west; insect pests and diseases; classification and selection of varieties for special purposes; history of the chrysanthemum, etc. The book will be welcomed for the lucid, comprehensive, as well as the practical character of its contents. Handsomely illustrated. 168 pages, 5x7 inches. Price 50c postpaid.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

NURSERYMEN'S CONVENTIONS.

Reports of the conventions of the Pacific Coast Nurserymen's Association and the California Association of Nurserymen last week at San Francisco appear in the Nursery Trade Department, page 94, in this issue.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Another dull week has to be chronicled, though not as dull as last week, as a lot of good funeral work partly compensated for the slackness in other lines. Stock is about as last reported, though three extremely hot days in succession had the effect of shortening the cut somewhat. Dahlias are excellent, and, besides having value as a show window flower, are working in nicely in funeral orders. The indoor roses stand up fairly well, but are short in stem, especially those from young plants. Where the advantage to the grower comes in, in shipping such stock when he has to weaken his plants to cut it, is difficult to see. Good carnations are scarce, but there is plenty of other stock to take their place.

Various Notes.

Looking around the establishment of Polder & Groen, I found the two new greenhouses up and the glazing almost finished. To insure a constant water pressure, a large concrete reservoir has been constructed and a fine electric motor has been installed to work a pump. The progress made by these young men is remarkable, in the face of strenuous competition. They combine thorough business capability with cultural skill and stick-to-itiveness, rather an unusual combination and one that makes for success.

T. J. Noll, of T. J. Noll & Co., Kansas City, Mo., and Mrs. Noll have been in the city this week, en route from San Diego to San Francisco. Both speak in the highest terms of the beautiful landscape work at the former exposition.

At Wright's Flower Shop early this week everyone was busy with good funeral work. The stock is arriving in fine shape from the range. Mr. Wright is showing a deep pink sport from Prima Donna, in the way of September Morn, but a shade darker in color.

At the Montebello establishment of the H. N. Gage Co. I noted a lot of fine Boston and other ferns, and the whole place is much improved in appearance. The work on the new office and other improvements is going along rapidly.

At the new nursery of the Germain Seed & Plant Co. an immense new reinforced concrete tank has been built, to be filled by gravity from the reservoir on the property and to serve as a storage tank in case of a breakdown. A motor and pump are being installed to provide pressure for the new greenhouses in prospect, and for the large lath house and nursery grounds.

C. Morton and Mrs. Morton left the city for Phoenix, intending to drive there by easy stages. Fred Sperry accompanies them as far as Redlands.

The publicity committee for the Cleveland flower show, November 10 to 14, is "some committee," when its members come so far from home to boost their show as to our favored city. T. J. Ritzenthaler, of Knoble Bros., and Geo. P. Schaab, Jr., of the James Eadie Co., both were callers this week and both were handing out cordial invitations to the Los Angeles brethren to visit Cleveland. Rudyard Kipling wrote, "East is east and west is west and never the twain shall meet," but east is meeting west and west is meeting east this year, to the advantage of both.

R. W. Saakes left this week for San Francisco, to attend the convention and the big show. His brother, O. C. Saakes, will leave September 9 and expects to be gone about six weeks.

Frank McCabe, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, is calling on the trade this week.

H. W. Turner, of Montebello, left August 15 for the convention, going by boat from San Pedro.

H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

There was a good deal of decorative work last week, which enabled the trade to utilize most of the stock offered. Counter trade was good for this time of year, and is getting better distributed over the city, following a general improvement in business conditions. An important factor in the decorations was the monster parade of Butchers' day, August 10, in which more elaborate floats than ever appeared. Flowers were given the preference over the usual bunting, etc.

The lines of stock offered show little change. There are still a good many sweet peas, nearly all short and poor. The carnation supply is about the same as the week previous. Asters are still plentiful, including perhaps a little more trashy stock, but on the whole good, and they are well taken. Street venders handle great quantities of them Of the numerous varieties of summer stock that have been so plentiful for the last month, practically all are still offered in as large quantities as can easily be sold. Amaryllis is seen everywhere, and is rather slow to clean up. A few scattered lots of zinnias are appearing, but they are not much of a factor except with shops that make a specialty of them. Gladioli are still fairly plentiful, and vary greatly in quality. Some fine Niagara are offered, Mrs. Francis King are good and plentiful, and a few nice Panama are seen. Dahlias are good. Some are exceptionally fine, but the supply is irregular. More are expected in the next few weeks. As for roses, Ophelia continues in the lead, with Hadley and Russell showing better quality. Most of the stock in other varieties is short and poor. The demand so far has been limited. More orchids could be sold than are available. Gardenias, of which there is a fair cut, sell readily. Lilies still hold a prominent position. Storage giganteum is more in evidence, rubrum and tiger still quite plentiful, and auratum finer than ever. A large quantity of cyclamen blooms is appearing.

Many chrysanthemums are offered. They are still a novelty and clean up readily, though the quality is poor. Many florists believe that it is a poor policy to try to advance the market for chrysanthemums. They think it would be better to hold them back, at least

¶ WE WISH TO ANNOUNCE to the trade that, owing to the growth of our business, we have been compelled to secure larger quarters.

We have moved to 451 Bush Street, where we have facilities and space to handle the increase in our shipping trade, controlling the output of over fifty growers of all varieties of stock.

Yours for more business and better service in the future,

E. W. McLELLAN COMPANY,
451 Bush St., San Francisco, Cal.

until September 1. Before that, the florists say, many other kinds of good stock are still plentiful, and the early mums, though having no merit in themselves, simply disturb the market. Consequently, later on, when chrysanthemums have the market much to themselves, the novelty will have worn off, and people will no longer pay high prices for them.

Society Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society was held on the evening of August 7. As this was the last regular meeting before the S. A. F. convention, the meeting was well attended, and matters pertaining to the convention took precedence over nearly everything else. Arrangements were made for the local ladies to take the members of the Ladies' S. A. F. for an automobile ride Wednesday morning, August 18, and for a theater party for the ladies and a smoker at the Elks' auditorium for the men Thursday evening, August 19.

E. Gill and John Vallance were called upon to speak of the Pacific Coast Nurserymen's Association's convention, August 12 to 14.

It was announced that the ladies connected with the trade of San Francisco and vicinity had formed a permanent organization, taking the name of Ladies' Auxiliary of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society. Financial Secretary Meyer gave an encouraging report on payments of dues which had been in arrears. It was decided to appropriate $25 for prizes for the bowling contest. Henry Heer was admitted to membership.

An interesting part of the evening's program was a short lecture on the iris, by S. B. Mitchell. Much of the discussion was given to the so-called German iris and types native to the Mediterranean region in general, as especially desirable for garden planting in California.

The evening's exhibits included a remarkably fine exhibit of eleven specimens of hybrid seedling gladioli, by Richard Diener, judged at ninety-nine points. These were described as the result of one crossing in each case, a new process being used. The blossoms were all large, and some showed remarkably fine colors. F. T. Pelicano showed four specimens of cactus dahlias, originated by Mr. Fincking and named after Mr. Pelicano; and a vase each of Dahlia Hampton Court and Gladiolus Niagara. The whole collection was rated at seventy points. E. Shillig brought a lot of late Crawford peaches, which were rated at seventy-five points and were afterward much enjoyed by some of the members. H. Plath showed a good specimen of Nephrolepis tuberosa, in a 14-inch pot, which took eighty points.

Various Notes.

Sydney H. Bayersdorfer, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, accompanied by Martin Reukauf, traveling representative of the house, was on the ground early to arrange for their firm's exhibit at the convention.

Other early arrivals for the convention were Frank McCabe, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago; Jacob Hess and Mrs. Hess, of Omaha, Neb., and John A. Evans, of Richmond, Ind.

Frank Pelicano is bringing in some fine Kalif dahlias, about ten inches in diameter. He says they are just starting, and will be still better in a week

The Market.

Outdoor stock, such as gladioli, asters and sweet peas, has fallen off in quality as well as quantity. There are a few good dahlias being shipped in. At the downtown stores there is a scarcity of good stock. Trade, however, is holding up wonderfully well, and no one is complaining. Business resulting from the numerous tourists and funerals has added a large item to the regular trade.

Various Notes.

Rosaia Bros. are enlarging their establishment by annexing a corner store adjoining the old place. The addition will greatly increase their facilities.

ing several cases of cold-storage lilies in anticipation of a good demand later.

Mr. Sullivan, of the Hollywood Gardens, was exceedingly busy last week with funeral orders.

C. Hoffmeister, of the Washington Floral Co., is planting two houses with poinsettias. He has a splendid lot of cyclamens.

Joseph Stuber, formerly of the East Seattle Floral Co. and later of the Seattle Paper Stock Co., has come back to the florists' trade and is now grower for Ralph Richardson.

Lambert Pederson has purchased the establishment of the West Queen Anne Florist.

Chris Jochimsen, proprietor of the Rainier Floral Co., met with an accident recently when riding in his automobile. The car was badly smashed, but Mr. Jochimsen escaped injury.

Among trade visitors last week were A. J. Burt, of Spokane; William E. Endres, of C. A. Samuelson, Chicago, and A. Brown, of Vancouver, B. C.

The Market.

Last week there were few social events in flower buying circles, and there was only a fair demand for funeral work. The stores are filled with prime stock, much of which will be wasted unless conditions change. Asters are the leading flowers, followed by gladioli, roses, rubrum and auratum lilies, sweet peas and garden flowers, in the order named. Market conditions are not below the normal for the second week of August.

Various Notes.

J. A. Wilson is spending his vacation with his family at the seashore.

The family of James Forbes, and Mrs. L. W. Scott, are spending the summer at the beach.

Clarke Bros. had on display last week the first Golden Glow chrysanthemums.

A. Hanson built a range of greenhouses at Twenty-sixth and F streets, Vancouver, Wash., about five years ago, and with the assistance of Mrs. Hanson, he has done a successful business as a grower and florist. At the rear he dug a mushroom pit and walled it with concrete, but finding mushrooms an uncertain crop, he put a glass roof over the pit and grew Asparagus plumosus instead. Being located in a fast growing city, which has passed the 10,000 mark, Mr. Hanson is likely to need more glass before long.

R. E. Jones, representing the Advance Co., of Richmond, Ind., visited the greenhouses last week. He is working toward the south and expects to attend the S. A. F. convention.

A. H. Dailey, a florist at Knoxville, Tenn., accompanied by his family, stopped over on his way home from the exposition.

Of the store force of Martin & Forbes, Edward Boyse, and A. P. Normart and family, have visited the fair. Ernest Dozier went to Bremerton, Wash., where he has friends. The family of William Fehrenbacher is at the coast, but he is remaining at home.

Hector Adams, of the Albany Floral Co., Albany, Ore., called on some of the local florists last week.

The inconsistency of some customers is illustrated by an incident related by A. Hanson, of Vancouver. Last fall a woman called at his greenhouses and inquired for mums. He offered her some large ones at $2.50 per dozen, and told her he would deliver them at her house, which was close by. The chrysanthemums were just what she wanted, but she thought the price too high. As Mr. Hanson would not reduce the price, the woman did not buy the mums. The next day Mr. Hanson cut his surplus mums and sold them to a Portland flower store at $2.50 per dozen, wholesale. When calling at the store later in the day, the proprietor told him that a bunch of his mums had gone back to Vancouver, having been bought by a woman from that place. A little inquiry revealed the fact that the purchaser was the same woman

QUALITY IN ASTER SEED

To the Members and Friends of the S. A. F.:

The quality of seed you buy is of utmost importance to you. Your most careful cultivation, your liberal application of fertilizer and your diligent attention to details will never produce a good crop from poor seed.

It takes time and thought and much hard work to produce the best results in any line, and in no business is the general public more deceived than in the buying of various seeds.

The poor quality of asters produced from seed sent us from time to time has caused us to take up the work of aster seed growing as a protection against crop failures; and, as a result, the H. & F. Quality Asters have become well known to all the leading florists of the Pacific northwest as first-grade stock.

Owing to the location of our plant, only a small percentage of the traveling public see our fine fields of asters and are therefore not in position to accept the facts so readily as one visiting the place and seeing actual results. However, many satisfied users of this seed have done us the kindness to write concerning their unusual success, and we feel sure the seed we offer will make friends for us of a large populace in the near future.

Trusting that you may have the confidence to at least test the H. & F. Quality Aster Seed next year, we ask that you kindly send us your name and address, so that we can mail you our new circular as soon as ready.

who had refused to pay Mr. Hanson $2.50 per dozen for the mums, delivered, but had paid $4 for the same mums at Portland and then carried them home to Vancouver!

John Gower, a grower of Newberg, said he was having success with Bonny Best tomatoes. He plans to grow a quantity of bulbous stock this fall.

Prof. Arno Nehrling, associate professor of floriculture at Amherst College, was shown about the city by Edward Knighton, who attends to the landscaping of public school grounds.

D. Masterson, who has charge of the greenhouses at the Oregon Agricultural College, stopped here on his way to the exposition.

H. Niklas has returned from an outing trip to the Cascade mountains, between Mt. Adams and Mt. St. Helens. He brought back some fine photographs of mountain scenes.

The family of Max Smith is at the seashore. T. C. Luke, of the store force, is with them.

J. B. Pilkington has gone to San Francisco to see the fair and attend the convention of the Pacific Coast Nurserymen's Association. He will also attend the S. A. F. convention.

Mrs. Burkhardt, widow of the late Alfred C. F. Burkhardt, announces that she will continue the florists' business founded by Mr. Burkhardt.

A. J. Burt, of Spokane, stopped over on his way south. He will visit the expositions and attend the S. A. F. convention.

S. W. W.

South Seattle, Wash.—Chris Jochimsen, manager of the Rainier Floral Co., is frequently reminded that troubles never come singly. Recently fifteen tons of dynamite exploded near his greenhouses and the way the glass crashed equaled the effect of the heaviest hail. Then, returning from a visit to Spokane to attend a convention of the Eagles, Mr. Jochimsen found his garage had been broken open, the machine had been taken out and run against a telegraph pole, putting it in a condition where the best offer for it was $25.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Vice-president, John Watson, Newark, N. Y.; Secretary, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

Forty-first annual meeting, Milwaukee, Wis., June 22 to 24, 1916.

T. R. PEYTON and his workers at the Peyton Nurseries, Boonville, Mo., recently went on a fishing trip on the Lamine river. The journey was made in the company's tree-frame. The fishermen brought back one dozen catfish weighing about a pound each. The party consisted of J. L. Moore, C. W. Rench, Francis Rench, Charles Bauer, Lester Barr, Hall McLaughlin, O. C. McLaughlin, Thomas Peyton and T. R. Peyton.

HEAD SELLS NURSERIES.

Thomas W. Head, who has for the last four years conducted the Bergenfield Nurseries, at Bergenfield, N. J., has sold the place to the Stumpp & Walter Co., of New York, which operated the establishment as its trial grounds and nursery before Mr. Head took it over. The Stumpp & Walter Co. has leased the nurseries to Herman Fisher, of West Hoboken.

Mr. Head was employed on the Morton F. Plant estate, at Groton, Conn., for many years. After traveling as the representative of the Stumpp & Walter Co. for a time, he took over the nurseries which he has now sold back to the firm. His plans are not known, but it is expected he will remain in the borough at least until the expiration of his term as councilman, at the first of the coming year.

CALIFORNIA NURSERYMEN MEET.

Officers Elected.

Little change was made in the roster of officers of the California Association of Nurserymen at its fifth annual convention at San Francisco, August 13 and 14. A switch of Christian names sufficed in naming the new president, although the persons are quite distinct, Charles Howard, of Hemet, succeeding Fred H. Howard, of Los Angeles. John Vallance, of Oakland, and T. E. Mabee, of Fresno, were re-elected vice-presidents, and G. F. Otto, of San Diego, and Max J. Crow, of Gilroy, named with them. Henry W. Kruckeberg was re-elected secretary-treasurer. On the executive committee, J. D. Meriwether, of Los Angeles, and F. H. Wilson, of Dinuba, were re-elected, and John Gill, of West Berkeley, chosen to succeed W. V. Eberly, of Niles.

The Sessions.

The association was called to order Friday afternoon, August 13 to listen to the president's address, the secretary's report and the reports of the following committee chairmen:

Legislation—George C. Roeding, Fresno.
Insects and disease—P. A. Edouart, Los Angeles.
Transportation—J. D. Meriwether, Los Angeles.
Deciduous fruits—Max J. Crow, Gilroy.
Citrus and tropical fruits—F. O. Popenoe, Altadena.
Viticulture—Frank T. Swett, Martinez.
Gardens—Arthur Cann, San Jose.
Plants and flowers—Donald McLaren, San Francisco.
Native vegetation—Theodore Payne, Los Angeles.
Arboriculture—W. J. Pettingell, Santa Barbara.
Nomenclature—Ernest Braunton, Los Angeles.
Exhibitions—H. Plath, San Francisco.
Program—Daniel MacRorie, San Francisco.

During the Saturday forenoon session the following papers were read, followed by able and interesting discussions:

"Recent Rulings in re Shipping Plants by Parcel Post," by D. W. Coolidge, president Coolidge Rare Plant Gardens, Pasadena.

"The Crime of Being a Nurseryman," by W. D. Somerville, sales manager for Howard & Smith, Los Angeles.

"Why Import What We Can Grow On This Coast?" by M. McDonald, president of the Oregon Nursery Co., Orenco, Ore.

"Do We Need New Varieties of Commercial Fruits?" by Edward J. Wickson, editor of the Pacific Rural Press, San Francisco.

"A Publisher's Suggestions to Nurserymen," by Frank Honeywell, publisher of the Pacific Rural Press, San Francisco.

The members were taken on an automobile tour of local nurseries Saturday afternoon. Monday evening, August 16, they joined the Pacific Coast Nurserymen's Association in the festivities at the fair grounds.

PACIFIC COAST ASSOCIATION.

Thirteenth Annual Meeting.

The Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen held its thirteenth annual convention August 12 to 14 at San Francisco. Its meeting and that of the California Association of Nurserymen in conjunction with it attracted to San Francisco over 150 members of the trade, and made the sessions of both organizations of exceptional interest. Northern nurserymen came down from Portland together by steamer, arriving August 11.

At the business session of the Pacific Coast Association plans were formed for a closer relationship with the horticultural inspectors in the various districts. More uniform and more favorable laws throughout the states of the Pacific coast were, as usual, the subject of much discussion. The parcel post was also thoroughly discussed, particularly in regard to ways in which it might be developed to give more satisfactory results. The need for a simplification of the present system seems to be quite clear.

Election of Officers.

The officers elected for the ensuing year are as follows:

President—S. A. Miller, Milton, Ore.

Vice-presidents—C. F. Lansing, Salem, Ore.; A. J. Elmer, East San Jose, Cal.; P. A. Dix, Roy, Utah; E. F. Stephens, Nampa, Idaho; D. J. Tighe, Billings, Mont.; F. A. Wiggins, Toppenish, Wash.; Jos. Brown, Vancouver, B. C.

Secretary-treasurer—C. A. Tonneson, Tacoma, Wash.

Executive c mmittee—J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore.; John Vallance, Oakland, Cal.; W. S. Bennett, Medford, Ore.

The Program.

The morning of August 12 was devoted entirely to the reading of reports by various officers and committees of the association at the New Civic Auditorium. President John Vallance read his address at this session. That afternoon and the following day were occupied by papers and discussions of them. J. B. Pilkington, of Portland, was not present, but his paper and report were read, and proved of much interest. The papers read were as follows:

"Uniform Horticultural Laws," by M. McDonald, Orenco, Ore.

"Recent Horticultural Legislation," by A. J. Cook, Sacramento, Cal.

"Experiments with Crown Gall," Prof. H. S. Jackson, Corvallis, Ore.

"Quality vs. Quantity and a Wider Distribution," by J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore.

"Valuable Information About Ornamental Plants," by Prof. J. W. Gregg, Berkeley, Cal.

"Preventing the Importation of Insect Enemies," by Frederick Maskew, chief deputy quarantine officer.

"Seedlings and Stock Grown in America," by M. J. Crow, Gilroy, Cal.

"The Walnut Industry," by Almon Wheeler, San Jose, Cal., and F. J. Ruppert, Salem, Ore.

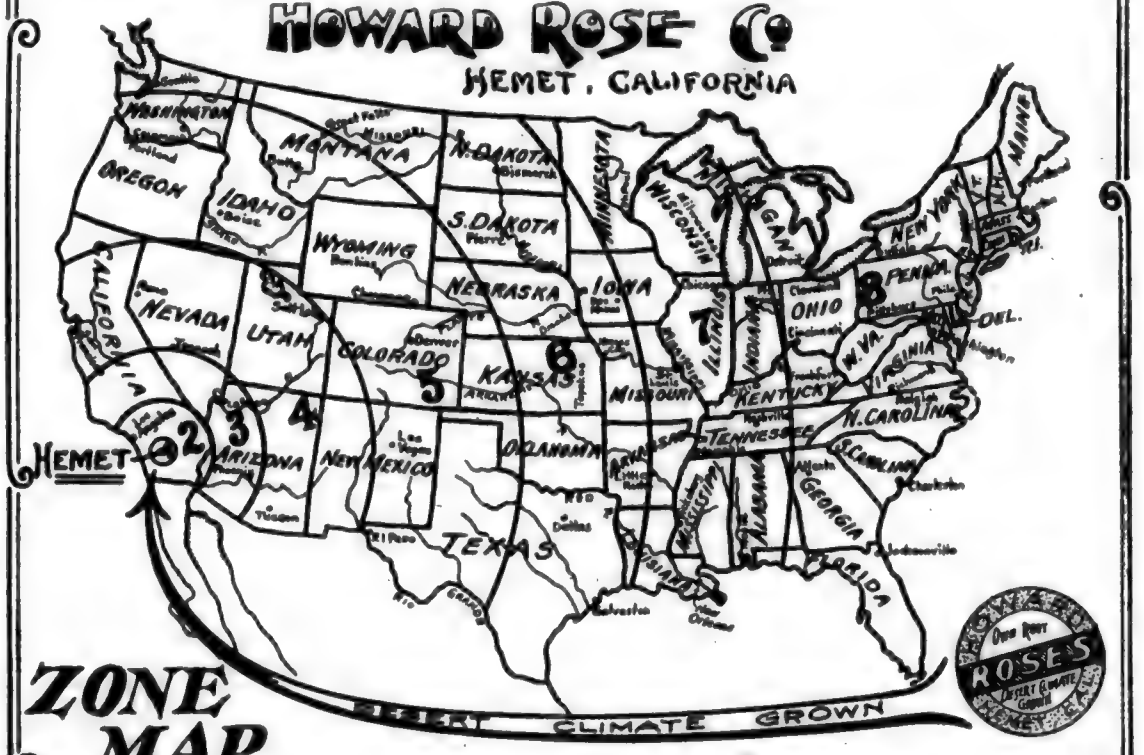
"The New Roses," by John Gill, West Berkeley, Cal.; Chas. Howard, Hemet, Cal., and Fred Howard, Los Angeles, Cal.

Thursday evening, August 12, was held a reception at the St. Francis hotel, and the following night a theater party. Monday, August 16, was the big day, named Nurserymen's day at the Panama-Pacific exposition. There were nearly 100 at the exposition grounds, where there was a banquet, in the California building. The exposition authorities presented a medal to each of the nurserymen's associations.

RAILWAY GARDENERS CONVENE.

In Session at Detroit.

The Railway Gardening Association is holding its ninth annual meeting at Detroit, August 17 to 20, with an attendance of about thirty members, somewhat less than last year's. The first two days were spent in business sessions at the convention headquarters, the Hotel Ste. Claire. Tuesday, August 17, at 10 a. m., the association listened to the address of President Paul Huebner and the report of Treasurer J. K. Wingert. Secretary W. F. Hutchison was kept away by business, and his place was taken by Chas. E. Lowe.



At the afternoon session the same day and at the morning session the following day interesting papers were read by the chairmen of the various committees. I. T. Worthley, of the committee on soils and fertilizers, gave a most interesting demonstration of soil testing. J. A. Byrne, Emil Engelman and C. W. Eichling were three other committee chairmen heard from.

August 19 and 20 were set aside on the program for trips to the city parks and private estates in and near Detroit.

President's Address.

President Huebner in his official address spoke in part as follows:

"In the way of practical suggestions for appropriate action at this convention I would call your attention to the following features of organization:

"First, the permanent committees upon the several subjects under which all of our work may be grouped. It is intended that the membership in these committees be slightly changed each year, but that a broad scheme for the systematic development of each topic be followed continuously, working from the most general aspects of the subject gradually into the details, and collecting all available information upon each phase of the subject as we progress, as was stated in my recent letters to chairmen of committees. In this way we should ultimately accumulate a large and orderly mass of facts of everyday value, to railway gardeners especially, but also to gardening people in general, and such results should warrant a distinctive recognition of our association for practical achievements.

"Second, the suggestion has been made that for our future meetings we follow the points of the compass in successive years. This is our northern meeting; let next year be our southern meeting, then an eastern and then a western meeting. Further, it is suggested that the date of meeting be determined largely by the climate of the place where we shall meet, later for northern and vice versa. Consideration should also be given to timing the meetings, so that we shall see some feature of horticultural interest during the meeting, so that meetings shall not be fixed closer than six months from the previous meeting, and so that, so far as possible, the meetings shall be held during our least busy season. I should like to have a full discussion of this matter, with a possible determination of our meeting places and dates for the remaining three years of this cycle."

PUBLICITY PROGRAM NEEDED.

now think of using them, instead of watching with jealous eyes his neighbor florist's store and criticising his way of doing business, and we all will be better satisfied, aside from being better men and better florists.

I think it is folly for the New York men to dictate to the man in Detroit how to advertise. It is a much safer way for each man to study a plan or system by which he can get the most publicity in his locality. After this is done an indorsement by a national campaign is absolutely in order, but before that it would be throwing away money.

Few Must Do Work.

National advertising is a good deal like coöperative advertising. It is up to a few to do the work to the best of their ability, and even after they can show the best results it is hard for the few to collect the money from the others.

There is absolutely no doubt in my mind that Mothers' day would never have become the great benefit to the trade that it is, had it not been for the florists in different localities who took this proposition in hand and followed it up. Some day I hope Mothers' day will become the same as Easter or Christmas to the florists' trade. Yet, ask the fellows who do the actual work, and hear what they have to say about plugging to get even a hearing with some of their brother florists. You may be surprised when I tell you that they sometimes almost have to beg and plead for the other fellows to come in with them, aside from doing the hard work. And I venture to say right here that if they were not successful, they would never be forgiven, although even the best of us may make a misjudgment sometimes.

Cleveland is going to have a big flower show next fall, and the way the florists there go at the advertising is worth the study of a great many. Not just one or two individuals in the florists' trade will get the benefit from this advertising, and the men who are doing the work should be honored and appreciation should be shown them by their brother florists. I sincerely hope they will get this without any curtailment.

Trade Needs Publicity.

If publicity and advertising in the florists' trade will keep on increasing as it has increased within the last five years, I can safely state that in another five years the trade will be on more of a business basis than it is now. The time is past when a merchant or business man could not be a florist unless he was a graduate of a greenhouse. Today the most prominent retail florists have graduated from merchants' offices or business institutions.

The grower, of course, does not like this as well as the old way, but let the grower produce a pretty plant, or cut flowers, then add the artistic taste of the up-to-date retailer, and let him place it on the market in his way, and watch the success.

The success of the Ford automobile is not so much due to the mechanic who puts the car together as to the merchant's ways of publicity, the office, clerical and financial organization. These factors have had the most to do with the upbuilding of this organization and of thousands of other large and successful concerns in this country, and in every case you will find that the largest part of the publicity was studied out not so much by the practical and theoretical man as by the man with the most up-to-date business ideas.

Back Up Advertising.

Of course, I have come back to my first statement, that advertising must begin with getting up an article which will stand on its merits and which you can fully back up before you reach out for publicity.

I could keep on writing on these lines, but I should always come back to my first assertion, that before we can think of a national advertising campaign we must have, first of all, representative retailers in every town who will back up our preaching and give the best of service, following it up with prompt payment of their bills and not allowing them to run for three, four or six months, or even longer.

There are many florists in this country who seem to forget that the reputation for prompt payment of bills is one of the greatest a man can get. After all, it is nothing but businesslike.

I hope that within the next few years advertising will be so increased that no city will ever be able to report in the trade papers a glut or overstock of the market. It is up to the retailers to get rid of the growers' production, not up to the growers.

Zumbrota, Minn.—S. B. Scott, the local postmaster, has secured the material for one house from the A. Dietsch Co., Chicago, and will embark in the florists' business when it is completed. He will in connection operate a small nursery, dealing in ornamental shrubs, hedge plants and the like.

Tampa, Fla.—The Knull Floral Co. has moved its store and office to 408 Tampa street, near the corner of Lafayette. This seems an almost ideal location, for it is in the loop, at a street car transfer corner, and only one block from the firm's gardens. The plate glass front affords opportunity for good display. Show cases along either side of the room and the refrigerator with glass on all four sides at the rear of the store make the customer's first view of the interior a pleasing one.

The Market.

The most noticeable feature of the business during the last few weeks has been the decrease in the supply of flowers, particularly indoor stock. Business has been exceptionally quiet, and even funeral work has been quite scarce lately.

As usual, we have had showers quite frequently, and some of the outdoor stock is badly deteriorating. Roses have been scarce. Carnations are poor, and the trade has to depend to a great extent on outdoor stock to meet the demand. Gladioli and asters take the lead. Of the former everything good can be said as to quality, quantity and the variety of colors produced. Asters are exceedingly good, but do not sell as readily as gladioli. The prices they bring are only fair. Field-grown carnations are coming into the market, but as yet in only limited numbers. Hydrangeas, dahlias, Shasta daisies and double coreopsis complete the supply of flowers.

Various Notes.

The bad roads caused by the recent heavy rains did not deter several florists from motoring through Ohio and Michigan last week. One party left Tuesday, August 10, for Detroit and Toledo, and was composed of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Shive, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Blossom, Miss C. B. Flick and Miss Marguerite Flick. In Toledo they were the guests of Miss Helen Patten, of the Patten Flower Shop. Bad roads between Toledo and Detroit prevented the party motoring into Michigan, and so the trip was made by boat. The various flower stores were visited in the two cities. The party was accompanied to Fort Wayne by Miss Florence Delano, of Toledo, O.

Frank J. Knecht, his son, Walter Knecht, and two daughters, Gertrude and Martha, motored to Detroit recently, and called principally on the wholesale establishments. R. F.

Business is unusually good this summer. It is stated by some retailers so far to have increased over last summer's by twenty-five per cent. Some attribute the fact to better window displays more than anything else.

oli take the lead; the stock is the best that has ever been on the market, America being the leader. Asters are more plentiful and of exceptionally good quality. Lilies of all kinds are plentiful and good. Roses are not too plentiful.

Various Notes.

Henry Kusik & Co. report business in general is fair. They had a splendid shipping business last week.

The S. Bryson Ayres Co. is cutting fine asters and gladioli, of which the company has a large quantity both in the field and greenhouses.

Adolph Mohr has his greenhouses well filled with mums, begonias and poinsettias.

Ed Ellsworth has about 10,000 fine poinsettia plants. He devotes much time in the summer to this one plant and wholesales a great number.

W. J. Barnes has started his concrete bench work. About one-half of the place will have this kind of bench. No more wooden benches for him.

Business across the state line has been exceptionally good. Funeral work was heavy. Gladioli and asters mostly are used.

Wm. Foith has his place in exceptionally good shape. His prospects seem to be good for the coming winter. He expects an early cut from his carnations this fall. W. J. B.

DENVER.

The Market.

There is no change in market conditions since last report. Gladioli, dahlias and asters are arriving in large quantities. There are enough roses and carnations to supply all demands. Calls are beginning to come in for blooming plants, such as cyclamens, Begonia luminosa and B. Prima Donna.

Various Notes.

Mrs. Mary Jane Dungan, who was employed at the Bargain Flower Store, on Fifteenth street, committed suicide in her room at the Monroe hotel August 5, by taking lysol.

One of the greenhouses of the City Floral Co. caught fire from an oil stove that was placed under a bench to give a little more heat to the poinsettia cuttings. The fire was discovered and put out before it had spread much. The smoke, however, ruined most of the plants in that house. The poinsettias are a total loss, but some 1,500 ferns can be cut back and started again.

Maude Fealy, a well known actress and a Denver product, appeared last week at the Denham theater in a play entitled "Sauce for the Goose." On the opening night Miss Fealy received enough flowers to require six ushers to pass them over the footlights at the end of the second act. Nothing like it had ever been seen on a Denver stage, but the florists hope that it will be done often from now on.

President Patrick Welch, of Boston, and E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., were among the large number of eastern florists who stopped over for a few days on their way to the S. A. F. convention.

Friday, the thirteenth, proved to be an unlucky day for a large number of vegetable growers in this vicinity. A severe hail storm passed over this section, and their entire crop was beaten to the ground. As far as I can learn, no greenhouses were in the direct path of the hail.

Verner J. Davis, superintendent of Crown Hill cemetery, has everything in the best of condition at the cemetery. Mr. Davis shows with pride a considerable number of excellent specimens of Colorado blue spruce, Picea pungens glauca, and he may well be proud of them, for they are as fine specimens as can be found anywhere. Mr. Davis is preparing to erect two more greenhouses this fall.

J. A. Sked, for the last year with Frank Crump, at Colorado Springs, and formerly with the Park Floral Co., of this city, died suddenly at his home, in Colorado Springs, Thursday, August 12. R. S.

"A Bird in the Hand"—

You know the adage. Well, a Hydrangea in America is worth several Azaleas in Belgium right now. Of course, the Azaleas may get out of Belgium; we don't know; conditions may change; certainly it is not possible to get anything out of Belgium at present. The war may end next week, but the chances are it won't. Are you going to take that chance? Can you afford to depend altogether on imported forcing stock, when there is plenty of good forcing stock right here at home—"Made in America"—stock that you know you can depend on?

HYDRANGEAS, for example. We offer:

OTAKSA, with 7 to 10 branches, at $25.00 the 100.
" " 5 and 6 " at 20.00 the 100.
" " 4 " at 15.00 the 100.

French Novelties, all the best ones, at $5.00 the 100 addition for the same sizes.

They are all in six-inch pots now, plunged outside, and growing like weeds, rich, deep-green, healthy foliage, and "fat" stems that promise big heads of bloom. They will grow into money for you, and you can cash 'em next Easter.

There won't be any surplus of blooming plants next Spring. Stick a pin in that. We want every progressive florist to get in touch with us.

The Market.

The weather last week was much better than it had been for several weeks. The sun was with us for about half the time, and conditions consequently were much more endurable. The sun brought on a heavier crop of all stock, but there was nothing like a glut on the market. The market is fairly good. All stock is moving to a greater or less degree.

Carnations are becoming scarcer every day. The old plants are almost gone. Growers report that they are well planted up with the new stock. They say that there will be a cut from the plants in a short time. Roses are still scarce, but the supply has increased materially because of the bright weather. The demand, however, is fully equal to the increased supply, and the stock is being cleaned up daily with little or no difficulty. Some fancy roses are to be had at reasonable prices, and the buyers are taking all that they can obtain. Asters are plentiful, and the quality is good. The early varieties are showing up favorably, and they are moving better as the supply of carnations decreases. There are also plenty of excellent gladioli. There is an abundance of rubrum and Easter lilies seen on the market daily. Outdoor sweet peas are a thing of the past, but there are a few good indoor peas, which find a ready market.

Taking all into consideration, business is good this year, although there are some radical pessimists who are continually crying hard times. Orders have not fallen off so much as in previous years, and the only indication of anything out of the ordinary is the slowness in meeting obligations.

Various Notes.

Gustave Pohl, accompanied by Mrs. Pohl, left Thursday, August 12, for an eastern trip. They expect to be away about two weeks. A visit will be made to Washington, D. C., New York and other points of interest in the east.

THE COAL MARKET.

Reporters of conditions in the fuel market are announcing, in prominent headlines, that there is a likelihood of both a coal shortage and a car shortage in the near future, because the necessary purchasing by American users has been long delayed and exports are increasing. From this it naturally follows, they say, that "the producers are in control and will soon be able to dictate prices."

The mine operators, throughout the season, have been restricting the output in order to control the market. The buyers meanwhile have postponed ordering, in the hope that the situation would change and prices would tumble. In the west, it is said, not more than twenty-five per cent of the normal quantity of coal has been placed in storage. Exports at present are estimated to be more than 100 per cent above normal. It is predicted, therefore, that before long the burden imposed upon both mines and railroads will be heavier than can be borne.

Such is the coal men's view of the general situation throughout the country. The Chicago correspondent for the Black Diamond expresses similar opinions. "Technically the market is strong," he says, "though actual buying is still below normal. As one of the operators expressed it, about the only domestic business that has been done this summer has been the selling of coal to schools and the public utilities companies. Naturally, with the storage movement and the regular fall buying to be taken care of in the next two and a half months, and with transportation difficulties disturbing, the market is exceptionally strong, with the operators in command of the situation.

"The smokeless situation has not changed much in the last week. Some differences, mainly among the operators, over the question of policy, have disturbed prices a little in Chicago on mine-run. The disturbance has had no effect outside of Chicago. On spot sales mine-run is firm at $1.40. Both on spot sales and on contract, lump and egg are firm at circular price of $2.25."

The Market.

Business last week was quiet. There were a number of funerals and weddings that provided work for some of the florists. Sweet peas are plentiful, and can be had for 20 and 25 cents per hundred. Dahlias are beginning to arrive, and they are good. Roses are abundant.

Various Notes.

John W. Beagle has bought two lots and a greenhouse from the receivers of Ira G. Marvin, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., for $1,550. Mr. Beagle has been renting the greenhouse from Ira G. Marvin for the last two years. He has a promising showing of chrysanthemums and Boston ferns. While he was attending to some repairs at his greenhouse recently, Mr. Beagle's foot was badly crushed by a heavy piece of iron beam.

A. L. Besancon & Co. report a good week in funeral work. Miss Alice Zeigler has started on a two weeks' vacation. Miss Lena Jennings has returned from a visit to Binghamton, N. Y.

QUICKEST WATER HEATER IN THE WORLD

DEEDS SPEAK LOUDER THAN WORDS

This principle has lifted the Kroeschell Boiler from a modest position into a world's record with millions of feet of glass. The reason is—Well, ask any one of our customers.

EXPRESSIONS FROM MEN WHO KNOW BOILERS:

THE LEADING GROWER IN VERMONT.

I have the Kroeschell Boiler six years; it is heating 17,000 sq. ft. glass. No other but a Plate Boiler for me. (Signed) H. M. TOTMAN, Randolph, Vermont.

WELL KNOWN IN THE GOLDEN WEST.

Our No. 2 Kroeschell is doing fine work and I am well pleased with it.
(Signed) G. P. BUTLER, Jr., Santa Cruz, Cal.

ONE OF BOSTON'S WELL KNOWN GROWERS.

The Kroeschell has taken the place of four cast iron boilers at a big saving in coal. We are using it now for the fifth year. The longer we use it the better we like it.
(Signed) A. B. KNOWLTON, No. Grafton, Mass.

THE PLANT KING OF THE WEST.

I have used Kroeschell Boilers ever since I built my first greenhouse. They have always given me the very best satisfaction and I believe them as good boilers as money can buy.
(Signed) F. OECHSLIN, Chicago, Ill.

OHIO'S CELEBRATED CYCLAMEN SPECIALIST.

After using your No. 12 Kroeschell Boiler I came to the conclusion that had I to install more boilers it would be the Kroeschell and no other. It really is a pleasure to heat, no trouble to get the desired heat in a very short time.
(Signed) CHRIST. WINTERICH, Defiance, Ohio.

THE QUALITY PLACE OF BOSTON.

Regarding the Kroeschell, it is the best we have ever had and satisfactory beyond our expectations. It heats up especially quick and has saved us considerably already in the price of fuel. When we are in need of another boiler we will give the Kroeschell the first consideration.
(Signed) WM. W. EDGAR CO., Waverley, Mass.

A BIG MAN IN THE FLORICULTURAL WORLD.

The Kroeschell Boiler I installed last year usually runs from 10 p. m. to 6 a. m. without attention. I do not have the least trouble to keep temperatures in the coldest weather. The boiler has given entire satisfaction.

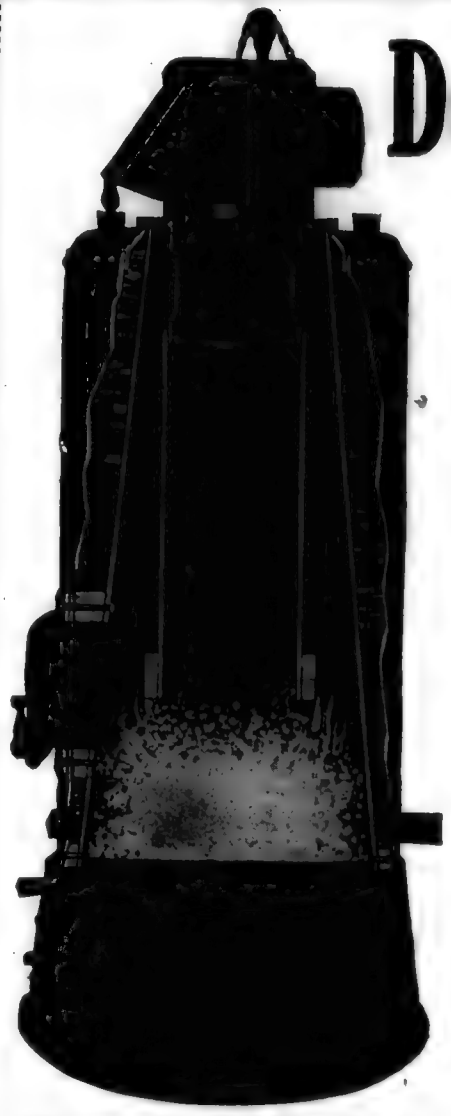
The Kroeschell is the best boiler we have ever handled.
(Signed) CHARLES TOTTY, Madison, New Jersey.

A FAMOUS ILLINOIS ROSE RANGE.

In speaking of the Kroeschell Boiler as an economical greenhouse boiler I cannot say too much. Personally I have had the pleasure or misfortune to fire nearly every make of G. H. Boiler on the market and I can safely say the Kroeschell is the best of them all.
(Signed) CHAS. McCAULEY, Riverbank Greenhouses, Geneva, Ill.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST MUSHROOM PLANT.

We spent $100,000 in building and equipping the largest modern mushroom plant in the world. We purchased in every instance the best of everything we could get, and the fact that we installed a Kroeschell Boiler to furnish our heat is sufficient evidence of our opinion of same.



Since installing this boiler and operating it we have never had any reason to change our opinion.
(Signed) FALMOUTH MUSHROOM CELLARS, Inc., Falmouth, Mass.

A WELL KNOWN CARNATION PRIZE WINNER.

The carnation range of Mr. Nic Zweifel, of North Milwaukee, consists of nearly 70,000 sq. ft. glass and the entire plant is heated by a No. 14 and No. 15 Kroeschell Boiler and Kroeschell Generator. The product of the plant is known throughout the West for its fine quality. Mr. Z. has used different kinds of boilers. As for the Kroeschell Boilers, he says: "I think the Kroeschell Boilers are the best boilers a florist can buy." (Signed) NIC ZWEIFEL, No. Milwaukee, Wis.

I don't know how I could get along without it.—

Mr. Krantz, of Krantz Floral Co., Ottumwa, Iowa.

THERE'S A WHOLE lot of science to the proper raising of flowers.

Ability to do it properly doesn't come in a day—it takes many years.

But even the shrewdest veteran finds help in the convenience and economy of the "Morehead" System.

He knows that with it installed in his plant, he can always be sure of easily controlled, uniform temperature in ALL of his growing houses——that he will be forever free from the complications and never-ending bother of steam pumps that he will have a dry, cheerful place in which to work.

ANTS IN LAWN AND GARDEN.

In reply to inquiries as to methods of exterminating ants, a circular has been issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. As a matter of fact, says the circular, these ants do little harm. In large numbers, however, the small conical nests which they build on lawns are somewhat unsightly and on this account it may be desirable in some cases to destroy them.

Where only a small area is to be covered, the simplest method is to drench the nests with boiling water. Another simple remedy is to spray the lawn with kerosene emulsion or with a strong soap wash prepared by dissolving any common laundry soap in water at the rate of one pound or one-half pound to a gallon of water.

For larger ant colonies, bisulphide of carbon, which can be purchased at any drug store, is effective. This substance can be placed in the nest by means of an oil can or small syringe, the quantity required varying from one-half ounce for a small nest to two or three ounces or more for a large one. After the bisulphide of carbon has been injected, the opening should be closed by pressure of the foot, in order to retain the bisulphide. This will penetrate slowly through the underground channels of the nest and kill the inmates. It is important to remember that while bisulphide is perfectly harmless if kept away from all fire, it is inflammable.

Ants are frequently noted on roses and other plants, and it is naturally supposed that they are doing harm to these. As a matter of fact, it is not the plants that attract the ants, but plant lice. These tiny creatures excrete a sweet liquid of which ants are fond, and which they collect without injuring the plant lice.

He Says:

B. L. ELLIOTT of Pittsburgh

"The best thing that ever came out for greenhouses"

Federal Elastic Cement is not a new product—it had been used for years for waterproofing and airproofing before Florists found it and called our attention to its special value for greenhouse glazing, particularly for tightening the roofs of old houses.

B. L. Elliott, proprietor of the John Bader Co., Pittsburgh's largest plant grower, wrote, April 5, 1915:

"I would say anyone who has old houses and does not use this Cement is missing a good thing.

"We used Federal Elastic Cement on sixteen old houses in July, 1914. They were in pretty bad shape, but since then not one light of glass has blown out. Had it not stopped any leakage we would have been well paid in the saving of breakage. If we had to put it on every year we would do so, but it looks today the same as it did last fall. It is a little hard to put on, but we think it is the best thing that ever came out for greenhouses."

Federal Elastic Cement never grows hard or disintegrates in the package; never crumbles or pulls loose on the roof; lasts at least five times as long as putty; water-tight; holds the glass firmly.

We make a special grade for greenhouse glazing—a thinner, short-fiber consistency that can be used in a putty bulb or mastica machine. Black is best, but almost any color can be furnished.

The price of Federal Elastic Cement, greenhouse grade, is:
Per barrel (550 lbs.) .....per pound, 8c
Per half-barrel (300 lbs.) .....per pound, 8c
Per keg (100 or 150 lbs.)..... ....per pound, 10c
Price on trial pails quoted on request. Special prices in quantities of a ton or over.

One pound goes as far as two to three pounds of putty. It therefore is the cheapest as well as "the best thing that ever came out for greenhouses."

If you have a leaky gutter, fill the joint with Federal Elastic Cement. Fine for roofing.

DOUBLE-FLOWERING PEACH.

What is the botanical name of the double-flowering peach used for cut flowers, and how and when can it be propagated? E. M.—N. J.

There are several forms of the common peach, or Prunus Persica, that carry double flowers, but what we generally see used for cut flowers is either Prunus triloba, with large double pink flowers, or Prunus Japonica flore pleno rubra, with double rose flowers. It is propagated by budding in spring on such stocks as Prunus domestica, P. cerasifera or P. Avium. These latter stocks are all easily raised from seed. C. W.

PINCHING STEVIAS.

When shall I discontinue pinching my stevias in order to avoid injuring the crop of flowers? Would it be possible for me to treat them so as to have them in crop at two different periods? C. B.—Ohio.

Discontinue pinching your stevias by the middle of August. You can prolong the blooming season for stevias by keeping your plants in a cold house which just excludes frost, and bringing a batch into a warmer house from time to time. This is not possible, of course, where you plant your stock in benches, but pot culture is the most profitable for the average retail grower. C. W.

Seeing is Believing

"Permi-tite"

Racine Puttyless Lead Glazing is Supreme

IN QUALITY DURABILITY ECONOMY

The right-hand end of this greenhouse has twenty-five feet of "Permi-tite" Racine Puttyless Lead Glazing. The other part is with putty glazing. This picture was taken in April, 1915, and the putty end of this greenhouse was reglazed in September, 1914. The "Permi-tite" glazing is in perfect condition and will remain so for years to come. The putty glazing will have to be reglazed before winter sets in.

NOW, MR. GREENHOUSE OPERATOR: You know what it costs you in money and labor to keep your putty glazing in serviceable repair. "Permi-tite" glazing eliminates all this expense and labor. It is permanent glazing, that will not have to be repaired so long as the house stands. Glass cannot slip, nor can it blow out, and your roofs will be watertight and will not leak.

"Permi-tite" glazing will save you big money. You should insist on having it in all new construction.

Let us tell you about it—of our splendid, high-grade cypress construction; of how we do away with back puttying; how we make a house that is practically watertight and airtight, a house that will save you fuel and that will stand up under hail when putty-glazed glass will go to pieces.

Read what Louis F. Mohr says:

Our hotbed sash with "Permi-tite" glazing is superior to every other in quality, durability and economy of operation.

Let us show you. That is all we ask.

Racine Puttyless Window Co.,

Gentlemen:

We have just completed an addition to our greenhouse and, as you know, used your Puttyless Lead Glazing.

We did the glazing ourselves and had no trouble whatever with it. We cannot praise too highly your method of glazing It is so far superior to putty, that there is no comparison. It makes a neat tasty job. and is a big saving over putty as there is no repairing or reputtying to do. On our old house we use four hundred pounds of putty yearly in reputtying and there is a big saving of time besides.

Your method of routing out the rabbet and setting the glass on the wood its entire length doing away with back puttying, is another big improvement.

When greenhouse men know of the advantages of your method of glazing there certainly will be a big demand for it.

We have also used your double glass "Frostless" hot bed sash and they are the finest thing on the market. We cannot praise them too highly.

Hereafter we will use no other form of glazing for our greenhouses and sash.

Yours truly,

Louis F. Mohr

GRAPE GROWER'S EXPERIENCE.

Referring to the inquiry of J. T. W., under the head of "Grapes Under Glass," in The Review for August 5, in regard to the possibility of growing grapes under glass as a paying proposition, I wish to give my experience in the growing and marketing of English hothouse grapes in and around Chicago some twenty-five years ago.

I happened to have two houses on the estate of which I had charge. One house was forced for early market, the crop coming in about April 15 and on through May, before the California grapes began to come to the market. The varieties were those C. W. gives, but Gros Colman was grown in the late house. It is a large, handsome grape, but poor in flavor. The price I used to get was from $2.50 to $5 per pound wholesale. A man in the grocery business in Chicago took my whole season's cut one year at the above prices. He catered to north side residents.

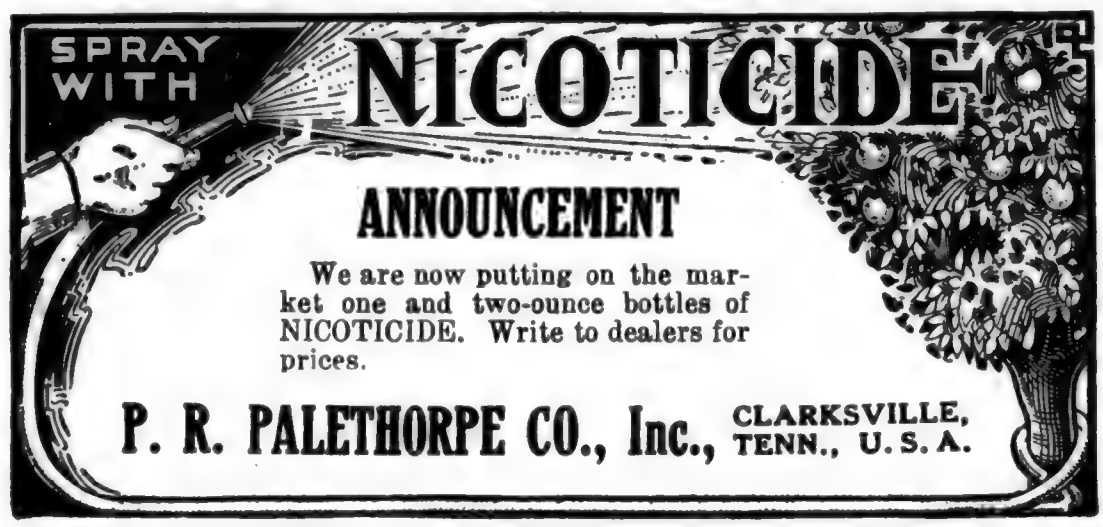
When Joseph Biggs, a caterer, on North Rush street, Chicago, conducted a flower store at North State street and Chicago avenue, he used to pay me $5 per pound for select bunches, that would weigh from one-half pound to three pounds each. Mr. Gallagher, who at one time had a flower store on Wabash avenue, paid $700 for the crop of the two houses one year.

For early forcing I had Black Hambro, Muscat of Alexandria and the Bowood Muscat. I used to start the early house in October, which brought the grapes into market in April.

The late house contained Alicante, Mrs. Pince, Gros Colman, Madresfield Court and Golden Hamburgh. This late house was started in March, so that the fruit would come in for market in the fall, about September, and continue up to Christmas.

If I were growing hothouse grapes today, I should do as C. W. suggests, work up a select trade of the best hotels and private residences. I think there is good money to be made in those lines.

You can use the early vinery for forcing early pot plants. I used to start my pot roses, azaleas, bulbs, etc., in it. The late house can be put to service for storing dormant stock.



Any further inquiries concerning grape culture will be cheerfully answered by me. Thomas Evans.

The Right Prescription

¶ The continued operation of a piece of machinery, day after day, week after week, year in and year out, without proper attention; the failure to supply right oil in right quantities, poor fuel and little of it, means loss of efficiency, dwindling profits and, at last, a serious breakdown.

A horse that is driven all day long and most of the night, stabled in poor quarters, given poor food and, in fact, neglected in general, becomes less an asset and more a liability, until finally he is a total loss.

A man who is on the job year after year, with short sleeping hours, working under a continual strain, no recreation, no interest outside of the four walls of his shop, is bound for the scrap heap, and sooner or later he will find himself up against a serious problem—how to get back on his feet physically and mentally.

As a business man, you are careful of your machinery and of your horses, although perhaps not so careful of yourself. We are all apt to overlook our own health in the race for the dollar, and regret it when too late.

¶ Now, about the soil on your benches, upon which your success depends in no small way—is it worn and weak and non-producing? You may be wondering why a bench that produced a bumper crop two years ago is practically a failure this year. Do you know that your soil is right?

We'll give the ordinary grower credit for rotating his crops and resorting to the compost pile occasionally, which is all very good, but to feed a starving man French pastry when he craves beefsteak is cruelty.

We have a complete soil-testing laboratory and can find out with no uncertainty when a soil is starved for one of the component parts. If you want chrysanthemums, we can help you produce chrysanthemums by building your soil for the purpose.

And this is the combination of the new greenhouse with the best feature in the Silver Stream outdoor nozzle.

Three Special Combination Tryout Offers of Complete Portable Sprinkling Lines.

This is our new Greenhouse Nozzle—finer spray, non drip and removable intake for easy cleaning.

OVER 2000 florists in the United States alone are now using the Skinner System of Watering.

Some use it in the greenhouse—some outdoors. Most of them in both places.

Now we are after another 2000.

We want you among that number.

To get you, we are going to make you three special offers so you can give the system a tryout either in your greenhouse or outdoors—or both.

In order to try any of them you need purchase no special tools. You need spend no time reading books on irrigation. All you need is a wrench and a water supply to connect up to.

To get you, we are making three special offers. You will be our steady customer if you once give the Skinner System a tryout—that is the real object of the offer. Here are combination lines both for greenhouse and outdoor watering all in one.

These are the offers:

Offer No. 1—50-foot complete sprinkling line covers 2500 square feet outdoors and 800 square feet in the greenhouse. Can be used both in the house and in the field—completely portable—all ready to put up. Two complete sets of interchangeable nozzles (Silver Stream and Greenhouse). Two sets roller bearing hangers, brass quick acting lever couplings. Skinner System turning union, drain cock and hose connection.

PRICE, $11.75

Offer No. 2—100-foot complete sprinkling line covers 5000 square feet outdoors and 1600 square feet in the greenhouse. All equipment for this line is as described above. Comes in 18-ft. lengths; can be put up or taken down in a few minutes. Fitted with three-quarter inch hose connection.

PRICE, $23.00

Offer No. 3—Any special length—complete sprinkling line; 50 or 100 feet may not be just what you want. Here is the chance to get a line any length at the special price or to equip a whole house, taking advantage of this special offer. The line or lines will come just the right size for the water carried. Equipped with all the fittings for both greenhouse and outdoor use. It will save its price in six months in labor economy alone.

PRICE, 23c per complete foot.

This offer holds good for 30 days.

All freight charges will be prepaid east of Mississippi if payment accompanies order.

A STANDARD PANSY.

There is in England a National Pansy and Viola Society. It has adopted the following standard for pansies:

Form.—The outline should be a perfect circle and free of every notch, serrature, or unevenness, the petals lying closely and evenly on each other.

Texture.—The petals should be thick, and of a rich, glossy, velvety appearance.

Color.—In all the flowers the ground color, of whatever shade, should be perfectly alike in all the three lower petals, and should be circular, and of equal width between the blotch and the belt in the three lower petals. The colors in the top petals may run into each other. The margin of the under petal should be regular and distinct, as also the margins of the two side petals of the flower. The margins of the three petals should all meet, and form, as it were, three parts of a circle. The blotch should be large, dense and solid, and of a circular character, free from all running into or through the ground color, or the eye.

Eye.—This should be bright gold or orange, and solid, without mixing or running into the blotch, and should be exactly in the center of the bloom.

Size.—The larger bloom, other properties being equal, should be the better, but no flower should be considered fit for competition under two and one-half inches diameter.

Selfs.—Of whatever color should be of the same shade throughout, in yellow, white, blue, or any other shade; the denser the blotch the better.

The Market.

About all that one sees in the market at the present time are asters, gladioli and roses. There is no let-up in the supply of asters. The supply of gladioli is slackening to some extent, but the demand is decreasing also.

The new crop of locally grown roses, although still coming in with short stems, shows great promise. Many growers are this year trying out Ophelia and Hadley, while others who had heretofore felt that Radiance would not find a place in the market are planting houses with that variety.

There is absolutely nothing doing on carnations, for the few that are coming in are hardly worthy of mention and undesirable at any price. Easter lilies are still plentiful and in little demand. Orchids are out of the market as far as Washington is concerned, and it is difficult to get them from other cities at a fair price.

Various Notes.

The members of the Florists' Club of Washington are looking forward to the next meeting, to be held Tuesday evening, September 7, when they will be the guests of Edward E. Schmid at his annual crab feast.

Henry Witt, of Silver Hill, Md., is just in receipt of a letter from his brother, Detlef Witt, who was engaged in the florists' business with him for nearly three years, but who returned in July, 1914, to his home in Holstein, near Hamburg, Germany, to take charge of the large farm of their father. He was drafted early this spring and is now serving in a German regiment of infantry around Riga, Russia.

A letter from Brune, Switzerland, states that if they have luck, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pfister will leave for Washington this week. Upon his return here, Mr. Pfister will look over the field preparatory to again engaging in the retail business. Prior to sailing for Europe he conducted a store on Connecticut avenue, northwest.

Among the week's visitors were Charles E. Barton, of Norwalk, O., and Harry Quint, of Boston, Mass.

C. L. L.

Amarillo, Tex.—The Amarillo Greenhouses, owned by J. E. Kallenbach, were nearly a total loss following the hail storm of last week. Not only was the glass broken, but the stock was badly cut up, so that assistance will be needed in restocking the place. Carnations, geraniums and ferns suffered especially.

Salem, O.—The Cowgill Floral Co. has been incorporated with a capital stock of $10,000. The incorporators are E. I. Kille, Henry Trotter, Thomas G. Reese, A. M. Wilhelm and C. C. Campbell. The business was formerly conducted by V. A. Cowgill, who filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in June of this year. When the greenhouses were subsequently put up at public sale they were purchased by Joseph Bonsall, who has been in business here for a number of years.

Holdrege, Neb.—The Davidson Floral Co. has completed the erection of its show house, 20x70 feet, of all-steel truss construction. The side facing the street has been fitted with plate glass, which affords an excellent display of the flowers and plants, and greatly enhances the appearance of the establishment. Recently a hail storm broke most of the glass of the greenhouses. While this was unfortunate, it permitted a more thorough overhauling and repainting of the structures. Two coats of paint have made the range look like new.

THE REWARD

Building greenhouses right is our hobby. The mere turning out of material with which to build is only a small part of the service which we give in return for your money. Each problem with which you have to cope is taken into consideration and with our years of experience we solve them all. The height, width, length and position, each is an important factor in the success of your houses and all of these get special attention. For a practical house the "Dietsch" is best.

The Market.

Reports of overproduction are heard on all sides. Fifty per cent of the supply of outdoor stock would be plenty, and the results would be decidedly better for the grower. By outdoor stock I mean principally gladioli, asters and sweet peas. The demand is about as usual for this time of the year. Business with some, however, is ten per cent better than it was last year. Low prices on quantity lots are no attraction to retailers, who buy only as they need stock. Never before have carnations lasted so long and been so good in quality as this season. Good carnation stock is still to be had. Roses are fine and the demand cleans up the supply. The growers keep the market well supplied with the newer varieties of roses. Much bench room is devoted to Mrs. Russell, Mock, Ophelia and Cecile Brunner. Lilies are not overplentiful. Valley is good and in fair demand. Beauties are good and the supply equals the demand.

Various Notes.

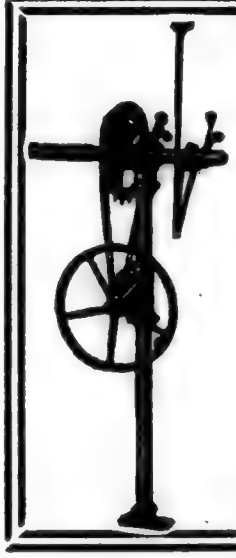
John Harris spent a few days visiting friends at Cleveland and Detroit.

Michael Kronis has left for his summer home at Jamestown, N. Y.

Wm. Colligan has returned from an automobile trip to Cumberland and Baltimore, Md., and the Virginia coast resorts.

Mr. and Mrs. James Higgins have left for Duluth, Minn.

Visitors last week were A. Albert, of Philadelphia, and Chas. McGrath, of New Castle, Pa. Clarke.



Whiting, Ind.—Louis E. Klemm has been more than rushed with funeral work and would have been lost without his new auto truck.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

SPEEDING THE PARTING GUEST

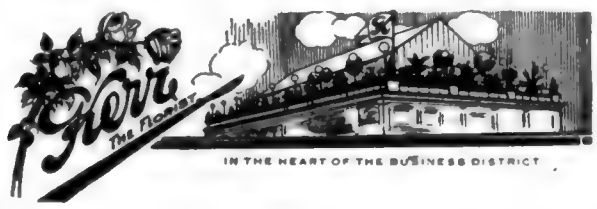
No man, or woman, who attended the San Francisco convention ever can regret the time and money spent; but those who did not make the trip have their leisure to regret they could not be present to enjoy the Californians' hospitality. Closing days of the S. A. F. meeting full of novelty, and, departing, the visitors took with them many a pleasant memory.

TIME-honored as is the picnic with which the S. A. F. has these many years closed its annual four days' gathering, the San Franciscans have shown that there are other and better ways of speeding the parting guest—but, of course, they had the help of their wonderful fair. Friday, August 20, was the day named by the exposition officials as S. A. F. day, arrangements being made for the members of the society and their friends to attend in a body. They assembled inside the main entrance, opposite the Tower of Jewels, shortly after ten o'clock, about 150 being present, and marched in a long line, headed by a section of the Exposition band, to the space in front of the Palace of Horticulture, where a group photograph was taken, reproduced in this issue of The Review.

Medal Presented.

The party took seats before the portico of the building and Charles A. Vogelsang, being introduced by President Welch, welcomed the S. A. F. officially on behalf of the exposition authorities, closing with the presentation of the bronze exposition medal. In his talk Mr. Vogelsang emphasized the fact that the flowers and ornamental horticulture of the exposition were among the most impressive features and that the fair is largely indebted to them for its success. He dwelt at length upon the assured and growing importance of flowers to life and civilization.

Charles Willis Ward, of Queens, N. Y., and Eureka, Cal., accepted the medal on behalf of the society. He quoted statistics as to the growth of the florists' industry since the organization of the S. A. F. in 1884 and asserted his belief that holding the convention on the coast this year would be followed by a large expansion of the trade interests in California. As one of the visitors, he said:



"Two years ago I came to California ill and discouraged. I expected to remain only a few weeks. I am still here, ill and discouraged no more, but happy and well and anxious to do things. If any of my brother florists don't want to catch that spirit of California, which will bind them to the shores of the Pacific, better go back home soon—you can't remain here many moons without contracting a deep love for California, and once you fall in love with her you cannot break the spell of her charms with ease; you will have to come back, and finally remain."

E. G. Hill, of the committee on final resolutions, then offered a resolution of appreciation of the hospitality of the San Francisco people, and of the entire Pacific coast, and giving thanks individually and collectively to the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, and the local florists and nurserymen, as well as to Mayor Rolph and the city and exposition officials. This was adopted.

The Presidents' Gifts.

President Welch then started to adjourn the convention and was taken completely by surprise at the interruption which occurred. H. Plath assisted in lugging a huge mahogany chest of silver to the platform, and launched into a speech of presentation. Mr. Welch was greatly affected by this token of regard, and was so completely surprised that he could scarcely find words in which to respond. After adjournment the chest was opened and greatly admired by the members, who crowded the platform for some time. The crowd then dispersed, most of the visitors going to the horticultural gardens, where the fine exhibits of gladioli, dahlias, roses, etc., and particularly the prize contest beds, were subjects of much interest. Many of the party spent the entire day at the exposition and all the visiting ladies gathered at the California building at 3:30, for a reception to the retiring president of the Ladies' S. A. F., Mrs. Gude. Here they spent a pleasant two hours, visiting and listening to talks from various members, the most interesting part of the proceedings being the presentation to Mrs. Gude of two handsome bowls of California redwood burl, as a fitting reminder of her visit to California. Mrs. Vallance, the incoming president, made the speech of presentation.

A PLEDGE BY THE TEXANS

MAIN AND McKINNEY
HOUSTON TEXAS

The Florists' Review,
508 South Dearborn St.,
Chicago, Ill.

August 20, 1915.

Gentlemen:-

Of course you have had the good news - Houston won the 1916 S. A. F. Convention.

We Texans feel that we are deeply indebted to President Patrick Welch and Vice-President Dan MacRorie, for this Convention. We appreciate this great honor, and I assure you that we are going to try hard to make this the greatest Convention the S. A. F. has ever held. We propose to give it a great deal of publicity and pull hard for a large attendance, as our future work will show. We have the support of the Chamber of Commerce, the City of Houston and the Rotary Club, as well as the other Civic organizations.

We have one of the largest auditoriums in the South for Convention and exhibition purposes. We have a citizenship which has left nothing unturned to make our visitors enjoy their stay here. We have many side attractions which makes it worth while for Conventions in Houston. These matters will be taken up from time to time.

The Convention came as a complete surprise. We really did not figure on getting it for next year, and I want to express for Texas and the Florists of the South our gratefulness for this Convention.

President Texas State
Florists' Association.

Very truly yours,
R. C. Kerr

Members of the Society of American Florists and their Ladies who Participated in the Judges' Reports.

The judges of the trades' display were J. J. Hess, Frank Pelicano and William F. Gude. Their report was as follows:

"We find only two entries for competition, also a number of exhibits worthy of consideration; we, therefore, recommend that a certificate of merit be awarded to H. Bayersdorfer & Co., of Philadelphia, for their elaborate and instructive display of new and novel florists' baskets and supplies.

"We recommend that a certificate of honorable mention be awarded to the M. Rice Co., of Philadelphia, for large and interesting display of florists' accessories and novelties.

"The committee also highly commend the elaborate trade exhibit of florists' supplies of the A. L. Randall Co., of Chicago.

"We also recommend a certificate of merit for the high quality exhibit of novel ribbons and also baskets exhibited by S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., of Philadelphia.

"To Domoto Bros., of San Francisco, the society's bronze medal for new double hydrangeas.

"We further recommend the society's bronze medal to Bayersdorfer & Co., of Philadelphia, for new and novel ideas in baskets.

"To Richard Diener, of Colma, Cal., the society's gold medal for improved and unusual gladioli in sizes and color.

"To The Ferneries, San Francisco, certificate of merit for exceptionally high class collection of ferns and palms.

"To Henry J. Kessel, honorable mention for Adiantum California.

"To Superior Nursery Co., Los Angeles, Cal., certificate of merit for ferns.

"To the Swiss Floral Co., Portland, Ore., honorable mention for exhibit of rare, well grown petunias.

"The society's bronze medal to Herbert & Fleishauer, Portland, Ore., for exceptionally large and unusually well grown asters.

"To Mrs. F. J. Reidy, San Jose, Cal., bronze medal for exceptionally fine and meritorious display of dahlias.

"To J. A. Peterson, Cincinnati, silver medal for new begonia, Mrs. J. A. Peterson.

"To John A. Evans Co., Richmond, Ind., bronze medal for new detachable pipe hangers.

"To the Advance Co., Richmond, Ind., certificate of merit for general display of ventilating apparatus and greenhouse accessories."

An exhibit not recorded in the otherwise full description of the trades' display which appeared in The Review for August 19 was a large specimen of the new fern, John Wanamaker, shown in the exhibit of the Pennock-Meehan Co. and J. R. Fotheringham. It was grown in the greenhouses of E. James, Oakland, from a small plant sent out by the Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia.

Secretary Young Reëlected.

The unanimous election of President MacRorie, Vice-president Kerr and Treasurer Kasting was reported in The Review for August 19, but during the nominating of officers, a decided surprise was sprung by Dan Raymond, of San Francisco, who introduced a little variety into the proceeding by proposing John R. Fotheringham for the office of secretary, in opposition to John Young. This was, in fact, as much a surprise to Mr. Fotheringham as to anyone else, as few had been apprised of Mr. Raymond's intention. But a good many of the eastern people, no doubt, thought that "the Wild West bunch" was trying to "put something over." The result was that, after a lot of lively electioneering during the evening and early morning, Thursday's meeting opened with a feeling of suppressed excitement in the air. At the opening of the meeting, when everything was ready for balloting, the contest flattened out when President Welch announced that Mr. Fotheringham had withdrawn his name.

Discussion at Closing Session.

A telegram of best wishes was then read from "The Old Guard" at Philadelphia, which was appropriately acknowledged.

The question, "What are we going to do to increase the supply of carnations for Mothers' day?" started a lively discussion. The proposition to "grow more" was hooted down as impracticable. On the question whether it would be practicable to remove the terminal bud and get a lot of side buds developed, opinion was divided. Several reported a measure of success with this method, while others figured that the resulting loss of quality would react injuriously. The prevailing opinion was that efforts should be made to encourage the use of other flowers, and even plants; the prevailing idea being that the matter rests mainly with the manager of the retail store, the salesman, and the advertising man, who should endeavor to divert attention to other flowers. Several recommended advertising and pushing the idea first conceived by The Review and the use of the phrase this paper coined:

For Mothers at home, flowers bright,
In Mother's memory, flowers white.

Several reported gratifying results from club or individual advertising of flowers and plants, without distinction of color or variety. In this connection the suggestion was made that the society raise a sum of money, the idea being expressed that $10,000 would be a suitable amount, for the purpose of presenting Miss Jarvis, who originated the Mothers' day idea, with a substantial testimonial of appreciation for the great benefit accruing to the flower trade from Mothers' day. The matter, after some discussion, was referred to the executive board.

The discussion was followed by a brief talk by John McLaren, superintendent of Golden Gate park, who expressed a hearty welcome and appreciation of the presence of the S. A. F. in San Francisco.

C. W. Ward, of Eureka, brought up the matter of setting aside lands for the protection of bird life, etc., and mentioned the project on foot in Humboldt county, Cal., to reserve 22,000 acres of redwood forest. In furtherance of his scheme, he invited a number of members of the S. A. F. and the Association of Park Superintendents to visit the timber and desired that some of them should be appointed as a committee to report on the project at the next annual meeting. After some discussion, Mr. Ward himself was made chairman of the committee, with power to add new members.

Richard Vincent, of the newly formed American Dahlia Society, spoke of the show to be held in New York in September and asked official recognition for this, "the newest offspring of the S. A. F." The meeting voted to recognize the new society.

Hans Plath, president of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, which has acted as host to the S. A. F. during the visit to San Francisco, was called for and gave a brief outline of the work of the local society, closing with an invitation to participate in the October flower show at the exposition.

H. A. Hyde, of Watsonville, Cal., introduced six boxes of Skinner Seedling apples from Pajaro valley, sent up by the Watsonville Chamber of Commerce. They were greatly appreciated by all present and elicited a hearty vote of thanks.

Robert Pyle, of West Grove, Pa., gave a short talk on roses, emphasizing particularly the fact that roses of European origin are imperfectly adapted to American conditions and the desirability of using more roses originated in America; also of encouraging American growers to work for new and useful varieties.

A letter from Prof. E. A. White, of Cornell, on the subject of horticultural education, was put before the meeting. It was decided to print it in the records without reading, as the time was growing late.

A letter from the secretary of the American Boiler and Radiator Manufacturers' Association regarding pending legislation in some eastern states was ordered put in the record and turned over to the committee on legislation.

George Asmus, of the national flower show committee, presented an invitation to members to participate in the show at Philadelphia, and G. W. Smith, of Cleveland, asked recognition for the show at that place this fall, which was granted by vote of the meeting, which at the same time gave recognition to the shows at Chicago and San Francisco.

Smoker and High Jinks.

The smoker and jinks Thursday evening, August 19, at the Elks' Club, was remarkably well attended, nearly 300 sitting down at the tables, including many employees at local stores, growers, and others who had been unable to attend any of the meetings, while the eastern visitors turned out well.

The early part of the evening was occupied with light entertainment, furnished by talent from some of the local theaters, and an amateur boxing bout by some boys from the Olympic Club, Gathered in Front of the Civic Auditorium on the Opening Day of the Meeting, August 17, 1915.

together with good smokes and a light but appetizing repast, sandwiches, salad, California ripe olives, and the like, with plenty of good beer. An atmosphere of complete informality and good-fellowship prevailed, and both local people and eastern visitors had a decidedly good time.

The joyous feature of the evening was the presentation of the $150 prize offered by President Welch to the one securing the greatest number of new members for the S. A. F. This was presented to Daniel MacRorie, who had brought in 102 members, in a happily worded talk by W. F. Kasting; and, as might be expected, the presentation was the occasion of prolonged and uproarious applause. Mr. MacRorie's response was in keeping with the spirit of the occasion and he made the offer of a similar prize for the person securing the greatest number of new members during the coming year. Retiring President Patrick Welch spoke briefly in response on behalf of the society.

While the men were at the smoker and jinks, the Ladies' S. A. F. and tne local auxiliary spent the evening at the Orpheum theater, most of the ladies of both organizations being present. The performance was a good one, and at its close the ladies enjoyed refreshments at the Ruffieux cafe.

Bowling Interest Waning.

The bowling contest scheduled for the ladies was omitted. The men's bowling contest took place as scheduled, Thursday afternoon, August 19, at Graney's alleys. A good many were present, but only a dozen took part, and most of these were members of the local society, the only outsiders being W. W. Coles, Kokomo, Ind., George W. Smith, of Cleveland, and C. Gutting, of Los Angeles. The first prize, the Aphine trophy, was taken by Victor Podesta, the star bowler of the exposition city, whose score in the first game was 170; second, 202, and third, 159. Next highest was C. Gutting, of Los Angeles, who made 181 in the first game; second, 175, and third, 158. Mr. Smith was third, with a total of 493.

Ladies' Automobile Ride.

The visiting members of the Ladies' S. A. F., accompanied by a goodly delegation of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, left the convention hall immediately after their business meeting August 18, for an automobile ride down the peninsula into San Mateo county. The original intention as to the route was not followed out by all members of the party, owing largely to the fact that the occupants of some of the machines insisted on getting ahead of the official leader, while some were left far to the rear. The result was that the party became rather widely scattered at times. Most of the party visited the convention gardens at Golden Gate park, either at the start or on the return trip, but little attention was given to the numerous nurseries, violet farms, etc., in the district visited. The main route lay along the state highway, a perfect piece of automobile road, through rolling country, bordered by large estates and little towns of cozy bungalows, and overhung everywhere by rows of fine elm and eucalyptus trees. Leaving the state highway at San Mateo, the party wound among the foothills of the Santa Cruz mountains, and circled the picturesque lakes of San Andreas, Pilarcitos and Crystal Springs. While the road here was rather dusty in spots, the beauty of the country was greatly enjoyed. Starting back toward the city, the eighteen machines reached Uncle Tom's Cabin, a roadhouse near San Mateo, about 3 o'clock. By this time all appetites were whetted to a fine edge and ample justice was done to the repast set before the travelers.

FLORISTS' HAIL ASSOCIATION.

At its annual meeting, at San Francisco, the Florists' Hail Association re-elected the officers named in last week's issue of The Review, with Chas. P. Muller, Wichita, Kan.; C. L. Washburn, Chicago, and Fred Burki, of Gibsonia, Pa., as directors. The hold-over directors are Anders Rasmussen, J. C. Vaughan, J. A. Valentine and Samuel Murray.

The assessment for the year beginning November 1, 1915, was set at 14 cents per hundred square feet for single thick glass, and 6 cents per hundred square feet for double thick glass.

PARK SUPERINTENDENTS.

The eastern delegation to the San Francisco convention of the American Association of Park Superintendents had a most enjoyable trip across the continent, making the run by comfortable stages and stopping off for a day each at Chicago, Minneapolis, Spokane, Glacier National park, Seattle, Tacoma and Portland. At each place they were hospitably received and conducted on trips to the most notable public parks or other places of interest in the various localities.

The officers elected at the San Francisco meeting were:

President—E. T. Mische, Portland, Ore.

Vice-presidents—J. W. Thompson, Seattle; J. F. Walsh, New York; A. Stuart, Ottawa, Ont.; E. P. Griffin, East St. Louis; L. P. Jansen, St. Louis; E. V. Goebel, Grand Rapids.

Secretary-treasurer—R. W. Cotterill, Seattle.

Next meeting—New Orleans.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

The American Carnation Society usually has held a midsummer session during the S. A. F. convention, mainly for the purpose of talking over the work of the secretary's office for the next six months, which includes the preparations for the annual exhibition and convention in January. Neither President Goddard, Vice-president Ammann, Secretary Baur nor Treasurer Dorner was able to be present at the S. A. F.

convention this year, so no meeting was held at San Francisco. The annual meeting will be held at St. Louis in January, the local details under the direction of the vice-president and the general preparations in the hands of the secretary.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY.

Time was provided on the S. A. F. program for the usual midsummer meeting of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, but none of the officers was able to make the trip, so that no formal session was held. The next annual meeting and exhibition will be held at Cleveland in November. The officers are as follows:

President—Wm. Kleinheinz, Ogontz, Pa.

Vice-president—Frank A. Friedley, Cleveland, O.

Secretary—C. W. Johnson, Morgan Park, Ill.

Treasurer—John N. May, Summit, N. J.

PRAISE TO CALIFORNIA.

[Response to the address of welcome, by Wm. F. Gude, delivered at the San Francisco convention, August 17, 1915.]

When I was told to respond to the speech of welcome by His Honor, naturally I was greatly flattered, because the circumstances surrounding this convention mark it as an epochal one in the annals of our organization, but when I began to read some of the countless pages that have been written on the wonderful state in which we hold our meeting today, of its great natural beauties, of the paradise created by the master minds of the Panama-Pacific exposition company, I felt, also quite naturally, that I needed the pen of Austin, the oratory of Webster and the imagination of Poe to do justice to the subject.

Then I recalled, Mr. Mayor, how in the past weeks you have heard, and in the weeks to come will hear again, gifted visitors glorify your state, your city and the exposition, until you have arrived, or will do so, at the state of mind of the reigning beauty of each season, who views favorably only the man who, when first presented, refrains from commenting on her charms.

So instead of imitating the poets and prose writers who have attempted—even though they only partially succeeded—to tell of the wonders, the beauties, the hospitality and the charms of your golden land, I am going to come right down to a plain, unvarnished statement, and say that we acknowledge with deep gratitude your courteous invitation and cordial welcome to the Golden Gate.

As practical florists, it may be that we appreciate more than the average visitor to your shores, your floriculture and horticulture, and, from the expressions I have heard already, every member here present of our society has experienced a double pleasure, that of the thrill which pervades every citizen and the practical feeling of the florist when he considers how you have seized on and multiplied the advantages given you by nature.

The Wonderful Exposition.

Let me quote from a clever writer's story of a recent trip to the exposition, as expressing our views of your wonderful accomplishment. He says:

"The exposition is all that is claimed for it, and more. It is so big and wonderful that it fairly takes one's breath away when you first behold it. The buildings are majestic and of magnificent architecture and coloring; the grounds are simply beautiful in flowers and foliage such as only California can produce; the statuary and sculptured figures are works of advanced art—everything, in fact, is at once pleasing to the eye and yet impressive with the daring elaborateness which characterizes every detail of this, the world's greatest exposition."

Being warned in advance that we should hear something, from every loyal native citizen, of your wonderful climate, I will not touch that subject.

Putting my first thought in another way, no man living can do justice in words to your beautiful state and city, nor does the man live who can sufficiently praise the giants who have made so much of opportunities.

But we cannot refrain from expressing in our feeble way some appreciation of you fortunate residents who have built this wonder-city for the world to see and admire.

Every monument, every exposition, every great work has its inception in the mind of some one individual. Who was the genius, Mr. Mayor, who first conceived the idea of this monumental work? His name should be glorified in your annals, so that, even as your giant redwood trees tell the story of the weather in the reign of King Ahab, it should be possible for the visitor to these shores, 2,000 years from now, to learn the name of the man whose genius first pictured the possibilities of the Panama-Pacific exposition.

Philadelphia, Pa.—A building permit has been issued to J. L. Nichols for a greenhouse, 50x100, which he will erect at a cost of $1,000.

Cleveland, O.—The Cleveland Cut Flower Co., at its establishment at Newton Falls, has completed the erection of a greenhouse, 49x400, which will be devoted to roses. Another house, 24x200, is being built for the carnation department.

together with good smokes and a light but appetizing repast, sandwiches, salad, California ripe olives, and the like, with plenty of good beer. An atmosphere of complete informality and good-fellowship prevailed, and both local people and eastern visitors had a decidedly good time.

While the road here was rather dusty in spots, the beauty of the country was greatly enjoyed. Starting back toward the city, the eighteen machines reached Uncle Tom's Cabin, a roadhouse near San Mateo, about 3 o'clock. By this time all appetites were whetted to a fine edge and ample justice was done to the repast set before the travelers.

FLORISTS' HAIL ASSOCIATION.

At its annual meeting, at San Francisco, the Florists' Hail Association reelected the officers named in last week's issue of The Review, with Chas. P. Muller, Wichita, Kan.; C. L. Washburn, Chicago, and Fred Burki, of Gibsonia, Pa., as directors. The holdover directors are Anders Rasmussen, J. C. Vaughan, J. A. Valentine and Samuel Murray.

The assessment for the year beginning November 1, 1915, was set at 14 cents per hundred square feet for single thick glass, and 6 cents per hundred square feet for double thick glass.

PARK SUPERINTENDENTS.

The eastern delegation to the San Francisco convention of the American Association of Park Superintendents had a most enjoyable trip across the continent, making the run by comfortable stages and stopping off for a day each at Chicago, Minneapolis, Spokane, Glacier National park, Seattle, Tacoma and Portland. At each place they were hospitably received and conducted on trips to the most notable public parks or other places of interest in the various localities.

The officers elected at the San Francisco meeting were:

President—E. T. Mische, Portland, Ore.

Vice-presidents—J. W. Thompson, Seattle; J. F. Walsh, New York; A. Stuart, Ottawa, Ont.; E. P. Griffin, East St. Louis; L. P. Jansen, St. Louis; E. V. Goebel, Grand Rapids.

Secretary-treasurer—R. W. Cotterill, Seattle.

Next meeting—New Orleans.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

The American Carnation Society usually has held a midsummer session during the S. A. F. convention, mainly for the purpose of talking over the work of the secretary's office for the next six months, which includes the preparations for the annual exhibition and convention in January. Neither President Goddard, Vice-president Ammann, Secretary Baur nor Treasurer Dorner was able to be present at the S. A. F.

convention this year, so no meeting was held at San Francisco. The annual meeting will be held at St. Louis in January, the local details under the direction of the vice-president and the general preparations in the hands of the secretary.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY.

Time was provided on the S. A. F. program for the usual midsummer meeting of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, but none of the officers was able to make the trip, so that no formal session was held. The next annual meeting and exhibition will be held at Cleveland in November. The officers are as follows:

President—Wm. Kleinheinz, Ogontz, Pa.

Vice-president—Frank A. Friedley, Cleveland, O.

Secretary—C. W. Johnson, Morgan Park, Ill.

Treasurer—John N. May, Summit, N. J.

PRAISE TO CALIFORNIA.

[Response to the address of welcome, by Wm. F. Gude, delivered at the San Francisco convention, August 17, 1915.]

When I was told to respond to the speech of welcome by His Honor, naturally I was greatly flattered, because the circumstances surrounding this convention mark it as an epochal one in the annals of our organization, but when I began to read some of the countless pages that have been written on the wonderful state in which we hold our meeting today, of its great natural beauties, of the paradise created by the master minds of the Panama-Pacific exposition company, I felt, also quite naturally, that I needed the pen of Austin, the oratory of Webster and the imagination of Poe to do justice to the subject.

Then I recalled, Mr. Mayor, how in the past weeks you have heard, and in the weeks to come will hear again, gifted visitors glorify your state, your city and the exposition, until you have arrived, or will do so, at the state of mind of the reigning beauty of each season, who views favorably only the man who, when first presented, refrains from commenting on her charms.

So instead of imitating the poets and prose writers who have attempted—even though they only partially succeeded—to tell of the wonders, the beauties, the hospitality and the charms of your golden land, I am going to come right down to a plain, unvarnished statement, and say that we acknowledge with deep gratitude your courteous invitation and cordial welcome to the Golden Gate.

As practical florists, it may be that we appreciate more than the average visitor to your shores, your floriculture and horticulture, and, from the expressions I have heard already, every member here present of our society has experienced a double pleasure, that of the thrill which pervades every citizen and the practical feeling of the florist when he considers how you have seized on and multiplied the advantages given you by nature.

The Wonderful Exposition.

Let me quote from a clever writer's story of a recent trip to the exposition, as expressing our views of your wonderful accomplishment. He says:

"The exposition is all that is claimed for it, and more. It is so big and wonderful that it fairly takes one's breath away when you first behold it. The buildings are majestic and of magnificent architecture and coloring; the grounds are simply beautiful in flowers and foliage such as only California can produce; the statuary and sculptured figures are works of advanced art—everything, in fact, is at once pleasing to the eye and yet impressive with the daring elaborateness which characterizes every detail of this, the world's greatest exposition."

Being warned in advance that we should hear something, from every loyal native citizen, of your wonderful climate, I will not touch that subject.

Putting my first thought in another way, no man living can do justice in words to your beautiful state and city, nor does the man live who can sufficiently praise the giants who have made so much of opportunities.

But we cannot refrain from expressing in our feeble way some appreciation of you fortunate residents who have built this wonder-city for the world to see and admire.

Every monument, every exposition, every great work has its inception in the mind of some one individual. Who was the genius, Mr. Mayor, who first conceived the idea of this monumental work? His name should be glorified in your annals, so that, even as your giant redwood trees tell the story of the weather in the reign of King Ahab, it should be possible for the visitor to these shores, 2,000 years from now, to learn the name of the man whose genius first pictured the possibilities of the Panama-Pacific exposition.

Philadelphia, Pa.—A building permit has been issued to J. L. Nichols for a greenhouse, 50x100, which he will erect at a cost of $1,000.

Cleveland, O.—The Cleveland Cut Flower Co., at its establishment at Newton Falls, has completed the erection of a greenhouse, 49x400, which will be devoted to roses. Another house, 24x200, is being built for the carnation department.

The living wall—of mesembryanthemum—seems to cause more talk than any other floricultural feature of the fair. But all the trade visitors agree John McLaren has done his work extremely well.

One of the curious features of the convention is the small number of those who were at Boston last year who are present. Why did so many members vote for San Francisco if they did not intend to go?

The contest for the prize of $1,000 for the best new rose must be a disappointment to the exposition officials. There are entries enough, but not sufficient plants to make a showing worth the money even if they had done well, which they have not. The prize doubtless will be awarded to keep faith, but the test is not an adequate one.

The majority of those who have visited the Pacific coast this season have stopped, going or coming, at Denver and, of course, called on J. A. Valentine. Mr. Valentine was not able to attend the convention. Mrs. Valentine has been seriously ill for many weeks and the esteemed ex-president of the society has not cared to absent himself from home this summer. It is deeply regretted that little improvement in Mrs. Valentine's condition can be reported.

"Look at what I got for a dime at the corner," said a florist's wife as she held up a big bunch of sweet peas for the inspection of her worse half, attending the convention. The quantity of flowers exposed for sale on the streets of San Francisco was the subject of general comment, no less than the low prices. Those who think flowers are plentiful and cheap in the east this summer should have attended the convention.

Mildew! Mildew everywhere! Scarcely a clean rose to be found anywhere, cut, in the greenhouses, in gardens or on the exposition grounds. The cold nights and the heavy fogs are, of course, responsible for the condition. Eastern visitors to the convention appreciate that the growers around the bay have their own troubles.

San Francisco has some splendid flower stores, a surprising number of first-class places charging first-class prices when one takes into consideration the extent of the street competition. And the quantity of stock carried during the summer season is a revelation; few eastern stores make a better showing in winter.

The gardening at the exposition is wonderful when one takes into consideration the character of the soil. Of course nearly all the large plants are in boxes and good soil was provided in the places stock was planted out, but the salt is beginning to work in and in many places the plants now are going backward. Between soil and climate at San Francisco, an excessive amount of work is required to keep plantings up to the mark, but John McLaren has done wonders, both at the exposition and at Golden Gate park.

Such dahlias most of the eastern visitors never had seen, and the gladioli and many other subjects have wonderfully bright colors under the influence of San Francisco's climatic conditions.

PIERSON DOING WELL.

A telegram from San Francisco August 25 brings word that Wallace R. Pierson is making a good recovery.

As reported in The Review for August 19, Mr. Pierson was ill on the way to the convention, and on arrival at San Francisco went to a hospital, where he was operated on for appendicitis August 18.

HOW HOUSTON GOT IT.

An Exchange of Telegrams.

Robert C. Kerr, of Houston, the spokesman of the Texans, was called home by the destruction of his greenhouses in the great storm that swept the gulf states last week and was not present at the S. A. F. convention in San Francisco when the question of next meeting place came up. On his arrival home he found the following telegram:

San Francisco, August 16.

Strong sentiment here in favor of Texas. We think you can get convention next year. Hope you will wire an invitation naming the city to John Young, 432 Phelan building, San Francisco.

Patrick Welch, President.
Dan MacRorie, Vice-president.

The following reply was sent:

Houston, August 16.

Texas florists unanimously invite 1916 S. A. F. convention to meet at Houston. Splendid auditorium convention facilities. We feel the growing importance of Texas and the south in the floral field need your encouragement and can promise you a grand affiliation and rousing hospitality.

R. C. Kerr, Pres. T. S. F.
L. J. Tackett, Secy.

This was backed up by a telegram from Elijah Coles, president of the Rotary Club of Houston; by one from S. L. Perrin, secretary of the Houston Florists' Club; by one from Adolph Boldt, secretary of the Houston Chamber of Commerce, and by messages from Mr. Kerr to individual members of the S. A. F. asking their assistance.

The result was announced as follows:

San Francisco, August 17.

Houston, 105; New York, 28; New Orleans, 12. Congratulations. Spirited contest.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

["The Principles of Floriculture," by Edward A. White, professor of floriculture in the New York State College of Agriculture, at Cornell University. Published by the Macmillan Co., New York. Contains 467 pages, with about fifty full-page halftone illustrations. Price, bound in cloth, $1.75.]

This is the latest volume of the "Rural Text-Book Series," which is being prepared under the editorial supervision of L. H. Bailey. Take note, then, of the high standing and the unquestionable responsibility of the author, the editor and the publishers, and form your own opinion as to the degree of merit that may therefore be expected in the book. And your expectations, though great, are not likely to be disappointed.

The book is notable for its conciseness and comprehensiveness. It treats of greenhouse construction and heating, and of store and greenhouse management, as well as the production, packing and shipping of cut flowers and plants.

Like the other volumes in the series, this work was intended for use as a text-book, and it is one of the well-matured results of Professor White's experience as a teacher. In the years that he has spent in teaching, and in watching the practical application of his teaching, he has gradually discarded the non-essentials and added greater emphasis to the essentials, until his methods have reached the stage of development represented in this book. The principles embodied in the book have thus received a thorough test.

But, though the book was designed primarily for school use, the author states, modestly enough, that he "hopes it may be of service in a useful way to practical men." And why should he not have such hopes? The object of the book is to aid effectively in transforming learners or students into shrewd, successful florists, and that is certainly a desirable object, whether attained in school or out of it.

Though nothing may entirely take the place of a good course of training at a horticultural school, the persevering use of such a book as this will be the nearest possible approach to a substitute for such a course.

It is probably true that much of the matter in the book is elementary, but are not the elementary facts the very ones in which the majority of people, whether florists or others, are most deficient? Even the florist who was born and raised in the business is still hazy and uncertain in his knowledge of some of the fundamentals. And those who fairly jumped into the trade, with little or no preparation—as if jumping into deep water without knowing how to swim—will find this book a most helpful adviser.

The author's literary style is almost ideal for the purpose, since he expresses his thoughts in brief, pointed sentences, which seldom require a second reading in order to be clearly understood. And the illustrations, as well as the text, are of a practical character; they are not mere embellishments.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Paper Whites and Roman Hyacinths.

Shipments of Paper Whites and Roman hyacinths may reasonably be expected within a few days. However, owing to the European war and lack of ocean carriers, supplies will not come to hand with the regularity of former years. Just as soon as the bulbs do arrive, a good batch should be placed in flats, for this is by far the most satisfactory and economical way of growing these bulbs. Paper Whites are sometimes planted in benches, but the space they take up can be occupied more profitably by other crops, as the flats can be stored in sheds, cellars or coldframes, or even below benches where there is little drip, and later can be placed on benches in batches as required. For these bulbs, use good, new soil, containing some old pulverized manure and sharp sand.

Schizanthus.

Make a first sowing of schizanthus now for early flowering. Use S. Wisetonensis or one of the so-called improvements on it. This is the only schizanthus which is compact in habit and the one most adaptable for pot culture. Sow the seed in pans. Be sure not to allow the seedlings to become drawn. Prick them off into flats when large enough to handle and later pot them singly, using a light but moderately rich soil. Keep schizanthus growing all the time, never allowing it to become potbound until in its flowering pots. It wants cool treatment, with full sun and abundant ventilation all the time. Sometimes this plant is propagated from cuttings, but these never make plants at all equal to seedlings in size, vigor or quality.

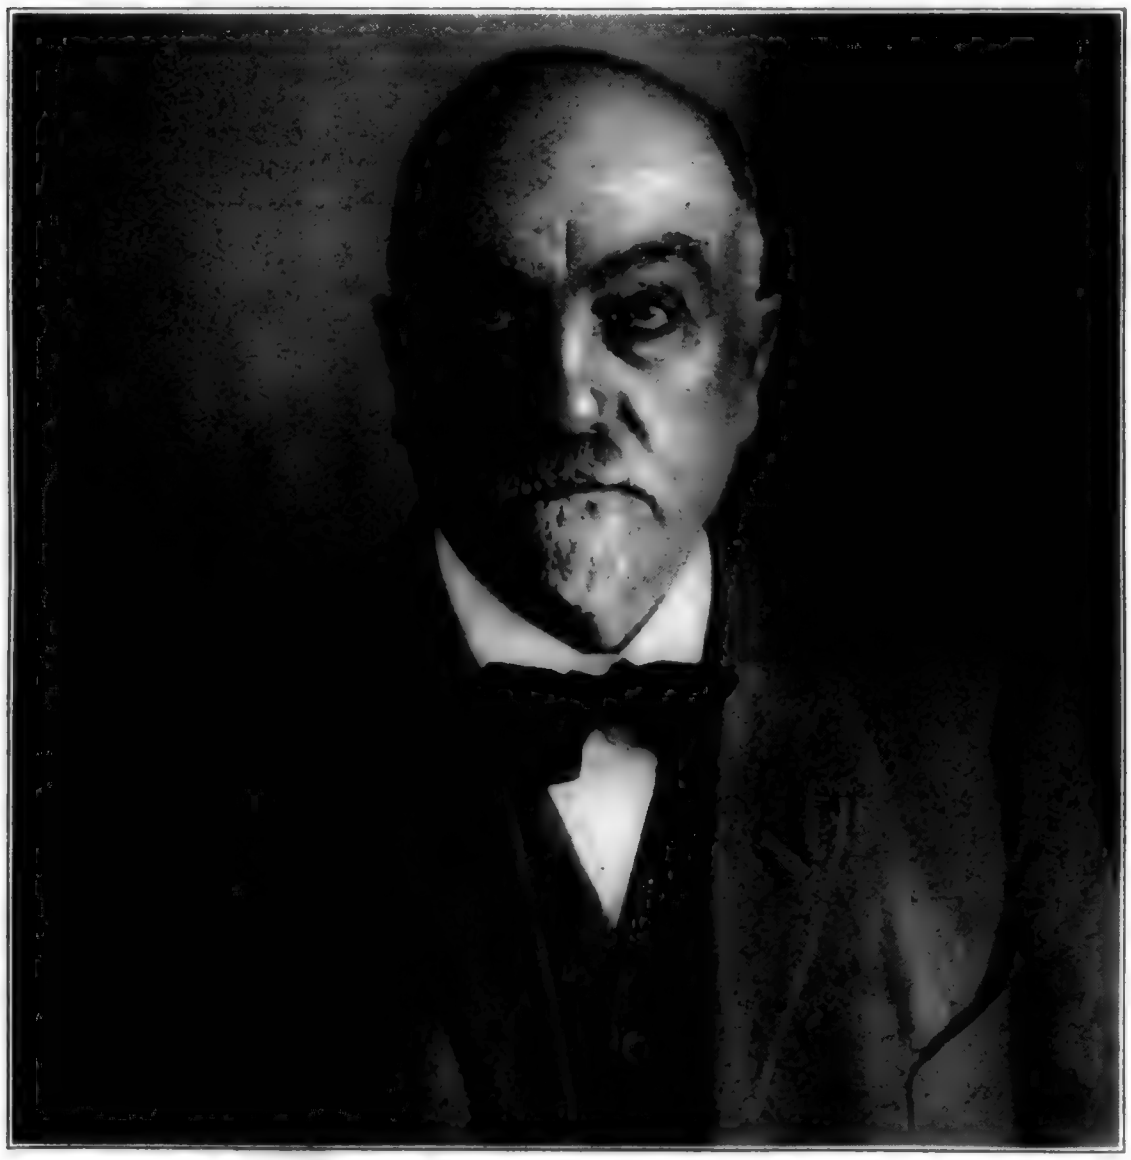
Cyclamens.

Cyclamens for blooming from Thanksgiving to Christmas should now be in their flowering pots and be kept growing either in a light greenhouse, with moderate shade, or in coldframes where removable shades can be used; the plants will thus be prevented from becoming drawn. Use a light but fairly rich soil, containing three parts of fibrous loam and one part of decayed cow manure, with some powdered charcoal and sharp sand. If you have a light soil, it is better not to use any leaf-mold at the final potting, but if your loam is heavy and retentive, one-fifth of leaf-mold will improve it. Be sure to drain the pots well. Do not bury the corms. Leave an ample space for water.

It is again time to make sowings of cyclamen for flowering in the early winter of 1916. If the seed is not yet bought, lose no time in securing it. For early sales, red and deep pink are the favored colors, but light pink, salmon and pure white will sell better later in the season. Use flats or pans that are well drained. Let the compost be mainly leaf-mold, somewhat flaky below, screened finely on the surface and mixed with fine sand. Make the surface level before sowing the seeds and merely scatter a little fine sand over them. Protect from sunshine and place in a warm, moist house to germinate.

Poinsettias.

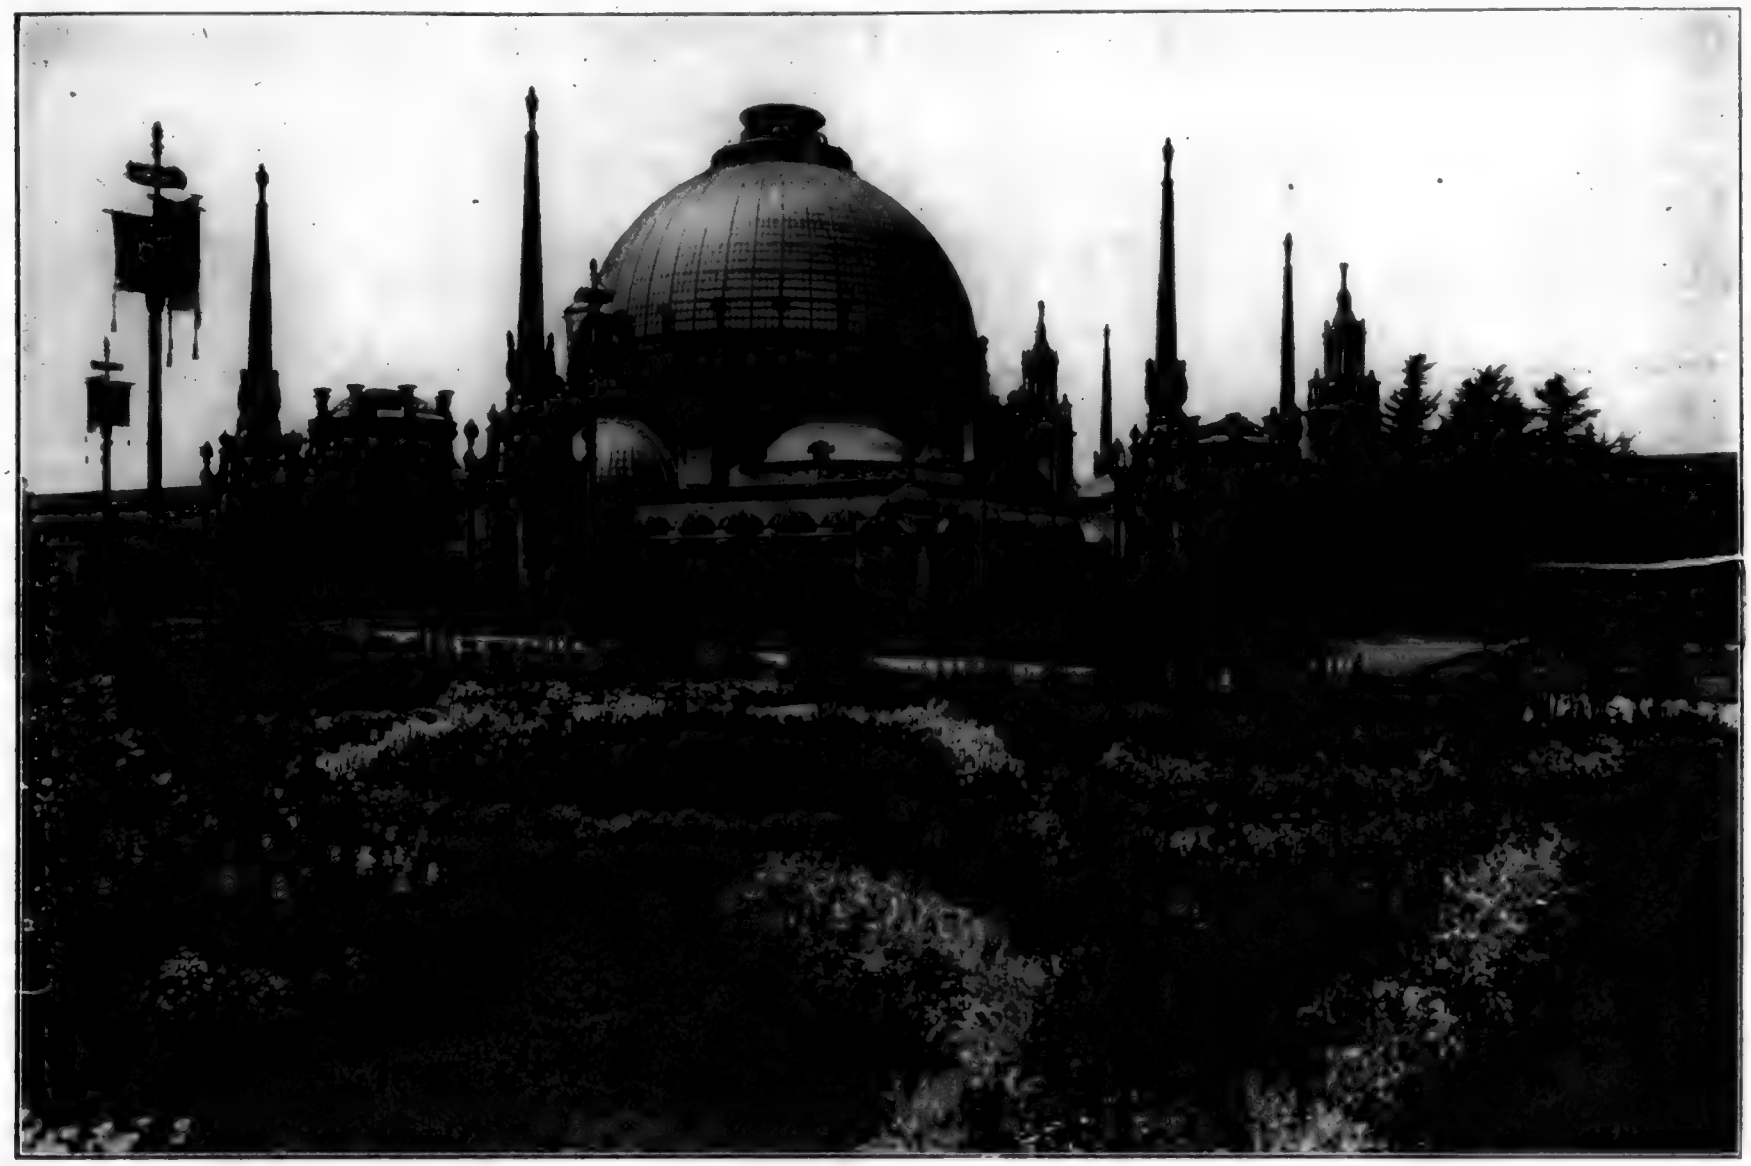
There is still time to propagate poinsettias to be made up into pans. The earliest propagations, if intended to produce large bracts, should be either planted in benches or shifted into 6-inch pots. The plants will grow well in any ordinary greenhouse for some weeks yet, but as the nights become cool and the bracts show they need a good heat, they should have a temperature of not less than 60 degrees at night; otherwise the loss of foliage will be heavy and the flowers will be late in developing.



Disease on Snapdragons.

Partly because of humid climatic conditions and partly because of careless propagation and the leaving of cuttings too long in the cutting bench, there seems to be this season an unusual epidemic of disease on snapdragons, particularly on stock propagated from cuttings. Just as soon as those little, round spots on the leaves are discernible, pick off affected leaves and spray with Bordeaux mixture or Fungine. Do the spraying on clear days, so that the plants will become dry before night. Keep this spraying up at intervals of four or five days, in order to check the spread of the disease. If you see leaves affected, examine the stems near the surface of the pots. You are likely to find spots there and sometimes a brown ring or girdle about the stem. If only one or two spots show, the plants may be saved. If the discoloration encircles the stems, such plants may just as well be burned; they may keep green for some time, but will soon go off with stem-rot after planting.

Growers should use the greatest care at this season with their snapdragons, or the disease will spread with great rapidity and whole batches of plants will be decimated. Do not syringe the plants; or, if you do, be sure they are dry when the sun sets. Do not keep front ventilators open, which would admit damp air. Rely on seedlings rather than cuttings for stock, as the seedlings possess far greater vigor.



Gardenias.

Care is necessary to avoid giving gardenias an excess of water now. The plants may not show any ill effects of overwatering for a time, but, as the weather becomes cooler, buds will begin to drop heavily and the leaves will take on the yellow tint which is the bane of gardenia growers. The benches will now be getting fairly full of roots, and, in order to reduce the number of waterings, a light mulch is advisable. Use half rotted leaves rather than cow manure. If manure is used, let it be old and crumbly, such as can be got from a spent hotbed or mushroom bed. In order to keep mealy bug down, frequent syringings are necessary, but during damp, sunless weather it is better to leave the foliage dry. Maintain a minimum temperature of 65 degrees.

Scented Verbenas.

Verbenas outdoors now have an abundance of nice, soft cuttings. Those rubbed off with a heel are the least liable to damp off. If a propagating bench is not at disposal, make up a single sash in one of the coldframes, so that a brisk heat can be bottled up. The present is also a good time to root some heliotropes and scented geraniums. The latter, however, need somewhat cooler and airier quarters than the scented verbenas.

FLOWERS AT THE FRISCO FAIR.

In looking over the exhibit of flowering plants at the San Francisco exposition, one of the main things that appeals to the man from Chicago is the choice quality of what might be called the garden flowers. The planting of gladioli is extremely fine and, in fact, is the best I ever have seen. The dahlia exhibit was a disappointment, as the quantity planted out was less than I had expected to see. There was an extremely fine exhibit of daisies. While it was not large, still it was exceptionally good and had a great many varieties that we never see in the east. The planting of sweet peas was not large, but those that were in the horticultural gardens were extremely fine. I saw some varieties that were bent down, similar to our method of growing Beauties, as they had attained such a high growth that they had turned the vines along for three or four feet on the ground and then let them grow up again. I was told that these peas have been in bloom since May 1. There certainly are some good varieties there, with extra long stems. The planting of carnations was so small, and the plants had made such poor growth, that it would have been better to have dug them out. The planting of roses was quite large, but the plants had made poor growth.

The writer had visited the grounds on which the plantings are made some three years ago and can appreciate the difficulty the horticultural commissioners encountered in getting good soil. The tract on which the gardens are located three years ago was the scrubbiest piece of ground that could be imagined and all the soil had to be hauled in and made, so that with a number of the plantings the soil was not adapted to the best development of the plants, especially roses. The plantings for the $1,000 prize best variety of new rose were a disappointment, for not over a dozen varieties out of about seventy-five had made a good, healthy growth. The writer's idea of a good outdoor rose is one that is a vigorous grower under almost any condition, and also a continuous bloomer. It is not so much the quality of the flowers, as it is that there should be plenty of them. There are about a dozen varieties in this prize exhibit that looked good to me.

The general view of the exposition from the floral standpoint is extremely good. The planting around the building and grounds has been done in such an artistic manner that it is of the greatest possible value to the general appearance of the exposition and worth a great many times the cost of the work. The wall surrounding the grounds on two sides, and a great many bare places which needed to be screened off, were filled with flats or small boxes of ice plant and the top of the boxes covered with wire of about ½-inch mesh, so that the plants are held in the boxes. These boxes are set on edge, one on top of the other, producing an extremely good effect. It is certain that the horticultural work done at the exposition will be of great advantage to the trade in general, as it was the admiration of every visitor on the grounds. The parties who had the landscape work in charge are to be highly commended. They had difficult soil to contend with and have made their plantings grow well and produce charming effects; in fact, to sum up the horticulture and landscape work of the exposition, they proved to be one of the best points of the whole exposition and were commented on by all in conjunction with the general view of the buildings as well as the illuminating effects.

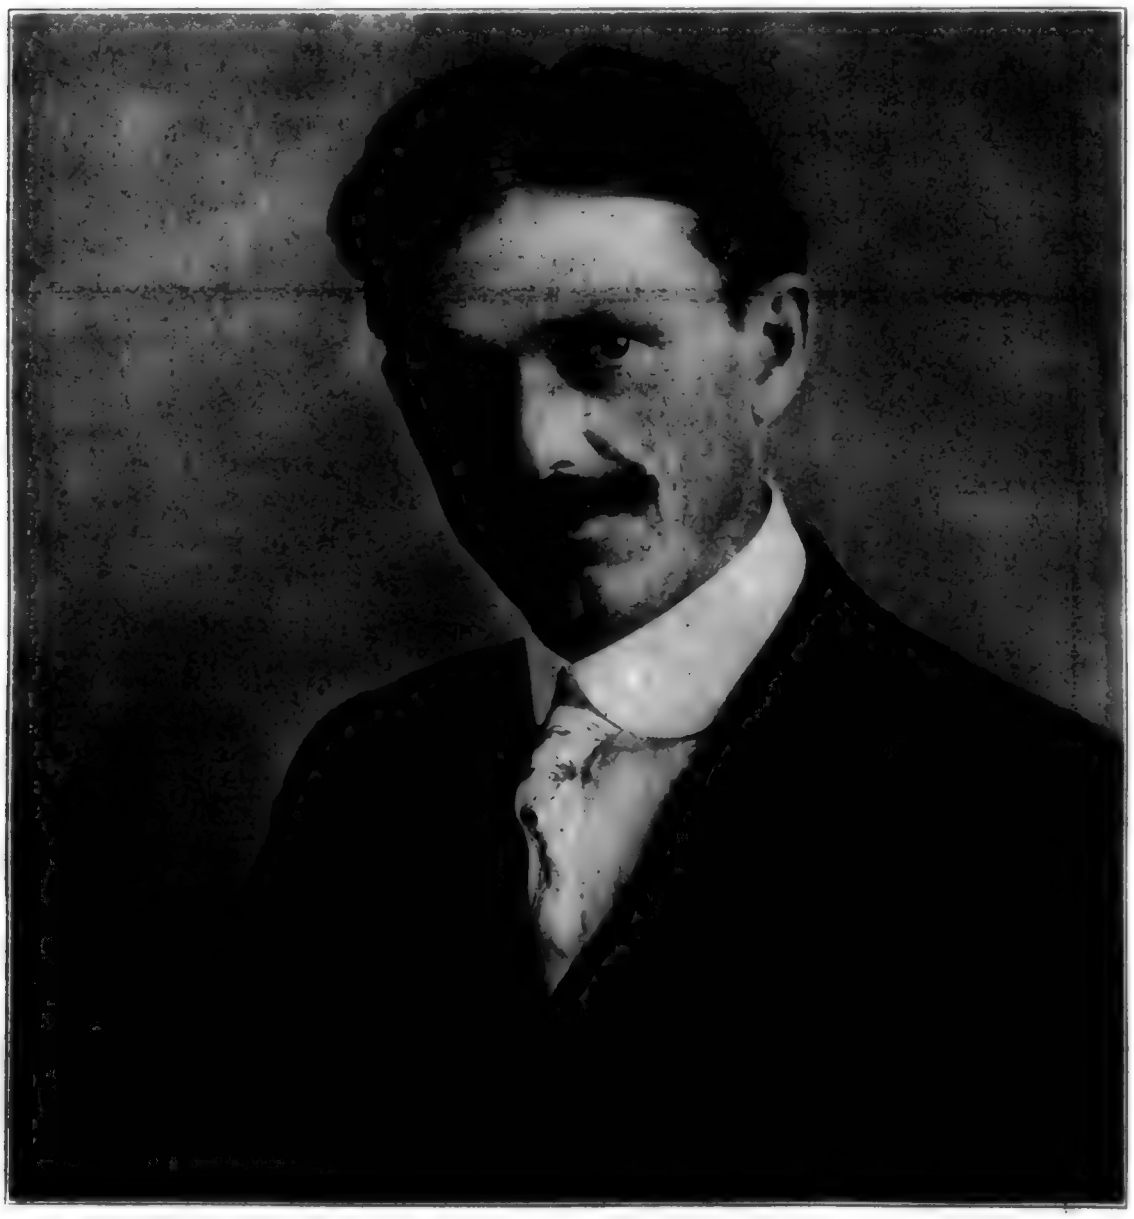
THE GLADIOLUS

NEWPORT GLADIOLUS SHOW.



National Society's Annual Meeting.

Sound judgment was displayed by the officers of the American Gladiolus Society in its choice of Newport, R. I., as the place for this year's show, instead of the S. A. F. convention city, which has usually been selected. Gladiolus experts were in heavy attendance and exhibits were high in quality and large in number. The main hall, the stage, the galleries, the piazzas and the annexes of the Casino were filled with blooms. The few days of dry weather and moderate temperature just before the opening day of the show, August 18, enabled the exhibitors to display blooms of splendid quality.

The judges, James Wheeler, of Natick, Mass.; J. Leiterstraten, of Saxonville, Mass.; William Andrews, of Sterling, Mass., and Bruce Butterton, James Robinson and Andrew S. Meikle, of Newport, had so heavy a task on their hands that they were not able to complete it the first day. In one class, that for the silver cup of Hitchings & Co. for the most artistically arranged basket or hamper of blooms containing not more than twenty-five spikes, competition was so strong that a seventh man was called in to break the tie among the six judges. The prize was finally awarded to B. Hammond Tracy, of Wenham, Mass., and J. G. Leikens, Inc., of New York and Newport, was given a second prize. Next day, however, it was found that Mr. Tracy's hamper contained one spike too many, and so the cup was given to J. G. Leikens.

Charles F. Fairbanks, president of the society, staged a splendid display, which was awarded a gold medal by the Newport Horticultural Society. T. A. Havemeyer also had a fine exhibit, as did Governor R. Livingston Beeckman, who formally opened the show with a brief address. The decorations by Bruce Butterton, superintendent for E. J. Berwind, of Newport, added much to the beauty of the exhibition as a whole.

The west upper balcony was filled with trade exhibits. Prominent among them were those of John Lewis Childs, of Flowerfield, N. Y.; Arthur Cowee, of Berlin, N. Y.; H. E. Meader, of Dover, N. H.; Knight & Struck Co., of New York; A. E. Kunderd, of Goshen, Ind., and C. Keur & Sons, of Hillegom, Holland.

Business Meeting.

The annual meeting of the society was held in the governors' room at the Casino. It was voted to hold the society's exhibitions hereafter biennially instead of annually. The executive committee recommended that the next meeting be held in New York. Votes of thanks were given to Bruce Butterton for his work in staging the exhibition and to T. A. Havemeyer for his work in promoting the show. Professor Massey, of Columbia university, New York, gave an address on gladiolus culture and gladiolus diseases, illustrating it with specimens, which occupied a table in the Casino.

The officers elected were as follows:

President — Charles F. Fairbanks, Boston.

Vice-president—Theodore A. Havemeyer, New York.

Secretary—Henry Youell, Syracuse, N. Y.

Treasurer—A. E. Kunderd, Goshen, Ind.

Executive committee—Theodore A. Havemeyer, M. Chamberlain, Arthur Cowee, Berlin, N. Y.

The Awards.

In addition to the awards in the scheduled classes, C. M. Bergholt, gardener for Miss Fanny Foster, Newport, was awarded a cultural certificate for a specimen of Europa.

First class certificates were awarded L. Merton Gage for his seedling, Mrs. Dr. Norton, and John Lewis Childs for Newport. Honorable mention was awarded John Scheepers & Co., New York, for new yellow seedling No. 3-7229; Chamberlain & Co., Wellesley, Mass., for general display; A. E. Kunderd, for primulinus hybrids; W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, for seedlings; Knight & Struck Co., for general display; S. E. Spencer, Woburn, Mass., for general display; T. A. Havemeyer, for general display, and T. E. Cogger, Melrose, Mass., for display of seedlings.

Votes of thanks were given for general displays to H. A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia; the A. H. Austin Co. and Munsell & Harvey.

Two exhibits arrived on the second day of the show, too late to be judged. One came from Munsell & Harvey, of Ashtabula, O., and included specimens of Hazel Harvey, a dark red. The other was from the A. H. Austin Co., of Wayland, O.

The awards in the open classes were as follows:

Six spikes white—Charles F. Fairbanks, first; Albert Lahodney, gardener for T. A. Havemeyer, Glen Head, N. Y., second.

Six spikes pink—C. F. Fairbanks, first; R. W. Swett, Saxonville, Mass., second.

Six spikes yellow—Arthur E. Griffin, Marion, Mass., first; A. Lahodney, second.

Six spikes blue or lavender—C. F. Fairbanks, first; A. Lahodney, second.

Six spikes red—R. W. Swett, first; C. F. Fairbanks, second.

Six spikes any other color—B. H. Tracy, first; Madison Cooper, Calcium, N. Y., second.

Collection of ten varieties, six spikes of each—B. H. Tracy, first.

Vase of white or light seedling, new—Clark W. Brown, Ashland, Mass., first.

Six spikes Golden West—C. W. Brown, first.

Three spikes A. W. Clifford—Madison Cooper, first.

Twelve spikes Black Beauty—Madison Cooper, first.

Twelve spikes Lucille—Madison Cooper, first.

Twelve spikes Michigan—Madison Cooper, first.

Gladiolus Exhibit of the Metzner Floral Co., Mountain View, Cal., at the San Francisco Exposition.

Display of primulinus blooms, not less than four inches across, not less than twenty-five spikes—B. H. Tracy, first; C. W. Brown, second.

Twelve spikes any variety in one vase—H. E. Meader, first; R. W. Swett, second.

Collection of Kunderd varieties, both plain and ruffled petals—C. W. Brown, first; P. W. Popp, Mamaroneck, N. Y., second.

Twenty-five spikes Hollandia—C. F. Fairbanks, first; R. W. Swett, second.

Six spikes Mrs. Pendleton—Madison Cooper, first; H. E. Meader, second.

Twenty spikes Panama—R. W. Swett, first.

Twenty spikes Niagara—B. H. Tracy, first.

Seedling never before exhibited, not less than three spikes—L. Merton Gage, Natick, Mass., first; John Lewis Childs, second; R. W. Swett, third.

Twenty-five spikes white—John Lewis Childs, first; B. H. Tracy, second.

Twenty-five spikes red—R. W. Swett, first; Wm. McKay, Newport, second.

Twenty-five spikes yellow—Clark W. Brown, first; John Lewis Childs, second.

Twenty-five spikes blue or lavender—C. W. Brown, first; R. W. Swett, second.

Twenty-five spikes pink—C. F. Fairbanks, first; R. W. Swett, second.

Twenty-five spikes any other color—B. H. Tracy, first; John Lewis Childs, second.

In the amateur classes Theodore A. Havemeyer and Madison Cooper took the lion's share of the prizes. C. F. Fairbanks, L. M. Fuller, of Rockland, Mass.; A. E. Griffin, of Marion, Mass., and Miss Fanny Foster, of Newport, also won awards in these classes.

THE BEST WHITE.

In justice to the judges of the Ohio Gladiolus Society, who awarded "best white" to our exhibit of Glory of Holland at Cleveland, please mention that our vase of Rochester White did not contain the required number of flowers and that we did not have Europa in bloom at that time. Glory of Holland really did not have any competition of any account. I do not care to express any opinion here as to the relative merits of the last two varieties mentioned, but I will say that Glory of Holland is a good white, although not by any means as good as either Rochester White or Europa.

I follow trade and show awards on various varieties closely, in order to get a line on good stock, and the outcome of this award is likely to be misleading to those who do likewise, and who think that Glory of Holland came into competition with Rochester and Europa. Ralph E. Huntington.

METZNER GLADIOLUS DISPLAY.

Among the best of the gladiolus exhibits on the grounds of the San Francisco exposition is that of the Metzner Floral Co., of Mountain View, Cal., which occupies a corner of the California garden. This is a general collection. The color combinations in it came out more happily than is often the experience and, in addition, the blooms are remarkably fine, the stalks growing up to six feet and even higher. At the height of the gladiolus season, this part of the California garden was one of the show places of the exposition, horticulturally speaking. The accompanying illustration gives a good view of the exhibit. The department of horticulture of the exposition awarded the Metzner Floral Co. a grand prize for seedling gladioli.

ORCHIDS

FEEDING ORCHIDS.

Will you kindly tell me the best way to mix manure for orchids, mostly cattleyas? M. P.—Conn.

There are decided differences of opinion as to whether feeding cattleyas and certain other orchids is a benefit or the reverse. All are agreed that calanthes need manure in the soil and also relish it in liquid form; so, also, with phaius, zygopetalums, sobralias, cymbidiums, cypripediums and cœlogynes, but when it comes to cattleyas, lælias, dendrobiums, odontoglossums and miltonias there is no unanimity of opinion.

Personally I have found careful feeding a decided advantage to practically all orchids, if the food is given only during the active growing season and in moderate doses. I use 50-gallon barrels. In these I dilute five pounds of Clay's fertilizer or Bon Arbor No. 1. Let the liquid stand a few days and then dip the baskets in the barrels; or a tub may be mounted on low wheels and run along the houses, making the dipping more convenient. Dipping is not always feasible, and in such cases a Kinney pump is used to apply the liquid, especially to those in pots or pans. Cow manure is also used, at the rate of half a bushel to a barrel, and a few handfuls of soot are added to it. These liquids are alternated; I find plants like a change of food as much as do human beings.

I would not advise you to go into this cattleya feeding in any haphazard way. Try the various foods on batches of plants and compare results. As a general rule, one watering per week is ample during the growing season. Some growers use the Cookson formula on all varieties of orchids, with good results, but I think if you will try the three fertilizers previously named you can get equally satisfactory results.

An expression of opinion from other orchid growers on this important question would be interesting. C. W.

WHY KERR WENT HOME.

S. A. F. members who wondered last week at the absence from San Francisco of Robert C. Kerr, of Houston, Tex., at the time of the convention which elected him vice-president of the society, have only to glance at the illustration on this page to find the answer.

A wind storm of terrific strength visited Houston and wrecked most of the greenhouses in the vicinity. Mr. Kerr's range was completely demolished; the loss amounts to about $5,000. The loss at the range of H. H. Kuhlmann is about the same. F. L. Cotney's store was wrecked and his family caught in the wreck. Mr. Cotney was injured, but, it is believed, not seriously. W. T. Hauser's loss was about $3,000, half of his greenhouses being destroyed. The Brazos Greenhouses suffered little in comparison; only 300 or 400 panes of glass were broken. As the houses were modern in construction, they withstood the storm well.

In the downtown section, the Forestdale Flower Shop suffered the loss of three large plate-glass windows and considerable damage to stock. At H. H. Kuhlmann's store two plate-glass windows were broken. The Gulf Florist, operating a small greenhouse in the business district, was badly damaged. Mr. Kerr's store had the protection of several high brick buildings, and received little damage. Henry Blecker, at Glenwood cemetery, suffered some damages to his greenhouses, and the top was blown off his store.

Two Views of the Wrecked Greenhouses of R. C. Kerr, Houston, Tex.

Every cloud has its silver lining: As a result of the storm Houston will have a number of up-to-date ranges to show visitors next year, in place of the houses that have been in use for the last ten or fifteen years. Although it is considered too late to begin construction this fall, except such as is necessary for the protection of the stock on hand, next spring will probably see all of the wrecked ranges replaced by houses of the most modern type.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Six days of fine weather has been good for business, and there is a noticeable change for the better. Saturday, however, was exceedingly quiet, owing to the return of rain. So far, the receipts for this month and the one preceding are much less than those of last year. General business conditions are poor. Little is heard or seen of weddings and local functions, and stores consequently are not busy. Market reports show that heavy consignments arrive daily, but much of the stock is disposed of at the customer's own figures. For a few days last week, the market was fairly glutted with asters, chiefly in lavender, purple and white, but the delicate shades of pink were slow in arriving. American Beauties receive no special call. Sunburst Ward, Russell, Maryland and Ophelia, as well as other varieties in pink shades, are plentiful and do not move quickly. Carnations are poor and scarce. There is a fair supply of sweet peas, but the majority are of poor quality and many are short-stemmed. The supply of gladioli is good and easily meets the present demand. The better sellers are America and Rochester White, which bring medium prices. Easter lilies arrive daily, but do not clear fast. Valley does not sell well. A few outdoor flowers, such as stocks, verbena, phlox, candytuft and cosmos, are arriving, but do not sell too well. There is a sufficient supply of fern leaves, Asparagus plumosus, smilax and other greens.

Various Notes.

The flower show committee of the Rochester Florists' Association, under the chairmanship of George B. Hart, is working hard on arrangements for the Rochester exposition and flower show. Building No. 5, which will be known from now on as Floral hall, will be transformed into an attractive floral bower. Several of America's biggest and best growers will exhibit, as well as most of Rochester's florists and growers. The committee promises a show that will surpass all others. The show will be held August 30 to September 12.

The annual picnic of the Rochester Florists' Association was held August 19, at Walter Salmon's grove. The splendid weather brought out seventy-five members, and a good time was had by all. The committee worked splendidly. Arrangements were complete in every way. There was an abundance of food. Sports, including tennis, all kinds of races, baseball, etc., were indulged in. Music was furnished by a negro trio, which proved to be one of the main attractions of the day.

The florists have discovered that undertakers are asking for artificial wax roses, to be used on magnolia wreaths for door pieces. As a wreath of artificial roses costs about the same as one of real roses, the florists are satisfied.

Lord & Burnham Co.'s Rochester office has contracted for the following: E. R. Hyde, Wayland, N. Y., one pipe-frame greenhouse, 21x58.6; Frank Lavigne, Rochester, one pipe-frame greenhouse, 17x3x58.6, and a boiler house, 6.5x15, and for C. B. Emmons, Pittsford, N. Y., one pipe-frame greenhouse, 24.6x50.2. Harry E. Bates is away on a business trip to Pittsburgh, Pa.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Business in the flower stores drags on. Occasional funeral work is the only activity noticeable. If it were not for the fact that such conditions must be expected during midsummer months, many of the florists would be discouraged. Each passing week, however, sees a slight improvement in general business conditions, and many are optimistic as to fall business. No one expects a boom in business, but large numbers of business men expect better conditions than we have had for a long time. Activity in other lines must mean a greater volume of sales for the florists. So many people are away on their vacations that few stores are branching out at present, whatever may be their plans for the fall. When the majority of the vacationists return, after Labor day, the fundamental improvement of business will doubtless be more apparent. Asters and gladioli continue to be the staples in the flower shops. The cosmos that have appeared so far have generally been of inferior quality, owing, in part, to the heavy rain this season. Such dahlias as have arrived have also been poor. A better grade has begun to appear, but they are not yet up to average quality. Some of the better flowers sell at $1 per dozen; the others for about 75 cents per dozen. Outside hydrangeas are beginning to arrive, and are of fairly good quality. Roses are good for this time of the year.

Various Notes.

Fred Philips, of Philips Bros., is spending his vacation fishing on the New Jersey coast. Last year he caught a sea bass weighing forty-two pounds, and he is trying to duplicate the performance this year. Philips Bros. have had considerable funeral work. Their entire store will be renovated so as to be in excellent condition at the opening of the fall season.

John W. Blakely, of Elizabeth, has been spending his vacation at West Boothbay Harbor, Me.

H. C. Strobell & Co. report business quiet. They have some funeral work, but little transient trade. A variegated pineapple in their window attracts the attention of the passersby.

John F. Noll & Co., seedsmen, have had a most beautiful display of gladioli and water lilies. In the window where the water lilies were displayed, there were six pools of water, in each of which was one variety. The plants and flowers were not crowded, so that it was possible to examine them thoroughly from the street, yet they were sufficiently numerous to make a beautiful picture. The pools of water were separated so that each variety could be seen by itself. In front of each pool was a card telling what variety was exhibited. R. B. M.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

The Market.

Business is quiet in general. There is a little doing all the time to keep flowers cleaned up. There is an overabundance of good gladioli, which sell cheaply. Roses are plentiful, but there is not much substance to them. Asters are of first-class quality and there are plenty of them.

Various Notes.

John Webb has left the employ of Joseph Pierce and gone to work for S. E. Shaw, the wholesale grower, on Kempton street.

Fred Reynolds reports business quiet.

The entertainment committee of the New Bedford Horticultural Society met Friday night, August 20, in the office of Post & Gray to arrange for a society clambake, to be held in the early part of September.

George N. Borden reports having had a splendid vacation at Lake Winnipesaukee, N. H., though he encountered a good deal of wet weather.

Lillian Apsey has entered the employ of Post & Gray to take charge of their department at the store of the Stieger-Dudgen Co. W. M. P.

THE NEIDINGER OFFICERS.

The incorporation of the Joseph G. Neidinger Co. was reported in The Review for August 12, with an account of the start and rise of the business, and readers will be interested in the portraits of the men at the helm. They are:

Joseph G. Neidinger, president of the company, a successful originator and maker of florists' supplies, whose ideas have proved a source of pleasure and profit to florists all over the land.

George S. Hampton, treasurer, whose hustle and good-fellowship have done much to popularize the products of his company.

Jack F. Neidinger, secretary, a young man whose ability is used to push the interests of his house with might and main.

HARTFORD, CONN.

The Market.

The supply of roses is light, although great enough to meet the demand. There are plenty of asters of fair quality. Gladioli, as usual, are a drug on the market. There are plenty of lilies for all requirements.

Various Notes.

John Coomb's new house, on South street, is completed and planted. The young stock is coming along finely.

Robert Karlstrom reports that this is the first time in fifteen years that he has failed to attend the S. A. F. convention.

W. R. Pierson was taken ill with appendicitis while attending the convention, and had to undergo an operation at San Francisco. The operation was successful and he is getting along satisfactorily. R. C. S.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

Last week business reached the low record for the summer. The supply of stock was not heavy; consequently there was not a large surplus. Asters are of much better quality and a few good ones bring fair prices, but short-stemmed flowers bring poor returns. Gladioli are still in fair supply, but are moving slowly. Roses are only fairly plentiful and few good ones are seen. Lilies are in fair demand, but Beauties are immovable at any price.

Club Outing.

The annual outing of the Florists' Club was held at Miller's park, Dundalk, August 18. The weather was clear and cool. Though there was a good crowd, it was not as large as at some former outings, probably on account of the cool weather and the lateness of the season. Nevertheless, it was a most enjoyable affair.

A varied line of amusements was provided. Dancing, bowling, fishing and boating were indulged in. In the afternoon the games were run off and the day's sport wound up with a crab feast, which all took part in.

Following is a list of prize-winners in the games:

Pipe race for men—Wm. J. Teipe, first; H. Seidlich, second.
Peanut race for men—Herb. Wagner, first; Otto Feidler, second.
Peanut race for boys—J. Daniels, first; W. Hannigan, second.

Men's bowling—J. J. Perry, first; Mack Richmond, second; Herb. Wagner, third.

The ball game wound up the day's events and was won by a team composed of Messrs. Klutch, Wagner, Hannigan, Teipe, Bauer, Rosnosky, Seidlich and Hambruck. A. McGuire officiated efficiently as umpire, and at the close of the game a prize was presented to him by the winning team for his assistance. The score—oh, I guess it would better be kept secret.

Club Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club was held August 23, President Hamilton in the chair. The outing committee submitted its report on the picnic held August 18, and received the thanks of the club for the efficient manner in which the arrangements were carried out. The premium list of the fall flower show was distributed to those present. I. H. Moss, on behalf of the Maryland Horticultural Society, asked for the assistance and coöperation of the club members in making the fall show a success. A committee was appointed to supervise the work of beautifying the home gardens of the city, which is being fostered by the club. The committee consists of James Hamilton, chairman; F. C. Bauer, George Talbot, James Glass and W. F. Ekas.

Hail Storm.

The hail storm of August 21 passed over the northeastern section of the city, but only greenhouses in the vicinity of Hamilton were damaged. John Muth, on Belair road, lost about 250 lights, but his stock was only slightly damaged. Charles Hochstedt, on Harford road, and Edward Van Reuth, Hamilton, suffered broken glass and slightly damaged stock. This is the second hail storm of the season to break lights and ruin stock, but the first storm, four weeks ago, was much more severe. W. F. E.

CONVENTION HALL PLANTINGS.

The gardens and lawn in front of Convention hall, at Philadelphia, where the National Flower Show will be held next spring, are in a flourishing condition. The section planted by Henry A. Dreer, Inc., is shown in the accompanying illustration. It is ninety feet long and forty-five feet deep. At the rear, next to the building, is planted a large, irregular border, from ten to sixteen feet in depth, of Canna Louis Reverchon and, in front of it, Canna Gustav Gumpper, with an edging of Pennisetum Ruppelianum. The two large oval beds contain single fringed petunias, and between them is a large specimen Phœnix sylvestris.

Convention Hall, Philadelphia, Showing Planting by Henry A. Dreer, Inc.

WESTERLY, R. I.

Victor Schousboe, foreman at S. J. Reuter & Son's greenhouses, has gone on a vacation to Chicago, on a visit to his brother. Mrs. Effie M. Hall, employed in the store, has gone to West Bethel, Me., on a visit to her mother. Frederick Wilcox, until recently local manager of the Adams Express Co., has secured a position as head shipping clerk for S. J. Reuter & Son. Louis J. Reuter was a business visitor in New York and Philadelphia last week.

C. Schultz is making a thorough overhauling of his greenhouses, at Beach and Elm streets.

Herbert Pascoe is suffering with blood poisoning in his right hand, caused by a rose thorn.

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Stillman have returned from a trip to the Pacific coast and the expositions. Mr. Stillman has arranged to send a large exhibit to the Rochester exposition flower show, August 30 to September 11.

Peter S. Byrnes, of Wickford, had the decorations of the Casino at Narragansett Pier last week for the big annual costume ball. W. H. M.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.

The Market.

Summer business has been about as usual; rather more stock than in previous summers and just about the customary demand, with the result that prices have been lower and more effort has been made in the way of special sales to avoid the waste of stock. Funeral work has been fairly frequent and has been the main reliance of some of those in the trade.

The growers are busy. Not only are they cutting more stock than usual, but they are hard at work preparing for next season. The bedding business this spring broke all records and sales continued until late in July, when practically all local supply was cleaned up. Salvias were short of the demand. For next season a still larger stock will be worked up, of all popular bedding plants.

Various Notes.

The old Brown homestead now has a mistress. During his recent trip to the Pacific coast, A. C. Brown and Mrs. A. C. Canfield, widow of the former Springfield florist, were married. The bride was warmly welcomed on their return, as she always has been popular here.

Preparations are under way for the state fair flower show. The date is two weeks earlier than last year and the premiums have been reduced, but it is expected the local florists will exhibit the same as usual.

The settlement of the estate of David Wirth, who died February 5, 1914, has progressed to the point that called for the public sale of the Wirth & Gaupp greenhouse property and business. It is understood that an appraisal put a value of $18,000 on it, but $13,000 was the best offer obtainable and John N. Gaupp bid it in at that price.

Hembreiker & Cole have the old A. C. Canfield establishment in excellent shape.

George J. Dinkel, who took over Mr. Canfield's store after spending several years in his employ, was at Chicago last week buying stock. Mr. Dinkel has been in the business here twenty-one years.

H. F. Janssen, of the Janssen Seed & Floral Co., is on the Pacific coast and was this city's sole representative at the S. A. F. convention. H. O.

SCRANTON, PA.

The Market.

Business improved a little last week, on account of several large funerals and receptions. Late asters are arriving in large quantities. Rose-pink and white are the best sellers. Gladioli continue to be plentiful. The market is glutted with sweet peas, which are sold at the buyer's own price. Other offerings include candytuft, snapdragons, cornflowers and marigolds.

Various Notes.

A. L. Besancon & Co. report a busy week. This firm had the decoration for the Rosenbloom reception, consisting of palms, ferns and baskets of gladioli. The tables had centerpieces of roses and sweet peas.

Miss Annie Griffiths and her sister, Miss Marion, have returned from a two weeks' vacation at Atlantic City, N. J.

Mrs. Burton Park, of Jermyn, Pa., was a caller last week.

There is to be a new flower store on Lackawanna avenue, conducted by Greeks. It will be the first Greek flower store to open in Scranton.

Baldwin the Florist has another unique display. One window has a miniature lake with banks and background of palms, ferns and trailing vines. The other window presents a delightful forest scene. M. L. Ruch, manager, is spending a month at Lake Winola. Miss Jenkins has returned from a two weeks' stay at Crystal lake.

B. E. & J. T. Cokely report business good. They have received a number of large orders for wire designs, which have been specially priced for ten days. James Gallagher, manager, is enjoying a much needed vacation at Waymart, Pa. Miss Jane Baxter is recovering from an attack of appendicitis.

Morel Bros. are busy repairing their greenhouses, which were damaged recently by a mine cave-in. Their stock looks promising for next year.

Thomas Arner is cutting some fine asters and gladioli. Mr. Arner was the first in Scranton to pick tomatoes this year, starting July 2. F. J. M.

OBITUARY

Roger Murphy.

Roger Murphy, of Worcester, Mass., one of the oldest florists in New England, died August 1 of pneumonia. Mr. Murphy had been in the employ of H. F. A. Lange for nearly thirty years, and was an expert grower of bulbs. He always had the best hyacinths and tulips on the local market.

He is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Mary Mulcahy, Mrs. Anna Kelly, Helen and Johanna Murphy, and two sons, John F. and Michael J. Murphy.

Louis Rapin.

Louis Rapin, who will be remembered by Buffalo residents as having kept a florists' shop on Main street many years ago, died at his home August 15, after a long illness. Mr. Rapin was almost 58 years old.

It has been thirty-eight years since Mr. Rapin conducted the flower store on Main street. He moved from the location in 1877 to Pine Ridge road and Genesee street, where the greenhouses are located, and conducted a store there until five years ago, when his son, Louis, succeeded him.

Mr. Rapin is survived by his wife, Katie T.; a son, Louis A. S.; a brother, Edward, and a sister, Sophia.

Hermann Rossbach.

Hermann Rossbach, of New Orleans, La., died August 13 at the age of 65 years. He was a native of Essen, Germany, and came to New Orleans in 1872. Mr. Rossbach was well known among the trade at New Orleans, having been a gardener and florist for many years. He is survived by a son and three daughters.

Alfred Rivers.

Word comes from England of the death, August 6, of T. A. H. Rivers, senior partner of the firm of Thomas Rivers & Son, Sawbridgeworth. Mr. Rivers' work among hardy fruits, in which he maintained the tradition of two previous generations, is well known. From his own personal qualities and the world-wide connection of the firm, Mr. Rivers had a wide circle of friends and acquaintances in the nursery trade.

William Warring.

William Warring, who had been an employee of the William Scott Co. for thirty years, died at his home August 15, after a brief illness. He was well known by the Buffalo florists and loved by all who knew him. His wife and four children, William, Emma, Sarah and Mrs. Frank Miller, survive him. The funeral was held August 17 from his home, 22 East Balcom street. Many floral tributes were sent by the local florists. E. C. A.

John Payne.

"Johnny" Payne is dead. It seems too sad to be true; his bright smile and cheerful greeting won him friends everywhere. People liked Johnny Payne; they couldn't help it; he had that way about him. It always seemed that any little thing that was wanted would be done if he could do it, and if he couldn't, why, he would try, and that made matters better. So there will be florists all over Philadelphia, all over Pennsylvania, even all over the United States, who will miss Johnny Payne and sincerely mourn his loss.

John A. Payne died August 21, at his home near Seventeenth and Snyder streets, Philadelphia, of tubercular trouble, after an illness of several months, leaving his wife and two children. He was 26 years of age. Fourteen years ago he entered the house of H. Bayersdorfer & Co. as errand boy. By industry he steadily rose to a position as stock clerk, shipper, city salesman and, best of all, won the respect and confidence of the members of the firm, who feel that in his loss they have suffered a personal bereavement. The funeral took place August 24, from his home; interment at Holy Cross cemetery, Yeadon, Pa. Phil.

George Earl Luffman.

George Earl Luffman, of Birmingham, Ala., died August 15 at the age of 58 at his home, Glen Iris. He conducted a store and nursery at his home for the last sixteen years. Mr. Luffman is survived by his wife and three daughters: Mrs. Lambly, Mrs. Goddard and Miss Nellie Luffman.

Gentlemen:-

Please oblige by discontinuing my Classified advertisement as I am all sold out. The Review is the best trade puller.

Very truly yours,

LANCASTER, PA.

Club Meeting.

The Lancaster Florists' Club was entertained Thursday afternoon, August 19, by President and Mrs. B. F. Barr, at their beautiful home, Avondale Farm.

An inspection of the 100 acres which Mr. Barr devotes to nursery stock was interesting. His collection of specimen evergreens is exceptionally fine. In the large formal garden the hardy perennials were all in bloom and a fine bed of Heliotrope Monstrosa was much admired by the members.

Sports were started after the visit to the nursery grounds. Bowling on the green was much enjoyed by all. A. M. Herr and Jacob Flear were in fine form, and their bowling was a surprise. In croquet J. Rutter Hess and Chas. B. Herr swept everything before them. In quoits George Goldbach and W. B. Girvin were winners.

At 6 o'clock, dinner was served on the piazza. After dinner the regular monthly meeting of the club was held. The principal business of the meeting was the report of the dahlia committee of the coming dahlia show, which is to be held in connection with the Lancaster county fair, the last week of September. David F. Rose, amateur, was elected to membership. On a motion by H. A. Schroyer, Frank L. Kohr extended a vote of thanks of the club to Mr. and Mrs. Barr for their hospitality. Frank A. Suter exhibited a vase of the newest cactus dahlias.

The visitors from out of town were Bertrand H. Farr, president of the American Peony Society, Wyomissing; F. H. Lauck and H. J. Huesman, of Reading; Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schaeffer, of York, and D. T. Connor, of Philadelphia. About thirty-five of the club's members were present.

A number of the members intend to participate in the show of the American Gladiolus Society, at Atlantic City, August 26 to 28. H. K. R.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

THE wise plantsman follows the golden rule in filling orders and in adjusting complaints. It is a policy that builds a business that is independent of the price-cutters.

QUITE a few rose growers have found by costly experience that an excellent time to stay at home and watch is when the young stock is likely to be attacked by mildew, say about now. A heavy dose of mildew in August will affect a grower's income for the next six months.

HAVE you noticed the gain The Review is showing in classified ads? About twenty-five per cent more of them than a year ago! The increase is principally accounted for by the number of Atlantic coast florists who have turned to The Review as a means of enlarging the outlet for their surplus stock.

"A NEW wrinkle," is the way a Michigan newspaper heads an account of a florist having given cash change to an unknown customer who presented a bad check. New wrinkle, indeed! If the editor had all the money florists have lost on that game he would buy an automobile tomorrow, and it wouldn't be a Ford.

IN spite of the fact that the operation cannot usually be recommended, each year an increased number of carnation plants are carried over for a second season, and frequently with some success. It seems quite likely that varieties may in time appear that will be suited to this method, so that the expense of new stock for each season can be avoided at least in part.

HONORABLE MENTION.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper. Among those who have this week enrolled themselves for more than one year in advance are:

TWO YEARS.

Church Floral Co., Albion, Pa.
Stahelin, A. J., Redford, Mich.
Johnson, Tony, Wayzata, Minn.

The Review stops coming when the subscription runs out. The green notice with the last copy tells the story; no bills are run up; no duns are sent.

MR. BROWN WEDS MRS. CANFIELD.

From Springfield, Ill., comes the interesting personal item that when A. C. Brown returned from his recent California trip he brought with him, as his bride, Mrs. A. C. Canfield, widow of the Springfield florist. The groom is 54 years of age and had come to be looked upon by his friends as a confirmed bachelor. His bride is well known and popular in the trade, but is considerably Mr. Brown's junior. An interesting circumstance is that in California she married first one and then the other of Springfield's two leading florists.

HOW TO GET YOUR AZALEAS.

If you have been importing your azaleas, instead of getting them through an American firm as you might well do, you can get your stock through the British embargo if the shipper in Belgium is willing that the money should be withheld until after Germany ceases to hold the district whence the azaleas come. Under certain conditions the British authorities will issue permits for the shipments to move via Rotterdam.

James McHutchison & Co., New York, state they already have procured the permits which insure the prompt arrival of their stock.

In this connection A. A. Adee, assistant secretary of state, writes The Review:

"Referring to previous correspondence in regard to certain Belgian goods, there is quoted for your information a cable dated August 3, 1915, from the American consul general at London, which was received by the department in response to an inquiry made on behalf of a New York firm. The cablegram reads:

"'In reference Department's 310, thirtieth, official ruling received: Goods, Belgian origin, for neutral countries and brought to this country are released, provided, shipped in accordance with conditions under which imports into this country of goods of Belgian origin are allowed; such imports are allowed provided no money paid to firms in Belgium during continuance of hostile occupation in respect of the goods without authority from the office Parliamentary counsel.'

"'If (name of New York merchant in whose behalf inquiry was made) sends undertaking not to pay money in Belgium, as aforesaid, authorities will give instructions to Holland-America line, stating no objection exists to shipment proposed.'

"If it is the desire to comply with the above quoted rule, the department will be pleased to forward the necessary papers to the American ambassador at London for submission to the proper British authorities."

NEXT WEEK'S WEATHER.

Weekly weather forecast, issued by the U. S. Weather Bureau, Washington, D. C., for the week beginning Wednesday, August 25, 1915:

For the Region of the Great Lakes—Cool and generally fair weather will prevail for several days, with possibly light frost in exposed places in the Michigan peninsula. During the second half of the week temperatures will rise, with partly cloudy weather and with probably some showers over the upper Lake region.

For the Upper Mississippi Valley and Plains States—Cool and fair weather for two or three days will be followed by rising temperatures that will not be unusually high, and probably by showers toward the end of the week.

For the Ohio Valley and Tennessee—Fair and cool weather for about three days will be followed by rising temperature and some cloudiness, and probably by showers sometime between August 29 and 31.

For the West Gulf States—Local thunder showers will be followed by generally fair weather for three or four days and again by showers during the latter portion of the week. Temperatures will be seasonable.

For South Atlantic and East Gulf States—Generally fair weather, with seasonable temperatures, is indicated for the week, although occasional local thunder showers may occur over the southern portion of the district.

EXPRESS RATES TO GO UP?

No protest was entered August 23 before the Illinois Public Utilities Commission against a proposed increase in express charges for packages weighing less than 100 pounds. The advances asked for are 5 cents on shipments of from one to five pounds; 4 cents on shipments of six to twenty-five pounds; 3 cents from twenty-six to forty-nine pounds; 2 cents from fifty to seventy pounds, and 1 cent from seventy to ninety-nine pounds.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The week has developed no important change in Chicago market conditions. Stock in practically all lines continues to be plentiful, but more especially is this true of that grown outdoors, which pours into the market from an apparently inexhaustible source.

The anomalous weather conditions with which Chicago and the neighboring country has been favored this year are the most conducive to gladiolus production that can well be conceived. And in spite of last year's experience, everyone with a vacant fence corner seems to have planted gladiolus bulbs. As a result, the wholesalers, in order to move gladioli at all, are compelled to sell them at so low a figure that the returns to the growers will scarcely pay for the bulbs. This, while it is of little consequence to those who grow them as a side issue, works a real hardship on the legitimate grower, who grows flowers for a livelihood.

Good asters are scarce, but those ranging in quality from merely indifferent to really bad are more than abundant, and moving these is almost a hopeless task. The Golden Glow chrysanthemums that timidly began entering the market a week ago were accorded a most chilly reception. Too early, is the general comment. It is almost inconceivable that growers will continue shipping to the market such pathetic offerings as coreopsis, daisies, gaillardias, gypsophilas and their ilk make at this late season. No one wants them.

Roses have increased, both in supply and length of stem. Prices are a trifle weaker. The demand holds steady, with surely no decrease, but with no apparent increase. Quality is good. Russell, because of its keeping qualities and beauty, and Ophelia, because of its superlative beauty, hold the public favor. The Killarney family, though, never lacks for friends. Beauties are clearing well, though not at a high figure.

Valley has the distinction of being the only scarce item with any real demand. And from all present indications, the growers are going to hold it on the scarce side until the buying public acquires a fixed habit of regarding it as a rare thing and greatly to be desired. Orchids are at last beginning to experience a slightly increased demand, but cattleyas this year have not enjoyed the usual August call. The supply of lilies continues to be fully equal to all requirements.

Owing, perhaps, to the great supply of cut flowers, greens have not been found as necessary an item as usual.

Various Notes.

After a six weeks' visit at the Pacific coast C. Frauenfelder, 3343 West Madison street, his wife and little daughter, returned last week to Chicago. Mr. Frauenfelder says they have had a most enjoyable vacation but they didn't wait for the convention.

A. L. Randall has shipped hundreds of thousands of gladiolus blooms from his farm in Michigan this season and is reported to consider prices received as affording sufficient profit to justify increased acreage next year.

Paul Richmond, for some time head designer with George Walther, 435 West Sixty-third street, who recently married Miss Grace Goodall, a former associate in the establishment of Mr. Walther, reports that they are home after a most enjoyable trip, and that he is ready to assume his new duties with William J. Smyth, Thirty-first street and Michigan avenue, as successor to Arthur A. Weatherwax, who has purchased the store of Sarah Lindon, 828 East Forty-seventh street.

V. A. Kohout, trading as the Lawndale Florist, 3212 West Twenty-second street, has given further evidence of his progressiveness by placing an order for a fine White truck. Mr. Kohout expects the car to be delivered about the middle of September.

As a result of the unprecedentedly cool weather, J. A. Mendel, 1424 West Eighteenth street, has sold his summer home at Fox Lake, Ill. He can see no use in leaving Chicago in quest of more comfortable summer quarters.

In answer to an appeal that appeared in the daily papers calling on automobile owners to contribute the use of their cars to aid the Red Cross in its work of relieving those rendered destitute by the recent Eastland disaster, two well known members of the trade came to the front last week. But when Joseph Ziska, Jr., of the supply house of Joseph Ziska & Sons, and Frank J. Kral, Jr., 1907 South Halsted street, reported with their cars, the society got more than that for which it advertised, for both these gentle-

A Tip to Florists

"Yes, sir," said a florist's helper to the "old man," who had put his head into the door to see how a rush order was progressing, "I'll be done in no time. This lot of Ferns is perfect, no time wasted in picking out good stuff—it is all good."

"Then, the Magnolia Leaves are never mouldy or rusty. It is a pleasure to work with stock like this—whose is it?"

And of course the "old man" said: "Why, that stock is from Kennicott's."

"Kennicott's?" queried the helper (he was only an inside man, and never had done any buying). "Who are they?"

"Kennicott Bros. Company is the house that terms itself, and rightly, as The House of Quality Plus. By the way, how many hampers of Magnolia Leaves do you want this season, and what quantity of Ferns will you use per week? If you are satisfied with the stock, I want to place an order for our season's requirements and take advantage of Kennicott Bros. Company's special offer."

This Florist was a good buyer. You have the same opportunity: Do not let it get away.

Ho-Ko Meant Well

Rajah Kahmur's favorite elephant, Ho-Ko, one morning while coming out of the pearl inlaid east gate of his master's estate, stepped ker-swush on a dainty golden-winged hen pheasant.

Being told the hen pheasant had been setting on eleven tiny eggs, Ho-Ko, the elephant, hung his great head in shame.

Two hours later they found him solemnly sitting on the hen pheasant's ne-t trying to hatch the eggs. Farewell eggs!

Ho-Ko meant well.

"Yes," said one of our western customers, "some florists mean well when they buy cut flowers here and there, and from unreliable sources. They mean well but—farewell profits."

You can regard Randall's as a dependable source of cut flower supply.

Prompt shipments properly packed. Prices always reasonable. Send name and address and we'll send cut flower bulletins regularly.

men are accomplished linguists, and in addition to contributing the use of their cars and their own time to run them, they acted as interpreters in untangling some of the most pathetic little tragedies that have come to the attention of the society.

F. F. Benthey, Chicago representative of the F. J. Benthey greenhouses, went to Newcastle, Ind., August 18, on a tour of inspection. He returned August 21.

John Mangel's large service car, which has been in the shop recently undergoing an overhauling, looks like new in its fresh coat of paint.

The debut of Champ Weiland will be made at the November show. Weiland & Risch plan to disseminate this new rose in the spring of 1916.

Fred Klingel, who conducts the financial end of the business of Erne & Klingel, says he feels well satisfied with conditions in the florists' trade, believing them better than in most other lines of business.

The enlargement of the store of the E. C. Amling Co. is under way this week and is attracting much attention.

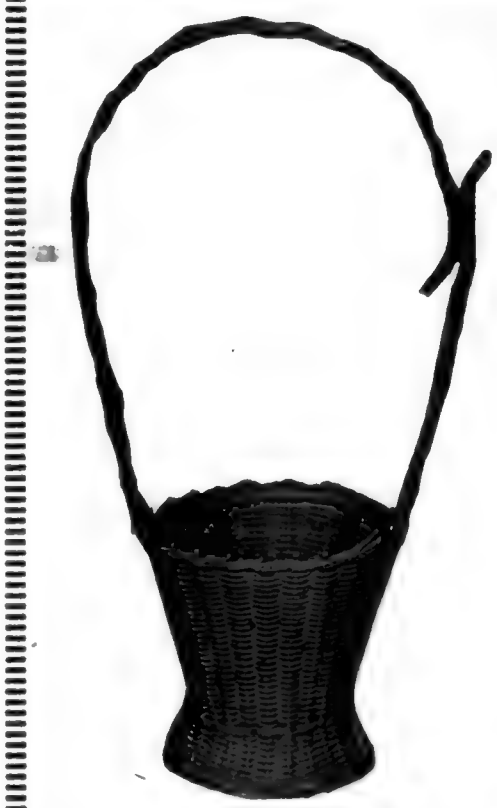
Felix Reichling comments that the city buyers are not calling for Ophelia the way they did last spring, the supply now equaling the demands, but believes the special calls will come again as the out-of-town buyers become better acquainted with the rose.

W. H. Kidwell says summer sales at his two stores are about as usual, never being anything to brag about during July and August, but he comments that the stock in the market this summer has been of much better quality than usual, with prices lower than one ordinarily must pay for the same grade.

This is your chance to wish A. T. Pyfer many happy returns of the day. He was born August 26, 1878.

Taking the advice of the wise ones that all preparations for cold weather should be made in the summer, Fred Greager, 6952 Cottage Grove avenue, is rearranging the piping system in his houses. He finds business quite brisk for this time of the year.

During the absence of Ernest Frank, bookkeeper for Kennicott Bros. Co., who is taking a vacation, H. B. Kennicott is busy looking after office detail.



T. J. Johnson, 3458 South State street, reports enough funeral work to keep all hands busy.

Michael Fink, of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, is taking a two weeks' vacation, making a series of short trips to nearby points of interest. John Walsh was busy August 19 moving into his new home, a cozy flat at 3129 Dalvin court.

After a pleasant visit with home folks in Indiana, A. Black and his wife, of the Garfield Flower Shop, 211 East Garfield boulevard, have returned to the city.

Miss Mabel Schulz, bookkeeper in the office of J. A. Budlong, has returned from a two weeks' outing at Twin Lakes and Powers Lake, Wis. Fred Price left August 23 for a week's outing.

Theodore Hanschke, 1612 North California avenue, has returned from one of his enjoyable fishing trips to Long Lake, Wis.

The marriage August 22 of Leonard Koehler and Cornelia Ryan, both of Kyle & Foerster's staff, caused no little surprise to their friends in the trade. Miss Lula Geisen succeeds Miss Ryan in the office. Mr. Koehler is on the job and is busy receiving congratulations.

O. P. Bassett and his wife, of Pasadena, Cal., arrived in Hinsdale August 22. Here they will be the guests of C. L. Washburn and his wife, who were so recently their guests. The trip from Pasadena was made in an automobile and it apparently agreed with Mr. Bassett, as he was a visitor on the Chicago market the day following his arrival, and August 24 motored to Aurora with Mr. Washburn. Miss Schreiber, of the Chicago office, has been suffering severely with an ulcerated tooth, which compelled her absence for two days last week. A new office assistant in the person of Miss Ruth Wattman has been added to the force. Miss Harper has returned from her outing in Wisconsin.

H. Wallace, manager of the W. L. Palinsky greenhouses, 2865 Palmer avenue, left August 24 for a week's visit to Battle Creek, Mich. Miss Sadie Palinsky has returned from her vacation at Lake Zurich, Wis.

L. Collins, of the Parkside Greenhouses, 1441 East Seventieth street, conducted his brother, John Collins, who is a visitor from the east, through the greenhouses of the Poehlmann Bros. Co., Morton Grove, August 23.

E. H. Meuret, Park Ridge, president of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, has received his new automobile and is hunting deserted roads on which to learn to run it. Not to be outdone, Fred Schramm has purchased a horse.

O. J. Friedman, 522 South Michigan avenue, has a most attractive line of ceramics, including a large variety of table fountains, vases and figures, on display in a window at 202 South Michigan avenue. An assortment of ornamental garden accessories and novel baskets adds interest to the window.

Hoerber Bros. are redecorating and painting their quarters to be ready for the fall business.

things pretty much their own way in Kyle & Foerster's store this week.

Oscar Metz, 5525 Harper avenue, filed suit in the Circuit court, August 23, charging his brother-in-law, Oscar Brodfuehrer, a real estate agent, with forging a warranty deed, and with breach of trust and conspiracy to defraud. Mr. Metz also asked for an accounting. He estimates that he is out about $15,000 in his dealings with Mr. Brodfuehrer.

T. E. Waters, manager of the supply department of Poehlmann Bros. Co., has moved his residence from Evanston to the north side. After roughing it for two weeks in the Canadian woods, Walter Stockliss has reported for work in the cut flower department. Erich Paselk, bookkeeper in the Morton Grove office, has returned from a trip with his family to the Dells, Wis.

August Evert, the 3-months-old son of Frank Evert, 2010 Melrose street, died August 21. Mr. Evert and his wife have the sympathy of the trade in their bereavement.

A. L. Vaughan, after several vain attempts to find roads that are in a satisfactory condition for motoring into the country contiguous to Chicago, is constrained to compare the road system in this state with that obtaining in other states of his acquaintance, and gives his hearty endorsement to the pikes of the south.

C. W. Johnson, of the Mount Greenwood cemetery, says his stocks of mums and carnations were never in better condition than at present.

Fred Morphett, bookkeeper for A. Henderson & Co., returned August 23 from his trip through eastern Canada.

Visitors.

W. S. Goodland, of the Racine Puttyless Window Co., was a visitor to the trade August 19.

George J. Dinkel, of Springfield, Ill., was in town last week on a buying expedition.

Returning from a month's trip to the coast, W. W. Gammage and Mrs. Gammage, of London, Ont., were among last week's callers. They went to Los Angeles in a special train with 135 Shriners and then worked north to Edward Kalisch, of Kalisch Bros. Floral Co., St. Louis, is in town this week, combining business and pleasure.

Alpha Elberfield, of the Alpha Floral Co., Kansas City, has been here for several days.

Alex. Newett, formerly of Chicago, but for six years with the Stuppy Floral Co., St. Joseph, Mo., is renewing acquaintances, accompanied by his son.

Among the business visitors have been G. A. Forsberg and G. O. Freeburg, of the J. C. Rennison Co., Sioux City, Ia. They report business conditions excellent in their section and are preparing for another increase in sales in the year to come. Three new houses, each 30x300, are to be built at once.

Albert Goldenson, brother of Morris Goldenson and for six years employed in the latter's store at Los Angeles, is here on a trip to New York. He is in quest of experience and may remain some time.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

Fewer flowers with about the same amount of business is the story of the week. The heavy storm at Hanover, above Lancaster, August 22, interfered with the shipment of asters, which were missed in filling orders the following day. Asters are good now; some really splendid stock is offered. Easter lilies are quite scarce, although there is no special demand for them. Valley has been selling up well. Cattleyas continue scarce and expensive. There is a decided increase in Beauties, mostly of medium and long grade. Other roses are scarce in the better grades, especially white. The shorts of colored varieties are in excess of the demand. Gladioli bring a better average price than for the last fortnight, the fancy varieties in small quantities selling best. The additions to the market are Golden Glow chrysanthemums, mentioned last week, and dahlias. Of the dahlias, the best varieties are Jack Rose, Princess Juliana, John Wanamaker, Dorothy Peacock and Sylvia.

Current Events.

The selection of Houston, Tex., as the next meeting place for the S. A. F. is interesting to the eastern members. They feel that it is a splendid thing for the southwest to have the society meet in one of its leading cities, but they doubt whether it is a good thing for the society to go there. The United States is such a vast territory that it is a question whether one society, such as ours, can cover it all. The eastern members fear that the society will lose its hold on florists in this section of the country, if there is no annual meeting during the midsummer of three years. The spring show, to be held in this city next March, will do something toward holding the membership for the present at least.

The first Japanese importation is on exhibition at H. Bayersdorfer & Co.'s store. It includes some beautiful specimens of teakwood, notably a tabouret, surmounted by a jardiniere in bucket form, hooped with bamboo. The effect in polished black and white is striking. Then there are curious ornaments representing alligators, crabs and other denizens of the sea, in oxidized bronze, that may be used as receptacles for flowers. The importation marks a new era in its introduction of oriental ideas into florists' supplies of this country.

Various Notes.

Robert Pyle, president of the Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa., will speak before the Philadelphia Florists' Club, in Horticultural hall, September 7, at 8 p. m., on his visit to the San Francisco exposition and convention.

B. Eschner writes enthusiastically of the beauties of our own country. The Canadian Rockies, Alaska, the Yosemite valley, the expositions and the perfect Mission Inn, at Riverside, all come in for praise. The Yellowstone park is still to come. Europe, Mr. Eschner says, can boast of nothing to equal the natural beauties of our own country.

Francis C. Stokes and Walter H. Savery entertained over 1,000 guests at the Stokes seed farms, Windermoor, near Moorestown, N. J., on the afternoon of August 20. The trial seed grounds were inspected, and there was a meeting in the interest of market gardening. Addresses were made by Emmor Roberts, a New Jersey farmer; George H. McKay, superintendent of the Reading Terminal Market; Howard W. Selby, of the Starkey Product Co., and A. Mechling, all directed toward improving market conditions.

The Henry F. Michell Co. baseball team journeyed to Riverton, N. J., August 21, in two automobile trucks, with friends cheering, bands playing and colors flying. They were doomed to disappointment, as their expected opponents, the Henry A. Dreer Co. nine, did not appear.

Recent visitors were J. J. Sykes, of the Van Lindley Co., and Mrs. Sykes, Greensboro, N. C.; Paul Langhans, vice-president and secretary of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.; William J. Turner and Mrs. Turner, Wilkinsburg, Pa., who are on their way home from an auto trip to Atlantic City, and Charles Uttley, Harrisburg, Pa.

Samuel T. Freeman & Co. sold the stock and fixtures of the Johnson Seed Co. at public auction, August 24, at 217 Market street.

The Leo Niessen Co. reports the arrival of early dahlias from the Peacock Dahlia Co., at Williamstown Junction, N. J.

George Aeugle has been touring the state in the interest of his Philadelphia Cut Flower Co. He found the chrysanthemums at West Grove, and the carnations near Lancaster, in prime condition. Matchless will be more largely planted.

Robert Crawford, Jr., will grow an increased number of ferns at his place at Secane, Pa.

Clarence W. Moore reports an excellent demand for vegetable seed. Mr. Moore comments on this month's overproduction in certain lines of vegetables.

Robert B. Bragg, with Edward Reid, is vacationing at Tuckerton, N. J.

Alvah R. Jones, captain of the P.-M. forces, has returned from a pleasant holiday, divided between the seashore and the mountains.

The Henry F. Michell Co. has issued 1,500 invitations, chiefly to private gardeners, to visit Andalusia, September 8. The company's Andalusia farm is in magnificent shape—a blaze of color and many floral attractions well worth seeing.

Berger Bros. received their first shipments of fancy dahlias last week. Princess Juliana and Jack Rose were the leading varieties. Phil.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Until the middle of September little change in the market dullness is anticipated. The weather lately has been perfect; neither heat nor rain has been excessive.

The rose shipments are increasing in quantity, but the size of buds and length of stem are disappointing. There are but few in the special class, and only these command near satisfactory prices. American Beauties are abundant, but few reach the desired standard in quality. Prices have not improved. A few fine Ophelia, Russell and other novelties are speedily secured on arrival, but most of the roses sell at from 50 cents per hundred to $20 per thousand.

There was hardly a carnation in the market August 21, and, in fact, none worth mentioning arrived during the week or is coming now. The first of September should see the advance guard of the new season's offerings.

Valley was a scarce article August 21, and rose to $3 and $4 per hundred. Before closing time there was not a spray left. The every-day-in-the-year growers will not let the shortage be noticeable long. Lilies are stronger and not too abundant. The best stock was selling at $4 per hundred at the week's end. From that the price ranged down to $2 per hundred, for the commonplace.

Orchids are scarce, and the good prices of the last few weeks continue. Few flowers, however, go above $50 per hundred, and these must be extra fine. Dahlias, tritomas and the early mums are the only novelties in the windows, with decorative backgrounds of goldenrod and hydrangeas.

There were tremendous arrivals of asters and gladioli all last week. August 21, counters, iceboxes and cellars were simply loaded with them.

Various Notes.

If the S. A. F. had decided to come to New York in 1916, the local committees would have had the assistance of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association. The use of the Grand Central Palace for six days was assured, and the sale of 10,000 feet of space for trade exhibits. Doubtless the same conditions will prevail in 1917 if the Texans will be so kind as to send the convention to us then. The last S. A. F. meeting in New York was in 1900.

There will be a gladiolus exhibition this week from August 26 until August 29, inclusive, at Atlantic City, N. J., under the management of Maurice Fuld, of the Knight & Struck Co. There will be lectures by Max Schling, Arthur Cowee and Mr. Fuld. Mr. Schling is putting up an exhibit that he says will cost him over $1,000.

The outing of the Mt. Kisco Horticultural Society has been postponed.

Cosmos, the first of the season, were on exhibition last week at J. K. Allen's.

James Coyle's new headquarters are at 102 West Twenty-eighth street.

Nicholas Lecakes is already nicely settled in his new store, at 106 West Twenty-eighth street. Many additions depends solely upon the preservation and display of your goods. Keep your stock fresh looking and display them well and the biggest part of your business problem is solved.

The Secret of Flower Profits

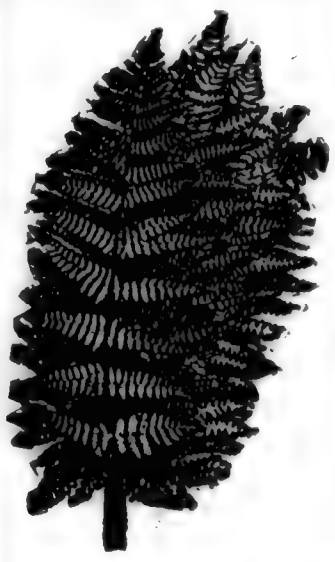
McCray Florist's Refrigerator

The McCray patented system provides for a cool even temperature under all conditions. This keeps your stock fresh and salable and prevents the loss due to withered and spoiled blossoms.

The McCray Florist Refrigerators come with plate glass doors and sides which show the flowers to an advantage and help in their sale. The different compartments vary in size to accommodate the various lengths of stems.

The outside woodwork of the McCray may be had in any finish to match your store's interior decoration. The linings may be secured in either bevel plate mirror or white enamel and are very attractive.



Decide now to boom trade this season and enlist a McCray Refrigerator as your aid. Every progressive florist should have a McCray. It will pay you to investigate.

and improvements have been made, and it is now thoroughly up-to-date.

Abe Fisman, with Geo. C. Siebrecht, has returned from a two weeks' vacation in the Catskills.

Much sympathy is felt in the trade for William A. Hanft, of Young & Nugent's force, in his bereavement, Mrs. Hanft having died Friday, August 20.

Two of the Chadwick vaudevillians, formerly with Gunther Bros., leave on Labor day for Palm Beach, Fla.

C. C. Trepel has returned from his automobile trip through the mountains.

A. L. Young is perfecting some inventions which, he expects, will make a remunerative sideline next winter.

Harry A. Bunyard and family are summering at Patchogue, L. I.

Woodrow & Marketos are busy with conservatory and landscape work. Samuel Woodrow and family have returned from a month's stay in the Catskills.

Tuesday, September 14, is the day of the opening sale of plants and bulbs at auction by the MacNiff Horticultural Co.

Chris. Bonnet, of Bonnet & Blake, Brooklyn, has a month's vacation ahead of him on the sound and the fishing banks.

W. Reible and Henry Blume, of P. J. Smith's force, have returned from vacation fishing trips on the sound and Great South bay.

Geo. J. Polykranas, manager of the United Cut Flower Co., is able to resume his duties after a severe six weeks' illness.

George Bradley, of William Kessler's staff, is back from an eight days' automobile trip through Dutchess county. Charles Kessler says he has postponed his honeymoon trip until October.

Arthur Schwartz, of Walter Sheridan's staff, has returned from his vacation, and Charles Miller and family are spending two weeks at Saratoga and in the Adirondacks.

Samuel Zuckeman, with Reed & Keller, will enjoy his vacation at Dorchester, Mass. A. Lesser, the firm's bookkeeper, had a pleasant holiday at Hackensack, N. J. Frank C. Gille will go to the Adirondacks. Since August 14, when Mr. Reed returned from his Canadian trip, he has designed six new varieties of baskets. He will have many novelties for the trade this coming fall. Mrs. Reed accompanied him to Toronto and through the Thousand Islands and the rapids to Montreal, and back to New York via Lake Champlain and the Hudson river.

Being a National Florist
ITS ADVANTAGES

National Florist

IF you are a National Florist, every time we get an order for flowers for some one in your town, you get that order. No one else.

The order comes direct to us, and we direct it to you. Or the order comes direct to you—directed to the National Florist in St. Louis, for example, if that's your town. Along with every order comes the money. And that isn't all. You can take orders and send them to any National Florist in any town for delivery.

It's sending flowers by mail, as well as by telegraph. It in no way conflicts with the "F. T. D." It simply reaches a field the "F. T. D." has not, or never would reach.

Why don't you be the National Florist in your town?

Send for particulars.

The Market.

Business in general has been good during the week. While there has been no difficulty in handling the orders, they have been coming in regularly and have kept the help that is not away on vacations fairly busy. Funeral work has played a big part in the volume of business done, and to this class of work and the cool weather may be ascribed the good condition of the sale end of the business.

Roses have become slightly more plentiful, but are being moved readily. The prices, though not high, are good for this time of year. The entire cut is handled each day with little or no trouble. Old carnations are about gone and those still being cut are not worth much. Asters are plentiful and of fine quality. They are satisfactorily filling the gap left by the exodus of the carnations. Gladioli are still in fine shape, but are not quite so plentiful as they have been. They are moving well. There are lots of good lilies, but they are moving slowly. There is also a good supply of excellent valley, which is cleaning up fairly well every day. Gaillardias are making their appearance and are moving readily.

Various Notes.

Miss Edith Webster, who has been with J. M. Fox & Sons for about five years, is busy making preparations for her marriage to Geo. W. Burkhardt, of this city, which will take place September 28. Miss Webster, who has a large number of friends in the trade, is receiving many wishes for her future happiness. She will leave her position in about two weeks.

The Heitman-Oestreicher Co. cut its first Golden Glow chrysanthemums August 9 and reports that the stock was extra fine.

William Lubliner, who opened a flower store recently in Chicago, has returned to Milwaukee to take permanent charge of his local establishment. His many friends are glad to see his smiling countenance in the Milwaukee market again. His brother, Dan, who has had charge of this place, has taken over the management of the Chicago end of the business.

H. V. Hunkel spent several days last week at Nagawicka lake, where his family is located for the summer.

August Kellner, who has a summer home at Okauchee lake, forgot business last week and went out there, where the fishing is good.

Mrs. F. Ennis, of the Wisconsin Floral Co., spent August 19 in Chicago, visiting relatives. She also visited a number of the trade and looked over the market.

F. H. Holton and family left Milwaukee August 22, in their automobile, for Beaver lake, where they will spend some time.

Gimbel's flower department exhibited the first chrysanthemums of the season and they made a great hit.

F. Choles, of the New York Florists, Madison, Wis., was in town August 16.

J. J. Karins, representing Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, visited the trade here August 18. H. J. S.

Administrator's Sale

Of Greenhouses and Floral Store

OWING TO THE DEATH OF BOTH PARTners, the business of the Neal Floral Company at Geneseo, Illinois, will be sold in order to settle the estate. The property consists of about four acres of land, five greenhouses with about eleven thousand square feet of glass, a new two-story frame house, all located about one mile from the business center, and the fixtures and fittings of a floral store in a good business location downtown. There are included, also, plants, cuttings, bulbs, a heating plant, a complete equipment and the good will of an old established business. The property will be sold subject to a mortgage for $1100 00. Geneseo is situated on the main line of the Rock Island Railway, has a population of about thirty-two hundred people and the on y greenhouse within twenty miles. The business will be sold on the premises at public auction, on Tuesday, September 7, 1915, at 2 o'clock p. m., to the highest and best bidder, for cash. Correspondence and inspection invited.

Geneseo, Ill., August 18, 1915.

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

Gentlemen:-

During the SIX MONTHS from March 4 to September 4 I have received from other Florists, by mail, telegraph or cable, orders to the amount of $513.25 as a result of my advertisement in the Retailers' department of The Review. With the allowance to senders the record for SIX MONTHS is:

Value of orders received----------	$513.25
Less 20% allowed senders--------	102.60
Net value of orders for SIX MONTHS--	410.65

It should be noted that this showing covers the DULL SUMMER MONTHS, when any addition to a Florists's business is decidedly welcome.

Retail Florists not advertising in The Review should profit by this letter.

Respectfully,

F. H. Weber

NEWPORT SUMMER SHOW.

The midsummer show, held August 12 to 14 under the auspices of the Newport Horticultural Society and the Newport Garden Club, was favored with beautiful weather, coming directly after a long spell of fog and rain, and proved a great success. The greenhouse exhibits and others of a perishable nature, if exposed to sun and weather, were staged in roomy marquees, while the hardier subjects, such as beds of geraniums, groups of conifers, specimen hydrangeas, bays, privets, etc., tanks of aquatics, etc., were tastefully arranged in the open air. The location for the show was an ideal one, there being a background of stately trees on the W. W. Astor estate, and it was planted or effectively screened from view on all sides.

Newport has the ideal setting for an open-air summer show, superior to probably any other American city. Living here are large numbers of society's acknowledged leaders, and of these on the committee of arrangements were such well known names as those of Mrs. Pembroke Jones, Mrs. C. F. Hoffman, Mrs. French Vanderbilt, Mrs. J. Stewart Barney, Mrs. Geo. D. Widener and Mrs. C. I. Whitman. Arthur Herrington made an efficient show manager and had as co-workers Wm. Gray, James Bond, John Urquhart, Wm. McKay and Andrew Dorward. Great credit is due these gentlemen for the efficient manner in which they performed their duties. There was, as tion of dahlias and John Mahan filled a small tent with a large collection of annuals and perennials, all named. There were good groups, not in competition, of caladiums, cannas, crotons, Rex begonias, ferns, etc. For special prizes offered by Carters Tested Seeds Co. for twenty-four gloxinias, James Watt was first and Oscar Schultz was second.

The basket and table decorations on the second and third days were well competed for and the entries were all high-class in quality, as is usual at Newport shows.

Among visitors from a distance were: A. Herrington, Madison, N. J.; J. K. Alexander, East Bridgewater, Mass.; F. G. Sealey, Rutherford, N. J.; R. Karlstrom, Cromwell, Conn.; J. E. Lager, Summit, N. J.; J. S. Hay, Philadelphia; W. Tricker, Arlington, N. J.; B. H. Tracy, Wenham, Mass.

The judges, committees and exhibitors were the guests of Mrs. C. F. Hoffman at a dinner in the Bellevue hotel on the evening of August 12. Wm. McKay, president of the Newport Horticultural Society, was in the chair, and during the evening addresses were made by A. Herrington, Wm. Gray, B. H. Tracy, J. E. Lager, W. N. Craig, Wm. Anderson, W. Tricker, J. S. Hay, J. T. Clark and others. Mr. Herrington said that he considered Newport, over all other cities in America, was the ideal location for a great summer show on the plan of such shows as the noted one at Shrewsbury, England.

The Market.

Two flowers now dominate the cut flower market; namely, the aster and the gladiolus. With these removed, the quantity of flowers arriving would be small, and any special decoration or large funeral order would absorb all available material of quality. Gladioli were never in such abundance, nor sold at such absurdly low prices; $1 per hundred is as much as the majority bring, and great numbers cannot be moved at even that low figure. At prevailing prices it cannot pay to burden the market with these flowers, as their weight and bulk make shipments high. Asters of fine quality are coming now from some growers; others are marketing small flowers of the early batches. Good flowers make $1.50 to $2 per hundred.

Most of the roses are small and short-stemmed. Too many of these are arriving and low prices rule. Good flowers sell moderately well. A few carnations are seen. These are small. New-crop flowers are about due. A few Golden Glow chrysanthemums arrive, but they are not wanted at this early date. Sweet peas are poor and valley is mostly of inferior quality. Lilies are in excess of demands. Cosmos and montbretias sell fairly well, but dahlias go slowly. There are few orchids or gardenias.

Various Notes.

The Continental Nurseries, of Franklin, Mass., are sending in a nice lot of coniferæ in pots to the Mann Co. The name in large, bold letters is attached to each variety, so that purchasers know what they are buying.

W. A. Hastings, of the Flower Exchange, took a party of friends on a motor boat fishing trip down Boston harbor, August 20. Ideal weather favored them and the finny family were hauled aboard in goodly numbers.

Guy Cateldo, one of our north end florists, left with hundreds of other Italians to join the army of his native country last week. Several others are planning to go.

Mrs. J. P. Snow, of Sharon, is sending in the finest cosmos I have seen in the local markets this season.

Visitors last week included J. H. Dodds, of Wyncote, Pa.; W. B. Rogers and Alexander Burr, of Kennebunk Port, Me.

J. A. Nelson, of Framingham, planted out over 90,000 carnations in the field this season. He says his surplus plants have kept moving at a lively gait.

Shippers of Golden Glow chrysanthemums include Paul F. Brigham, of Westboro, and Edward Bingham, of Dedham.

Peirce Bros., of Waltham, are getting a nice early crop of Killarney, White Killarney, Ward, Sunburst and Taft roses from their new stock.

Some of the local growers who took a goodly share of the premiums at the Newport show and convention of the American Gladiolus Society were: C. F. Fairbanks, Clark W. Brown, Raymond W. Swett, L. Merton Gage, L. E.

Chamberlain and B. H. Tracy. James Wheeler, of Natick, was one of the judges. Practically every local gladiolus fancier attended.

Herbert T. Capers receives from 3,000 to 5,000 asters of exceptional quality daily from A. R. Smith, of West Newton. The flowers are extra large and carried on 24-inch stems.

Mrs. William Rosenthal, of the Boston Cut Flower Co., is convalescing slowly but satisfactorily from her attack of typhoid fever at the Peter Bent Brigham hospital.

This is governors' week in Boston and there are over thirty governors and many ex-governors in attendance at the first governors' convention held in New England. The social gatherings incidental to the affair have stimulated cut flower trade considerably.

At Penn's this week funeral work continues heavy. Letters from Mr. and Mrs. William Penn speak of the enjoyable time they have had in San Francisco and at other Pacific coast points.

Welch Bros. Co. reports a moderate shipping trade, with plenty of stock. Of asters and gladioli there is a heavy excess.

William Sim is now the heaviest local shipper of gladioli. His flowers are handled by H. M. Robinson & Co., at the Coöperative Market.

A. L. Bock, foreman for Wax Bros., left August 14 for the Weirs, Lake Winnipesaukee, N. H., where he will spend his vacation.

Preliminary schedules for the 1916 March and May exhibitions of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society have been issued. There are rather fewer classes than usual for the March show, but the May schedule is quite an imposing one. Among the more important classes at the May show are these: Group of azaleas, with prizes of $100 and $50; group of hydrangeas, $75 and $40; group of orchids, $200 and $100,

The Market.

Several days of continuous rain had a bad effect on business. Retailers report little trade outside of funeral work, but they look forward to the school openings and the home-comings of summer tourists. Great quantities of asters were received last week. White and purple had a good demand, but other colors had little call. There was a scarcity of gladioli and prime stock is again bringing $3 per hundred. Roses are in good supply. The cut from young stock is unusually heavy. The Killarney varieties are in the majority. Richmond, Hadley and Beauties are fine. Carnations are scarce; field-grown stock only is coming in. Golden Glow and Smith's Advance chrysanthemums are in, but meet with little demand. Tuberoses are not quite so plentiful as they have been. The best bring $3 per hundred. Giganteum and rubrum lilies are plentiful. Hauser's red dahlias are still abundant. Cosmos is starting to come in. Greens are plentiful.

Various Notes.

The monthly meeting of the Retail Florists' Association did not take place August 16, on account of the absence of President Charles Young and Secretary Fred Weber, Jr. All business was laid over until the September meeting.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association will meet September 1. President Ude says it is important that all members be present, as the heads of the five wholesale houses are expected to be present to discuss the question of Sunday closing.

Fred Strohmeyer, of the Strohmeyer Floral Co., and his bride-to-be, Miss Ella Weber, are motoring through Illinois. They are chaperoned by Miss Weber's sister, Mrs. Charles Brithow, and expect to be gone for two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Smith, who spent two weeks at Blue Lodge Springs, Mo., returned last week. Otto G. Koenig, head of the Koenig Floral Co., is also at Blue Lodge, spending a few of his vacation days there.

Henry Muskopf, of Muskopf & Irish Co., landscape architects, has a force of men at Webster Groves doing work in tree surgery. H. C. Irish is kept busy looking after the school gardens.

Max Pelletier, the south end florist, has returned from New York, where he spent a week. Mrs. Pelletier made a trip to Chicago recently to arrange for cut stock for the coming season.

The annual picnic of the employees of the St. Louis Seed Co. will take place August 29, at Waterloo, Ill. The heads of the company have made great preparations for a day of enjoyment for the employees and their families.

The W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. reports having had a busy week shipping white enameled wooden easels, which have taken a great hold on the trade. The bulk of the shipments went to the southwestern florists.

Souvenir postals have been received from Frank Windler, who is on the Pacific coast. He states he will visit relatives in New Orleans, La., before returning home.

Miss Agnes Tucker has opened a store at 1431 North Taylor avenue, to be conducted under the name of the Cathedral Florist. Miss Tucker was secretary for the circuit attorney for a number of years and has a wide acquaintance, which should assure her success in her venture.

Frank Weber, of the H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Co., says all the local nurserymen expect a busy fall season. A great many advance orders for trees, shrubs and privet hedges have already been booked.

McCloskey & Bock opened a retail store at 1027 North Grand avenue last week. The location is a good one and both men have a large acquaintance. This makes eleven flower stores on Grand avenue.

John Held, on South Tennessee avenue, has his place in excellent shape for the fall and winter season. His several houses of chrysanthemum plants are looking fine and should yield a big crop of fancy blooms.

The stay-at-homes were pleased to learn, from the report in The Review, of the election of Dan MacRorie as president of the S. A. F., and of the selection of Houston, Tex., as the next meeting place.

Fred C. Weber, Sr., has returned from his vacation trip, looking much refreshed. Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Weber, Jr., and their son, are at Williams Bay, Wis. They are the guests of Mrs. F. C. Weber, Sr., who has a cottage there.

It is reported that the members of the Retail Florists' Association will organize a bowling club in the coming winter and bowl every Monday night. This will greatly increase the membership if conducted on the same basis as by the old Florists' Club's bowlers, for they never missed a weekly bowling from May 1, 1893, to August, 1904, when interest failed and the club disbanded. J. J. B.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Notwithstanding the many statements to the contrary, business last week was similar to that of any other August, which means that it could not be much worse.

There is a sufficiency of good American Beauties on the market. Splendid asters, gladioli and valley take care of the demand, while a large quantity of inferior stock finds its way to the waste pile. Carnations have been thrown out, and the growers are busy replanting. The carnation stock is the finest ever planted. It has never looked better than this season.

The wholesale houses seem to have one great difficulty, and that is to dispose of the great quantities of stock shipped in. It finds them working harder than when there is good business.

Various Notes.

Mrs. E. A. Williams has had her store redecorated and the display window has been arranged to exhibit fancy water lilies. The interior of the store has been adorned with palms and ferns, which afford a cool as well as pretty decoration. As the city is raising the street three feet, to eliminate flooding, it will be a month before Mrs. Williams can hope to have things in normal shape again.

Randolph & McClements have been busy overhauling and repainting their greenhouses. The store has also been thoroughly renovated and is now ready for fall business. This firm recently received a large order from the Pennsylvania railroad, at Altoona, which is much appreciated at this time of the year.

The A. W. Smith Co. is continuing its wonderful display of outdoor flowers at the store. Great bunches of tritoma have been artistically arranged, making a picture that wins the attention of the passers-by.

Ray Daschbach has a special display window consisting of a stream, waterfall and lake, with water lilies and ferns arranged in a manner that is unusually attractive. Small turtles have been placed in the lake.

The Blind Floral Co. had a good display of ferns, lilies and gladioli last week.

T. P. Langhans and family and E. A. Ashcroft and family are at Atlantic City for their vacations.

Edward Weaver and family spent their vacation camping in the mountains.

Frank Stafford and family have gone to the seashore for a short stay.

Miss Emma Maxwell recently went to Van Buren Park, N. Y., by automobile. During her absence the store was exceedingly busy.

Mrs. J. J. Fuchs has been ill for sev-

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, John M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE Formosa lily bulbs are ready for delivery.

RALPH M. WARD, of New York, was a Chicago visitor August 25, on a business trip after his vacation in Nova Scotia.

W. H. SMALL, of W. H. Small & Co., Evansville, Ind., is traveling on the Pacific coast and visiting members of the trade there.

JAMES KELWAY states that twenty-three per cent of the entire staff of Kelway & Son, Langport, to date has joined the British colors.

THE man who is looking for onion seed that is not tied up by somebody's contract finds it possible to procure surprisingly few tenders from first hands.

W. ATLEE BURPEE & Co., Phildelphia, state that they have advices from California that the crops of their new sweet peas will be much shorter than they anticipated.

THE onion set specialists are not anxious to book orders just now. The crop is large, but the prospect of a loss of possibly as much as fifty per cent leads to the present reluctance to commit oneself to price quotations.

THE cow pea and soy bean outlook in Tennessee was never better than thus far this season, it is said. If nothing happens to change things, there should be an unusually heavy crop of seed of both. They are mostly set and should ripen inside of the next month.

THE Fairview Seed Farms, Inc., of Syracuse, N. Y., has been merged with the F. B. Mills Seed Co., of Syracuse and Rose Hill, N. Y. Frank B. Mills, president of the company bearing his name, states that his company owned all the capital stock of the Fairview Seed Farms.

IT is reported that there has been considerable acreage of beans, mostly Kentucky Wonder, allowed to go to seed in the vicinity of Nashville, as the price of green beans did not warrant picking them. This is expected to provide an abundance of seed for the local market.

H. P. BELL, of Faribault, Minn., has sold his business, the Faribault Seed Co., to O. J. Stark. Mr. Stark has been connected with the company for a number of years, and will conduct the business under the same name. The company was established many years ago by the late A. J. Bell.

THE growers of gladiolus bulbs who depend on the sale of cut blooms for a considerable part of their annual revenue this year are in position to appreciate the feelings of their customers, who find flowers of even the higher priced varieties bringing only a few pennies per dozen.

THE onion set crop at Chicago is in a somewhat discouraging condition. A year ago, the crop had been harvested for more than a month. This year it is not more than one-third harvested and the harvesters are compelled to work in

WE WISH YOU A

Merry, Merry Christmas

You will wish us one if you plant Ayres' Christmas Flowering or Winter Spencer Sweet Peas now, which spells dollars for you. Don't delay—have that crop; there is still time to plant.

Winter Countess Spencer is undoubtedly the finest sweet pea in existence; it is extremely early and blooms profusely all winter and spring; during the darkest days it still radiates the gorgeous pink shade, as though still kissed by the sun; in no other variety have we noticed so prominently the delightful fragrance that exists in these mammoth blooms. Truly the sweet pea of the day.. The seed is worth double what we ask; but to introduce everywhere, our price is, oz., $8.00; 2 oz., $15.00; ¼ lb., $28.00; lb., $110.00.

Winter Red Spencer; large wavy orange red, most valuable for winter cutting, oz., $4.50; 2 oz., $8.00; ¼ lb., $15.00; lb., $50.00.

Winter White Spencer (black seeded, which makes it especially easy to germinate), mammoth wavy double-like flowers, very prolific and undoubtedly the finest white in existence, oz., $6.50; 2 oz., $12.00; ¼ lb., $23.00.

Winter Lavender Unwin, the best winter lavender in cultivation; mammoth flower—truly a gem, oz., $2.50; ¼ lb., $8.00; lb., $30.00.

Winter Duplex Pink Spencer; true Spencerian or Orchid type of a shell pink color, oz., $3.50; 2 oz., $6.50; ¼ lb., $12.00.

Popularity Spencer No. 11 is made up of two shades of the most exquisite pink; they bunch perfectly together, and in this the florist receives the two popular shades of the highest Spencer perfection. Oz., $7.00; 2 oz., $13.00; ¼ lb., $25.00; lb., $90.00.

Wm. L. Rock Spencer. This winter blooming butterfly has developed into one of the grandest varieties of the day. Mr. Rock himself declares it to be the king of all Spencers. It is a very shy seeder, and for this reason we have had to turn down hundreds of customers, our supply having been exhausted shortly after harvest; this year we can spare just 100 ounces; so be early. Oz., $8.00; 2 oz., $15.00; ¼ lb., $28.00; lb., $110.00. The above unavoidably contains some of our Winter Blushing Bride Spencer, but as it is equally as valuable as Rock and bunches well with it, we believe this will be agreeable news.

Ayres' Orchid Spencer Mixture contains the most celebrated of our winter flowering origmations; those who do not care to spend very much money and yet desire colors that will bunch beautifully, should by all means purchase some of these. Oz., $2.50; ¼ lb., $8.00; lb., $30.00.

MORE SWEET PEAS

Yes, you will also want us to send some of these good, old, true varieties. They are all the Ayres' Perfection Brand, so you are assured absolute protection against inferior quality.

Snowbird, the earliest and most prolific white in cultivation, oz., 25c; ¼ lb., 75c; lb., $2.00.

Christmas Pink, a genuine favorite, oz., 15c; ¼ lb., 50c; lb., $1.50.

Christmas White, a good white, oz., 15c; ¼ lb., 50c; lb., $1.50.

Christmas Blue, violet blue, a good seller, oz., 25c; ¼ lb., 75c; lb., $2.00.

Mrs. Alex. Wallace, most beautiful lavender, a good bloomer, oz., 25c; ¼ lb., 75c; lb., $2.00.

Mrs. Wm. Sim, salmon pink and a winner, often producing stems 20 inches long, oz., 25c; ¼ lb., 75c; lb., $2.00.

Mrs. Wilde, carmine, oz., 25c; ¼ lb., 75c; lb., $2.00.

J. F. Hannan, carmine, oz., 25c; ¼ lb., 75c; lb., $2.00.

Mrs. F. J. Dolansky, exquisite daybreak pink, the best all-round sweet pea, oz., 25c; ¼-lb., 75c; lb., $2.00.

Mrs. C. H. Totty, sky blue or lavender, oz., 15c; ¼ lb., 50c; lb., $1.50.

Canary, yellow, oz., 25c; ¼ lb., 75c; lb., $2.00.

Christmas Primrose, primrose, oz., 15c; ¼ lb., 50c; lb., $1.50.

Florence Denzer, large wavy white, oz., 25c; ¼ lb., 75c; lb., $2.00.

Christmas Meteor, red, oz., 25c; ¼ lb., 75c; lb., $2.00.

Flamingo, red, oz., 25c; ¼ lb., 75c; lb., $2.00.

Ayres' American Beauty, a general favorite salmon red, oz., 50c; ¼ lb., $1.50; lb., $5.00.

Ayres' Winter Blooming Mixture. In this you receive the cream of the above varieties, and as a special surprise, we have added some of our Winter Spencers, oz., 25c; ¼ lb., 75c; lb., $2.00. Not more than one pound to each customer.

AMERICAN PANSY FARM

The Cream of American and European Pansies in Consolidation Mammoth Mixture

It contains the most beautiful and rare shades of the Pansy Universe; the blooms are enormous in size, borne on stems consistently long; they have been grown and reselected until now they show a most remarkable hardiness by withstanding the cold weather of the north, with little or no protection, and even showing blooms many times during the winter. On account of an unusually large crop we are able to make this unusually low price:

1 oz., $3.00; 2 ozs., $5.50; ¼ lb., $10.00.

IMPORTANT! READ!!

NOTE—One ounce of Consolidation Mixture will produce easily 20,000 plants, and figuring an extremely low price of 1c each in the spring, you have a profit of $197.00 on just one ounce; enough seed for 80,000 plants costs you only $10.00; if you wish to sell, say one-half your plants this fall at about $3.00 per 1000—a Review ad will do the work—leaving you a nice little profit and with $400.00 worth of plants for spring sales. Does this look attractive?

MORE HARRISII ARRIVE.

The third shipment of Harrisii bulbs of the 1915 crop reached New York August 14. The shipment is but a small fraction of the number of cases received in the two arrivals of July 26 and August 3. The consignments were as follows:

MORE DUTCH BULBS ARRIVE.

Another batch of Dutch bulbs arrived at New York August 14, consisting of only 384 cases. This was the third shipment of the year, bringing the total number of cases received to date to 664. Compared with the corresponding shipments of 1914, this quantity is surprisingly small, there having been more than 3,000 cases in the first three shipments of last year. While the prediction of a full supply of Holland bulbs for this season seems a true one, it is evident that there will be no demoralization of the market such as occurred last year.

The shipment of August 14 was consigned as follows:

HOLLAND SEED CROPS.

Sluis & Groot, Enkhuizen, Holland, say it was difficult to get farmers to grow seeds this year, because of less work and better prices that now go with food crops. Weather conditions have been continuously unfavorable and many growers early plowed up poor fields, so that a general shortage, more or less, of all seeds is to be faced.

To Seed Merchants and Plant Growers

It is to your interest to handle the finest strains procurable and, if by any mischance you have not yet stumbled across the St. George's Co.'s specialties, now is your opportunity. Most of the great seed houses throughout the world are familiar with our goods and it is for you to get into line and reap the same benefits. We give the same attention to the buyer of ounces as to the buyer of pounds. We have a splendid crop of 1915 seed, and mind you, over 40 years in the business, gives us the confidence to challenge the world to beat the lines we offer.

CYCLAMEN NOVELTIES

CYCLAMEN NOVELTIES.

Queen Mary.

A NOVELTY OF MERIT.

This grand new variety is a great advance; the charming salmon tint of the flowers is further enhanced by a clear claret base. The fine bold flowers are of perfect shape, of large size, and are borne on strong stems well above the foliage.

It is a free grower, and should be included in all up-to-date lists.

The plants were much admired when shown at the Spring Meeting of the Royal Horticultural Society, 1915.

MRS. L. M. GRAVES.

This superb novelty marks an advance in color, for it brings us near the much desired true scarlet.

The flowers are freely produced and are carried well above the foliage. The color is many shades deeper than SALMON KING, an intense and brilliant salmon scarlet.

A healthy, vigorous grower and comes quite true from seed.

DISEASED PLANTS.

The unusually heavy rainfall throughout the country has wrought destruction, by disease, upon all plant life, and especially antirrhinums. We shall hear some gloomy reports.

We would offer a word of advice. Where stock is diseased, discard it. If healthy, keep it so by using a good fungicide. Fungine is the best that we know. Use it lightly as a spray once a week.

If you haven't healthy plants and need some we can be of service to you now and later. We are being deluged with orders and our stock for fall blooms may soon be taken, but we have thousands of healthy seedlings coming on for September and October.

Can make immediate shipment of plants as follows: Silver Pink Seedlings, $4.00 per 100; $35.00 per 1000. Yellow and Garnet Seedlings at $5.00 per 100. Other varieties later.

Right now is an important time to sow seed to have plants to follow mums. Seed of our famous Silver Pink at $1.00 per pkt.; 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00. Seed of Nelrose, Garnet, Yellow, White, Buxton and mixed, 35c per pkt.; 3 for $1.00.

When sending an order today, H. W. Lane, Lancaster, N. H., writes: "Your Silver Pink Seedling Snaps were more than satisfactory. Some are yet doing nicely."

Remember, our one business is growing snapdragon. You run no risk with our goods. All orders cash. Cultural directions free.

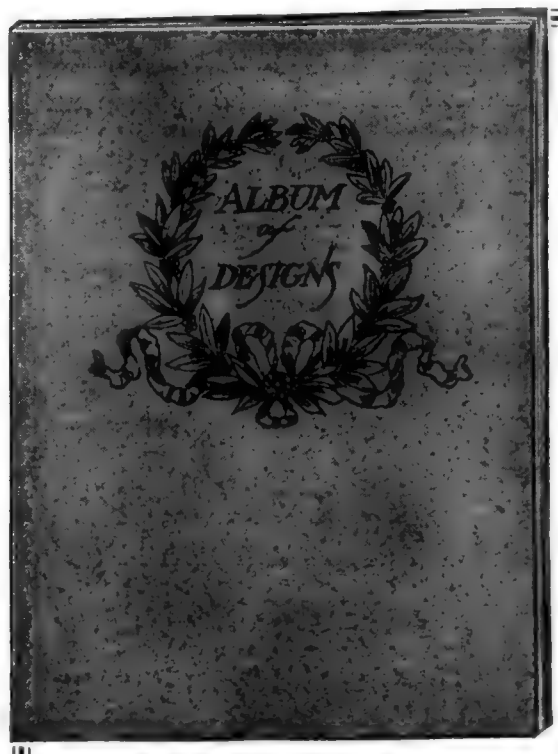
Of cauliflower there is no large acreage and only an average stand. Brussels sprouts promise better, but the plantation is small. Turnip indicates a small crop. Kohlrabi is almost a failure. Beets are various. Radish will not answer the demand. Only a little parsley survived. A small supply of spinach is all that can be expected. Parsnip is a fair stand, but small area.

The crop of tall nasturtiums will be middling, but the supply of dwarf nasturtiums will be decidedly short.



SOME POINTS ON GLADIOLI.

At the moment our British friends are feeling keenly the efforts of the Hollanders who are trying to market their surplus stock in England. The result is much tart comment in the British trade press, the following, by W. A. T., in the Horticultural Trade Journal, being a sample that will be read with interest in the United States:

"One feels inclined to think that our Holland friends have been going the pace with gladioli unreasonably fast, and in doing so have, instead of getting rich quick, simply crabbed the market. Allowing that certain varieties are prolific spawners, that is no reason why the stock should be multiplied at such a rate that the bulbs have to be thrown here, there and everywhere at any price, to ensure anything like a clearance. It seems to be an unfortunate failing of certain Hollanders that they cannot realize where to draw the line. The fact that the soil in Holland is so highly suitable for the rapid growth of bulbs is no argument for overproduction. Moreover, it ought to be realized that Great Britain and its people, even in war days, is not going to eat gladioli nor root out every other garden flower in order to plant them.

"The Americans seem to manage things much better. As everyone knows, America has made a feature of gladioli for many years, especially as market flowers, but despite the numerous growers, and the success of some of them as raisers, the American general public has never had named gladiolus bulbs thrown at them at such rates as now prevail for Dutch bulbs in this country.

"In a few short seasons the Dutchmen have reduced such fine American sorts as America, Panama, etc., to ridiculously low prices, injuring not only others but themselves also. It remains to be seen what the end will be. The Americans, I believe, are holding their own, and the British firms who hold on to their own stocks while ignoring the plethora of Dutch sorts are, I imagine, still able to do good business with those who desire choice varieties for exhibition or other purposes. I am inclined to think that Scotland will sooner or later prove her worth as a

Woman versus Mystery

Well, as I was saying, I was motoring past the Hotel and was espied by two male earth beings, one an acquaintance and the other a stranger, but he now thinks there are stranger things than him. A little later my "saluted" friend telephoned me that his friend wanted to meet me. Perhaps the two empty seats in my machine looked good, but nevertheless I did not feel inclined to be sociable, and still did not want them to know how impolite I really am; I stammered and giggled for a while, and wished I did not know how to talk over a telephone, and finally said it would be a pleasure to meet any acquaintance of his. Well, the little party was arranged. The next thing to do was for me to get "dressed up;" I got all decorated up in my best, like a battleship for inspection day, and if I looked like I felt, I was certainly some comic valentine, of the funniest type. At a long range from the mirror I was not the worst possible to look at, but at a close glance, oh, dear me, my enthusiasm went dead. But, thinks I, this is no time for a funeral, but—it's coming later, if I live through it.

gladiolus producer, due to the class of bulb the soil and climate produces. I have handled not a few Dutch, American and English bulbs, but I never saw the like of Mair & Son's special seedling bulbs. The Mairs are not only growers, but breeders also, and if Europa has not more than met its match in Mairs' Snow-wreath, I am much mistaken.

"It is curious how the craze for big corms has developed. This no doubt is due to the amateur who labors under the delusion that big bulbs are better than small. As might be expected, top size corms of two inches and over form only a small proportion of a crop, and a higher price is asked. But these big corms do not denote extra vigor or quality. They simply come about through being grown on moist, rich soil, such as Holland possesses.

"It remains to be seen what will happen through this overfatness of Dutch gladioli, and with a view to making comparisons I am this season planting trial lots of large and small corms of both Dutch and home growth, pitting them against some large Scotch and some small American corms.

"Personally, I am inclined to think that the thick giant corms are more liable to suffer when planted on dry, poorish soils. I have demonstrated to my own satisfaction that extremely dry soils bring about some form of disease in gladioli, and a big American grower has informed me that he has observed the same thing.

"Speaking of American grown gladioli, they are never large nor so thick as the Dutch, but they are brighter in appearance and better ripened than the average Dutch sample, and to some extent, give better results. The higher prices, however, tell against them in England in these days of cheapness, to say nothing of freightage and the greater delay if wanted in a hurry."

FORCE OF TRADE CUSTOMS.

Contracts for sale of wholesale quantities of seed, nursery or floral stock are subject to the well established rule of law that a business contract is controlled by uniform trade customs when not at variance with the express terms of the agreement. This is especially so where both parties either know of such customs, or are so situated that their knowledge of them may be presumed.

This rule was applied by the Wisconsin Supreme court in an interesting case growing out of a contract for sale of clover seed. (Gehl vs. Milwaukee Produce Co., 105 Wisconsin Reports, 573.) The court decided that when a custom as to place of delivery is shown to be uniform in the locality where it is recognized, unless it is shown that both parties are silent on that point, intending to exclude it, or that one party is ignorant thereof to the knowledge of the other, the custom should control as to the manner and place of delivery. In this case it appears that the plaintiffs agreed to sell a quantity of white clover seed to the defendant, but that no place for delivery was designated. It also appeared that there was a uniform custom among seed dealers in Milwaukee, where the transaction arose, requiring the seller to deliver at the buyer's store. But the plaintiffs insisted that, in the absence of agreement as to place of delivery, the defendant buyer was bound to call for the seed at plaintiffs' warehouse. In deciding the case in the buyer's favor, the court said:

"The custom of delivery in this case was general, for it was uniform in the seed trade at Milwaukee, and unless it was shown that both parties intended to exclude it, or that the plaintiff was ignorant thereof to the knowledge of the defendant, the custom should have controlled as to the manner and place of delivery." Various Notes.

A. Wiegand's Sons Co., which has been building a bulb cellar for the last ten days, has been experiencing quite a little trouble. After the excavation had been completed, a heavy rain caused it to cave in about five feet all around. The barn, under which the cellar is being built, was finally fished out of the hole, and when the foundation was completed the whole thing collapsed. Fortunately, the men were not in the cellar at the time, or it would have been sure death. As it was, one of the men suffered a broken leg.

Walter Bertermann has been in northern Indiana and at Lake Wawasee on a motor trip.

Charles Pahud has been spending his vacation at the lakes for two weeks.

William Smith, formerly with the Roepke & Rieman Co., has taken a position with A. Wiegand's Sons Co. Fred Stolte, with this firm, has invested in an auto.

Adolph Baur is seriously thinking of putting in a car for delivery service. This is against Adolph's convictions, as he is strong for old Dobbin, but he just has to come to it.

H. P. Knoble and F. A. Friedley, of Cleveland, were visitors last week. Incidentally they were boosting their fall show.

John Elsner has been flooding the market with gladioli lately.

Henry Rieman and John Hartje had a fine time at the florists' convention in California, according to reports received.

William Hament has leased Albert Pittet's greenhouses, near Riverside park, and expects to supply the wholesale market with some first-class stock.

H. F. W.

Marion, Ill.—The Marion Greenhouses, James P. Copeland, proprietor, recently received a consignment of gladioli from William H. Jackson, of Bangs, O. The gladioli were forty-six hours on the road, without ice, yet not a spike was lost, though the weather was exceedingly hot.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Bellingham, Wash.—Adolph Allenborch is proprietor of the Cornwall Park Greenhouse.

Spokane, Wash.—The Spokane Florist Co., conducted by C. T. Kipp and Paul Jandl, has taken a 5-year lease on a store in the Mohawk block, on Riverside street. Messrs. Kipp and Jandl propose to make the new location one of the finest flower shops in the west. In addition to the main store, 23x90, they will build a roof garden greenhouse, 14x29. The store will be decorated with a permanent fountain six feet in diameter. The company's shop in the Davenport hotel will be continued.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

The demand for flowers for social functions has been light. A fair amount of funeral work has been handled.

Gladioli, asters and a variety of garden flowers fill the display windows. Some splendid Ulrich Brunner roses with extra long stems are shown. Golden Glow mums and dahlias are featured in some of the displays. Potted ferns are displayed, but the season is not far enough advanced for any great demand for them.

Club Meeting.

At the meeting of the Portland Floral Society held at its headquarters in Masonic Temple, August 17, H. E. Weed and Guy M. Pilkington reported that the thirty-five park superintendents who spent Sunday, August 15, in Portland were well pleased with the attention shown them. Through the department of public parks, automobiles were provided, and the party was taken over the scenic boulevards along the west side hills and to the main city park. They visited several parks and playgrounds and were served with a fine lunch on the summit of Mt. Tabor. Those who stayed until the evening train were given a banquet at the Commercial club, at which Geo. L. Baker, commissioner of the park bureau, presided. Jas. O. Convill, park superintendent, and E. T. Mische, city landscape architect, took leading parts in entertaining the visitors.

Julius Dossche, of the exhibition committee, stated that arrangements had been completed for a floral center at Vancouver, Wash., to be staged at the time of the Clarke county fair, September 6 to 11, and that about 5,000 potted plants would be needed. Booths will be erected for the exhibition of cut flowers, in which dahlias will be the leading flower.

R. W. Gill, manager of the fall show of the Northwest National Dahlia Society, reported satisfactory progress with plans for the show, which is to be held in the Meier & Frank department store building September 23 to 25.

H. A. Lewis, president of the Multnomah county fair, said the beds of plants set out by members of the society at the Gresham grounds were all in fine condition.

The entertainment consisted of a talk by E. H. White, of the Willamette Dahlia Co., on the work being done by his company and other growers to improve the quality of the dahlia. He exhibited several seedlings which his company is developing, and named and described several imported varieties which he had brought in. R. W. Gill stated that the petals of the dahlia had a greater capacity for absorbing moisture than those of any other flower and that this characteristic made possible the shipment of dahlia blooms for a considerable distance.

One new member was elected, and one application for membership read. A resolution providing rules to govern the society's officers in sending flowers to the funerals of deceased members or of their near relatives was discussed and referred to the board of trustees.

Various Notes.

E. T. Mische, J. G. Bacher, J. B. Pilkington, Wm. Martin, A. J. Clarke, and Samuel Roake attended the S. A. F. convention.

J. Feser, of the Mountain View Floral Co., said the company had rushed the work of budding rose stock during the recent favorable weather and had nearly finished.

Geo. Goos said he had not put in any benched stock this season, but would grow potted plants instead.

August Lowitz, who has charge of the landscaping at the Oaks park, has used tuberous begonias with good results this season. The geraniums, single petunias, ricinus, ageratums, abutilons and other plants show the effect of good culture.

A. T. De La Mare, of New York; John G. Esler and daughter, of Saddle River, N. J., and Alfred C. Hottis, of the department of floriculture at Cornell University, arrived August 14 and were entertained by J. G. Bacher and Chas. Welty. They joined the party of park superintendents going south August 15.

W. H. Small, seedsman, of Evansville, Ind., called on the trade.

Some of the best gladioli displayed come from the gladiolus farm of W. L. Crissey.

G. Teufel has finished benching his early carnation plants. He has plants of Victory growing for one house, which he will not bench till late in September.

The Holden Floral Co. is cutting some good Golden Glow mums.

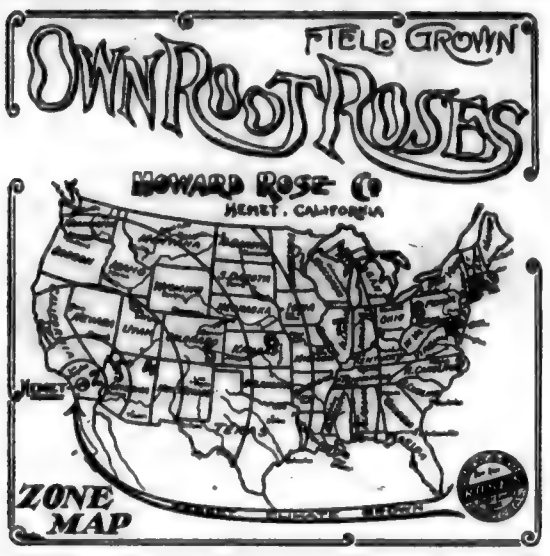
L. P. Jensen, landscape architect, of St. Louis, and J. C. Forbes, of Forbes & Keith, dahlia specialists, of New Bedford, Mass., were with the party of park superintendents. S. W. W.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

There has been an unusually heavy call for funeral work this week, and for one funeral two large motor trucks of flowers were sent to the cemetery. But while this uses a lot of flowers and greens, there are still large numbers left and every day sees a lot of stock dumped out. Golden Glow and Monrovia chrysanthemums are the principal additions to the stock offered this week.

Various Notes.



P. Breitmeyer, of Detroit, Mich., is on our list of "distinguished visitors" this week.

San Francisco fair and reports a fine time. G. Newman is no longer connected with the firm of S. Murata & Co. He is now in San Francisco and is figuring on either an eastern trip or a trip to Japan. I noted the first Golden Glow chrysanthemums at this store this week and the new-crop carnations are coming along finely.

Walter Garbett, manager of Darling's Flower Shop, has gone to Catalina island for a two weeks' vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Lichtenberg have gone to Bear Valley for their vacation. Carl Brose has gone to the mountains in Ventura county for deer and Bert Bateman is holding down the stand. A lot of good funeral work was reported.

C. Gutting, of the Superior Nursery Co., and H. W. Turner, of Montebello, left for the convention August 15.

Tassano Bros. report large advance orders for the September fashion show.

The newer cannas are making an elegant display at the nursery of the Germain Seed & Plant Co., on the Whittier road. In previous years the green corn bug has given a lot of trouble, but dusting with Corona Dry, an arsenate of lead preparation, has given splendid results against this pest in the present season. H. SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

It looks as if August, normally one of the poorest business months, may be the best month of this year. Certainly the stores are keeping remarkably busy, and with the convention of the S. A. F. last week demanding attention, the florists of San Francisco and vicinity have had a strenuous week. Although there was little change in counter trade and general decorations, funeral and wedding business has been decidedly active.

There is still a heavy supply of scabiosas, stocks, calliopsis, coreopsis, marigolds, marguerites, gypsophilas, mignonette, etc., most of which promise to hold out for some time. Many nice sunflowers are being sold. Zinnias are offered more freely, but are poor in quality. A few sweet peas are still arriving, but most of them are trashy. New-crop carnations are not yet much of a factor, and old stock is playing out, the daily offerings being light and poor. The market is heavily supplied with asters, which are in rather lighter demand. Chrysanthemums are becoming better, and the increasing supply cleans up readily. The chrysanthemums are chiefly Golden Glow, Monrovia and October Frost, but several other varieties are expected soon, and the shipping movement should be under way in a week or two. Few gladioli are seen in the shops this week. The supply of dahlias is increasing and some fine stock is appearing. Lilies are overabundant, especially rubrum, and there are liberal offerings of auratum. Both are used largely in decorations. The cut of storage giganteum is ample. Amaryllis is moving better, with rather large offerings. With cooler weather, roses show some improvement, but are not yet of attractive quality. There is nothing new as to varieties. Orchids are scarce, though a few are being received, in several varieties. Gardenias have been decidedly popular, and cleaned up readily. In potted stock, unusually fine cockscomb, both red and yellow, was received last week. A few cyclamen plants are appearing, and a good supply of primulas is arriving.

Various Notes.

Notwithstanding the many nocturnal celebrations, a great many of the visiting florists last week took time to visit the flower market during the active period, between 6:30 and 8 a. m. The visitors found many interesting features in the methods of handling the stock, one of them being the growers' coöperative system in the carnation market. The chief interest, however, was in the abundance and quality of the stock itself. The leading stores have been keeping open house, and most of them have taken pains to have something better than usual to display.

J. Tsuda, president of the Tsuda Nursery Co., wholesale growers of Japanese bulbs, plants and seeds, has an office at 463 Pacific building. He announces the intention of establishing a nursery near San Francisco, as a supplement to the company's nurseries in Japan.

Domoto Bros. brought in many nice cyclamen plants last week.

B. Eschner, president of the M. Rice Co., of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Eschner, have been spending several weeks traveling on the coast.

Albert O. Stein had the work of decorating the hall in the San Francisco auditorium, for the S. A. F. convention, and the colonial ballroom in the St. Francis hotel, for the reception. The principal materials used were rubrum lilies, furnished by Ferrari Bros., palms and greens from the MacRorie-McLaren Co., and asters sent in by the E. W. McLellan Co.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Chappell, of Portland, Ore., have been on a motor trip as far south as San Diego, where they took in the southern exposition. They returned to San Francisco in time for the convention.

J. P. Parker, of Santa Cruz, announces that he recently made an important addition to his stock of orchids.

Fred Boock, of New Ulm, Minn., has left for the north, after spending the better part of a month in San Francisco and vicinity.

William Hutchins, a fern grower at Fruitvale, was married August 13.

During the S. A. F. convention, J. A. Carbone, of Berkeley, had a beautiful exhibit of orchids in the store of Pelicano, Rossi & Co. The exhibit included several good pictures of Mr. Carbone's greenhouses during the blooming season.

Podesta & Baldocchi, during convention week, displayed in their window the bowling trophy cup presented by the Aphine Mfg. Co. Victor Podesta

To Pacific Coast Florists:

What stock have you for sale to the trade? Is it moving as it should? No?

Then tell the trade about it by using the Pacific Coast Pages of The Review.

Pacific Coast advertisers almost invariably report good results. Like this:

Say! That ad's a humdinger for getting the business.—Everett Floral Co., Everett, Wash.

I sold all the Mum cuttings advertised, and you will not hear from me again until I can get some more stock ready. Shall root 100,000 Carnation cuttings for next season, as I know The Review will sell them for me.—Frank Wilhelm, Los Angeles, Cal.

Please cut out of our advertisement in The Review the cyclamen seedlings. We sold all our surplus cyclamen seedlings as a direct result of our advertisement in your paper.—Spokane Greenhouses (Inc.), Spokane, Wash.

We want to say that our last advertisement in The Review brought us orders from both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. We had, strangely enough, on following days, orders from Salem, Ore., and from Salem, Mass.—State Floral Co., North Yakima, Wash.

We are well pleased with the results obtained by advertising in the Pacific Coast Department of The Review. We sold out clean and refused many orders. The Review surely gives results. —Van Slyke & Seamons, Tacoma, Wash.

admires the trophy so much that he is going to keep it.

H. McWilliams, of Sacramento, was in San Francisco last week to place orders and look over the exhibits at the convention.

George W. Smith, representing the Cleveland fall flower show, was in San Francisco last week. He succeeded in stirring up a great deal of interest in the flower show to be held in Cleveland this fall.

C. Kooyman has been showing a new line of Japanese straw flowers, which he believes can be profitably dried for shipping. He had some remarkably fine calla bulbs at the store last week. He has just replaced his front counter with a large glass show case.

The store of the Francis Floral Co. was quite an attraction last week. The green lattice decoration gave the place a unique and striking appearance. Beautiful bisque baskets were a matter of great interest to the visiting florists. Mr. Schlotzhauer, the proprietor, has had such success with these baskets that he contemplates making them for the trade.

The Art Floral Co. had a good wedding display for convention week. The sides of the store were lined to a height of eight feet with latticework, which had panels on each side. A life-sized figure was placed in each panel. There was a bride in one panel, and the one next to it had the bridesmaid. On the other side, a corsaged girl and a girl in Spanish costume were shown. Each figure carried an appropriate bouquet. The background was of greens and the decorations around the panels consisted of white hydrangeas for the bride and pink for the maid, Lilium rubrum for the corsaged girl and cockscomb and crotons for the Spanish girl. J. Eppstein has been busy showing the sights to visiting friends.

John A. Evans spent a week or so before the convention with C. W. Ward, at the latter's home at Eureka, Cal., among the giant redwoods of Humboldt county. He came back full of enthusiasm for the redwood district, and of good words for Mr. Ward's hospitality.

London, Ont.—Business this summer has figured up, in dollars and cents, about the same as in other years, but it has required the handling of increased quantities of stock and greater effort in the way of special sales, etc. W. NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Vice-president, John Watson, Newark, N. Y.; Secretary, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.
Forty-first annual meeting, Milwaukee, Wis., June 22 to 24, 1916.

W. H. JOHNSON, of Chattanooga, will put in a good block of ornamental nursery stock on the vacant land by his new greenhouses.

THE American Pomological Society meeting at San Francisco will draw a number of nurserymen to the exposition city again the first week in September.

THE Electric Nursery might be a new name for the William A. Peterson establishment at Chicago. Everything on the place, from pumps to grindstones, has been electrified.

LOOKING over the stock of several of the nurseries in Tennessee since August 15, on the whole the stock is looking much better than it was a year ago. With business slowly gathering in volume over the south, activity should be good this season.

THOSE of the peony growers who are not afraid to let their prices be known, report a good volume of trade orders, though some of the growers who aim to make prices to fit their idea of the circumstances are finding the season a bit slow. Retail orders for fall delivery have been accumulating with the peony specialists and insure a good season's business.

TAKING them as a class, the nurserymen of the United States are not an enthusiastic lot. Business in the last year was not good enough to satisfy them and the prospect for the next year does not promise much improvement. Here and there a nurseryman is genuinely busy, but in a majority of cases there is nothing to whistle for except to keep one's courage up.

RECENT business conditions have done much to hasten the trend toward smaller and less expensive catalogues. For some time there has been the feeling that the fancy books, with their costly cuts and color plates, while fine for the children to cut up for scrapbooks, were not selling stock in proportion to their cost. The tendency now is distinctly toward less expensive books and increased newspaper advertising.

AT the summer meeting of the Georgia State Horticultural Society, at Clarksville, August 18 and 19, President Robert C. Berckmans, of Augusta, occupied the chair. Other members of the trade who were on the program are: Benjamin W. Hunt, of Eatonton, who delivered the response to the address of welcome; B. W. Stone, of Thomasville, who presented a paper on "Alfalfa as a By-crop to Truck and Fruit;" J. B. Wight, of Cairo, who led in the discussion on "Pecan Growing in North Georgia;" Eugene Rumph, of Marshallville, who spoke on "Asparagus Growing," and H. G. Hastings, of Atlanta, who led the discussion on "Bell Peppers as a Georgia Crop."

Gentlemen:-

It may interest you to know we have furnished flowers, decorations and refreshments for seven nice weddings so far this month.

In this connection we wish to say The Review places us in the larger markets each week and enables us to make prices on anything in the floral line at any time as the quotations you print are always reliable and can be depended on as the quotations in that market.

Very truly yours,

The Review is the Buyers' Guide

EVIDENCE FROM THE EAST

We are about sold out of Carnation plants advertised in The Review; very good results.—Henry C. Bester & Sons, Hagerstown, Md.

Results from the advertisement in The Review have been very satisfactory.—Court Street Greenhouses, Syracuse, N. Y.

I am well pleased with the returns from my advertising in The Review this spring.—Harry J. Quick, Baltimore, Md.

EVIDENCE FROM THE WEST

I am much surprised and greatly pleased with the number of inquiries and orders my ad in The Review has brought so far, from only one insertion; it certainly brought results.—Gustav Klarner, Prop., Quincy Nurseries, Quincy, Ill.

Our ad in your valuable paper was such a success we are sold out of the stock we were advertising; sent out the last we had this morning.—W. A. Mitchell & Co., St. Joseph, Mo.

You are selling lots of plants for me.—F. Danley, Macomb, Ill.

Please cut out my Dracaena ad; it has done remarkably well and has sold lots of plants.—B. C. Blake, Springfield, O.

You may discontinue my for sale advertisement. A large number of replies were received and a buyer found, which proves the value of The Review for advertising.—F. J. Herrick, President, Albion Lumber Co., Albion, Mich.

Is it any wonder The Review carries such a splendid array of ads?

closed with a banquet in the auxiliary tea room of the California building at the San Francisco exposition on the evening of Monday, August 16. This was a fitting close to the conventions, which had been the most successful in the history of either organization. There were ninety at the banquet, making it the largest ever held by the nurserymen on the Pacific coast.

A BRITISH REFUTATION.

The British nursery trade was much exercised over a memorandum recently prepared by Dr. Gordon Hewitt, Dominion Entomologist, Ottawa, Canada, the purport of which was that nursery stock from Ireland, Belgium, France, Japan, Holland and Germany usually arrives in Canada in excellent condition, and that English nursery stock arrives in bad condition, owing to the lack of care and the use of unsuitable material in packing. The Horticultural Trades' Association took the matter up and, under date of July 28, refutes the assertion by publishing letters from a dozen exporting firms each stating that its packing is first-class and that it seldom if ever has complaints from its American customers.

LOW HEDGE NEAR BUILDING.

Please give us a suggestion as to what we should plant on the south and east sides of a building. Our plan is to have some shrub grow close to the foundation of a public building, something that we can shear. We do not care to have it grow more than six inches high, on the order of a hedge. Can you tell us what would be suitable, what kind of soil to use, when to plant and how far it should be planted from the building? Our soil is clay. Would privet be all right, or boxwood? If so, give an idea of what it should cost and the best kind for this locality.

A. A. K.—N. Y.

I would suggest using Euonymus radicans in preference to boxwood. The euonymus will stand 20 degrees below zero without injury, and will be much cheaper than boxwood. Set the plants out twelve to eighteen inches apart if 2 years old. If 3 years old they can go twenty-four inches apart. This shrub is naturally low habited, makes a dense ground cover and will not need so much shearing as box or privet. The last named can hardly be kept as low as six inches without incessant shearing. Plant the euonymus in early spring or any time up to the end of July. Keep clear of the foundation wall of the building. Add some sharp sand or gravel to the clayey soil, and before planting the euonymus, add some cow manure. The first winter lay some pine or spruce boughs over the euonymus. No protection will be needed in succeeding winters. Most of the nursery firms advertising in The Review can quote you prices on euonymus. I may add that this is also our finest hardy climber. C. W.

Azalea Shipments Will Come

To offset the incorrect statements made in trade-paper ads and in circulars sent by mail, we wish to make the positive statement that we expect shipments of AZALEAS and other Belgian Plants to arrive this Fall on schedule time. We already have the permits and all arrangements are made.

We also wish to say that every import order we have booked has been executed up to this time—which means shipments from 9 different countries—8 of which are at war.

Orders and inquiries are invited from responsible American firms for import stock from all sources.

HYDRANGEAS

Our Hydrangeas are all grown in the open ground during the summer, where they make a very luxurious growth, producing heavy heads. They are potted up in August and will be thoroughly rootbound in October. They are extra heavy this season and will not only produce flowers from the shoots but also from the dormant buds at the base. They cannot be better and will satisfy the most critical.

The Market.

Business was good last week, although it was one of the rainiest weeks we have ever had. Monday was the only day it did not rain. Tuesday, August 17, a storm reached here, and it rained night and day for the remainder of the week. Outdoor stock did not appear to suffer much. A large number of funerals caused a strong demand for flowers. Some of the aster growers report a failure of the outdoor crop, while others will have good harvests.

Various Notes.

Julius Niednagel & Sons report good sales and plenty of stock. They have the carnations all planted. The chrysanthemums are looking well.

C. L. Niednagel is cutting a large crop of roses, including Killarney, White Killarney, Russell, Milady and American Beauty. His Ophelia roses are making a good showing.

The Blackman Floral Co. had a big business last week. They are having a nice cut of American Beauties and carnations from the field. The new crop of carnations will soon be cut. A house of asters looks promising, the plants having an immense number of buds.

Theodore Kuebler is bringing in some good asters.

J. C. Elspermann has been busy with funeral work. His mums and carnations are looking fine.

Karl Zeidler is cutting a good many roses. His mums are growing nicely.

William Halbrooks has another large greenhouse about completed.

Miss Nellie Goodge, of the Oak Hill Greenhouses, is cutting gladioli from the field. All of the outside stock is in good condition. The mums are making a nice growth. E. L. F.

"A Bird in the Hand"—

You know the adage. Well, a Hydrangea in America is worth several Azaleas in Belgium right now. Of course, the Azaleas may get out of Belgium; we don't know; conditions may change; certainly it is not possible to get anything out of Belgium at present. The war may end next week, but the chances are it won't. Are you going to take that chance? Can you afford to depend altogether on imported forcing stock, when there is plenty of good forcing stock right here at home—"Made in America"—stock that you know you can depend on?

HYDRANGEAS, for example. We offer:

OTAKSA, with 7 to 10 branches, at $25.00 the 100.
" " 5 and 6 " at 20.00 the 100.
" " 4 " at 15.00 the 100.

French Novelties, all the best ones, at $5.00 the 100 addition for the same sizes.

They are all in six-inch pots now, plunged outside, and growing like weeds, rich, deep-green, healthy foliage, and "fat" stems that promise big heads of bloom. They will grow into money for you, and you can cash 'em next Easter.

There won't be any surplus of blooming plants next Spring. Stick a pin in that. We want every progressive florist to get in touch with us.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

Trade was dull last week. A little funeral work, however, adds materially to the week's business. The aster is the most important flower at present and all colors and grades are plentiful. They are selling at low prices. Gladioli are a drug on the market and large quantities of them are going to waste. America is still the best seller. Roses are poor in quality. Key, Milady and Ward are off color. Double White Killarney is good, but small. Sweet peas are poor and scarce. Harrisii lilies are good and are being used considerably for all occasions. Japanese lilies are plentiful and are used a great deal in funeral work. There is little demand for summer orchids or valley. There is a great quantity of excellent Boston ferns in the market.

Various Notes.

J. Benson Stafford last week had a wedding order in which the bride's bouquet was a most unusual one, a colonial bouquet made of Ward roses and valley, with a valley shower.

The Raeker Flower Shop had a neat window display of Begonia Vernon and red gladioli, which was attractive for this time of the year.

J. H. Rebstock is having his store remodeled. The woodwork is painted white and the walls are a creamy tint.

Henry Krause has returned from Conesus lake. Walter Leney, after a week at Conesus lake and another at Crystal beach, is back on the job at S. A. Anderson's.

Jerry Brookins had some exceptionally large show asters on exhibition last week. Some of the flowers measured four to five inches across and had stems eighteen to twenty-four inches long.

James J. Bates, formerly of Buffalo and Akron, has opened an up-to-date retail store in Oakfield, N. Y. He is planning to put up a range of glass in connection with his store. The members of the trade wish him success.

The America gladioli which L. H. Neubeck is growing at Williamsville are large and handsome and bring a good price. Leon Neubeck has severed his connection with his father's greenhouses and is now selling auto tires.

Orlando O'Field, of M. O'Field & Son, of Grimsby, Ont., was in town last week on business.

A report of the death of William Warring, who had been with the William Scott Co. for thirty years, will be found in this week's obituary column.

The Market.

The cool weather last week seemed to have a beneficial effect on the cut flower business. Most of the stores report a fair week, considering the season of the year. Funeral work did not amount to much.

Various Notes.

The Edwards Floral Hall Co. is growing large quantities of Lilium magnificum in pots with great success. One plant having sixty-nine flowers and buds measured five and one-half feet in height and three feet in width. These plants are a great attraction and find ready sale.

Robert & Henri, the boardwalk florists, are featuring some good novelties, consisting of flowers made up in baskets and centerpieces. The designs are unusual and have never been seen here before. Visitors buy them readily. This firm delivers any purchase by parcel post, insured, without extra charge.

The Atlantic City Cut Flower Market is showing the first Golden Glow chrysanthemums and dahlias of the season. There is no great demand for them.

The display window at the store of George H. Berke is attractively decorated with asters, ferns and gladioli.

NEWPORT, R. I.

The officers of the Newport Horticultural Society, the judges at the midsummer show and a few of the exhibitors from out of the city, numbering in all about twenty-five, had a dinner at the Bellevue through the courtesy of Mrs. Charles F. Hoffman, president of the Newport Garden Club. After the dinner President William MacKay called upon members of the company for brief remarks. Arthur Herrington, of Madison, N. J., who directed the exhibition, referred in commendatory terms to the enterprise of the Newport gardeners and their assistance to the national societies.

Many beautiful garden and landscape effects are to be noted in the summer colony this season. One, on the lawn of The Elms, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Berwind, on Bellevue avenue, has at least 60,000 begonias.

Oscar Schultz is a member of the committee that has been appointed by the local Moose to arrange for the entertainment on the national field day, to be held here next June.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Business has not shown any marked improvement since last report. The call for stock is steady, but not large, and low prices are still the rule. Shipping business is fairly good. Roses are much more plentiful than they were and they include some excellent blooms. Many, however, are too far open when shipped; consequently, when they get here they are not salable at any price. The cut of carnations is heavier than it was. Easter lilies are scarce, but there are plenty of other lilies. Aster receipts are heavy and are generally good, but some of them are rather soft. Gladioli continue plentiful. Greens, including some excellent home-grown plumosus and Sprengeri, are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Mrs. E. G. Gillett and daughter, Miss Rosalia Gillett, have returned from Conway, Mich. They experienced beautiful weather all the time they were away.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Critchell spent the latter part of last week on a motor trip to Richmond and Indianapolis, Ind.

Charles Miller, of Covington, was run down by an auto last week and severely injured.

Mrs. Anna Garges and daughter are visiting relatives in Chicago.

C. J. Jones has purchased an auto delivery car. C. H. H.

The Market.

Market conditions last week were better than they have been previously this month. There was a little better demand for stock, and the glut seems to be about over. There are not so many poor asters coming into the market. Shipments from the north have decreased considerably. Dahlias have not yet made their appearance in any great quantities. Gladioli, while still overplentiful, are not being received in such enormous quantities as heretofore, and there is a slightly better demand for choice spikes. Roses are improving in quality and have much longer stems. The demand for northern-grown American Beauty roses has improved. Funeral work during the week was quite heavy, making a good demand for Easter lilies. Orchids continue scarce and high-priced, and many orders go unfilled. The demand for valley has been fair.

OUR SUPPLIES not affected by WAR BLOCKADE

¶ WHILE there is a general shortage of Palms, particularly of Kentias, due to the fact that practically no supplies were received by such growers as depend almost exclusively on imports from Belgium, and from present appearance it is not likely that the situation will be changed this fall, we are pleased to state our supplies have not been affected by this embargo, and we are carrying our usual full line of sizes of the usual Dreer quality; but as the general scarcity is certain to create an increased demand, we recommend you to cover your requirements as early as possible. If you are not ready to accept immediate delivery, let us book your order and we will set aside and reserve your stock and make delivery at any time between now and October 15.

Various Notes.

George W. Hess, superintendent of the United States Botanic Gardens, has just returned from an extended visit at the home of Senator Robert F. Broussard, at Iberia, La.

Plans are being perfected for the opening of the educational botanical garden of Frederick, Md., September 2. The collection of flowers and plants to be placed in this garden is made up in part of contributions from the trade.

Elmer Sanders, who is employed at the botanic gardens, met with another accident when the horse which he was driving took fright at the breaking of its bit and in jumping forward caused him to fall between the shafts. Charles Stieffel, of the gardens, is spending a two weeks' vacation with friends at Colton, Md. J. H. Van Zandt is spending a month's vacation at Laxie, Tenn.

Among the visitors last week were Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Meinhardt, of St. Louis; I. Rosnosky, representing H. F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, and Arthur Niessen, of the Leo Niessen Co., Philadelphia. C. L. L.

Hamden, Conn.—Robert Johnstone is building a large greenhouse on the site of the one recently torn down.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

THE COAL MARKET.

The most disturbing factor in the present coal market is the future outlook. Such a statement would frequently be true with regard to any line of business—so commonly true as to be almost commonplace, but it is especially applicable to the coal trade now, on account of the changes in freight rates which were recently decreed by the Interstate Commerce Commission, and which go into effect October 1. Although the new rates have reference only to anthracite coal, of course they have more or less influence on the movement of other kinds of fuel. East of Buffalo and Pittsburgh the freights are lowered; the average reduction is between 15 cents and 25 cents per ton. The lake rates remain unchanged, but there is an increase of 25 cents per ton in the rates "to Chicago and points beyond."

In the middle west the immediate effect of the announcement of these freight changes was to stimulate business. "The dealers," says a leading coal journal, "naturally wanted to buy now to get coal before the advance went into effect; the operators wanted to sell coal now, rather than risk the uncertainties of the market after the rise should take effect. The buyers and the operators were, therefore, both eager to do business, and as a matter of fact some more business was done. It is expected that in the next month a considerable volume of additional business will be done, largely on this account."

In addition to the uncertainties mentioned, the Chicago dealers in smokeless coal have had their own peculiar perplexities, due to disputes among themselves in regard to prices. These disagreements have had a tendency to cause prices to break, but in most cases the regular figures have been maintained. Lump and egg are undisturbed at circular price of $2.25 and mine-run is $1.25 to $1.40.

TOLEDO, O.

The Market.

The weather last week was more favorable. The sun shone for about half the week and gave florists a chance to attend to the long delayed outdoor work. The sun brought on heavier crops, but the demand, though light,

Entire Plant Heated by Kroeschell Boilers

"Regarding the Kroeschell, it is the best we have ever had and satisfactory beyond our expectations. It heats up especially quick and has saved us considerable already in the price of fuel. When we are in need of another boiler, we will give the Kroeschell the first consideration."
(Signed) WM. W. EDGAR CO., Waverley, Mass.

The KROESCHELL has replaced hundreds of cast iron boilers. In every case higher temperatures are secured with the KROESCHELL with the same piping and with less fuel.

The KROESCHELL is making the most wonderful greenhouse heating record in the world. Our boilers were installed to heat 2,304,450 sq. ft. glass in 1914. Florists who have used other makes are constantly giving the KROESCHELL the highest praise.

It certainly pays to have a copy of the Handy Hand Book at your fingers' quick reach, and a telephone handy by."

The After Convention Heating Hustle

HOW WE CAN HELP IT

EVERY YEAR, right after the S. A. F. August Convention is over, our heating business picks up with a jump. It doesn't seem to make any difference whether most men go to the Convention or not, they put off their heating until afterwards just the same.

And so it happens that in former years we have, at such times, certainly had our hands full and running over to keep our deliveries up.

This year, however, we have made additional provision to take care of just such rush orders and hurry-call work. Of course we are not going so far as to suggest your putting off coming to us until Jack Frost has nipped things and driven you to it, and then expect us to do the impossible.

So if you need fittings, and know you need them, what's the use of putting off ordering? Take our Handy Hand Book off its hook right now and order what you want.

If your boiler needs repairs—get the repair parts and do the repairing. Or have us do it for you.

If you need a new boiler, why spend your time and money looking around at boilers you don't know much about, when you can promptly get a Burnham that you know is absolutely all right?

Of course if you want to talk things over with us, say when and where and we'll be there.

has taken care of the cut. Gladioli, asters and dahlias are plentiful and good. Roses are in fine cut and the prices are within the reach of all. Rubrum and Easter lilies are abundant and the market cannot take care of the cut. Taking all into consideration, business has been fairly good this summer.

Various Notes.

The trade was kept extremely busy on Tuesday of last week, arranging flowers for the funeral of the late John Gunckel, president and founder of the National News Boys' Association, who resided in this city. Large orders were sent in from all parts of the country.

An effective telegraph window display was recently made by Schramm Bros. The background of the window was covered with a large map of the United States and Canada, with telegraph wires strung from the northeastern to the southwestern part of the map. Shipping tags of leading florists in different cities were pasted to the window and connected by strings with the respective cities on the map. Fancy window cards explained to the public the object of the telegraph system. Along the front of the window telegrams recently received were on exhibition.

Sunday afternoon, August 22, J. L. Schiller invited all the members of the Florists' Club to visit his greenhouses. All enjoyed themselves, and everything went finely until on the return trip, when the auto, a 6-cylinder Cadillac, driven by Harry Heinl, skidded in the muddy road and went headlong into the ditch. Confusion reigned for several minutes, until the ladies could be taken from the car. After hours of labor, the big car was ready for its return trip. The passengers were uninjured and the machine was only slightly damaged.

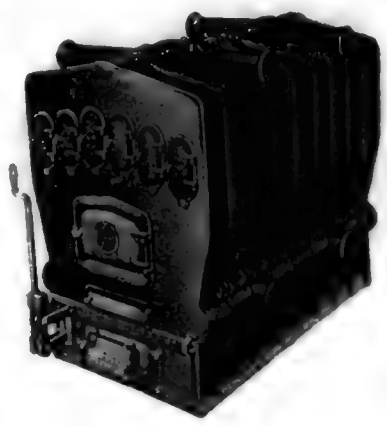
Arthur Kneisle, publicity manager for the Florists' Club, returned from a week's business tour of Cleveland and Cincinnati. He is representing an advertising company of Chicago.

A recent visit to the establishment of Krueger Bros. showed everything in fine condition, especially the chrysanthemums and the poinsettia plants for fall.

Fred Ritter, Jr., who has been confined to the hospital by a severe attack of typhoid fever, has been removed to his home and is reported to be doing finely. G. B. S.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

The Market.



The excessive rains of the north have moved down this way, and in the last two weeks we have had more rain than in an equal length of time in months, if not in more than a year. The rain has been welcome. The ground is better soaked than it has been before this season, and while the weather is unusually cool, everything looks favorable for a good fall's growth.

Business is dull, but we have not many flowers to throw away. Roses are in better supply than they were two weeks ago, and carnations are beginning to appear. They are good for the season. Gladioli are the most plentiful flowers, of course, though there is not a glut, such as we read of in so many other places. America, King and Augusta continue to be about the only ones grown here, the newer ones not having "struck" to any extent. A few dahlias are appearing, and if the cool weather continues long, they will be plentiful. Asters continue to come in freely, but they will soon be over, as none of the late varieties are grown

When it Comes to Heating Come to Hitchings

YOU who have talked to the superintendent of power in some of the big factories, know that the power returns from every pound of coal are figured right down to almost the last cent. Guesswork is out of the question. The variation in cost of power delivered, of even a few cents of horse-power, is often the difference between a manufacturer's profit and a loss.

The keenest of keen competition has made this watchful watch-dog method a necessity. The margin of profits being more liberal in the greenhouse growers' business, longer chances are taken, and heating experiments made, which but few other industries could possibly stand.

We don't want to be put down as "croakers," but it does seem that before long most growers must give more serious thought and attention to their heating cost. Already some of the more careful ones are demanding of our heating engineers things that two years ago would have been passed over without a second thought, no matter how forcibly we presented their importance.

It looks as though a big change were coming when it comes to cutting down heating costs, or equipping a plant with a system of highest efficiency.

We can do just these things. Not only can, but are doing it. Not only are doing it, but have done it.

For over 65 years we have been heating greenhouses, which is a quarter of a century longer than anyone else in the field.

All of which has a lot to do with your being able to depend on depending on Hitchings.

And remember we go anywhere for business. Or to talk business.

here, the trade finding it more profitable to depend on the northern growers.

All of the season's repairing is done, and the houses are all planted for the winter. Fall propagating is under way rather earlier than usual this season.

Various Notes.

McIntyre Bros. are offering the trade fine field-grown carnation plants. The McIntyres have been proving themselves expert carnation growers the last two years.

Oscar Geny is looking after business again. He is slowly regaining his strength.

Floyd Bralliar, of the Hillcrest School Farm, has been away for the last ten days. He is now at home, and is beginning to deliver the fall orders of peonies and home-grown bulbs. He reports that they are pretty well sold out of home-grown bulbs except a thousand or so of Golden Spur.

Chas. O. Green, who operates a small place as a side line, being a printer by trade, has his houses in good condition for the fall trade. He does no cut flower business, but has wagons on the street with plants at the proper seasons.

In calling on the Joy Floral Co., I was pleased to see how well the new roses, Hoosier Beauty and Ophelia, are coming on. They are certainly good growers, and are coming into profitable bloom exceptionally young. But then, G. Johnson is an exceptional grower and they have had every chance.

J. F. Corbitt has propagated a nice lot of plants for the fall wholesale trade. His poinsettias look unusually good. He has a pink seedling perennial phlox that is one of the best of its color I have ever seen. F. B.

HOLYOKE, MASS.

Club Outing.

The annual outing of the Holyoke and Northampton Florists' Club was held August 18 at Smiths Ferry. There were over 150 in attendance, including visitors from Springfield, Amherst, Northampton, Chicopee and Westfield. Following dinner, a field meet was held, in which competition was keen. The results of the events were as follows:

Hundred-yard dash for single women—Miss Fowles, of Amherst, first; Miss Doris Kellogg, of Smiths Ferry, second.

Hundred-yard dash for married women—Mrs. Thomas Bray, of Holyoke, first; Mrs. Keyes, of Florence, second.

Hundred-yard dash for married men—G. H. Sinclair, of Holyoke, first; R. S. Carey, of Holyoke, second.

Hundred-yard dash for single men—Michael Gee, of Holyoke, first; no second prize.

Fifty-yard dash for children—Dawson Bray, first; no second prize.

The tug of war between the single and married men was won by the married men, but in the baseball game the single men were victorious.

The Metropolitan Patented Eave prevents ice and snow from sticking on the greenhouse.

THE Eave is one continuous piece of cast iron—90% of which is in constant contact with the heat inside. This heat penetrates right through the eave, and as soon as the snow touches it, it melts immediately. None other than the Metropolitan Eave can honestly make this claim.

A heavy snow has broken through many a greenhouse and ruined an expensive crop. The Metropolitan Patented Eave will avoid this.

Before ordering a greenhouse give us the opportunity to prove our claim.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

The cut flowers reaching this market are little better than mediocre, with the exception of asters and gladioli, and these bring such small prices that there is little margin in them. The last week's weather has materially improved the quality of outside stock, so that better returns are expected. There is little business.

Various Notes.

Mrs. Timothy L. O'Connor and daughter, who have been spending the summer at Narragansett Pier, left last week for a short stay at Atlanta, Ga.

Miss O'Connor, with Johnston Bros., is on a two weeks' vacation at Bar Harbor, Me.

Max Villers was a visitor in Boston last week.

Albert Holscher is preparing to erect a new greenhouse, 20x110 feet, at his range, on Hartford avenue.

About twenty members of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island and their friends joined in an outing Wednesday, August 18. A motor trip was taken to Rocky Point, where a shore dinner was eaten, and then a sail down the bay to Newport. A stop was made off Prudence island, where the party indulged in fishing for two or three hours. The return trip was made by moonlight, refreshments being served on the boat.

Fred Hoffman is adding two houses to his range, at Pawtucket. Each will be 30x85 feet.

E. J. Johnston is considering the erection of a large greenhouse on Hope street, at the corner of Rochambeau avenue.

Carmichael Bros., of Shannock, are shipping large quantities of fine gladioli to this city, Boston and New York.

A. Littman, proprietor of the Flower Growers' Sales Co., intends to open another store in this city and one at Woonsocket this coming fall.

Mr. Meehan has entered the employ of John Patterson, of Ashton, as a grower.

Richard Dunbar and F. Geisler, of Bristol, have gone to Prudence island, in Narragansett bay, for two weeks' camping and fishing. W. H. M.

Cincinnati, O.—The Ideal Flower Shop, at Walnut Hills, has been remodeling and enlarging its store. A good spring and summer business has made the improvements desirable.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.

The Market.

Utah is experiencing the hottest and driest weather that has ever prevailed in this part of the country. Of late the temperature has been about 108 degrees.

The market for roses, carnations and plants is better than that of last year. The roses from newly benched stock are becoming better in length of stem and quality of bloom, although there are not enough blooms of the medium grade to meet the demand. The medium roses sell at $6 per hundred and the shorts at $4 per hundred. Carnation plants are almost all in the benches, and blooms are scarce. The few carnations that are to be had are of poor quality. The heads are small and the stems short and weak. They are sold at $3 per hundred. Potted plants are moving well. Whitmani and Boston ferns, gloxinias and tuberous begonias are the best sellers. Ageratums, gypsophilas, asters, gladioli, snapdragons, feverfew and stocks are used extensively. There is a constant call for gladioli. Chrysanthemums are on the market, but do not sell well.

Various Notes.

The Evans Floral Co. reports an increase in sales over last year.

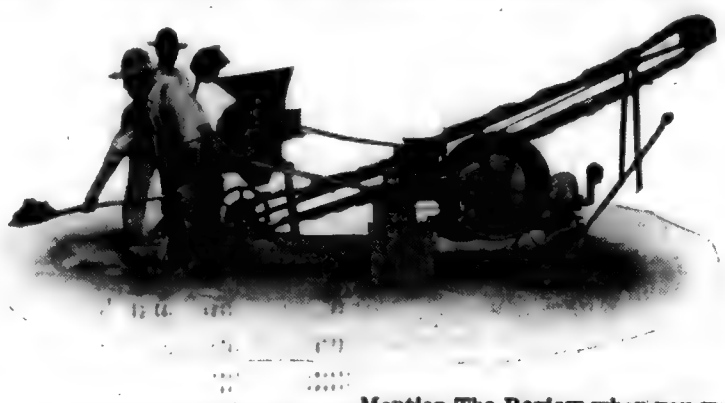
Charles Alt, of the Huddart Floral Co., has returned from his vacation. He spent two weeks near Hailey and Ketchum, Ida., fishing and hunting. Al. Alt went to San Francisco for the S. A. F. convention.

Mr. Gray, of the B. C. Morris Floral Co., has returned from a few weeks' visit to Chicago.

Mrs. E. J. Sanders is spending two weeks in California.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Miller went to the Panama-Pacific exposition, with the intention of attending the S. A. F. convention.

Charles Soter finds business good. The window in his new store is kept nicely decorated, and different varieties of potted plants are displayed in front of the store.



Miss Elizabeth Huth, of Ogden, finds business so good that she cannot take her vacation.

The Market.

Business last week showed a slight improvement over the previous weeks of August. The weather has been partly cloudy and there have been several rain storms, but the sun has shone most radiantly during the last few days. Funeral work has been the chief source of business, although there has been a call for flowers for social events and weddings.

Flowers of all varieties have been most plentiful. The rose cut is splendid. Ophelia, Sunburst, Shawyer and Russell are showing up well. Asters are more than plentiful, despite the heavy rains. Gladioli still occupy an important place, and are used extensively for funeral work. The hydrangeas come in for their share in decorative work. Lilies of the valley and American Beauties are used considerably for midsummer nuptials.

Various Notes.

A prominent wedding last week was that of Miss Mary A. Randall to Lieutenant Charles F. Williams, which was held at the Randall homestead. Beautiful garden effects were obtained in the decorations by huge standard vases and wall pockets of hydrangeas, gladioli and roses. The bride's bouquet was composed of clusters of white orchids and lilies of the valley, and the bridesmaids carried poke bonnets filled with Sunburst roses and tied with streamers of Sunburst ribbon. The Flick Floral Co. made the floral arrangements.

A visitor to the trade last week was a representative of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa. R. F.

GENESEO, ILL.

The business and property of the Neal Floral Co. are to be sold at public auction September 7 by the administrator of the estates of George J. Neal and his wife, Hattie S. Neal, who constituted the company. Both died at about the same time last spring, after conducting the business since 1913, when Mr. Neal, previously for sixteen years manager of the Beckwith Greenhouses, at Mt. Pleasant, Ia., bought out the Hill Floral Co. In order to settle the estate, the administrator will sell the entire business and property, which consists of four acres of land, five greenhouses comprising 11,000 feet of glass, a 2-story frame house and the fixtures and fittings of the downtown store. The property is subject to a mortgage for $4,100.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

The quality of the stock now coming in is above the average for this season of the year. Roses, carnations, lilies, valley and greens are coming from the local growers. Outside flowers, such as dahlias, gladioli, asters, sweet peas and snapdragons, are coming in large quantities. Business is fair. Several large funerals last week helped to keep the market cleaned up.

Various Notes.

Herbert Bate and his family are spending a few weeks at their cottage at Portage lake. Fishing there is good.

Local growers have almost finished their carnation planting. The plants have made wonderful growth in the field this season. The average quality of the plants is ahead of other years.

Herman Knoble and Frank Friedley made a trip to Indianapolis and Richmond last week. A. Baur and Joseph Hill, officers of the American Carnation Society, promised the society's support for our fall show. The executive committee of the Carnation Society will hold a meeting at Cleveland during the time of the show. Irwin Bertermann, president of the F. T. D., says the organization will not only hold a meeting during the progress of the Cleveland show, but will put up an exhibit. George and Homer Wiegand were also seen. They say they are going to attend the show and predict that a carload of Indianapolis florists will be on hand when the show opens.

At Richmond, the greenhouses of the E. G. Hill Co. and Fred Lemon were found in excellent shape. The chrysanthemums of the E. G. Hill Co. are in first-class condition. Joseph Hill pointed out an entire house devoted to chrysanthemums for exhibition at the Cleveland show. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Critchell, of Cincinnati, motored into Richmond while the visitors were there and Mr. Critchell, who is keen on bowling, suggested that a bowling tournament be held during the Cleveland show. This is a good suggestion and will be taken up at once with the entertainment committee. F. A. F.

Leroy, Ill.—L. L. Fry was recently in Chicago contracting for material for a new greenhouse. The building is to be 48x90, and the heating system to be installed will also furnish heat for his residence. Now that the labor troubles are over, the work is making rapid progress.

Saginaw, Mich.—A swindler worked the bogus check game on J. B. Goetz Sons, August 14, to the amount of $16.50. The fraud in this case varied from the method usually employed by this brand of swindlers. A member of J. B. Goetz Sons received a telephone call, and was told that he was talking to Burton Bros., contractors. The telephone informant said that it was payday at the Burton office, and that James Conners, an employee, would soon be down at the store to make a purchase, presenting his check in payment. James Conners did appear, bought a bouquet, tendered a check for $16.50 signed "Henry B. Burton," and received $12.50 in change. Two days later the check was found to be worthless, and, upon investigation, Burton Bros. turned out to be fictitious. The swindler is described as being five feet nine inches in height, weighing 175 pounds, and having dark hair and large protruding eyes. He wore a blue suit and sailor straw hat.

An Open Letter

Believing that we can render material assistance in our instructive campaign in the upbuilding and maintaining of soil fertility, this company is giving time and money endeavoring to further the interest of the grower under glass.

With that in view, we have employed practical greenhousemen in our research department, in our laboratory department and in the handling of our correspondence pertaining to questions arising on soil requirements and plant foods.

In this work we of course expect the trade to take sufficient interest to cooperate with us in our efforts and to correspond with us on matters pertaining to their growing products so that we will be able to issue bulletins of practical and profitable results as obtained by the uses of commercial manures.

In this way we give general publicity to what is being accomplished by the intelligent knowledge of the uses of commercial manures. Our main object is to demonstrate the practicability of making up soil fertility during the growing season through the addition of fertilizers or commercial manures as the season progresses and thereby increase the number of flowering crops as well as the quality of the flowers.

In connection with this work we are taking into consideration the uses of stable manures and legumes, supplemented by commercial manures that carry nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash, and also the scientific uses of floricultural lime to meet the particular needs of greenhouse soils.

This work is under the direction of one who has had practical management of one of the leading greenhouse establishments in the United States, and has surrounded himself with graduates of the Floricultural course of the University of Illinois and University of Massachusetts, also three leading growers who have held responsible positions with large greenhouse establishments, and who are well versed in the practical uses of commercial manures as practiced at this time among the most successful greenhouse establishments.

All in all, this company is supported by men who have had wide experience in your problems.

Your inquiries are invited.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

GAIN IN GROWING GODFREY CALLAS

The subject of this article is of such great interest that the poorest treatment could scarcely drive the interest out of it. But the article has both readableness and value, because it embodies the views of three experts —the raiser of the Godfrey calla, the American introducer of it, and a successful grower of it.

THE advent of the pure white and wonderfully free-blooming Godfrey calla has, to a large extent, revolutionized calla growing in America. It is steadily advancing in favor and bids fair to oust the old Richardia Æthiopica from the place of honor it has held so long. And the Godfrey is honestly earning its reputation, by means of its genuine superiority. As fast as it wins new acquaintances, it converts them into friends. In the words of a fine compliment sometimes heard in social circles, it bears acquaintance.

Knowledge and Near-Knowledge.

One of the plainest signs or symptoms of the increasing popularity of the Godfrey calla is the number of inquiries that are sent to The Review, with reference to the character and culture of the plant.

Believing that a theme of such general interest was worthy of as authoritative treatment as possible, The Review proceeded to get some facts from headquarters, by writing to the originator of the Godfrey and also to its American introducer. These two persons would necessarily have some positive knowledge of the subject, and would not be likely to proffer any of that near-knowledge which is often the most dangerous sort of fiction. Misinformation, or imaginary knowledge, is like a minus quantity in algebra—at the best of less value than zero and decreasing in value as it increases in size. Much so-called knowledge, like some people's earthly wealth, is best represented by a minus quantity.

The originator of the Godfrey calla is W. J. Godfrey, of Godfrey & Sons, Exmouth, Devonshire, England. The American introducer is E. G. Hill, of the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind. Both of these firms responded promptly to the appeal for information.

The Godfrey's Ancestry.

The reply from Godfrey & Sons starts with the important little preamble, "Please note that we have no stock of the Godfrey calla to offer to the trade," and then goes on as follows:

"The Godfrey calla was raised in our nurseries about twenty years ago. We had been growing the ordinary greenhouse calla and also the variety known as Little Gem. The flowers or spathes of the latter were too flat in form and almost invariably had wilted or sleepy tips; another drawback was its late period of flowering.

"We used the pollen of the two varieties on each other, and from numerous seedlings we made selections for future crossing and seeding. The spathes of many of the seedlings were of a refined type and better in form than either of the parents. The greater number were also of a pure, milk white.

"Ultimately we made two selections. One was named the Godfrey, the other Devoniensis; the latter is after our county, Devon. Both varieties bloom much earlier and with much greater freedom than the ordinary calla; in fact, they will produce three times as many blooms as the older variety. The Godfrey is much taller and more robust than Devoniensis and the flower is larger. Both, however, are of more compact growth than the old variety.

As Grown by the Originator.

"Some of the stocks of these varieties are somewhat mixed, for many growers, especially in Guernsey and Jersey, raised large quantities of seedlings and sold them for the true variety.

"In commencing the culture of these, the best method is to pot the tubers in June and keep them growing all the time. When established, they should be stood out in May and partly dried off. About midsummer they should be turned out; the balls should be partly reduced and replaced with a little fresh mold and they should be kept growing until housed. When they are potted in the autumn, the result is not so profitable; neither will the varieties succeed so well when planted out in the houses."

Particular notice should be taken of the foregoing statement of Godfrey & Sons in regard to the relationship between the Godfrey calla and the Little Gem. Of course the two varieties are related, but, as in the case of many other near relatives, the differences between them are as striking and important as are the resemblances. Some growers labor under the delusion that the Godfrey is simply the old Little Gem rechristened, but this is a vast mistake. The Godfrey is much superior, as can be attested by anyone who has grown the two sorts.

The particulars supplied by the E. G. Hill Co. are, in substance, as follows: "The Godfrey is of the Devoniensis type and was brought to this country by E. G. Hill about ten years ago. It is a beautiful improvement over the old Æthiopica, in color, texture and general refinement. When given full swing in a bench, it bears extra large blooms, but it is seen at its best when grown in pots, 6-inch to 8-inch in size, when the blooms are of medium size and are freely produced."

Perhaps the information already given, though covering certain phases of the subject in a most satisfactory way, might be supplemented by a few more details of a purely cultural nature.

Unreasonable Expectations.

Some there are who seem unable to grow the Godfrey successfully, or at least they expect too much from young plants. Not long ago I visited a commercial place where the proprietor sells, at retail, all he can grow. When incidental reference was made to callas, I asked him whether he had tried the Godfrey. The answer was, "Yes, and it's no good." He thereupon conducted me to the end of one of his houses and pointed out a batch of what I supposed were callas. One plant carried a miserable little flower; two more had spikes on the way. Some were dead, others dying and all looked unhappy, and no wonder. The grower had got in some stock in 2½-inch pots and put five each in 10-inch pots; then he had stood them on the floor, partly below carnation benches. All were in a more or less saturated condition and yet the owner marveled that they were doing poorly!

Now, it stands to reason that we cannot expect much the first year from 2½-inch or even 4-inch pot plants, no matter how well we grow them. Some will flower—I have even flowered them in 2½-inch pots—but the flowers will be small. Do not rest these young plants in summer. After they have made good, strong flowering roots, they should be rested the same as the ordinary callas. While small, however, they must not be rested, but should be grown on continuously until they are of flowering strength. They will be better outdoors from June to September. Keep them well watered and fed. They should be ready for a shift at housing time.

Feeding and Temperature.

Give them a light bench, as near the glass as possible. As the pots get filled with roots, feed with liquid manure and give a top-dressing of fine bone. All callas love bone. It is a delight to see how the roots devour it, and the Godfrey is surely a greedy bone devourer.

Godfrey callas can be successfully grown in a minimum temperature of 50 degrees. In such a temperature they will flower from early October until the end of April. The flowers, however, are more valuable in midwinter and will open more quickly if a temperature of 55 to 60 degrees at night can be given them. A carnation temperature has been proved ideal for calla culture. When the higher temperature is given, the flowering season will be shortened about a month.

Three strong tubers in 7-inch and four in 8-inch pots have given splendid results. Pots occasionally carry six open flowers at one time and the flowers are far purer in color than those of the old calla, and just as large. The remark is often made that the flowers of the Godfrey are small. The best way to disprove this statement is to give the two kinds identical treatment and compare results. My experience has been that the Godfrey gives between two and three times as many flowers as the old calla, and they are just as large on the average.

RETAIL STORE MANAGEMENT

WHAT THE LEADERS IN THE TRADE ARE DOING

MORTGAGES OF RETAIL STOCKS.

According to a late decision of the Indiana Appellate court, in the case of Vermillion vs. National Bank of Greencastle, 105 Northeastern Reporter 530, the validity of a mortgage on the stock and fixtures of a florist or seedsman, as against unsecured creditors, must depend upon the question whether it was given with fraudulent intent to delay or hinder them in the collection of their claims, and not merely on the question whether it has the effect of delaying or hindering them. The decision was not announced in a case arising in the trade, but is applicable to all merchants. It is, therefore, held that a mortgage is good if given and received in good faith for the sole purpose of securing a debt due the mortgagee. The court goes a step farther and decides that such a mortgage may validly empower the mortgagor to sell his goods in the ordinary course of business and use part of the proceeds in replenishing his stock, and provide that the new goods shall be subject to the lien of the mortgage. S.

CHOOSE YOUR COLORS.

Did you ever wonder how the secretary of state from whom you obtained your automobile license hit upon the particular color scheme thereof? Or why the gentleman who installed the electric lighted sign over your store doorway, or who contracted for your billboard advertising, made the recommendations that he did as regards colors?

The knowledge of their reasons might be of value to the window decorator or card writer at your store. The basis for their selections is the table below, which indicates the comparative legibility of certain color combinations. It is the result of tests made recently in London. The precise distances mentioned are not so valuable as the comparative legibility indicated by them. It is worth noting that the difference between the first and last places on this table is a matter of approximately ten per cent.

The figures indicate the distance at which the signs of the colors given were readable:

WINTER WINDOW BOXES.

Now is the time to plan the filling of winter window boxes. Last autumn there was a wonderful increase in the business done in this line, largely as the result of the trade making an effort to get orders, and there is no reason why the income from this source should not be largely increased again this season. It will be found easy to interest people whose window boxes have been filled with soft-wooded stock during summer and to get an opportunity to relieve the bleakness of winter by filling the boxes with evergreens. Once the winter dress of green has become a habit, the orders are to be had for the asking, each autumn as well as each spring. This is one of the ways the city florist can add handsomely to his income if he will but take hold and push.

MAKE A CHARGE FOR IT.

I would like to have some florists' views on the making up of flowers for customers who have picked them from their own gardens or have bought them cheap from their neighbors. We refuse to make them up and have lost several customers, who accuse us of not being accommodating. What would you do? W. W. M.—Ind.

When one, at a summer resort, has good luck fishing, the hotel management gladly cooks and serves the catch—but there is no reduction in the bill because the guest supplies a portion of the food. A certain grower sends his commission-man three new-laid eggs with each day's consignment of flowers. The wholesaler eats them for his noonday luncheon—and he pays in the restaurant exactly what he would if he did not bring his own eggs.

There are, to be sure, all kinds of florists, just as there are all kinds of customers, but every florist worthy of the name charges for his skill and his time as well as his flowers; indeed, with a discriminating customer the skill employed in arrangement frequently is more valuable than the stock employed.

for the materials used in funeral work. Charge for your time and your skill; charge for service and give good service.

FOR "NATIONAL FLORISTS."

Colored advertising posters will be one of the features of the advertising campaign which the National Floral Corporation, of New York, proposes to launch this fall in behalf of its members, the National Florists. The posters are being furnished to every florist who has purchased the right to be known as the National Florist of his community. They are to be attached to the store windows of the florists simultaneously with the appearance of the magazine advertisements and other forms of publicity. The purpose of the advertising will be not only to persuade the general public to buy more flowers, but to use flowers as gifts to out-of-town friends, and to instruct the buyer how to mail his order and payment to the National Florists at the point where the flowers are to be delivered. The trade-mark of the organization, National Florist, upon a shield, will be prominently displayed in all advertising, as that is the keynote of the campaign. In order that the advertising may "hook up," the store fronts of the National Florists will be decorated with the trade-mark.

The posters are not large, being about two feet long and five inches high. They are printed in red and green, on glazed paper. Catchy phrases have been coined, such as "Saturday Flowers Make Sunday Gladness" and "Love Insurance: Buy Flowers." Others announce the current flowers on sale: "Chrysanthemums Are In Season," "Fresh Violets Just Received" and "American Beauty Day, Extra Long Stems." All posters feature the trade-mark, and some of them are adorned with colored illustrations of flowers. One poster is embellished by an illustration of the proverbial girl's head, and another has a bit of country scene.

The organization expects to have all its advertising distributed and everything in readiness for the start at Thanksgiving.

IN HONOR OF THE S. A. F.

With the S. A. F. coming to town, most of the first-class flower stores in San Francisco arranged special decorations, but none so elaborate as those of the Art Floral Co., of which P. Vincent Matraia is president and Julius Eppstein secretary. The front of the store blazed at night with the inscription, "Welcome S. A. F.," as shown in the accompanying illustration, and the interior was elaborately trimmed. The decoration was a huge success, being greatly admired both by the visitors and by local people. The latticework around the store was made and built just for this convention. The four panels had, as can be seen in the illustration, figures of girls carrying bouquets. The first one represented the bride carrying phalænopsis in a bride's bouquet, the rest of the decoration around the panel being of white hydrangeas, making a perfect setting for the bride. The second panel showed the bridesmaid, with the bridesmaid's bouquet of Ophelia roses, and around the panel roses of the same kind carried out the idea. The senorita, in yellow, carried a bouquet of Ward roses, while around the panel were yellow chrysanthemums, and crotons and celosia around the base made this a most beautiful picture. The other was called the corsage girl, carrying orchids, and around the panel rubrum lilies completed the decoration. The figures were painted on heavy cardboard and cut out with a knife around the lines of the figure; then they were placed against a panel of ferns with sixteen 8-candlepower electric lights around the oval frame shining on the green background, which made a most beautiful effect and setting, making the figures look almost alive.

The store was filled with vases and baskets of cut flowers in great variety and in such quantity as to remind the eastern visitors of Christmas and Easter.

THE GLADIOLUS

BIG SHOW WITHOUT PRIZES.

Atlantic City Gladiolus Exhibition.

The gladiolus show held August 26 to 29 under the auspices of the American Gladiolus Society in the Casino of the Royal Palace hotel, Atlantic City, N. J., was unique and artistic. Without exception, commercial growers, seedsmen and florists were the exhibitors. No prizes were offered, and there was no class competition whatever; the object of the show was to bring the gladiolus before the public and to stimulate interest in it as a garden flower and as a cut flower. Atlantic City was selected on account of the great number of visitors from everywhere in the country.

Perhaps never before have so many of one kind of flower been placed on view at one time. About 100,000 gladioli were used in the entire exhibit. To advertise the show, about 20,000 spikes were sent to the leading hotels free of charge, to be used in the dining rooms and exchanges. Part of the gate receipts, and the proceeds of the sale of about 10,000 spikes, were divided among four different charitable institutions.

Lectures.

Three lectures were given, the first one being by Max Schling, of New York, on "How to Use Gladiolus Flowers Artistically at Home." This talk was entertaining and instructive, and the speaker gave practical demonstrations by making a centerpiece and a corsage and filling two baskets with gladioli. Mr. Schling prefaced his remarks with a short history of the gladiolus. He praised the gladiolus for its beauty, usefulness and durability and recommended the flower for all purposes, making a strong plea for its wider use.

Arthur Cowee, of Berlin, N. Y., spoke on "The Individuality of Different Varieties of Gladiolus Flowers." Explaining many interesting points, the speaker showed that close association with the gladiolus made it possible for one to recognize varieties long before the flowers were visible.

Maurice Fuld, of the Knight & Struck Co., New York, spoke to the amateur growers on the growing of gladioli, and his remarks were valuable to all growers of these flowers.

Exhibits.

Unquestionably Max Schling's exhibit was the star attraction, occupying the center of the hall and the center of attention. The display was not only artistically a treat but also a demonstration of the usefulness of gladioli. A bride's shower bouquet of Rochester White and a bridesmaid's bouquet of Frank Pendleton demonstrated two new uses for these flowers and caused a sensation. Four immense baskets and a large vase of mixed gladioli were worthy of the praise bestowed upon them. A table about six feet across was made up as a large bed of America gladioli. The finishing touch to the exhibit was a table decoration of montbretias and primulinus gladioli.

Arthur Cowee staged a handsome exhibit. Most prominent for beauty and size were War, a wonderful red; Panama, which bids fair to replace America in pink, and Evolution, a fine rose-pink.

The exhibit of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., of Philadelphia, was cleverly arranged. A feature was a vase of gladioli grown from seed planted in April of this year.

The Henry F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, displayed hardy perennials as prominently as gladioli, and Philip Freud reported a number of good orders booked for them.

John Lewis Childs, of Flowerfield, N. Y., exhibited in addition to his gladioli a vase of hardy amaryllis, Lycoris squamigera, a beautiful lavender, which was admired a great deal.

The Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J., had on exhibition on the approach to the Casino some fine specimens of rare evergreens, in addition to a commendable show of gladioli in the hall.

The Edwards Floral Hall Co., Atlantic City, showed some fine plants of Lilium magnificum.

Heatherhome blue drapings added much to the pleasing effect of the Knight & Struck Co. booth. Many varieties of gladioli were shown.

The palms, crotons and ferns which adorned the stage, where an orchestra played nightly, were placed there by Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, as an addition to the firm's exhibit of gladioli.

A. E. Kunderd, of Goshen, Ind., the originator of the ruffled gladioli, showed photographs only, which were quite interesting.

Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., staged a good show of hardy flowers and roses, which received no little admiration. H. C. H.

CANNOT DODGE DUTY.

The Board of Appraisers has overruled the protest of Maltus & Ware, of New York, in regard to the rate of duty on imported mother flowering gladiolus bulbs. They were assessed for duty under paragraph 210 of the 1913 tariff act at 50 cents per thousand. The importers claimed they were free of duty under the proviso of that paragraph which states that all mother flowering bulbs imported for propagation shall be admitted free. The board in the following decision overruled the claim:

"The contention of the importers is that there is no way of telling from an inspection whether bulbs are mature mother flowering bulbs or not, and that if they are in a condition to reproduce, then they should be held to be mature mother flowering bulbs, and free. This loses sight, it seems to us, of the provision that they must be imported exclusively for propagating purposes. It may well be thought that Congress in passing this law felt there was difficulty in determining this fact, hence the implied requirement that proof should be made that the bulbs were imported exclusively for propagating purposes. It was not intended, we think, to admit all mother bulbs, including such as were imported for the production of flowers for nurseries and greenhouses and flower stores, simply on the ground that they were sufficiently matured to flower. We understand that the flowering and reproducing stages are contemporaneous. To hold as the importers claim would be practically to admit free of duty all bulbs of this kind that would flower, regardless of the intention of the importers with reference to propagation. We must therefore hold that the requirements of the statute have not been complied with, the plain implication of which is that importers must prove the bulbs are imported exclusively for propagating purposes. The protest is overruled.''

THE HARDY FLOWER GARDEN.

Perennials in Early September.

The summer now closing has been specially favorable for nearly all hardy herbaceous plants. Since early July rainfalls have been copious and we have not had any excessive heat waves or discouraging droughts, as in former years. It is true that heavy rains damage perennials to some degree while they are in flower, but not seriously, as in the case of annuals. With the ground moist, all varieties have made remarkable growth, and, thanks to the moderate temperatures, the flowering season of most varieties has been considerably prolonged.

We have now reached a period where a large proportion of the plants are of robust habit, and, unless some of these receive some support, they will appear ungainly. It cannot be truthfully said that the hardy garden in late August and early September is as attractive as in June, as in the later period many plants have a faded appearance, but, where a well planned selection has been planted, there will still, for some weeks, be a splendid floral display.

A Good Time for Replanting.

With cooler nights and heavy dews, we may retain for several weeks such plants as would pass in a few days during the heat of July and early August. This, also, is the ideal season for transplanting quantities of perennial seedlings of whatever varieties we may have been raising. Given cloudy weather and moist ground, this work can be done now expeditiously and successfully. While the great majority can go outdoors, any of at all doubtful hardiness would better be wintered in coldframes. If the ground is kept well stirred, it is really surprising how much growth perennials will make between now and the middle of October.

Not only can seedlings be transplanted now, but, if time will allow it, a good many hardy perennials can be lifted, divided where necessary, and replanted in new, well prepared ground. A few varieties which do specially well if moved thus early are German, Japanese and Siberian irises, peonies, Pyrethrum roseum, Lobelia cardinalis, Trollius Europæus and Asiaticus, primulas, aquilegias and heucheras. Of course, all these plants can be moved as late as the end of October, but they will do vastly better if transplanted between now and the middle of September.

The Japanese Anemones.

Prominent among the perennials now in bloom are the Japanese anemones. These start to flower in August and persist until November. What beautiful flowers they are! And how surprising it is that we rarely see them in a flower store! Anemone Japonica alba, the single pure white variety, is still, in my opinion, the most beautiful and useful of the whole family, but there are some newer sorts which are splendid. A few of these are: Lord Ardilaun, double white; Whirlwind, white with a double row of petals; Queen Charlotte, light silvery pink, semi-double; Prince Heinrich, deep pink, and Mont Rose, double soft rose. Any of these anemones, once well established, will grow four feet in height. They should be transplanted in spring and not in the fall. They stand severe weather if given a good coating of leaves as the ground freezes, but always be sure that no water can stand where they are growing.

For those who are unable to winter these anemones outdoors, the best plan is to lift the roots and store them in sand in a cool cellar, planting them out in April. Plants which are lifted annually will bloom later than undisturbed ones and will be less robust. In propagating them, cut the roots in short pieces, cover with sand where they can get a moderate bottom heat and few will fail to grow. Pot off, harden gradually, and plant outdoors in April.

CARNATIONS

THE PLANTS IN THE BENCHES.

To Prevent Spot Diseases.

After your plants have been in the benches, say about three weeks, it would be advisable to give a thorough spraying with Bordeaux mixture. This is to counteract any inclination to leaf-spot or fairy ring, which might have been brought on during the period immediately following the benching, while you were obliged to spray frequently. The hotter this period was, the more danger there was of these diseases getting started. Look your plants over carefully, and if there are any signs of spot disease, do not stop with one application of the Bordeaux, but spray with it once each week for at least the next month.

If your plants were topped properly in the field, there will be no great hurry about supporting them, but if they do not stand up as they should, you will have to put on supports at the first opportunity. It is a great help to be able to get rid of the weeds and to get through with the surface scratching before the supports are put on, as they are more or less in the way. About a month after benching we make a light application of slaked lime, scratching it into the soil well before watering. In fact, after scratching the lime in, we like to let it remain about a day in that condition, before watering.

Keeping Plants and House Clean.

From that time on, water only the soil. Do not allow it to get excessively dry, but let it run a little on the dry side occasionally and then water thoroughly, to reach clear through. Syringe about once each week, with all the pressure at your command, to ward off red spider. If you brought in any spider from the field, it would be advisable to spray with salt water a few times, until the plants are free of them.

When you took out the old soil, you probably gave the houses a good cleaning. That is as it should be, but it is not enough. During the replanting, weeding and working over the soil, more or less litter is sure to be scattered in the walks. Clean this all up and pull out any grass or weeds that may be growing along the edge of the walks. If the walks became slimy while you kept them flushed, throw around some lime to sweeten things. Remember that during the next two months is when you will be making your winter crop. If you are careless during this period, the yield will surely show the effects.

Replacing Dead Plants.

Just as soon as the plants that were potted, for replacing those that have died out, are established, they should be set in wherever needed. Take out a good handful of the soil right around the plant and sprinkle a little lime around before setting in the new plant. We find this is usually sufficient to prevent further trouble, but, should the second plant die, you will have to take out the soil from a space a foot in diameter and replace with new soil. This is also much more easily done before the supports are put in place.

If you had plenty of good plants for your own needs, you will probably have a good number left in the field, which were a little undersized. These will grow into good, salable plants in a few weeks, if properly taken care of. Keep on cultivating them, topping them as needed, just the same as you did earlier. A few years ago many carnation growers would fill their benches with the good plants and then advertise the leavings without giving them much attention. This time has passed, as now there are plenty of good field-grown plants, which have been grown especially for this branch of the trade. It might be said right here that a poorly grown plant cannot possibly give satisfactory results and a cheap purchase price can never make up the loss in blooms during the season. So, if you have to buy, be careful to secure plants that have been properly cared for. By the same token, if you want to sell your surplus plants, do not neglect them, or this year's customer will never come near you again. A. F. J. Baur.

FOREST SOIL NOT SUITABLE.

Would a forest soil, which is of a clayey nature and has been covered continually with a heavy leaf-mold, be a good soil for greenhouse beds in which to grow carnations for cut flowers? If not, what sort of soil should I use? H. B.—Ind.

The soil you describe would not be suitable for carnations. Such forest soil, or leaf-mold, answers well for ferns, palms, begonias, etc., but is not suitable for carnations, roses, chrysanthemums or any of that class of plants. It is now too late to begin preparing soil that would be considered ideal, but if you have a plot of ground that has been under cultivation and the soil is fairly rich, you can take a 6-inch layer off that and use it in your carnation benches. If you have some good decomposed cattle or stable manure, you could mix some of this with it before filling the benches.

Begin this fall the preparations for your next year's soil. Select a plot of good, heavy sod, which can be plowed this fall and left to lie until spring, after being covered with a coat of manure. If preferred, it can be piled up with alternate layers of manure. This is to be chopped down and piled over in the spring. A. F. J. B.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS FOR SOUTHERN FLORISTS

BULBS IN THE SOUTH.

The French bulbs are arriving, but it is still too early, in the south, to start them off; so it is in order to unpack the boxes and place the bulbs in a cool, dry cellar. If any flowers of Paper White narcissi are wanted for Thanksgiving, the bulbs can be boxed about October 1, placed outside and covered with a few inches of sand or other loose material. They will flower in from three to four weeks after being housed, in a night temperature of 55 to 60 degrees. It is better to give Roman hyacinths a little more time in the outside frame, so that they may be well rooted before being brought into the heat.

If there is an empty bench in the houses, that is a good place in which to plant Paper Whites for a quick crop. Planted on a bench right after Thanksgiving, they will readily make flowers for Christmas in a night temperature of 55 to 60 degrees. When flowering pans of these are wanted for the holidays, the results are better if the bulbs are started in boxes in the usual way outside, and potted up when they flower. The bulbs flower a little irregularly in the first part of the season, so that when planted directly in the pans they do not make as even plants as when made up from boxes. In the extreme southern sections the bulbs are mostly planted out in coldframes. A succession is kept up by planting every week, and they are allowed to flower under sashes. L.

ROSES IN THE SOUTH.

Notwithstanding the many vagaries of the weather during the last month, the young plants have made good growth. In the more northern section of the south, the spraying may be lessened. A good syringing in the morning and spraying at midday are enough to maintain the necessary moisture in the houses. In the extreme south more spraying will be required for a month yet.

A little extra stimulant may now be given, in the form of either a light mulch of cow manure, or a top-dressing of guano at the rate of ten quarts to 500 square feet of bench surface, lightly scratched in.

The ventilation at both top and side must still be kept fully open, except, of course, during heavy storms. The unusually cool nights in some sections lately might induce some growers to lower the ventilators, but it is much better to have them fully open day and night. A fully ventilated house is practically immune from mildew. As the time for firing approaches and the temperature takes a decided drop, the top ventilation may be reduced, but it is always a good plan to leave the side ventilation on till firing is started. BUD SELECTION.

Perplexing Phraseology.

The chrysanthemum is often a source of perplexity to the beginner in floriculture, on account of the confusing phraseology regarding buds. He reads about crown and terminal buds, or else he reads that he should take the bud August 10, 20, or 30, as the case may be; when the particular date comes around and he looks for a bud, but fails to find one, he wonders what he should do. I shall briefly describe the difference in the buds.

Assuming that the plants have been set out in May or early June, they will produce a bud in July. This is known as the first break, crown bud, or summer bud, and on practically all varieties is ignored. Immediately around this tiny bud are three or more growth shoots, of which the grower selects the best looking one or two, according to the number of flowers he wishes per plant, and carries them along.

When the plant is permitted to run along in this manner, it will make another bud from the middle to the end of August. This also is called a crown bud, and has the same growth shoots surrounding it. If this bud appears the latter part of August—the last week, for instance—it is perfectly safe to take it in almost any section of the country. Expert growers in the northern districts, or where the climate is cool and moist, will often, if this bud appears around August 1, hold it and get wonderful flowers from it. In the hot, dry valleys, a bud taken before August 20 would be too early, and would not produce a perfect flower.

Modified Crown and Terminal.

Some varieties, if the crown bud is not retained at the end of August, will produce another bud after September 15, which may be termed a modified crown, since, while it has growth shoots surrounding it as in the previous case, the shoots only make a growth of four or five inches and then produce the terminal bud. This modified crown, as it is termed, is always a perfectly safe bud, though it will not produce flowers of a size and depth that an earlier crown will, provided it has not been taken too early.

The last bud the plant produces is called the terminal bud, because it is the terminus or finish of growth and no bud is produced after that. The terminal bud is easily identified as the central one of a cluster of smaller buds. If the grower wishes to have flowers as late in the season as possible, he selects late varieties, such as Brock, Chadwick or Nonin, and pinches out the buds in succession as they appear, until he gets the terminal bud. In some varieties it will appear in September, while in others it is quite late in October. By keeping the plants as cool as he reasonably can, he is assured of late flowers, from Thanksgiving to Christmas.

Element of Time.

Where the instructions read, "Take the bud August 20," and there is no bud in sight at that time, it means the grower should take the bud that next appears after that date. In case the bud shows, we will say, August 15, and the instructions from the specialist read that a bud taken from August 20 to 25 would be safe, this bud can be retained and carried along by permitting the growth shoots to make enough growth to produce one leaf. This will check the sap's flowing directly into the bud, and the bud will not starve sufficiently to cause it to dry up. At the end of a given time the shoots can be removed one by one, and the bud will come along and produce a perfect flower. Where the bud appears at the right time and looks perfect, the shoots or buds surrounding it should be removed at the earliest possible opportunity, in order to throw all the strength of the plant into the future flower. If the side buds or shoots are allowed to get quite large, because the grower is too busy with other work to remove them, just so much energy has been taken from the plant and gone to waste.

Pompons and Singles.

The above remarks on buds apply to the large-flowering varieties. Pompons and singles can be left to take care of themselves until the final disbudding. The plants will make one or two breaks, or early buds, depending somewhat on the length of time they have been growing, and will grow on, increasing the quantity of shoots with each break, until they produce the final crop of buds. These can then be thinned out at the discretion of the cultivator, to one or more flowers (as in the case of the large flowers) if the grower chooses, though in the case of the hardy types the sprays of flowers are more attractive than the individual blooms. DISEASE DUE TO HUMIDITY.

I am sending under separate cover some geranium leaves, so that you may examine them and tell me what is the trouble with them. Several of my best plants have been affected in this way and I have been unable to do anything to check the disease. It seems to spread to the other plants. Please let me know how to remedy this trouble.
M. D. P.—Ohio.

The foliage when received was so badly decomposed that I could not tell what the disease was. I think it probable that your plants, in common with those of many other growers, are attacked with a fungoid growth due to the excessive humidity of the present season. This disease is common during spells of hot, sultry weather, when fogs or rainfalls are plentiful and the foliage remains more or less damp, sometimes for several successive days. In dry weather it disappears. All you can do is to pick off the worst affected foliage. Sprayings with Bordeaux or Fungine help in some measure, but both disfigure the foliage more or less. Geraniums that are thinly planted or well elevated in boxes or vases, where the air will circulate through them and keep the foliage dry, are seldom attacked. The spot appears under glass as well as outdoors and it is there caused by a too stuffy, humid atmosphere, by keeping the plants too damp at the roots and by excessive syringing. Maintain a dry, buoyant atmosphere; do not shade at all; ventilate freely and let the plants dry out well between waterings; then your trouble will disappear. C. W.

FERNS WITH GERANIUMS.

Would Boston ferns do well in a greenhouse in which geraniums are kept in winter for flower beds in the spring? What is the right temperature for geraniums and for calla lilies?
A. L.—Mo.

Boston ferns will grow well in a geranium temperature. To have them of a dark green color, they need some shade. A night temperature of 45 to 50 degrees suits geraniums. Callas in winter should have 10 degrees more heat. C. W.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Bouvardias.

Before the arrival of cold nights, bouvardias in the field should be lifted and either potted or benched. Be careful to lift a nice ball with each plant and all roots possible. Keep the plants shaded from bright sunshine for some days and spray freely until they cease wilting. Of course, bouvardias can be left outdoors for some time yet in southern sections, but in the north it is better to lift them by the first week in September. I have known of instances where a temperature several degrees above freezing destroyed the buds on B. Humboldtii, the large sweet-scented variety, which is easily the finest of all the bouvardias and which can be grown to produce stems eighteen to forty-eight inches long if given some disbudding.

Hydrangeas.

Hydrangeas are moderately hardy, but the French varieties are much more tender than H. Otaksa, and it is good policy to lift and pot any field-grown stock during the first half of September, keeping the plants outdoors, of course, for some time yet. There is no immediate hurry about potting up H. Otaksa, but if the plants are wanted for early flowering, they will establish themselves in the pots if taken up now. You can probably secure an abundance of cuttings now from old plants. Take off a lot of tops now, pot singly in 2½-inch pots, plunge in a coldframe, keep close and shaded until rooted and keep these potted along so as to flower in 5-inch pots in the spring. Each of them will produce one immense head. Carry them over winter in a cool house and do not let them rest at all, as in the case of older plants.

Romans and Paper Whites.

As soon as the bulbs of Romans and Paper Whites arrive, place a batch in flats. The Paper Whites can be bloomed much earlier than the Romans, but there is no great demand for either until chrysanthemums are on the wane. The bulbs, when placed in flats, can be stood on a cellar floor, or, if preferred, in the open air, and given a coating of fine coal ashes to prevent drying out. Bulbs that are to be kept for some time should be spread out on shelves in a dry shed, and not left in the cases in which they arrive.

Lilium Candidum.
